PASSING AWAY OF A BRIGHT YOUNG LIFE

Miss Gertrude Andrews Died at Home of Her Parents Yesterday Afternoon.

SHE WAS VERY POPULAR.

PASSED CRISIS OF ILLNESS BUT RELAPSE PROVED FATAL.

Miss Andrews Was an Active Christian Worker and Universally Beloved—Was an Enthusiastic Golfer.

All the community has been greatly saddened by the death of Miss Mary Gertrude Andrews, who passed away at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Andrews, of Central avenue, yesterday afternoon. The news of her death came as a shock as it was generally believed that she had passed safely through the critical part of an attack of typhoid fever and was on the way toward recovery. She was taken ill several weeks ago, but her splendid constitution carried her safely through the crisis and she began to rally. Two days ago her condition grew worse and she passed quietly away at 5 o'clock after every possible effort has been made to preserve life. The best of medical attendance was secured but in vain.

Of the young women of Plainfield, there was none more universally popular and more generally beloved than Miss Andrews. She was born in Bryn Mawr, Pa., twenty-two years ago and came to this city with her parents fifteen years ago. After attending school in this city and New York, she spent two years in Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn. From a child, her bright and sunny temperament made her a great favorite with all those with whom she came in contact. She was the idol of her parents and was always very intimate with them. She leaves a younger sister, Louise.

Miss Andrews united with the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church when a young girl and always retained her interest in the church and its institutions. She was an active worker there and taught a class of young girls in Hope chapel for several years. She had recently spent several weeks at the Whittier House, a social settlement in Jersey City, and had brought good cheer into the lives of many, old and young, who came under the influence of that institution, greatly endearing herself to her fellow workers there. She was hoping to resume that work when this illness came to interrupt all such kindly purposes.

Although active in local social circles, Miss Andrews was particularly fond of an active outdoor life. She was one of the best and most enthusiastic players among the young women who were members of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. Last summer she captained the team of young women who represented the Hillside Club in a series of matches with other clubs.

All who knew her, here and elsewhere, will remember long and tenderly that bright and gentle spirit, and the beauty of that Christian character. In this city, where she spent most of her life, there are a great host of friends and acquaintances who will mourn her death and will deeply sympathize with the sorrowing parents in their bereavement. Her death, coming as it did at the very opening of her life's career, is a particularly sad one.

The funeral services will be held from the residence of her parents, 818 Central avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

LUNCHEON AT CASINO.

Charming Affair Given by Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. George T. Rogers Yesterday.

A delightful luncheon was given by Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. George T. Rogers, of Myrtle avenue, yesterday in the Casino. Covers were laid for forty and the guests were from this city and the borough. The luncheon was given upstairs in the large and small rooms. In the large room, the tables were arranged to form a letter "T," and here there were thirty guests. In the small room ten guests were seated at the round table. The decorations were artistic and beautiful.

After the luncheon the guests adjourned to the rooms below, where a social time was enjoyed. Most of the guests brought their work along with them, and, while they chatted, made use of their time.

MANY HONORED HIS MEMORY.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT FUNERAL OF HENRY B. VAN ALSTYNE.

Services Were Held From Residence of His Parents Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral services of Henry Burhans VanAlstyne, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of the parents, 730 Watchung avenue. They were attended by a large number of relatives and friends, including members of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M., Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., and the Seneca Athletic Club, of which the deceased was a member.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated, and after reading appropriate Scripture selections, he made a few remarks in which he extended comforting words to the bereaved family, and impressed all with the importance of putting their trust in God, who alone can give comfort and peace, and an assurance of a continued life of happiness hereafter. During the service, E. E Runyen sang two appropriate selections.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, including a pillow from Wetumpkah Tribe, of Red Men, and one from Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., a bunch of flowers from the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church and a broken column from the Seneca Athletic Club.

The interment took place in Hillside cemetery, and those who served as pall bearers were George Sterling and Clarence VanAlstyne, of New York; Frank Stover, Nathan R. Titsworth, Albert Vail and Samuel Schuyler, of this city.

INDICTED TWICE FOR STEALING BICYCLES.

But Horace B. Washington Has Departed From Town Before Warrants Arrived.

CONSTABLE IS AFTER HIM.

WANTED ON CHARGE OF STEALING TWO BICYCLES.

Cases Were Considered By Grand Jury and Two Indictments Brought—Remarkable Way Wheel Numbers Were Found.

Horace B. Washington, who until one day last week was employed as butler at the residence of Stephen A Ginna, of Watchung avenue, is wanted to answer to two indictments brought in by the Grand Jury of Union county. He is charged with stealing a Cleveland bicycle from Charles B. Morse, of Franklin place, May 21, 1900, and a Cleveland bicycle from Godwin Beard, of Hillside avenue, one night later that summer. Constable Peter V Weaver was in town yesterday afternoon with two warrants in his pocket for Washington, but Washington had left town and failed to leave note of his destination behind

The wheel, which was stolen from Charles B. Morse, was taken into the store of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company one day last December by Edward Terry, of Watchung avenue. It was immediately recognized by Geo. M. MacIntyre, the manager of Martin's store. Terry claimed that he purchased the wheel of a colored man, named Washington, who was employed by Mr. Ginna as butler The number was filed off, but so few changes had been made to it that it was easily identified by the owner. Terry had a witness to prove that he purchased the wheel of Washington.

Thomas Washington, janitor of the Stillman building but no relation to the other Washington, subsequently turned over to the police a Cleveland wheel which he claimed to have purchased from Horace Washington. The number was filed off. The wheel exactly resembled the one which had been stolen from Godwin Beard.

A warrant was issued in Justice Nash's court for Horace Washington on the charge of stealing Morse's wheel. He was arrested and arraigned before Justice Nash. He waived examination and was held under bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury. The case was subsequently reopened at the request of Mr. Ginna who was to have gone on Washington's bail. An examination was held but the complainant, by advice of his counsel, City Judge William N. Runyon, did not appear. Justice Nash discharged Washington.

The identity of the wheels owned by Beard and Morse was proved in a way entirely new to most people. Experiments made at the Western Wheel Works recently brought out the fact that when the number was stamped on the wheel it made a compression of the metal which remained after the number itself was filed off. A series of tests revealed the fact that a certain acid would eat its way around this compression and bring out the numbers even if they had been filed off This acid was quite expensive and was only discovered after long experimenting.

F. L. C. Martin secured some of the acid from the Western Wheel Works and the two wheels, with the numbers filed off, were carefully treated. After being in the acid bath for over a week the numbers gradually appeared and were very easy to read. They proved, without the possibility of a doubt, that the wheels were those stolen from Beard and Morse.

A strong chain of evidence was collected and placed in the hands of Prosecutor English. The witnesses were then summoned before the Grand Jury one day last week. The police say that on the evening of that day, Washington collected his property and they have since been able to get no trace of him.

When the Grand Jury brought in the indictments Wednesday there were two against Washington for larceny. Warrants were then issued and given to Constable Weaver to serve but he is still looking for the colored man. The police say that Washington has left the State and they do not expect that he will return. If he should he will have to stand trial.

WORK OF M'ALL MISSION.

DESCRIBED AT TEA GIVEN AT RESIDENCE OF MRS. C. A. STRONG.

Interesting Addresses Were Followed by a Social Hour—Those Who Assisted.

The "McAll Tea," given by Mrs. George A. Strong at her residence on on Central avenue Wednesday afternoon, was, notwithstanding the snow storm, a perfect success. A large number responded by their presence to the cards of invitation sent out, and undoubtedly felt well repaid for venturing through the storm

Dr. J. Balcom Shaw, pastor of the West End Presbyterian church, of New York, made a most interesting though brief address, on the work accomplished in France by the McAll Mission, urging its claims on all Christians. He was followed by Mrs. Henry Haines, the president of the Elizabeth Auxiliary, who spoke a few words of encouragement. Rev. Dr. William R Richards then outlined the especial results of the work at Limoges, to which the funds of the Plainfield society are devoted.

The capacious house was beautifully decorated with palms and flowers, the table color being red.

Mrs. Strong was assisted in receiving by the president of the Plainfield Auxiliary, Mrs. Frederick Meade, Mrs Lawrence Myers, Mrs George W. Van Boskerck, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, Mrs John Gray Foster, Mrs. Charles T Lee, Mrs. Isaac N. Field, Mrs. VanSickle, Mrs. Wm. R. Richards, Mrs. Wm. M. Stillman and the Misses Strong, Schroeder, Haddock, Anna Miller, Ethel Bowen, Clapp.

SURPRISE BOTH NIGHTS.

Friends of Clancey F. Stout Arrived When They Were Not Expected—A Pleasant Evening Spent.

An enjoyable surprise was given to Chauncey F. Stout, the popular manager of the circulation department of the Daily Press, at his home at Park place, last evening, in honor of the anniversary of his birthday. The anniversary occurred Wednesday, but Mrs. Stout, who arranged the affair, planned to have it last evening to ward off suspicion. The plan worked perfectly. Mr. Stout was completely surprised both evenings. He had expected a party at his home Wednesday evening, and last evening, when he did not expect anyone, the company arrived.

Mr. Stout went out early in the evening, and while away the guests gathered at his home and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martin, on Duer street, and then proceeded to the home of the surprised. When Mr. Stout arrived home about 9 o'clock, he found the company all assembled, and he acknowledged his surprise. He soon joined heartily in the festivities, and an evening of genuine pleasure followed. There was dancing and playing of games. At a late hour supper was served, after which the guests departed, wishing Mr. Stout many happy returns of the day.

Returned From Philippines.

James Hewitt, of the borough, who for the past two years has been in the Philippines as a member of the Sixth Infantry band, has secured his discharge and arrived home yesterday. He returned overland by way of San Francisco. Mr. Hewitt is in excellent health, but has suffered greatly from the intense heat, which necessitated his going to the hospital several times. During his term of service he was promoted to rank of corporal.

Stumbled Over Flag Stone.

Michael Weber, the South Second street butcher, met with a painful accident while returning to his home on East Third street a few nights ago. It was at the corner of Arlington avenue and Fourth street, that he stumbled over a flag stone that projected above the others. His side was bruised and he sustained other injuries, which Dr. Clawson treated properly. He is now able to be out, but suffers some pain as a result of his fall.

PUBLIC SERVICE HELD IN MEMORY OF QUEEN

Many Assembled at Hope Chapel Last Evening Where Memorial Services Were Held.

TOLD OF HER TRUE WORTH.

ADDRESSES BY REVS. DR. RICHARDS, FLOYD APPLETON AND MR. NEWELL.

Men, Women and Children of All Civilized Nations Mourned at Her Death—High Praise for England's Late Ruler.

The first public service to be held in this city in memory of England's late ruler, Queen Victoria, took place in Hope chapel last evening. At the hour of commencement practically every seat in the pretty little edifice was occupied by admirers of the departed sovereign, who took this means of expressing their regret at her demise.

Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of the chapel, was in charge of the service and was assisted by Rev. Dr. W. R Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate of Grace P. E church, all of whom made remarks of an eulogistic character. The dead queen's virtues, as numerous as they were diverse, were extolled in a manner which greatly impressed those in attendance as to her true worth and nobleness.

In opening his remarks, Dr. Richards stated that on the death of William the Silent, children cried in the streets, but when the sad intelligence was sent broadcast over the land that Victoria's reign was at an end, not only children mourned but men and women in all civilized nations of the world did also. They did this, not because of her long reign, but for her exemplary private character. She not only ruled the nation and herself, but her influence was felt by everyone with whom she came in contact.

At the time of her ascension to the British throne, the government and royal court, in regard to morals, was in a state which defied belief and with which in comparison, the government of New York today is above reproach. Yet the young queen by her indomitable will, transformed the court and its surroundings from everything that was bad into a model government respected by all men. In addition to this she found time to be a model wife and mother and sought in many ways to prove worthy of the respect bestowed upon her. During his remarks Dr. Richards pointed out many details of her character which might be applied to personal advantage by those who admired all that was pure and noble.

Rev. Mr. Appleton, who was the second speaker, declared the Queen's object in life was to be, and to be felt to be, the mother of her country. That she succeeded in this self imposed task is beyond questioning. She was a mother in the true sense of the word to her own family, to the state and to the church. The latter in particular felt her wonderful influence, she always having its spiritual welfare at heart. With that wonderful tact possessed by a woman, she guided the Presbyterians of England and the Episcopalians of Scotland in peace and harmony never once allowing a conflict. In her death her subjects have lost a friend who took at extended interest in every part of their lives.

The closing address was made by Rev. Mr. Newell who is a few well chosen words further impressed his hearers with the great loss which the world had suffered but which might be partially atoned for by endeavoring to live up to the irreproachable example established by the departed.

All the Stock Sold.

The bidding at the auction of the Thorpe Mantel Company on Park avenue yesterday afternoon was lively enough to dispose of all the remaining articles which had been left over from previous sales during the past month. All the gas logs, mantels and the few pieces of tiling were sold. The amount realized will be in the neighborhood of $125.

Off to South Africa.

DEATH AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS.

MRS. J. C. POPE PASSED AWAY AT HOSPITAL LAST NIGHT.

Went There For Operation For Appendicitis—Resided In This City For Many Years—Conscious to the Last.

Mrs. James C. Pope, of West Fourth street, died last evening at Muhlenberg Hospital, where Wednesday she underwent an operation for appendicitis. Last Monday Mrs. Pope went to New York, and that evening she attended the consecration service of the Christian Endeavor Society at Trinity Reformed church, taking part in the service. The following day she was taken ill and an examination showed that the trouble was appendicitis. Wednesday morning she was taken to the hospital for an operation. She survived this very well and was improving until yesterday morning, when there was a turn for the worse. After that she continued to fail and died about 11:30 o'clock last evening. She was conscious to the last. During the last hours she was surrounded by her relatives.

Mrs. Pope was the daughter of the late John King, of this city, and was born at Dunellen, where the family lived for some time. She had been a resident of Plainfield about twenty-five years. She was a woman of many excellent qualities and of a charitable disposition. Some few years ago she suffered with an illness which caused a partial helplessness of the lower limbs. She was, however, able to get about with the aid of a cane and she experienced little difficulty.

Mrs. Pope was an attendant at Trinity Reformed church for several years, and joined the church about a year ago on confession of faith. Since that time she has been one of the faithful attendants, never missing a service, if able to go. She was closely identified in the various departments of the church work, being a member of the Sunday school, and only recently she commenced teaching a class, last Sunday being her first. In the Christian Endeavor Society she was a faithful and zealous worker, as she was also in the Young Woman's Mission Band. In the former organization she was a member of the prayer-meeting committee, and in the latter she was a member of the missionary committee.

Besides a husband and one son, William Pope, Mrs Pope leaves three sisters, Mrs. Belle Clark and Mrs. Delia Cannon, of Newark; Mrs. A. D. Pope, of Duer street, in the borough, and two brothers, Robert King, of Asbury Park, and George King, of Newark.

The funeral services will be held from her late residence, 115 West West Fourth street, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

ALL PAID DIME.

First of Series of Socials Given by Friendship Lodge, Degree of Rebecca.

There were thirty present at the first of a series of dime socials given last evening by Friendship Lodge, No. 4, Degree of Rebecca, I. O. of O. F., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter VanFleet, of East Third street.

A number of other socials are expected to be held by the members of this lodge in the near future, and every effort was exerted to make this, the first one, a complete success.

Everyone was expected to contribute a dime, which was to go into the funds for the benefit of the order.

The Misses Gray, of Fanwood, and Miss Jackson, of this city, contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the evening by their vocal and instrumental selections.

Late in the evening refreshments were served, and soon after the members departed.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. J. B. Higgins, Mrs. L. Bowman, Mrs. John Rittenhouse, Mrs. Peter VanFleet and Jacob Hettering.

Piano Agency Secured.

G. H. Kenyon, the piano and bicycle dealer at 315 West Front street, has just secured the agency for the celebrated McPhail piano, which is made in Boston. It is built on honor and sells on its merits. An inspection is asked. Mr. Kenyon also sells the well-known Kimball piano. Read the new advertisemet in today's Press.

Talked on German Literature.

Mrs. Louis Fisher gave an instructive lecture yesterday afternoon in the guild room of Grace P. E. church on the subject of "German Literature." The audience was greatly interested in Mrs. Fisher's talk and it will be the means of taking a deeper interest in the literature.

WORK TO BE DONE IN SUNDAY-SCHOOLS

Annual Meeting of Plainfield Sunday-School Union Was Held Last Evening.

ADDRESS BY MR. MEIGS.

WORK OF THE YEAR WAS BRIEFLY REVIEWED.

C. D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, Was Chief Speaker and Gave Instructive Talk on Sunday-School Work—Election of Officers Held.

The first annual meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Union was held last night in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, a large number of Sunday-school workers being present. Rev. Arthur E. Main, president of the Union, was in the chair.

The meeting began with a song service, and opening prayers by Robert Love and J. Henry Manning. The secretary of the Union, Joseph A. Robinson, then presented his annual report. He told briefly of the organization of the Union, and what had been accomplished during the year. There have been held a public meeting in the interest of Sunday school work, a meeting for superintendents and three practical and interesting Sunday-school Institutes. House-to-house visitation is also being carried on. With regard to the finances of the Union, Mr. Robinson said that the expenses had been greater than the receipts for the year.

The chairman appointed as a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year, William D. Murray, J. Henry Manning and Robert Love.

The speaker of the evening, C. D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, associate editor of the Sunday School Evangel, and a practical Sunday-school worker, was then introduced. Miss Baldwin, the New Jersey State Secretary of Primary Work, who was also to deliver an address, was unable to be present.

Mr. Meigs' subject was "Needs of the Hour in Sunday-school Work," and he began by speaking of the necessity, in these stirring times, of Sunday-school methods being as thoroughly up to-date as the methods of the week-day school.

The first need, he said, was more spiritual power. He appealed to every teacher present to look back over his past year's work, and see if he saw in it no need for more spiritual power. More earnest prayer, more careful, thoughtful study of the lessons, and a more truly Spirit-filled life, were some of the points he brought out as essentials for more successful Sunday-school work in the coming year. His ideal teacher would not only be a Bible teacher on Sunday, but on Monday and Tuesday as well. Let God, he said, take entire possession of you.

More physical power, the speaker considered the second need of the hour in Sunday-school work. In other words, more Christian activity. If Christianity is in the head, said he, it should be in the heels as well. Those who have plenty of Christian work to do are not those who are given to backsliding.

Third, more mental power. Rather a better use of the mental power already in the school; a more thorough training of workers by means of normal classes. Sunday-school leaders are mortal; they cannot hold their positions forever, and others must be prepared to take their places.

In closing, Mr. Meigs tacked up before his audience what he called the standard motto for a Sunday-school:

"I—Every member a Christian;
"II.—Every Christian a Worker;
"III.—Every Worker Trained;"

and expressed an earnest wish that this might be the ideal toward which every school in the Union might strive.

At the close of the address, the opportunity was given for those present to ask Mr. Meigs questions with regard to practical points in Sunday-school work and some interesting questions were discussed. Mr. Meigs advised teachers whose pupils did not study the lessons at home to make a strong effort to secure the co-operation of the parents and to give the pupils some interesting point in the lesson to look up at home. He strongly advocated the holding of regular teachers' meetings for the study of the lesson and spoke of schools which had found it helpful to have rules requiring regular attendance from teachers. Reports from teacher to school and from teach-

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

The latest of the intensely dramatic works of fiction to be utilized for stage purposes because of their great dramatic possibilities is Marie Corelli's "Sorrows of Satan," originally produced with great success at the Shaftsbury Theatre, London, now for the first time touring this country, and which will be at Music Hall Monday night. Its story is not only dramatic in the extreme; it is also audaciously novel and original. Certainly nothing has appeared in recent fiction more dramatic or unique than this figure of Satan, a distinct personality, living on the earth, scrupulously modern in his dress, received by men as a mortal like themselves, yet realizing himself that he is that "Son of the Morning" who once sat on the right hand of the Heavenly throne. And the character given him in the story and the play is equally revolutionary. He is pictured not as a fiend, gloating over the crimes of men and the fall of women, but as a former angel whose proud boast in Heaven condemns him to tempt men to evil while longing for the perfect purity of the whole race, knowing that when all men turn from evil, he, too, will be again admitted to his lost place.

The comedian Smith O'Brien will be seen at Music Hall next Thursday night in his new play by Con. T. Murphy "The Game Keeper." The play is a fascinating Irish drama of the romantic type and a wealth of beautiful scenery is used in the production. Mr. O'Brien who is a noted singer pleases immensely in his ballads "The Green Above The Red," "When You Were Sweet Sixteen," "The Holy City" and other songs. The latter is sung in the pretty chapel scene. In "The Game Keeper" there are pretty love scenes, thrilling climaxes, a rapid fire of ready Irish wit and plenty of good music.

"The Old Homestead," with Denman Thompson as "Uncle Josh," is announced as the attraction at Music Hall, Saturday, February 9. This familiar story of down east farm life is always welcome, and particularly so when Mr. Thompson plays "Uncle Josh," which is the most natural of all the stage creations. The entire play is nature itself, and that is why it continues to hold its place year after year. Reserved seat tickets are now on sale at box office.

Mary Mannering's run in "Janice Meredith" at Wallack's Theatre, New York, will come to a close at the very height of her New York success. Owing to contracts made over a year ago, she will be forced to end her engagement at this house Saturday evening, February 23. Therefore, she will begin her last three weeks in New York next Monday evening. Special matinee performances will occur on Lincoln's birthday, Tuesday, February 12, and Washington's birthday, Friday, February 22 Miss Mannering's 100th performance of "Janice Meredith" will occur Friday evening, February 15. Manager Frank McKee has arranged to present every woman present at this performance with a beautiful souvenir. Seats are now on sale for all Miss Mannering's remaining metropolitan performances.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C, "I had Consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in Consumption, Pneumonia LaGrippe and Bronchitis; infallible for Coughs, Colds, Asthma. Hay Fever, Croup or Whooping Cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Walter Hetfield, Jr., of East Front street, has recovered from an illness which detained him at home for several days.

Lewis Randolph and his daughter, Mrs. Weber, of Liberty street, have returned from a visit with Perth Amboy friends.

—Reports show a greatly increased death rate from throat and lung troubles, due to the prevalence of croup, pneumonia and grippe. We advise the use of One Minute Cough Cure in all of these difficulties. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Children like it. L. W. Randolph.

Dr. Adams, of Grove street, who has been quite ill with quinsy sore throat, expects to resume his practice very soon.

Mrs. Spratt, of the West End, who has been in the New York Hospital under treatment for some time past, expects to return home soon.

FIRE FOLLOWS EXPLOSION.

Many Injured In an East Side New York Factory.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Fire last night laid in ashes nearly two city blocks on the east side. The area of total destruction lies between First avenue, the East river, Thirty-first and Thirty-second streets. Nearly half the block south of Thirty-first street was also destroyed, together with a vast expanse of lumber yards and coal and wood sheds extending southward from Thirty-second street and along the river front.

There had been an explosion in the afternoon in the cigar box factory of the William Wicke company, on the northeast corner of Thirty-first street and First avenue. It was followed by a serious panic and the injury of a large number of the employees. The fire, however, was supposed to have been thoroughly extinguished, when shortly after 7 o'clock last night it burst forth from the ruin with such fury that firemen who had just arrived were forced to abandon water tower No. 3 and fire engine No. 21 and run for their lives. The fire engine was subsequently crushed under the falling wall of the Thirty-first street side of the building and remained there a shapeless mass of wrecked machinery.

Though the fire abounded in thrilling incidents none was more sensational than the gallant effort made by the men of engine 21 to save the splendid team of grays which had been caught under the terrific back draft of the fire before they could be detached from the engine. The effort was only partially successful. One of the horses had to be shot, and Chief Croker said the other would probably have to share the same fate.

The escape of Joseph W. Cody, a contractor for the building department, who was at work with a wrecking crew of 30 men on the roof of the building, was marvelous.

Chief Croker of the fire department and Captain Patterson of the fire patrol roughly estimated the total loss at about $1,500,000.

JOINT MEETING PLANNED.

Foreign Envoys and Chinese Ministers to Confer Next Week.

PEKING, Feb. 1.—A general meeting of the foreign envoys was held yesterday morning at which it was decided to hold a joint meeting of the envoys and the Chinese plenipotentiaries next week.

Nothing has been definitely arranged regarding the punishments, and opinions are much divided, some favoring drastic measures, like beheading the majority of those considered especially responsible, particularly Prince Tuan, who, next to the empress dowager, is considered the principal culprit, but others, acting under instructions from their governments, advocate nominal punishments, like banishment.

It is generally recognized that all the foreign envoys, with the possible exception of M. de Giers, the Russian minister, personally believe leniency would be a great mistake, considering the interpretation the Chinese would put upon it.

Li Hung Chang is anxious that the joint meeting should be held at his house owing to his state of health.

The Germans have sent an expedition, consisting of one battery of artillery and one regiment of infantry, to some point westward. They refuse all information and decline to allow correspondents to accompany the column.

It is reported that a massacre of many native Christians 70 miles west recently occurred, and the place of the massacre is the probable destination of the expedition.

Government Offices Burned.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—"The provisional government offices here have been totally destroyed by fire," says the Tien-tsin correspondent of The Standard. "The fire was obviously of incendiary origin. Chinese placards have lately been posted protesting against the taxes levied by the provisional government."

Joint Mining Conference.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1.—The joint conference of the operators of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and western Pennsylvania, called to fix the price of mining for the scale year beginning April 1, 1901, convened here yesterday. The first session was brief, the conference adjourning until this morning immediately after the committees on credentials and rules and permanent organization had been appointed. The real work of the conference begins today with the appointment of the scale committee, to which the demands of the miners formulated at the Indianapolis convention will be submitted. The permanent chairman of the conference is Walter Mullen of Ohio, president of the Massillon Operators' association. The secretary is W. B. Wilson, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, and the assistant secretary is C. L. Scroggs of the Illinois coal commission. The operators and miners of Iowa and Michigan will not be admitted to the joint conference.

Impaled on Engine Pilot.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Feb. 1.—When Erie flier No. 5 from New York dashed into the Union station in this city at 10:15 o'clock last night, passengers who crowded the platform were horrified to see the mangled, bleeding bodies of two men impaled upon the engine pilot. A patrolman hurried to the engine cab to notify the engineer, but he was on the opposite side oiling the locomotive and did not learn of the double tragedy until he came around in front of the pilot to oil the other side. It is thought the men, who are unknown, were struck at a crossing three miles below the city. The ghastly figures were quickly covered with blankets, and a patrol wagon hurried them to the morgue. Many women at the station fainted at the sight.

A New Pipe Line.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—After a hard fight of many years the first successful competition to the Standard Oil company's pipe line has been completed. The new line, which is the United States Pipe line, is now finished from the oil-fields of McKean county to tidewater in Delaware bay. The final connection was made about 20 miles west of this city, whereby a direct line of 380 miles from Bradford, the northwestern terminus, to Marcus Hook, the southeastern terminal, is ready for business. There are double pipes laid along the entire line, one for crude and the other for refined oil. The pipes have a capacity of 20,000 barrels per day, and the management of the company state that oil will be shipped by Feb. 15.

North Dakota Town Burned.

FARGO, N. D., Feb. 1.—The entire business portion of Abercrombie is reported destroyed by fire. Telegraph and telephone wires are down from this end.

VICTORIA'S FUNERAL

All Business Will Halt In London Tomorrow.

TEN MILES OF WARSHIPS IN LINE.

Royal Yacht to Leave Cowes Late This Afternoon With Remains of the Queen—A Long List of Royal Mourners.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The managers of the London afternoon papers have decided unanimously to suspend publication tomorrow, so that those who are not able to witness the funeral scenes will have to wait until Sunday for the descriptions. Such a suspension, except on Good Friday, is almost without precedent. It will serve to emphasize the solemnity of a great occasion.

The Daily Mail this morning recalls that on the occasion of the funeral of Queen Elizabeth no foreigner followed the bier with the exception of the French embassador, and it adds that "now all Europe will accompany the bier of the mother of sovereigns."

The naval display will be less striking than on the occasion of the diamond jubilee. It had been anticipated that more foreign men-of-war would be present. Moreover, several vessels of the channel squadron are now detained for repairs at their base ports. Yet the spectacle will be extremely majestic. The Spanish warship Emperador Carlos V, which was ordered to Portsmouth, has been obliged to return to Ferrol, her engines being disabled.

The czarowitz and one or two other distinguished persons who are now crossing the channel to England will complete the list of foreign guests.

Tomorrow will be a day of complete national mourning not only in London, but throughout the provinces and the colonies. There will be a general closing of shops and a suspension of business as well as the holding of memorial services. The directors of the Northwestern railway system of England have ordered that at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, the hour appointed for the funeral at Windsor, all trains shall be brought to a standstill, and every servant of the company shall remain motionless for ten minutes.

The king has ordered that the same men who will carry the coffin tomorrow in the procession shall bear it to the mausoleum at Frogmore Monday.

The following is the list of royal mourners, with those deputed to attend them during their sojourn in England: The Duke of Aosta and Major General Slade, Archduke Ferdinand of Austria and Major General Sir A. Ellis, Prince Arnulf of Bavaria and Colonel Wardop and the king of the Belgians and Earl Howe and Colonel D. Browne, Grand Duke Frederick of Baden and Hon. H. Stonor, regent of Coburg, Prince Philip of Coburg, crown prince of Denmark and Colonel Sir N. Kingscote, Prince Ibrahim of Egypt and Colonel Douglas Dawson, French mission, King George of Greece and the Earl of Gosford, Prince of Hohenzollern and Lieutenant Colonel A. Collins, Grand Duke of Hesse and Lord W. Cecil, Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse, Prince von Hohenlohe-Langenbourg, Duke Adolphus Frederick of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Netherlands mission, Prince Henry of Prussia and Admiral Sir John E. Commerell, King Charles of Portugal and the Earl of Denbigh and Colonel J. Clerk, crown prince of Roumania, Prince Henry of Reuss, the czarowitz and Lord Suffield, Duke of Sparta, Prince of Saxe-Meiningen, Prince John of Saxony, Prince of Saxe-Altenbourg, Duke of Sleswick-Holstein, crown prince of Siam, crown prince of Sweden and Norway, Prince and Princess of Schauburg-Lippe, Turkish mission, Prince of Waldeck and Duke Albert of Wurttemberg.

President McKinley's wreath for the queen is among the finest received. It is a simple wreath, 8 feet in diameter and 2 feet wide, all white. It is composed of lilies of the valley, white roses, camellias, lilacs and Arum lilies, which were specially selected because of their gigantic proportions. Covering one side is a magnificent spray of mauve orchids (cattleyas and dendrobiums), mauve Alexanders, etc. Depending from the wreath is a broad silk ribbon inscribed in silver lettering, "From the President of the United States." It took six workmen two days to make the wreath, which will be sent to Windsor by special messenger.

Ten Miles of Warships.

COWES, Feb. 1.—A glittering crescent of light stretched last evening from Cowes to Portsmouth. It consisted of ten miles of warships, the pick of the British, French and German navies. These lay at anchor ready to take their part in today's ceremonies, when the navy will pay a last magnificent tribute to the sovereign whose reign was marked by the greatest naval progress in the history of the nation. Apart from these peaceful rows and rows of twinkling port lights, separated from each other by only a few cable lengths, one might fancy that the quiet towns of Cowes and Ryde might be undergoing a blockade. It will probably be nearly 4 o'clock this afternoon before the Alberta, with the royal coffin, leaves Cowes. She will steam inside the single line and then enter the passage formed by the leviathans.

The Pope Sends Envoys.

ROME, Feb. 1.—Leo XIII has designated Mgr. Granito de Belmonte, papal nuncio in Brussels, to proceed to London and to present to King Edward the condolences of his holiness upon the death of Queen Victoria and felicitations upon his coming to the throne.

Binghamton After Car Shops.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 1.—It is reported that the board of trade of this city has made the Erie Railroad company an offer of $110,000 to move its extensive shops, now located at Susquehanna, Pa., to Binghamton. The report has caused consternation in Susquehanna, as the shops are the most important industry in the town.

To Preserve Verdi's Birthplace.

ROME, Feb. 1.—The Italian senate passed a bill declaring the house in which the late Giuseppe Verdi, the celebrated composer, was born a national monument and authorizing the interment of the remains of Verdi and his wife at the Institute For Old Musicians founded by Verdi in Milan.

Tien-tsin Hero's Funeral.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The funeral of Casper Schwertfeger of this city, a member of the Ninth infantry, who was killed in battle at Tien-tsin July 12, 1900, was largely attended by military bodies yesterday.

READY TO BE SIGNED

Conference Report on Army Bill Adopted.

SHIPPING SUBSIDY BILL DISCUSSED.

Night Sessions Announced For the Senate to Hasten the Measure. The House Passed the Fortifications Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—After an eventful legislative experience, beginning with the present session of congress and covering about two months, the bill for the reorganization of the United States army yesterday passed its last stage in congress and now goes to the president for his signature. The final step was taken in the senate, where by a vote of 35 to 25 the conference report on the bill was agreed to. The house of representatives already had agreed to the report. The conference report was kept before the senate constantly yesterday, even the shipping bill giving way.

Opposition to the bill continued to be vigorously expressed, Mr. Teller making an extended speech in criticism of the war department and of the measure in general. An opposition developed on the Republican side to the report, based on the alleged freedom with which the conferees had taken in introducing new provisions. On the final vote several Republican senators voted with the Democrats against the report.

The shipping bill was discussed during the latter part of the day, and some progress was made on amendments. A speech by Mr. Rawlins of Utah against the bill was in progress at the close of the day. Mr. Chandler announced that a night session would be moved today to advance the bill to its final stages.

The house passed the fortifications bill and made fair progress with the postoffice appropriation bill. During the general debate upon the former bill Mr. Lanham of Texas delivered a notable speech on the future of the Democratic party, in which he made a strong plea for the necessity of a united Democracy and counseled the burial of the hatchet and the welcoming back of those who in the last two presidential campaigns have declined to support the nominees of the party. Many amendments were offered to the postoffice appropriation bill in the interest of various classes of postoffice employees, but they all went down before points of order raised by Mr. Loud, the chairman of the postoffice committee, who was in charge of the bill.

May Talk the Bill to Death.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The Democratic senators and their coworkers in the senate who are opposed to the ship subsidy bill did not hold a formal conference yesterday to decide upon a course to be pursued with reference to that measure as had been announced they would do, the explanation being made that it had been discovered that the opposition was still so determined as to render a formal meeting unnecessary. While there was no caucus, however, there was a general exchange of views of the minority senators which enabled the leaders to form a quite definite opinion at the close of the day of the position of the opposition as a whole. The decision reached is to continue the debate upon the bill for the present with the hope of being able to keep it going until it will become necessary for the Republican majority to take up the appropriation bills and other measures which should pass before the 4th of March. They say that they have speeches assured for eight or ten days and that there are probably other senators who will prepare speeches within that time.

Christian Endeavorers Meet.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 1.—A steady snowstorm prevailed yesterday and interfered somewhat with the plans made by the reception committee for the entertainment of the delegates to the national Christian Endeavor convention, as it necessitated the abandonment of plans to visit many points of interest in the city. However, the day was passed pleasantly at the various headquarters where the leaders in the movement were assembled. Secretary John Willis Baer said: "The convention promises to be a great success, and I haven't the least doubt it will be as important as any the society ever has held. This convention is to take place not only to review the past, but also to lay some important plans for the future." Secretary Baer submitted a statistical report showing the enrollment of the society on its twentieth birthday. There are in the United States 43,799 societies, in Canada 3,997, in foreign lands 12,899 and 123 floating societies. The total membership is 3,649,080.

A Negro Colony.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 1.—The Afro-American Equitable association, an organization of negroes who propose to found an industrial colony on 1,400 acres of land about ten miles north of here, are meeting with much success in the beginning of their efforts. They have an option on the land and now lack but $400 to make up the amount necessary to have the land pass title to them. Over $300 is also in hand to begin work with in the way of starting an industrial school and a plant for light manufacturing purposes. Each colonist will be apportioned a certain amount of land and necessary farming implements and stock. No one will be allowed to work or reside in the colony except members of the negro race. The first lot of colonists will come from New Jersey, Virginia and North Carolina.

Would Die In Place of Hill.

TRENTON, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Storey, an aged spiritualist of Camden, came to Trenton to see Governor Voorhees for the purpose of offering herself to be executed in the place of Hill, who is sentenced to be hanged at Camden Feb. 5. Governor Voorhees was not here, and the woman left the statehouse saying she would go to the governor's home at Elizabeth.

To Be Buried With Honors.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The remains of Private James J. O'Neil, Ninth United States infantry, killed at Tien-tsin, have arrived here, and the body of Private James E. McConkey, United States marines, killed at the same place, is expected in a few days. Both will be buried with military honors.

Judge Cantrill's Residence Burned.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Feb. 1.—Theobald Place, the handsome residence of Judge James E. Cantrill, has been destroyed by fire. The building had 50 rooms or more filled with fine furniture and curios. Loss, $30,000.

FEDERATED AUSTRALIA.

Edmund Barton, Famous New South Wales Statesman, to Be Its First Premier.

Edmund Barton has accepted the earl of Hopetoun's offer to form the first cabinet of the Federation of Australia. A writer in the Review of Reviews in 1895, speaking of Edmund Barton, said: "Next, perhaps, to Sir Henry Parkes, Edmund Barton is, among New South Wales politicians, best entitled to be called a statesman. Intellectually he is, speaking comparatively, a giant. I have met many people of importance, but I have never met a man who could say finer things on the spur of the moment than Edmund Barton. 'I would be ready at any time to play second fiddle to Barton,' said Sir George Dibbs to me; and, he added, 'if I had Barton's intellect with my own energy, I could rule Australia.' At 21 he was an M. A. of the Sydney university, and he is one of the best types of the highly educated native-born Australian. In a legislature which, with all its faults, is singularly sensitive about the dignity of the speaker's office, the most honorable under the constitution, he is recognized as perhaps the best speaker we have ever had in New South Wales. He occupied that position for over five years, and it is something to win distinction in an office which had been held by Sir Daniel Cooper, Sir Terence Aubrey Murray, Sir John Hay, William Munnings Arnold, Sir George Wigram Allen, and the dignity of which is now supported by Sir Joseph Abbott. He was one of the few who grasped at the convention the great difficulties surrounding federation, and one of the three who, in what Sir George Dibbs describes as the 'whisky and paste' excursion up the Hawkesbury river in the Lucinda, drafted the commonwealth bill."

HON. EDMUND BARTON.

CLEVER YOUNG MAN.

George Wyndham, New Chief Secretary for Ireland, Has a Bright Future Before Him.

George Wyndham, the new chief secretary for Ireland, is one of the foremost of the younger set of British politicians. He was private secretary to Mr. Arthur Balfour when the latter was secretary for Ireland, and in the last cabinet he was an under secretary of war, where he did much important work in connection with forwarding Lord Roberts' big army. His ability was recognized by assigning him to the difficult post at Dublin, where much tact and firmness, a ready tongue and pleasing personality are required. Mr. Wyndham has much Irish wit which he comes by through his descent from the Sheridan family. He is, however, an English aristocrat of the deepest dye. His wife was the widow of the duke of Westminster's eldest son, and she still calls herself, as English usage permits, Countess Grosvenor, although married to Mr. Wyndham.

RT. HON. GEORGE WYNDHAM.
(Her Majesty's New Chief Secretary for Ireland.)

Sample of Boston Thrift.

Just before his death, which occurred in 1790, Benjamin Franklin left $5,000 to the city of Boston, and an equal sum to Philadelphia, with instructions that the money was to be invested for 100 years, and then devoted to certain public objects. The Boston legacy now amounts to $366,889, and that of Philadelphia to a little over $100,000. The Boston managers have certainly been much more wise and thrifty than those of the Quaker city.

Children Are Fond of Red.

It has been noticed by the matrons of infant asylums that a baby will be cross all day if dressed in a gray frock, but contented and happy if dressed in a bright red garment. Children from two to four years old are much less affected by the color of their dress. It is commonly observed in kindergartens that the younger children prefer the red playthings, while the older children prefer the blue.

THE VENEZUELAN TROUBLES.

Guerrilla Warfare Continues—Decisive Battle Reported.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curacoa, Feb. 1.—Guerrilla warfare continues in the eastern districts of Venezuela, but the reports of the victory of the government troops near Carupano, in the state of Bermudez, are amply confirmed. The victory seems to have been decisive, and the fighting was heavy. The papers also report that 250 government troops and a large number of insurgents were killed in the battle near Las Cuevas, and it is rumored that the government troops committed great atrocities.

A Philadelphia firm of high standing has negotiated for the purchase of Paloma, the largest coffee estate in Venezuela, for $400,000. The belief that the United States government has resolved to protect American citizens from unjust official extortion is largely responsible for this transaction, as well as for other recent important investments in Venezuela.

Another French cruiser has arrived at Carupano.

Venezuelan Gunboat's Hard Luck.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 1.—The Venezuelan gunboat Restaurador, formerly the Atalanta, Mr. George Gould's yacht, which left Brooklyn Jan. 24 for La Guayra, Venezuela, has arrived. Her commander, Captain Jeremiah Merithew, reports that the gunboat struck a fearful gale off Bermuda last Sunday. This continued for three days. Coal and water were exhausted, and the mahogany deckwork was burned as fuel. The waves ran mountain high. The boats were stove in, and the jibboom, bowsprit and spare spars were lost. For 48 hours Captain Merithew was on the bridge. Finally the bunker floors were burned, but this scarcely served to keep up steam, and the last available fuel had gone into the furnace when the Restaurador sighted El Morro. Captain Merithew had to burn his last barrel of pork to get the gunboat into port, and he was unable to stop to pick up a pilot. The Restaurador, however, suffered no serious injury. The necessary repairs can be made in a week, and the gunboat will then proceed for La Guayra.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Venezuelan revolution is considered ended.

British embassador at Berlin has been summoned to England.

Hostilities are threatened between Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

Fire caused $100,000 damage at Reade and West streets, New York city.

The deadlock continues in the Nebraska, Oregon and Montana senatorial contests.

After rejecting various amendments the Paris chamber adopted by 353 to 93 the first article of the law of associations.

Inauguration Plans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The committee in charge of preparations for President McKinley's second inauguration are making progress and say the event promises to eclipse any preceding inaugurations in display and completeness. The musical arrangements for the inaugural ball have been completed. The Marine band will supply the promenade music for the ball, while a selected orchestra of 125 pieces will render the dance music under the direction of Professor W. A. Haley. The Marine band also has been engaged for a series of five concerts to be held in the hall of the Pension building on the 5th and 6th of March to afford an opportunity to those who cannot attend the inaugural ball to view the decorations, which will be left in place until after the concert. The price for each of these concerts will be 50 cents, while $5 a ticket will be charged for admission to the ball. A chorus of 500 local singers will be a feature of the closing concert. The ballroom decorations, it is said, will surpass in splendor anything ever seen here.

After Kansas Druggists.

TOPEKA, Feb. 1.—Mrs. J. A. McHenry, the editor of The Searchlight, printed at Howard, Kan., in the interest of temperance, is in town ready for a crusade on the drug stores. Mrs. McHenry started her agitation by making a visit to several drug stores yesterday and inspecting the affidavits made out by purchasers of liquor. She informed the druggists that she would obtain the names from records of the probate judges, have the various signatures identified and that if she found that druggists had sold liquor to a minor, idiot or habitual drunkard the druggist would be prosecuted. Mrs. McHenry said that she found that one drug store had made an illegal sale.

A Year's Deaths.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—The number of deaths in this state in 1900 was 128,468, according to reports made to the state board of health. This exceeds the number in 1899 by 6,647 and the average for the past five years by 8,000. Concerning the grip the annual bulletin says: "The grip epidemic of this year was unusually severe, lasted six months and probably added 11,500 to the mortality."

A Hame Trust.

SUNAPEE, N. H., Feb. 1.—The Consolidated Hame company of Andover and Sunapee has formed a union with the United Hame company of Buffalo and will be known as the United States Hame company. The new corporation, it is said, will control the industry.

No Time to Talk Politics.

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—A letter was received and read in the senate from W. J. Bryan declining the invitation to deliver an address to the legislature on political topics. Mr. Bryan says he has not time to make political speeches at present.

Colored Murderer Sentenced.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Feb. 1.—John Patterson, colored, on trial for the murder of Minnie Lewis at Niagara Falls, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree and was sentenced to life imprisonment at Auburn.

An Ohio Pottery Destroyed.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Feb. 1.—The Rogers pottery, located four miles north of this city, was totally destroyed by fire. It was a three kiln plant and owned by Bradshaw Bros.

Anticigarette Legislation.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Feb. 1.—In the senate a bill has been introduced making it a misdemeanor to sell or bring into the state any cigarettes or cigarette paper.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; northwesterly winds, becoming southerly.

A PEACE ENVOY SHOT

General De Wet Orders Flogging and Execution.

BOER LEADER EVADES PURSUERS.

Lord Kitchener Reports Many Small Engagements—Mines at Johannesburg Threatened—The British Situation Difficult.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—A dispatch from Bloemfontein says: "The commissioner at Kroonstad wires the military governor here that Andries Wessels, one of the Boers who came here as a member of the peace committee, was shot by order of General De Wet at Klipfontein on Monday." He was flogged at the time the committee first arrived.

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Jan. 31:

"Knox engaged De Wet south of Welcome Jan. 29, and there was continuous fighting for some hours. Pilcher buried five Boers and took three prisoners. Our losses were one officer and one man killed and 13 men wounded.

"Last evening De Wet crossed the Bloemfontein-Ladybrand line near Isrealspoort. Bruce Hamilton, who was at the waterworks, was unable to get in touch with him.

"French engaged 2,000 Boers in the Wilge valley. The enemy had four killed and nine wounded. Our casualties were one killed and seven wounded."

A dispatch from Pretoria, dated Jan. 30, says:

"After General French left The Springs, near Johannesburg, yesterday, 500 Boers crossed from Nigel and did some damage to mine property at Elansfontein. From there they proceeded toward Rietfontein and in passing threatened the east Rand mines.

"The British garrison repulsed them and captured Commandant Marais, who had been wounded. Some other prisoners were also taken.

"An armored train also fired on the Boers with pompoms from Rietfontein station, causing further loss to the burghers.

"Another commando is reported to have gone westward along the Gats Rand, southwest of Johannesburg, in the Potchefstroom district."

"General De Wet's force consists of 1,500 men and two guns," says the Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Mail. "It is unofficially confirmed that he has entered Cape Colony, but definite news is impatiently awaited."

"It is understood here," says the Durban correspondent of The Standard, "that operations in the field will soon be revived on a large scale, and the policy of hunting out and capturing the Boers with mounted troops will be pursued."

The Daily News this morning editorially urges that an endeavor should be made to utilize the presence in England of numerous sovereigns and representatives of European states on the occasion when the whole world is mourning the death of a peace loving queen to secure the cessation of the "unhappy war in South Africa."

Tried to Destroy the Mines.

JOHANNESBURG, Feb. 1.—Four or five hundred Boers recently evaded the British patrols, reached Benoni and attempted to destroy the mines. Some fighting resulted, and the Boers were beaten off, carrying away most of their wounded and leaving two wounded behind them. The British captured three prisoners. One Briton was wounded.

British In a Bad Plight.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 1.—A special dispatch from Rome says: "In a letter to Archbishop Sogaro, dated Jan. 15, Lord Kitchener admits that the situation of the British is very difficult and that the Boers are still hoping for European intervention. He declares, however, that it is not true that the British have committed cruelties."

President Hill at Home.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 1.—President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern returned from New York yesterday. In answer to a question about the reported St. Paul deal Mr. Hill said: "I told the correspondents in New York frankly and honestly that my errand in New York had been magnified out of all proportion to its real importance and that there was really no foundation for the stories printed. There seems to be no end to the human imagination." Regarding the Crow's Nest coal matter he said: "I have nothing to tell except that we are going to build up toward the Canadian border to meet the people on the other side who will build down toward us."

Big Cut In Rubber Prices.

BOSTON, Feb. 1.—Telegrams received from the west announce the receipt of a new circular from the United States Rubber company informing the wholesale dealers of a cut in prices of 35 per cent and 10 per cent from list on first class goods and of 35.10 and 10 per cent on seconds, making a flat 18 per cent reduction from present quotations. The new prices go into effect today.

A Bear Creates Terror.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 1.—A black bear which escaped from its cage in Ross park, this city, terrorized the neighborhood for a time and was only captured after a desperate struggle. The animal chased half a dozen boys out of the park, and one narrowly escaped with his life. Bruin was lassoed by the keeper and carried back to his cage.

Michigan Legislation.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 1.—A bill prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine has been passed by the senate and agreed to by the house in committee of the whole. A bill was introduced in the house fixing the franchise tax on corporations at one mill per $1 of authorized capital, which is double the present rate.

Loubet Honors Italy's King.

ROME, Feb. 1.—It is announced in official circles that King Victor Emmanuel has received from President Loubet the Grand Cordon of the Legion of Honor, a compliment which is regarded as calculated to strengthen the cordial relations already existing between Italy and France.

Opera House Burned.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 1.—The Coates Opera House, the principal theater of this city, is totally destroyed. Walker Whiteside played "Heart and Sword" last night, and the audience was dismissed before the fire broke out. The loss will be at least $100,000.

Jersey's Good Roads.

New Jersey has achieved a wonderful reputation throughout the country for its fine system of good roads and every act to advance that reputation is deserving of the support of every good Jerseyman. The fame of the Jersey roads has caused many who are desirous of following that lead to send to the authorities of this State for plans and specifications. Heretofore each county has followed its own ideas and no two have been alike. A new state of things has since come into effect.

A few weeks ago, a meeting of the county engineers of the State was called at Trenton with the object of preparing uniform specifications. It was also decided to form a permanent organization.

A set of uniform specifications have been prepared which will hereafter be followed in the building of all macadam roads under State or county aid. It will also be possible for other States to take advantage of these plans and follow the example of New Jersey.

There are at present several bills before the State Legislature which provide for increased appropriations for State aid to road building. The universal sentiment throughout the State in favor of good roads will doubtless result in some amendments to the present State road law which will devote more of the State's funds toward that object. The proper legislative committee will probably weed out the needless provisions and have the proper bill ready before the end of the session.

Former Judge Beasley's ideas that the entrance examinations for the New Jersey Bar should be made more exacting will undoubtedly find many supporters through the state. Every year a large batch of young lawyers are turned out. Whilesome may consider it hard on the poor boy who is struggling along and desires to follow the legal profession, the duties of a lawyer are such that it is necessary for him to be well educated in other lines beside the mere text of Blackstone and the statutes.

The Borough Board of Health is waging bitter warfare against the offenders of the health ordinances within the limits of that municipality. Monday night the Board will meet again and probably act on the report of the State authorities concerning the samples of milk secured from local milk dealers. If they were not up to the standard and there were any evidences of illegal action, prompt measures will doubtless be taken.

With all this talk about the new manual training department of the borough public schools, the citizens of the borough should not forget the man whose generosity has made all this possible. If it had not been for Charles W. McCutchen, North Plainfield would not now possess a manual training department in its public school system.

When the Common Council meets Monday evening, the Councilmen should see that something is done to start the movement to secure proper street signs for the city. Nobody argues that there is not a need of them while the street committee has recommended that they be provided at once.

After the trolley is built through to Watchung, the next step will be a continuation over the second mountain and a connection with the Passaic Valley. Such a line would open up much valuable property.

With the Madison avenue-Duer street bridge opened and Somerset street properly widened, the boroughites will be able to rejoice over two long wished for improvements.

There was not much snow but some enterprising drivers managed to get a brief sleigh ride out of it It was certainly the first sleighing of the season.

"Jumbo" Lewis admits his fondness for chickens and so it is likely that he will visit in Trenton again shortly.

The first real snow storm of the season wasn't a howling success as far as snow storms go.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

As there were practically only two candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor — Franklin Murphy, of Essex, and Senator Pitney, of Morris—the latter's appointment to the Supreme Bench will, it is believed, change the whole face of New Jersey politics. It is generally conceded that Mr. Murphy will now receive the nomination, practically without opposition. Some astute politicians, however, are not ready to concede that. They think the dissatisfaction with the deal may not unlikely materialise in the bringing into the field of some strong and popular Republican leader as the representative of this feeling of opposition to contest the nomination with Mr. Murphy. Already two or three names which would undoubtedly serve to conjure by have been mentioned in this connection; but these statesmen, it is said by their closest friends, would not consent to enter the list against Franklin Murphy. Foremost among the names thus mentioned is that of the Senator from Cumberland, Edward C. Stokes.—New York Herald.

The appointment by Gov. Voorhees of ex-Mayor John C Rankin, of Elizabeth, to the important position of member of the State Board of Assessors is a further acknowledgment of the abilities of one of Somerset's sons. Mr. Rankin has all the necessary qualifications, and will be an honor to the board. In this connection it is interesting to note the part played in the development of Elizabeth by natives and former residents of Somerset. Among the names that can be mentioned are ex-Judge Alward, ex Mayor Rankin, Nicholas and James Englieh, Editor McBride, ex Prosecutor Bergen and E. W. Lindsbury; and ex-Judge Gilhooly undoubtedly inhaled the germs of his greatness while a temporary resident of Basking Ridge. In addition, ex Mayor Mack, Gov. Voorhees and Senator Cross came from just over the line in Hunterdon and Morris counties, and owe their prominence to their Somerset associations. We wonder what Elizabeth would have amounted to, anyway, if we had not furnished it with the brains to run things?.—Somerville Messenger.

SPECIAL SERVICE.

Companies of State Militia to go in Inauguration Are Being Selected.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 1 —At a brief session of circuit court yesterday morning, Thomas W. Donohue, who was indicted during the October term of court for the larceny of three watches, was arraigned and entered a plea of guilty. His sentence was set down for Wednesday next.

The watches stolen were taken from the residence of Robert B Carberry, of Westfield, where Donohue was employed as a trained nurse.

Donohue was arrested in New York about ten days ago on a capias. The necessary requisition papers were promptly procured and on Tuesday he was brought to this city and lodged in jail.

JANUARY'S COAL OUTPUT.

5,000,000 Tons, but Still Unequal to the Demand.

The anthracite production for the month closing yesterday is expected to aggregate fully 5 000,000 tons, which is the largest January production for some years. Despite this great production, together with that of the preceding month, the market appears to be still short of coal. This is especially the case in chestnut and stove sizes, the demand for which has been unusually large. The big companies have been unable to gain any headway in the matter of accumulating surplus stocks and the storage yards are still comparatively bare.

Gentlemen:—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 1—The new Dunellen directory, which the Wand Company has issued in connection with the Plainfield directory this year, is regarded by most borough citizens as filling a long felt want. There were some Dunellen residents however who objected strenuously against having their name inserted in the new book, though for what purpose is not known. Their objections proved of no avail as the directory is complete in every particular and embodies some excellent features in regard to street names.

A number of members of Court Dunellen, I. O. O. F., visited Court Bound Brook last evening and participated in an enjoyable smoker. The local court is making arrangements for a general good time next month in which the members will be assisted by visiting brothers from other courts.

The members of the W. C. T. U. are arranging for an entertainment to be given in Apgar's Hall, Saturday evening, February 9. In addition to the Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar Club other talent consisting of vocalists and elocutionists has been engaged to assist in the programme.

Miss Clara Beidleman, teacher of the Greenbrook school, has succumbed to an attack of the grip and has gone to her home in Trenton until she recovers. The school has been closed temporarily.

Arthur Parker, son of A. A. Parker, is critically ill with pneumonia and his recovery is regarded as being doubtful. A trained nurse is in constant attendance.

Arthur Vail has been appointed sexton of the Methodist church in the place made vacant by the resignation of E. G. Lewis.

Benjamin Wahl, of Martinville, has taken up his residence in the borough in the brick building near Taylor's Hotel.

Rev. Frank Fletcher was able to be out yesterday for the first since his recent attack of illness.

Postmaster Adam Dealaman has been a victim of the grip for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs O. A. Douglass are entertaining Everitt Smith, of Newark.

Miss Emma Stelle has recovered from a severe attack of the grip.

Miss Annie Sirisky, of Raritan, is the guest of borough relatives.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, Feb. 1.—Following are the meritorious pupils of the New Market school who have been present every day during the school month ending January 1901: High School Department—Zella Kelly, Kittie Bays, Vera Nelson, Lyranthia Nelson, Bessie Tappen. Grammar—Emma Danz, Bessie Beetham, Mary Conover, Lona Becker, Grace LeCompte, Carrie Brouwer, Alice Orben, Arvid Johnson, Parker Morris, Jerome Cline, Paul Meyer, Willie Danz. The dance held in Friendship Hall last evening was a great success. Quite a number came from Clinton avenue and vicinity and dancing was continued until the small hours of the morning.

Albert Johnston, of Brooklyn, is stopping at the Lake House during the illness of his aunt, Mrs. L. H. Danz.

J. Y. Wilson has filled his new ice house and commenced clearing the snow off preparatory to filling the old one.

Wm. Heymel, of Columbus, is the guest of relatives in town.

Mrs. Herbert Taylor has a severe attack of the grip.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 1.—The members of the entertainment committee of Fanwood Council, R. A., met last evening to arrange plans for the entertainment of the grand officers, who will pay an official visit to Fanwood, February 12. A delegation from Roselle Council, of Roselle, and Fireside Council, of Westfield, are expected and a very pleasant evening is anticipated by the members of Fanwood.

The members of Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a large and interesting meeting in their rooms last evening. During the good of the order the council members were entertained by a number of selections on the council phonograph.

The condition of Stites M. Parse, who has been seriously ill for two weeks, remains about the same. Mr. Parse's advanced age, he being eighty-one years of age, together with his serious illness, makes his recovery doubtful.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Young, who have been the guests for several weeks of Mr. Young's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Young, of Fanwood, has returned to their home in New York.

The work of remodelling the Ackerman house on Front street, occupied by Jesse Ryno, is completed and the improvement is more than noticeable.

The Bon Ton Stock Company at Music Hall this week is being well patronized by the residents of the village.

The Township Committee will meet in the town rooms this evening.

Miss Susie L Parse was the guest of friends in Newark yesterday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, Feb. 1.—Lillie Wynans, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wynans, of this place, died Wednesday morning. Two doctors were in attendance, but failed to decide the nature of the disease which took the little girl away. She leaves a twin brother. The funeral will be held at the house Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The interment will be at Hillside cemetery, Plainfield.

The following is a list of the meritorious pupils of the South Plainfield school who have been present every day during the school month ending January, 1901: Grammar — Mabel Arrowsmith, Edna Eckert, Lillie Gage, Nellie Gage, Mildred Soper, John Johnson, Elsa Steengrafe, Walter Connors, Eddie Horn, Eddie Maher. Primary—Michael Saverd, John Reilley, John Miller, Bernard Fay, Henry Bernasky, Albert Bernasky, Joseph Horn, Delia Saverd, Mary Phillips, Helen Bernasky, Marion Geary, Nora McDonough, Annie Nelson, Gertrude Nelson, Lulu Weaver.

A large attendance is expected at the "Poverty Social" tonight. Admittance is free, but the better a person is dressed the more it will cost him to get away. The affair is to be held at the parsonage.

The old school building is being moved to its new foundation, and a system of drainage is being introduced into the cellar of the new one.

Miss Elenore Dennis left today for her home in Tarrytown. She has been spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs. T. H Brantingham.

Thomas Brantingham was appointed as one of a committee of ten to secure funds for the proposed new speedway near Plainfield.

Harry Coulter has been under the doctor's care for the past week. He is suffering from the rheumatism.

William Hogan has recovered from the grip, with which he has been suffering for the past week.

A number of the young people from here attended the party at New Market last night.

Mr. Casterline, a former resident, was here renewing old acquaintances last night.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A few days ago Miss Florence Hawkins, of LaGrande avenue, was making her usual morning trip to New York, and while en route the conductor punched her commutation ticket which she took from her pocketbook. She thought nothing more about it until she was on the train in the evening on her way home. She then discovered that she had lost her pocketbook. She did not know whether she had left it on the train in the morning or dropped it outside. She then paid her fare home, intending to go to the Jersey Central's office the next day explain the matter and secure a new ticket. The next morning while she was eating her breakfast the postman came to the house, and her mother, answering the door-bell, learned that there was a letter for her daughter. Upon opening the envelope she was greatly astonished to find her commutation ticket inside. The letter was addressed to "Mrs" Florence Hawkins, and upon examination the ticket showed the same "Mrs." The party who had found the ticket must have had an idea of using it and had tried to make it read "Mr." This being a failure he placed an "s" after the "r," and then mailed it to Miss Hawkins so that she received it the next morning after she lost it. The pocketbook, containg a valuable coin, was not returned, but Miss Hawkins was glad to get her ticket back. The little piece of pasteboard reads "Mrs. Florence Hawkins," but the owner does not care. She is known to the conductors and no further trouble is experienced.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oldenburg.

Oldenburg. Vom Volksheilstättenverein ward beschlossen, in Hatten für unser Herzogthum eine Heilstatte für Lungenkranke zu bauen. Da der Ort Hatten ganz protestantisch ist, so sahen sich die Einwohner des südlichen Theiles, der vorwiegend katholisch ist, veranlaßt, einen Volksheilstättenverein für das oldenburgische Münsterland zu gründen.

Mecklenburg.

Lübtheen. Bei dem Gute Melkhof ist der Graf Konrad Erich Rudolf v. Kanitz, ein Bruder des bekannten Agrariers v. Kanitz, durch einen Unfall auf der Jagd um's Leben gekommen.

Waren. Ein von verschiedenen Staatsanwälten seit längerer Zeit gesuchter Hochstapler, der Kaufmann Ernst Holder-Egger aus Marienwerder, ist letzthin dahier verhaftet worden. Der Gauner pflegte insonderheit Hotels und Geschäfte zu brandschatzen und führte nicht weniger als 217 gefälschte, auf verschiedene Namen lautende Legitimationspapiere bei sich.

Braunschweig.

Braunschweig. Der Export aus dem Konsulatsbezirk Braunschweig nach den Ver. Staaten betrug im vierten Quartal 1900 an Werth 2,901,399 Mark, gegen 1,938,118 Mark im vierten Quartal 1899. Das bedeutende Mehr entfällt ausschließlich auf Düngesalze mit 2,269,900 Mark (gegen 1,057,185 Mark). Hauptposten waren ferner: Chemikalien 358,548 Mark (540,020 Mark), Glas- und optische Waaren 75,041 Mark (65,672 Mark), Farben 45,447 Mark (51,523 Mark), Lederhandschuhe 28,830 Mark (91,073 Mark). Im ganzen Jahr 1900 betrug die Ausfuhr 6,604,810 Mark, gegen 5,798,398 Mark in 1899.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Das erst im vorigen Jahre ergangene hessische Gesetz über die Hundesteuer hat jetzt schon einer Abänderung benöthigt. Die neue Fassung bestimmt, daß von der Steuer solche Hundebesitzer befreit sein sollen, die in Folge ihres Berufes oder Gewerbes einsam wohnen und ein Einkommen von weniger als 2600 Mark versteuern. —Die Stadtverordneten bewilligten der Bürgermeisterei einen Kredit von 9400 Mark zur Beschäftigung Arbeitsloser. In Betracht kommen hauptsächlich Planirungen und Chaussirungen. Im Vorjahr wurden für denselben Zweck 6300 Mark verbraucht.

Alzey. Der 25jährige Weinkommissionär Max Rieb erschoß sich, als er wegen Unterschlagung von etwa 500 Mark verhaftet werden sollte.

Mainz. In einer Nacht verwundete in einer Wirthschaft die Zuckerhändlerin Devinat den Schießbuden-Besitzer Michael Schuster durch einen Schlag mit einem Weinglas derart am Kopf, daß der Geschlagene, ein 58jähriger Mann, an den Folgen der Verwundung starb.

Offenbach. Aus Anlaß des 50jährigen Bestehens einer Anilinfarbenfabrik machte der Kommerzienrath Oebler zu Gunsten seiner Arbeiter eine Stiftung von 50,000 Mark. Dieser Betrag dient zur Vermehrung der bereits seit Jahren angesammelten Stiftung von 370,000 Mark. Die Zinsen dieser Stiftung finden im Interesse der Wohlfahrt der Arbeiter Verwendung.

Bayern.

München. Aus Anlaß des Offenbacher Eisenbahnunglücks wurden auch in Bayern Anordnungen getroffen, die beim Ueberfahren eines Blocksignals maßgebend sein sollen. Der Blockwärter darf demnach die Strecke nach rückwärts erst dann freigeben, wenn er Gewißheit erlangt hat, daß der über das Haltesignal hinausgefahrene Zug die Fahrt fortgesetzt hat. Anderenfalls hat sich der Zugführer zum Blockwärter zurückzubegeben und von diesem die Erlaubniß zur Fortsetzung der Fahrt zu erhalten.—In einem Münchener Vergnügungsetablissement wurde der von Nürnberg aus wegen Diebstahls verfolgte stellenlose Kaufmann Wilhelm Hieber aus Augsburg festgenommen. Er hatte am Bahnhofspostamt in Nürnberg dem Lehrling eines Bankgeschäftes 2300 Mark abgenommen.

Ansbach. Im Reservefonds des landwirthschaftlichen Kreditvereins in Mittelfranken hatte sich ein Defizit von 300,000 Mark herausgestellt. SILK PETTICOATS.

They Match the Gown With Which They Are Worn.

The fashionable petticoat is of silk of the same color as the gown with which it is worn, but a little lighter. Taffeta is usually chosen, and it may be plain, broche or plaid. Some of the plaid petticoats are extremely pretty—a black and red plaid accompanying a black gown, for example, or a blue and green accompanying a green gown. Guipure, white or black, and ribbons of silk, satin or velvet are the most serviceable trimmings, although for pale, delicate petticoats to be worn with evening gowns chenille, gauze and other perishable decorations are immensely employed. Nothing is really prettier, after all, than the petticoat of sheer nainsook or batiste, enriched with many flounces and much fine tucking, embroidery and lace. Underwear of this description is daintier than silk and in the most refined taste.

PRINCESS GOWN.

The picture illustrates a princess gown of mauve cloth, the revers of the skirt being of embroidered cream silk. The tablier of cream silk is covered by an open network of black chenille and black lace insertion, terminating in a deep fringe of chenille. The bodice is ornamented with embroidery and has a finely plaited vest of cream silk. The sleeves flare at the wrist, where there are fans of silk and an embroidered decoration. The cravat of white tulle has a jabot of lace. The hat of stitched silk has a net of chenille over the brim and is trimmed with plumes and a jeweled ornament.

Novelties In Wedding Gowns—A Tailor Made Costume.

The conventional and generally preferred bridal gown is of white satin made in the princess style and decorated with greater or less simplicity. No department of the wardrobe is exempt from innovations, however, and some striking novelties have appeared in even this most conservative part. A gown of satin an embroidered in openwork is made over an undergown of plaited mousseline de soie. Gowns of crepe de chine or liberty satin are shirred, gathered, plaited and covered with lace applications. The train, instead of being in one with the dress, may be composed of a square of the material fastened by one point to the collar at the back, the point at each side falling just to the foot of the fourth point, which forms the trailing part, rounded off or cut in a square shape. The length of the train upon the floor is usually equal to the height of the skirt in front.

TAILOR MADE COSTUME.

The tailor made costume illustrated is of beige corkscrew. The skirt is plain, with a watteau plait at the back and several rows of stitching around the foot. The short coat bodice is double breasted and forms a round tab in front, closing with two rows of enameled buttons. The cloth collar and the bodice are ornamented with straps and stitching, and there are velvet revers. The tops of the sleeves have velvet caps bordered with stitched straps, and there are cuffs to match. The hat of beige felt has a band of velvet at the edge of the brim and is trimmed with draperies of panne and a jeweled buckle.

A MONSTER CAMERA.

Takes a Picture Measuring Fully Eight Feet in Length.

Planned by a Chicago Man Who Built It to Order for a Railroad Company—Triumph of American Skill.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

THE art of photography is one in which everybody is interested. As Americans we have reason to feel proud that the United States has, within the past decade, contributed more to its advancement than any other country. An Englishman once said that "whatever the people of the States do they do on a big scale." This holds good not only of commercial schemes and charitable enterprises, but of works of art as well.

The United States now enjoys the distinction of having produced the largest photograph ever made. How this picture came to be made is an interesting story. During the summer of 1899 the Chicago & Alton railroad had constructed for its through service two trains which differed in many respects from the train equipment in general use. Each train consisted of a locomotive and six cars of uniform and symmetrical design. The managers of the road were so impressed by the beauty of the trains that they were desirous of obtaining photographs of them sufficiently large to impress the public with their artistic conformation.

Mr. George R. Lawrence, a well-known Chicago photographer, who had previously taken some large photographs, was called into conference. At first Mr. Lawrence's opinion was that the train would have to be photographed in sections and these sections fitted together during the process of printing, an ordinary method which, however, does not preserve the absolute truthfulness of perspective, and, indeed, shows the joints no matter how carefully the different sections are blended together. The officials of the railroad, however, demanded a faultless photograph and insisted that in length the picture must not measure less than eight feet. To accomplish this the company had to build the largest camera in the world.

Some time elapsed between the first conference with Mr. Lawrence and that gentleman's second visit, but in the interval the photographic possibilities of the nineteenth century had been reached and passed, for the photographer presented plans for a camera to photograph the train on a single plate, eight by four and one-half feet—which is three times as large as the largest plate ever before exposed.

It took 2½ months to build the big camera, in regard to which the following data will prove interesting:

The mammoth camera was designed and built in Chicago. It is finished throughout in natural cherry, and at the top of the back part of the camera is a small track upon which two focusing screens are moved back and forth like a sliding door. These focusing screens are made of semi-transparent celluloid stretched across the frames. The bed, which is composed of four two by six-inch cherry beams, is about 20 feet long when fully extended. The camera has double swing front and back.

The bellows is made of an outside covering of heavy rubber, each fold being stiffened by a piece of veneered whitewood one-fourth of an inch thick, it is then lined inside by a heavy black canvas and an additional lining of thin black opaque material, thereby making it doubly light proof. In the construction of this mammoth bellows over 40 gallons of cement, two bolts of wide rubber cloth and 500 feet of one-fourth-inch whitewood were used.

The bellows is divided into four sections and between each section is a supporting frame mounted on small wheels, which run on a steel track; the back, supporting the plateholder, being operated as easily as an ordinary camera.

The plateholder is of the roller-curtain type. This curtain contains about 80 square feet of ash three-eighths-inch thick, and is lined with three thicknesses of light-proof material. Over ten gallons of cement were used in the construction of this curtain, and it is mounted on a ball-bearing roller. Ball-bearing rollers are also mounted every two inches in the grooves in which the edge of curtain slides, thereby reducing the friction to almost nothing.

The weight of the camera is 900 pounds and the plateholder when loaded weighs 500, making a total weight of 1,400 pounds.

In operation the camera is so constructed that after a long journey the plate may be dusted in a very unique manner. The holder is put in position, the large front board, or front door as it may be called, is swung open, the operator passes inside with a camel's hair duster, the door is then closed and a ruby glass cap placed over the lens, the curtain slide is drawn and the operator dusts the plate in a portable dark room, after which the slide is closed and he passes out in the same way as he entered.

The lenses, which are of the Carl Zeiss patent, were ground at great expense and trouble. They are the largest photographic lenses ever made, one being a wide angle lens 5½ feet equivalent focus and the other being a telescopic rectilinear lens of ten feet equivalent focus, the latter being the one used when taking the large photograph of the train.

Early one morning last spring an immense padded van drove up to the Chicago & Alton's station in Chicago, from it the giant camera was transferred to a flat car, and the start made for Brighton Park, at which point, distant about six miles from Chicago, the "first exposure" was made. The accompanying photographs illustrate the manner in which the camera was handled, set up, focused and the picture taken, the operation requiring the services of no less than 15 men.

The day was clear, but a high wind was blowing, notwithstanding which, after an exposure of 2½ minutes, on a full Cramer isochromatic plate (this special plate being used to preserve the color value of the train), a perfect negative was secured.

The first three prints were sent to the Paris exposition. One of them was placed in the railway section, another was hung in the photographic section, while the third was accorded a place of honor in the United States government building, a liberality of exhibition privileges accorded to no other single exhibit in the entire exhibition. The stir which the immense picture created in Paris is illustrated from the fact that affidavits were required before the exposition officials consented to label the exhibit: "The largest photograph ever made on one plate."

American railway car builders sent no exhibition passenger trains to Paris, and, therefore, the immense picture here described was to visitors at the Paris exposition what the exhibition English train was to Americans at the world's fair in Chicago. And citizens of the land of the free, who viewed the big pictures in Paris, saw truthfully portrayed every improvement which time and invention have wrought in the rolling stock of their native land, and witnessed foreigners impressed with the beauty and practicability of car construction which is revolutionizing the equipment of railways throughout the world.

Amusing Library Incidents.

The clerks at public libraries tell of many laughable blunders made by their customers in asking for books. Among them are "Jane's Heirs," for "Jane Eyre;" "Illuminated Face" for "Faces Illumined;" "Zigzag's Classic Wonders" for "Zigzag Journeys in Classic Lands;" "The British Encyclo Dom Pedro," for "The British Encyclopedia;" and "Little Lord Phantom" for "Little Lord Fauntleroy." But the most amusing library incident that we have heard occurred in—well, let us say, Boston. Said a young woman to the clerk: "Have you 'Cometh?'" "'Cometh,' ma'am?" answered the clerk, much perplexed. "Yes," said the young woman. "I saw a book called 'Goeth,' and I thought there might be a companion to it called 'Cometh.'" Finally the clerk took in the situation—she meant Goethe.—Little Chronicle.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 3—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christian Endeavor day.—Josh. i, 1-11.

THE PAST.

The twentieth anniversary of Christian Endeavor has come. The movement has successfully passed its childhood and youth and stands today, at the beginning of the twentieth century, upon the threshold of a vigorous and long lived manhood. The predictions of the past have failed in fulfillment. Christian Endeavor has not been a movement of a day. It has not been a bubble of enthusiasm, soon to be pricked and to subside. It has become in 20 years a stable and permanent part of our church life and work. It stands today in multitude like the sands of the sea and the stars of the heavens, in strength a mighty power of God for efficiency in church work and for the moral improvement and elevation of mankind.

THE FUTURE.

But what of the future? The past is sealed; the present is assured—what of the future? We cannot but feel that the future also is safe if we continue to recognize the hand of God in the movement and still "observe to do" that which is well pleasing in the sight of God.

GOD IN CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

To Joshua, as he was about to begin the conquest of the land of Canaan, the Lord said: "I will be with thee. I will not fail thee or forsake thee." God had been with Moses in the past. He now promises to be with Joshua, as he had been with Moses. God has been with and in the Christian Endeavor movement. Its entire history proves that the hand of God has been in it. As He has been in it in the past, so He will be in the future, and on this anniversary day we hear Him say to us: "As I have been with you in the past, so I will be with thee. I will not fail thee nor forsake thee."

STRENGTH.

God's presence in the future as well as in the past should inspire strength. "Be strong." God is with us. Therefore we should be strong—not in our own strength, but in God's strength, strong as Paul was strong when he said, "I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me."

COURAGE.

"Be of good courage." God is with us. Therefore we should be courageous. Courage is necessary to success in moral and spiritual warfare. We fight against no mean adversaries, but against principalities and powers and wickedness in both high and low places. We stand often upon the firing line, and this is no place for the weakling. But, God being with us, we need not be weak. "Our weakness is perfected in His strength."

ASSURANCE.

"There shall not any man be able to stand before thee." "Unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land." The presence and power of God with Joshua made success assured. It assures us also of victory and success. He who fights on the side of the Lord need have no doubts as to the results. "Whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world."

OBEDIENCE.

"Observe to do according to all the law, which Moses, my servant, commanded thee; turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest." God's presence should inspire obedience, for upon obedience depend stability and success. God leaves the disobedient and casts them aside. He honors and helps those who obey. "Obedience is better than sacrifice." Thankful for the success of the past, let us go forward with strength, courage, assurance and obedience in the future, firmly believing that as God has been with us so he will not fail nor forsake us.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Use the United Society's special Christian Endeavor day programme or have an address upon the twentieth anniversary of Christian Endeavor.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. xxxi, 1-8; Judg. vii, 15-25; Neh. iv, 1-14; Eccl. ix, 10; Zech. iv, 6; Math. xxviii, 20; 1 Cor. iii, 7-15; xv, 58; Gal. vi, 9; Rev. ii, 10.

The Value of Enthusiasm.

Unless there is a reserve of enthusiasm stored on the hills the humblest wheel cannot be driven in the valley. He who contributes just this one rare thing—self sacrificing devotion—to his cause has done his part. Six hundred English dragoons once received a foolish order and rode to their death like heroes. "Magnificent," said a French general, "but not war." It was magnificent, and perhaps it was war, for it fired the imagination of England and raised the standard of duty for a century. One who can plan is good. Far better is the man who can stimulate. History affords at every turn some impregnable fortress that was the despair of the wise and prudent, but was carried by some enthusiast with a rush. He cast his reputation, his life, his all into the breach, and his body made the bridge over which the race has entered into its heritage.—Ian Maclaren.

Dispelled Longings.

Sometimes I long to roam at once
O'er the hills of heaven's land;
Sometimes I sigh for the Master's eyes
And to grasp just now His hand.

For I sometimes fear, when the days grow dark,
That He'll lose me 'long the way,
And "I wish my Father would take me home"
At these times I, murmuring, say.

But the Master says to my longing soul:
"I've a realm both grand and sweet.
If you trust Me, child, and wait awhile,
To its gate I'll guide your feet."

And then I know that the voice is Truth,
And my longings flee away,
And I breathe the air, and I see the sun
Of my homeward going day.
—Norman C. Schlichter in Public Ledger.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 3, "Marching Orders"—Text, Joshua i, 1-11.

"Arise and go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people."

It was a good land. The spies had searched it all over 40 years among the number, and they alone believed Israel was able to obtain possession of it. These two alone remained alive of all those searchers and men of war. They had not abated their ardor to take it nor their confidence in God's promises of protection and guidance.

Canaan is better than the wilderness. A land of trees and vineyards, of springs and brooks, villages and cities gives greater opportunities and fosters higher development of life than a wandering existence with flocks and herds seeking pasture in the untilled plains. A change in national life is to take place. Wanderers are to become settled and consolidated into a nation. A land and a conscious moral life purpose are essential. No nationality has ever arisen without these. Canaan and the Jehovah—God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob—these are the elements from which Israelism is builded.

We are at the brink of another Jordan. Have we a mission and a message? Does the League, does Methodism, do you, stand for any special issue in this world?

The call has come for service—service of God and of man, or, rather, the service of God through the service to man. Great as have been the changes in conditions of life in America during the last half century, greater changes probably lie ahead. Betterment or detriment—which shall it be? Material conditions are altering rapidly, better for some, worse for others. We are seeking two ends—material wealth and human character. The clew to all success lies in right intention and noble doing. We must have purer men and women, more interested in making others happier, more intelligent and Christ-like. More wealth we shall have undoubtedly, but if riches increase and true charity does not keep pace with money we shall become sordid, selfish and luxury loving.

In our gaining let us remember that godliness, which is but another name for manliness and womanliness, is the greatest gain we can get.

What Are You Reading?

Much which is published you cannot afford to read. It costs time and gives no valuable return for the price you pay. Some books are as injurious to the taste, memory, imagination and judgment as opium or alcohol to the stomach. Tainted meats and decayed vegetables are unfit for food; so are tainted literature and all impure reading. Shun it if you would escape moral pollution. Select the best and most helpful. This is not necessarily the dull and heavy. The most fascinating and permanently entertaining will be found to be the pure, clean, healthy, robust books which arouse thought, feeling and activity. These make one resolve to live better and help others more.

Be careful what you read and don't read too much. Take time to think about what you read. Overeating is bad for digestion. Beware of mental dyspepsia. Select good brain food and be sure you take it in such manner as to get nourishment of soul from it. If you don't know how to read so as to get the most profit from it, study awhile how to do it before bad habits become confirmed. In making voters in many states the candidate has to read aloud from the state laws to show that he can read English, but there is no test as to the understanding of what is said. Ask yourself in a deeper sense, "Can you read?"

Our Task.

I am impressed with the magnitude of the task which Divine Providence has put into your hands. To bring into shape a continent like this, to cultivate its surface, to bring up its mineral treasures, to organize its great communities, to found its institutions, to fuse its races, to discipline its manifold and conflicting elements of life—that is about the greatest task which Almighty God ever intrusted to any people.

You are to be congratulated on the magnificent courage with which you have undertaken the task, on the fine energy which you are putting into it and on the wonderful progress which you have made during the time which you have had at your disposal.—Dr Thomas Allen's Address to General Conference.

Harvard's Best Debater.

It is a notable fact that among the thousands of students in Harvard university, drawn from families representing culture and wealth, the best speaker and debater is a colored man. He is Roscoe Conkling Bruce, son of Blanche K. Bruce of Mississippi, for several years registrar of the United States treasury. He entered Harvard in 1898 and soon took high rank, winning the Coolidge debating prize of $100.

This is matter for congratulation of the colored race and also a valuable indication of the freedom of our highest schools from class restrictions and distinctions. Such things tend to keep this the land of the free.

Pastoral Time Limit.

The law of the Methodist Episcopal church limiting the term of pastoral service to five years was changed last May and all limit removed. The result has not been to make many longer pastorates, but, on the contrary, in many conferences has produced an unusual amount of moving. In Detroit and Indiana conferences the proportion of removals has been larger than ever before. Will there be a demand for return to the five or three year limit? Such a course would not be surprising.

A POLITE BURGLAR.

Entertained by a Young Lady at the House of Her Friends.

The Visit Was Brief, But Not So Very Unpleasant While It Lasted—Gentleman of the Jimmy Makes Graceful Exit.

Entertaining a burglar unawares is the unusual experience of Miss Mahala Read, a young English student, living at 412 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street, on Cathedral Heights, New York. The brief visit was pleasant to both sides while it lasted, and terminated in a manner fairly satisfactory to both persons, for Miss Read didn't get hurt and the burglar got away. Miss Read recently became a member of the household of Owen Oliver, a newspaper man of Chicago now representing the Times-Herald of that city as its eastern correspondent. The occupants of the flat, besides Miss Read, are Mr. and Mrs. Oliver, and their little boys, Owen, Jr., and Frederic, six and five years old, respectively. Mrs Oliver had gone to the theater with a neighbor, and had arranged with the latter's colored maid to come in from time to time during the evening and see that no harm came to the little boys, who had been put to sleep in their different rooms. Miss Read was out, and Mr. Oliver was at his office Miss Read came home at about nine o'clock and saw the burglar sitting in the parlor in the big easy chair.

She was surprised only because he wore his hat, for there are a number of Columbia students in the building and they frequently visit the Oliver apartment. She has not yet made the acquaintance of all these callers, so as she passed into her own room she said: "Good evening," to which the burglar politely responded, and she remembers now that his voice was soft and his accent gentle.

"Are you looking out for the babies?" she inquired, and he replied: "Oh, yes but they're all right. They haven't made a bit of trouble." She laid off her wraps in her room and stepped out again into the parlor.

"What time did Mrs. Oliver go away?" she asked.

"Really, I couldn't tell you," the burglar replied, having risen to his feet in the meantime and turned the gas a shade lower.

"Well," said Miss Read, pleasantly, and with due regard for the proprieties, "I am here now, and so you needn't wait any longer. Thank you, very much for your kindness."

"Oh, don't mention it, please," said the burglar; "I guess I will go, then." In order to gain the door he had to pass close to the young woman, and as he stepped into the full glare of the light in the hall she caught her first full sight of his face. "He was the toughest-looking brute I ever saw in all my life," she told Mr. Oliver afterward. His countenance was such that she screamed at sight of it, and the burglar went down the stairs by leaps and bounds as the owner and tenants of the five-story building dashed out into the hallways after him. He gained the street, two flights below, before he was intercepted, and the last they saw of him he was sprinting up Amsterdam avenue.

Not a thing in the house was touched, and the doors and windows were all in good order, showing that the intruder had used a skeleton key. The Oliver babies slept all through the turmoil. There was a burglary in the house a few days ago, when considerable property was stolen. The story of Miss Read's caller was reported to the police, though she can give no detailed description of the visitor.

His Dinner Took Wings.

A Delaware miner lost his dinner in a peculiar way. The articles which were to form the substantials of his noonday meal were steaming merrily in the oven and on the stove. He had a stick of dynamite which was frozen, and to thaw it he laid it carefully on the range. In a few minutes the dinner and the stove were flying in all directions of the compass.

Novel Opium Habit Cure.

A new cure for the opium habit has been devised by a victim, Frank Shankland, of Des Moines, Ia. He purposely became a receiver of stolen goods, and his conviction has been followed by a sentence to 18 months' imprisonment. His desire is to be put where he cannot get the vile drug, to the use of which he has long been addicted.

Her Face Turned Green.

A lady in Bristol, Conn., desired to change her complexion from that of a natural blonde to the tint of a brunette. A doctor, she alleges, gave her medicines for that purpose. In a few weeks her blond skin became a striking shade of green. Now she is suing the doctor for $10,000 damages.

HUDSON COUNTY PARK

BILL BEING PREPARED TO PROVIDE FOR PARK COMMISSION.

Will Ask Legislature for an Appropriation of a Million Dollars to Start the Work.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, February 1.—Assemblyman George Tennant, is at work on a bill for the creation of a Hudson County Park Commission, which shall have authority to establish large public parks in various parts of the county, in proximity to the public roads which are used for pleasure, driving and bicycling.

It is proposed to ask the Legislature to authorize the appropriation of $1,000,000 with which to start the park work. By the provisions of the bill the commissioners will not only be called upon to establish parks, but will also be given authority to construct macadam roads, to connect the various driveways within the county, and also to connect the driving roads in this county with those of other counties.

The commissioners, if appointed, will have the building of the road to connect with the proposed Palisade Park drive, which will be joined to other roads and extend as far as Tuxedo Park.

Mr. Tennant hopes to have the bill ready in time to introduce it in the Legislature next week. There are many difficulties to be overcome in drawing the bill, as a somewhat similar bill which became a law and resulted in the appointment of a Hudson County Park Commission, with Chas. B. Thurston as president, was set aside by the Supreme Court as unconstitutional.

It was certioraried by A. M. Bruggeman, who was then Director of the Board of Freeholders.

Mr. Tennant is drawing his bill so as to avoid any conflict with the provisions of the constitution. Before the bill is introduced in the House of Assembly it will be submitted to a number of men who are interested in the betterment of the county, for their approval.

Exchanged Property.

Councilman Charles B. Clifton has exchanged a house and lot on East Second street, near Richmond street, and a house and lot on West Third street, near Plainfield avenue, to William B. Cosgrove, for the very desirable brick property at the corner of Manning avenue and Somerset street. Charles H. Lyman effected the deal.

Held Up Young Girl.

Miss Mary Green, aged 13 years, of West Third street, while returning home a few nights ago was held up by a man at the corner of Arlington avenue and Fifth street. The man grabbed Miss Green by the arm when another man came along and frightened the highwayman away.

CLOSING NIGHTS.

Very Successful Week of Plays by Leyburne's Stock Company Will End Tomorrow Night.

"Souvenir night" attracted a large audience at Music Hall last night and gave unbounded pleasure to the recipients of the souvenir, which far exceeded the expectations of all. Every woman present received a 50 cent copy of the ballad "After All."

The performance of "The Golden Giant," which was the comedy presented last night, was spirited and hearty, the several members of the company acquitting themselves in admirable manner and Miss Bunting winning new laurels. Tonight the military play of "Gettysburg," will be presented in a splendid manner and tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night performances will be given. For his occasion and by particular request Mr. Leyburne has consented to a repetition of two of the most interesting plays in his repertoire—"The Waifs of New York" for the matinee and "The Census Taker" at night. In both of this plays Miss Emma Bunting and Mr. Leyburne have splendid opportunity for display of their talent and none should fail to see them.

—Recent experiments show that all classes of foods may be completely digested by a preparation called Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which absolutely digests what you eat. As it is the only combination of all the natural digestants ever devised the demand for it has become enormous. It has never failed to cure the very worst cases of indigestion and it always gives instant relief. L. W. Randolph.

Wife Suddenly Departed.

When Thomas Horner, of Richmond street, returned from his work Tuesday evening, he found that his wife had taken her belongings and departed. It is reported that they have not been on the best of terms lately. Horner says he has no idea what has become of his wife. They came here from Albany. They have one son ten years old.

What Press Ads Do.

A pocketbook lost by Mrs. I. Drain, of East Front street, was found by A. D. Phillips, of Dunellen, and a leather satchel lost by James Clark, of West Seventh street, was found by John Carney, of Central avenue. Both of these articles were advertised as lost in The Daily Press and both returned to their owners through said ads.

Another Night Lunch Wagon.

Richard Wood, of New Britain, Conn., will start a lunch wagon on the corner of Watchung and North avenues. Mr. Wood expects to have his wagon ready for work by the latter part of next week. It is a modern up to-date wagon, and everything kept to get up a quick lunch, night or day. The wagon is valued at $1 200.

Ground Hog on Exhibition.

At W. L. Smalley's model meat market, corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, all day tomorrow, there will be on exhibition a ground hog that was received by Mr. Smalley today from Liberty Corner, Somerset county. It is a fine specimen of the American Arctomys or Marmot variety.

SISSER HEAVILY FINED.

SENTENCED FOR ASSAULT AND BATTERY ON TROLLEY INSPECTOR.

Sentence Day at Somerville Court—Sisser License Case Will Come Up For Hearing This Afternoon.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 1.—Edward Sisser, who was indicted by the Somerset County Grand Jury for assault and battery on a trolley inspector, last November, while on a car, was arraigned before Judge Schenck this morning. In spite of a strong plea for clemency in behalf of the prisoner made by ex Judge Bartine, Sisser was fined $250

Patrick Hickey, who was with him at the time, and who was indicted for assault only, was find $50. He was defended by Lawyer Freeh whose plea made an impression on the court. Both men pleaded non vult.

Robert Burnett, who shot James W. Jerolaman, of Liberty Corner, and who was sentenced to two years in State Prison, was adjudged insane by a commission of three physicians. He will be taken to the asylum at Trenton tomorrow.

The Sisser license case will be heard this afternoon. Senator Reed and Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield will appear for the remonstrance.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

HOW LOCAL PARISH STARTED AND THRIVED.

Historical Sketch of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church Is Published in Book Form.

VERY HANDSOME SOUVENIR.

INTERESTING FACTS CONCERNING THE PARISH ARE TOLD.

Many Good Illustrations Are Included—Volume Has Just Been Issued by the Rector, Rev. Father Smyth.

A sketch of St. Mary's R C church, commemorative of its consecration on September 30, 1900, is the title of a small book issued by the rector, Rev. Father P. E Smyth, for distribution among the members and friends of the church. The book is filled with useful and interesting reading concerning the church history and also contains several familiar photos. The frontispiece is an attractive picture showing one corner of the church, ivy clad, and beneath there is room for the name of the recipient of the book and the name of the rector, which are written in ink. On the next page there is a fine picture of the rector, who has served this church and people so long and faithfully.

On the third page the historical sketch is started. This page also contains a miniature picture of the church. From this sketch the following interesting facts are collected:

"Among such little towns was Plainfield half a century ago. Over the moutain, in what we still call 'the second valley,' stood the little Catholic chapel of Stony Hill, erected for the benefit of the German farmers tilling the pleasant fields of that smiling spot. The chapel was eight miles away, counting the distance in both directions, from the homes of the little band of Catholics then dwelling in Plainfield. . . . . Time went on and the intrepid Plainfield Catholics who were to be seen fighting their way through the snow, over ice, out through 'The Notch' to hear Mass, increased in numbers, and the possibility of building a church for themselves and getting Archbishop Hughes to appoint to them their own pastor was discussed among them. The discussion ripened into action; one of the members of the congregation, appointed delegate for the rest, went to New York to see the Archbishop, and laid before him the facts. . . . .

"The Archbishop soon granted the plea of the Plainfield Catholics. This was in 1851, and the day on which the Archbishop granted this request for a priest for Plainfield was the birthday of the Parish of St. Mary's; it antedated by two years the erection of the first New Jersey Diocese. Father James S. McDonough was the first pastor of the Plainfield congregation. . . . . It was much to have secured a priest; a church for Father McDonough to say mass in was beyond the possibilities of his tiny congregation when he came among them."

The home of James Verdon on Somerset street, was the cradle of Plainfield Catholicity, the counterpart of the chamber of Jerusalem. Here Father McDonough gathered his little flock on every alternate Sunday; here was said the first mass within the limits of Plainfield. It was not long before the house as well as the barn was outgrown, and from North Plainfield the congregation came to Plainfield and erected what is now known as T. A. B. Hall, which was the first Catholic church in Plainfield. In 1868, mass was said in Plainfield only every two weeks.

In 1854 Father McDonough was succeeded by a younger priest, Rev. Daniel J. Fisher, who transferred his his residence from Raritan to this city. Two years later this pastor was in turn removed to become the president of Seton Hall College, then in Madison, and destined to deprive Plainfield later of two of its young priests for similar honor.

Father Terence Kiernan followed Father Fisher in 1856, and remained in Plainfield until his death in 1869. His successor was Rev. John Connolly, who was already in too frail health, and he died a year later. He was succeeded by Father Morris. During his pastorate the work of raising funds for a church was started, and in 1875 the corner stone of the fine gothic church which has just completed its history by its consecration to the service of God, was laid. In January 1883 Father Smyth was sent to Plainfield from Jersey City. The balance

AGREED TO SUE.

Couldn't Agree on Terms of Sale, and So Asked the Court to Settle Them.

Lawyer Robert M. Clark, of this city, has been retained by the plaintiff in an interesting suit brought by Joseph Harrison, who lives near New Brunswick, against John Dolin, of New York. The suit has been instituted in the Essex county court and will be tried during the April term.

The dispute is over the selling of certain bonds which Harrison placed in Dolin's hands for sale. Dolin sold them and returned Harrison $900 which the latter claims was $800 less than the amount received. The bonds were bought by a man named Carthy who has since died. The plaintiff bases his claim on a check drawn by Carthy to Dolin for $1,800 about six weeks after the alleged transaction took place. The suit was entered into by mutual agreement in order to settle the affair.

NEW SYSTEM OF TRANSFERS.

TRANSFERS NOW GIVEN TO THROUGH PASSENGERS ALL OVER CITY.

Transfers Also Given at Elizabeth as Well—New Ticket Has Been Adopted.

Beginning with Thursday, a new system of transferring passengers went into effect on the lines of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway. By the new rule through passengers coming from Elizabeth can procure a transfer to any part of Plainfield instead of stopping at the Watchung avenue terminus. Heretofore it cost an additional five cents to continue the ride on the local lines.

The new rule will be greatly appreciated by the Plainfield mechanics who are employed in the Garwood shops, as many of them live in the western part of the city. In the course of a month the extra nickel amounted to a considerable item. The rule applies to passengers going to Elizabeth also which means transfers to Waverley and the 'Port which were abolished last summer.

A new transfer ticket has also been adopted similar to the one used on the North Jersey lines. It is less complicated than the old one and the line and time punched can be distinguished at a glance by the conductor receiving it. It is also the same on all lines whereas each line formerly had a different ticket.

SEEKING A DIVORCE.

Mrs. Gardner, of Westfield, Claims Her Husband Was Abusive and Treatened to Kill Her.

The proceedings in the divorce case of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Gardner, of Westfield, was started in the Court of Chancery this week by Reed & Coddington, of this city, who represent the plaintiff, Mrs. Gardner.

Mr. Gardner was formerly of New York, and married Miss Annie Williams, of Westfield, in 1897.

During the first year the couple lived happily together, but, Mrs. Gardner claims, it was not long before he became addicted to the liquor habit, and at times became very violent. Last November she claims he threatened to shoot her, and that she was obliged to flee for safety to her father's home, which is also in Westfield.

Shortly after she started legal proceedings to get a divorce and the case is now in the hands of her lawyers, who are suing for divorce on the grounds of abuse and attempt to kill.

Handsome Souvenir.

Herbert S. Taylor, local manager for Swift & Co., dealers in beef, pork, provisions, poultry and all packing house products, left a very handsome book at The Daily Press office yesterday, as the compliments of the company. The book contains much interesting information concerning the company's plant and gigantic methods of doing business.

Plainfield Has Grown.

James P. Hall, district manager of the Mutual Aid Union, of Newark, is visiting his friend, J. S. Jones, of West Second street. This is Mr. Hall's first visit to Plainfield in twelve years, and he expressed his surprise at the growth of the city and the business enterprises that had started since he was here in 1889.

Formed Whist Club.

The Twentieth Century Club, composed of a number of young people, met at the home of the Misses Saxton, on East Fourth street, this week and formed a whist club which will meet regularly through the winter months.

Vacations Next Month.

Now that the employes at Woodhull & Martin's store have completed the task of taking account of stock, this month will be devoted to vacations.

ANOTHER EFFORT TO EXTEND TROLLEY LINE.

Said That Required Amount of Consents For Line to Watchung Are Secured.

A MEETING NEXT WEEK.

JOHN Y. WILSON STILL HOLDS OUT AGAINST TROLLEY LINE.

By Extending Line Some Distance Beyond Demler's Store, It Is Possible to Secure Required Proportion of Consents.

Another movement is on foot to secure a trolley through Washington Valley to the numerous small towns beyond and in the vicinity. This matter has been discussed time and time again and the Board of Trade has made repeated efforts to make the thing a reality. There is now an animated discussion over the matter and it is possible that the trolley may be built in the near future.

The present plan is to extend the line from the present terminus on Somerset street through Watchung to a point on the Stirling road about 550 feet beyond Demler's corner. The promoters have already got the consents for 4,300 feet, and by extending the road 550 feet beyond Demler's corner, and getting the consent of the property-owners, they will have the advantage of 350 more feet than the required amount.

The persons who are interested in the extension are H. Texier, the glove manufacturer, in the old French mill, the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storege Company, John H. French and William Demler. On the other hand, there is one strong objector, John Y. Wilson, who owns and operates a stone crusher a short distance from Demler's corner. He owns a frontage on the road of 4,500 feet. Whether Mr. Wilson's objections can be overcome is still an open question. It is possible that Mr. Wilson may be induced to give his consent and make the giving of the right of way unanimous, with the usual restrictions.

As planned, the trolley line will be almost a straight one, requiring but one or two short curves. The bridges at present spanning the brook at various points will not be interfered with, and it is the intention of the company to blast enough rock to build separate bridges and trestles of its own.

A meeting of interested parties was held recently and while nothing definite was decided the promoters of the project will use their influence to have the trolley company look upon the matter favorably. The trolley company officials now hold the position that they want a sufficient number of signers to make the building of the line a success and they do not want to meet with all sorts of obstacles after they decide to extend their line. To that end the promoters are doing their best to secure the required number of signers so that when the meeting is held next week it will be in shape to present to the trolley company. If this can be done no doubt the company will decide to build the line in the spring provided a franchise is granted to them.

Birthday Party.

A very pleasant birthday party was given to Uncle Dan Roberts Thursday evening at his home on Prospect place. It was the event of Mr. Roberts' seventy-sixth birthday, and surrounded by his family, including his children and grandchildren, and a number of friends, the evening was very pleasantly passed. Mr. Roberts' son, Harry, gave a number of vocal selections, which were enjoyed very much by the guests. When the guests adjourned to the refreshment room the main thing which attracted their attention was a large cake bearing the inscription "Seventy-six."

Cut By Broken Milk Bottle.

Charles O. Smith, a milkman living on Summit avenue, slipped and fell as he was getting out of his wagon Thursday. He had a milk bottle in his hand at the time, which was shattered, and a fragment struck him on the head, inflicting a severe gash. The services of a doctor were necessary to dress the wound properly.

GREAT WORK DONE BY MISSION BAND.

Fourth Year of Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Church Completed.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD.

REPORTS SHOWED EXCELLENT WORK ACCOMPLISHED DURING YEAR.

Aid Extended to Foreign and Domestic Missions—Good Balance in Treasury—Election of Officers Held—Other Business.

For the fourth time in its history, the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, met in the lecture room of that church yesterday afternoon and reviewed one of the most successful years it has yet enjoyed. This band of young women, which is as yet in its infancy, has made its influence felt more and more each year until now it has come to be recognized as one of the most important bodies of workers of the church. Its work not only assists near neighbors but missions as far remote as Japan have been aided by it. The reports given yesterday convey but a faint idea of the great good accomplished since its formation.

Previous to the reading of reports, the election of officers was held and resulted in the re-election of Miss Lillian A. Force as president, Miss Lillian Remsen as vice-president, and Miss Anna Searing as treasurer. The other officers elected were Miss Grace Emmons, recording secretary, and Mrs. Charles Dixon, corresponding secretary.

Of the reports read, probably the most interesting was that of the recording secretary, Miss Grace Nevius. It attributed the past year's success to the faithful discharge of duties on the part of the president assisted by the committees representing the different branches of work. The band now numbers sixty-one active and nine honorary members, and during the past twelve months has collected and distributed large amounts of clothing and money to all parts of the globe through its missions. Flowers have been sent to the Italian Mission, in New York, all through the summer months; many lives in the far west and south have been brightened by gifts of literature; barrels of clothing and Christmas boxes have been collected and distributed to needy missions.

The committee on foreign missions has made and dressed dolls and cushion covers which have been sent to Japan. By securing interesting speakers, the programme committee has kept the needs of the foreign and domestic fields constantly before the members with subsequent good results. The entertainment committee has also been very energetic and has given a number of social affairs of which the "Corn Supper" was the most successful. Altogether the report was greatly enjoyed and its careful preparation reflected credit on the secretary, Miss Nevius.

The report of the treasurer showed the band to be in a flourishing condition and a neat balance of $99 on hand. This amount will be equally divided between foreign and domestic missions.

A very interesting letter was read from the pastor of a church at Twin Lakes, Mich., thanking the society for a box sent to the Sunday-school of his church at Christmas.

It was decided to send a letter of condolence to the family of Mrs. J. C. Pope, one of the members, signed by all the retiring officers of the band, expressing their heartfelt sympathy. The letter will be accompanied by a fitting floral tribute.

This concluded the meeting and the young women spent the rest of the afternoon making patchwork to be sent to missionaries who will use it among the Kentucky "Mountain whites."

Last Public Service Here.

The last public service at Grace P. E. church to be conducted by Rev. Floyd Appleton as curate will be held tomorrow evening. Mr. Appleton will preach his farewell sermon before entering upon his new work in Brooklyn. No doubt there will be a large congregation.

NO LICENSE AS YET FOR SISSER'S SALOON

Much Opposition Developed at Hearing and Judge Schenck Reserved Decision.

MANY WITNESSES TESTIFIED.

JUDGE SCHENCK WILL ANNOUNCE HIS DECISION NEXT FRIDAY.

Exciting Hearing at Somerville Yesterday Afternoon—Seven Witnesses Against the Place While Twenty-two Were in Favor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 2—The application of James Sisser for a license to keep a saloon on Somerset street, North Plainfield, came up before Judge Schenck yesterday afternoon, and occupied the whole afternoon. Seven witnesses testified for the remonstrants and twenty-two for the applicant. Senator Chas. A. Reed represented the remonstrants and Former Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, of Plainfield, appeared for Sisser.

Chas. A. Lee, chairman of the police committee of the North Plainfield Council, testified that he thought the remonstrance a proper one. His attention had been called to Sisser's place by several Councilmen and others. He had heard loud talking and boisterousness and had seen women going in and coming out. He thought Wm. N. Pangborn had prepared and circulated remonstrance.

Wm. Campbell, chief marshall of the borough, testified that Sisser's place had been disorderly; that it was frequented by disorderly men and women; had received complaints concerning the place; he went around there one night and heard a fight going on and just then a man was thrown out and he picked him up and put him in jail.

George T. Brown, James P. Homan, Fred Emmons, Rev. Wm. E. Honeyman and Mayor N. B. Smalley all testified that the place was disorderly.

The witnesses for the applicant were James Sisser, Dr Albert Pittis, Harrison Codington, Geo. LaTourette, Leonard Young, John N. Powers, James Baglin, Ignatz Boehm, Adam Fritz, Lewis McIntosh, Geo. Stewart, Chas. Frye, Edward Sebring, Richard McCullough, John Haberle, Wm. J. Pierson, Frank DeCamp, Herman Keller, Irwin Neighbor, Warner B. Heidloff, John F. Pierson and Walter L. Hetfield.

The latter witness swore that the signature of Phineas M. French to the remonstrance was not his, as he was well acquainted with Mr. French's signature. Senator Reed said that it was signed by Mr. French's daughter for him.

Wm. J. Pearson caused considerable amusement by his testimony and by asking Senator Reed questions. He warned the Senator to be careful and to look out for him. When he left the witness chair he laughed loudly, put on his hat on one side of his head and hurrahed for "Grover." Judge Schenck ordered him to remove his hat.

Another witness when called by Mr. Hetfield, called out 'You're the fellow I've been looking for," and stumbled out in a noisy manner. Mr. Hetfield told him he didn't want him then and would call him later, but he never called him, much to the disgust of the witness.

Neither lawyer argued the case, as they said that they were willing to leave it to the Judge. Judge Schenck said that he would announce his decision next Friday.

The argument on the application for a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted in the case of Wm. Leupton, convicted of atrocious assault and battery upon Alfred Paniel, was set down for yesterday afternoon, but owing to the length of time consumed in the Sisser case, it went over until Feb. 15.

GRAND OLD AGE.

Mrs. Mary L. Force Celebrated Her Eighty-Sixth Birthday Last Evening Surrounded by Family.

Yesterday was the eighty-sixth anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Mary L Force, mother of the editor of this paper. During the day she was presented with a bunch of beautiful cut flowers, accompanied by a tenderly written letter, full of sunshine and congratulations, from Mrs. M. J. Hawkins and her daughter, Miss Florence G. Hawkins. In the evening there was a gathering of her two children, two of her grandchildren, two daughters-in-law, and several near friends, who spent a pleasant evening with her at her home, with Mrs. Amy Lorton, 203 Watchung avenue. She received several tokens of love which made her feel very happy in her declining years. Mrs. Force enjoys good physical health for one of such advanced years.

QUOTES M'CLINTOCK'S LETTER

STREET COMMISSIONER CAVETT'S TALK CONCERNING CONTROVERSY.

Says Patent on Septic Tank Has Expired According to McClintock's Own Words

Referring to the last letter from Mr. McClintock, Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett prefers to leave the matter without further discussion to the corporation counsel.

He states, however, that Mr. McClintock is in error in his statements as to the conditions at disposal beds at the time of his visit and instead of giving his own opinion as to patent No. 258,744, which might be of little value, prefers to quote Mr. McClintock's own view, as set forth in a letter to Ex-Mayor Rockfellow under date of May 24, 1900.

"As you are aware, our company claim the discovery of the septic tank action, the patents covering which have expired, however, but also the discovery of the filtration of the effluent from the septic tank which discovery is covered by letters patent owned by our company."

Mr. Gavett claims that filtration is not used at all in the system proposed for Plainfield and that septic action and contract beds, which are proposed, were not apparently dreamed of in either of Mr. McClintock's patents, either the one which he declares has expired, or the later one.

HAPPY HOME WEDDING.

Miss Minnie Freeze Married to James W. Mills of Elizabethport.

The marriage took place last Wednesday evening of James William Mills, of Elizabethport, and Miss Minnie H. W. Freeze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Freeze, of Whitewood avenue, North Plainfield.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents. The bride was attended by Miss Florence J. Mills, of Elizabethport, sister of the groom. J. Skellenger, of this city, was best man.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony. There were a large number present from this city and Westfield. The groom is a valued employe of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., of Elizabethport.

After the ceremony the happy couple departed on their honeymoon, amid showers of rice and old shoes. On their return they will take up their residence at Elizabethport.

Waiting For Bondsman.

Orrin Baker, of Plainfield avenue, has not yet furnished the $50 bond which Justice Nash required of him a few days ago. However, Justice Nash is giving him every opportunity, as he does not want to send him to Elizabeth. If he should be sent down he would have to stay there until spring at the expense of the county. Justice Nash will be obliged to commit him if he fails to get a bondsman.

Surely Saw His Shadow.

Today is Candlemas or "Ground Hog" day, when, according to popular tradition, the ground hog prognosticates the weather for the next six weeks. If, on emerging from his hole, he perceives his shadow, he immediately retires again and keeps in seclusion for that length of time. As the sun appeared in a cloudless sky today casting subsequent shadows bad weather is predicted by the "hog."

Zeller Made Assignment.

BOROUGH WILL WIDEN SOMERSET STREET.

North Plainfield Council Took First Steps Last Night Authorizing the Change.

WILL CUT DOWN TREES.

REPORT OF COMMISSIONERS TO APPORTION DAMAGES ADOPTED.

Only Two Objectors at Public Hearing—Municipal Ownership Committee Will Soon Offer a Proposition Regarding Street Lighting.

The February meeting of the Borough Council was held last evening when it was decided to widen Somerset street from the brook to Jackson avenue. The report of W. C. Smith, B. A. Hegeman, Jr., and Justus H. Cooley, as commissioners, was presented. It was read and adopted, Mayor Smalley and Councilmen Coddington, Lee and Rogers voting for it and Councilman Valiant against it. Councilmen Swackhamer and Clark were not present, the latter being detained by illness. The only objections offered to the widening were made by Alex Thorn and Charles Bock. The former believed that the opening of Duer street had injured Somerset street and he thought the widening would also. Mr. Bock objected because he would lose a couple of feet of room in his front cellar, caused by the removal and change of a drainage pipe which is laid under the sidewalk. Justice D D. Smalley, who previously objected, was inclined to favor the improvement when he heard the report of the commissioners read showing the amount of damages allowed, which will be on a basis of equalization with the benefits.

The report of the commissioners was adopted, as stated, and a resolution was offered authorizing the street committee to make a contract to have the trees along the street cut down to make the improvement according to the plans. The commissioners allowed damages on a basis of one per cent. per foot, and below will be found the list of the property owners affected and the amount allowed each one according to the frontage of each:

P. M. French, 22 cents; P. M. French, $2 65; P. J. Zeglio, 1.67; Geo. H Craig, .30; Elstan Stelle Elliott, .50; Richard O. Elliott, .50; Floret Wormser, 37; J. A. Blair, .56; H. N. Spencer, .70; Frederick H. C. Eggerding, .63; Jacob Voehl, .23; Gesang and Turn Verein, 45; N. B. Smalley, .18; W. L. Smalley, .20; N. B Smalley, 27; Lena M. Hoerster, .40; John C. Smith, .74; W. R. Cosgrove, .40; D.D. Smalley and Mary Adelle Galletti, $1 20; M. J. O'Reilly, $1 27; Charles R. Underwood, $1; Borough Board of Education, $1 44; W. G. Debele, .46; Vito Feraro, .35; Alfred University, $1 04; Josephine Boyce, .75; Ann Humble, .52; Mayor and Council, .18; J. P. Emmons, .41; J. Harper Smith, .61; Alfred University, $1 21; C. Frank French, .50; Jacob Voehl, .55; Jane B. DeMott, .55; Emily H. Cory, .84; Albert Pittis, $1; Alex. Thorn, $1 38; Albert Pittis, .25; J. P. Homan, .40; Charles Bock, .66; Annie E. Crum, Nicholas Heidloff and J. J. Heidloff, .07.

The Mayor and some of the members discussed the widening and the former gave his views clearly on the subject, stating that it was for the benefit of the whole borough that the street was to be widened, that was why he favored it. He wanted to see the empty stores on the street rented and he wanted to see business come to the borough. Mr. Lee favored it because it would lessen the expense of keeping the street in repair. At present the street is so narrow that it cannot properly be kept in good condition. The general sense of the meeting and of the majority who had come to attend the public hearing on the subject was that the street should be widened. Mr. Valiant's objections were on the ground that more school room would be needed, this would necessitate more expense and he did not favor the expenditure of $2 500 on the widening. Personally he believed the improvement would be a good one.

To complete the official work of widening, a resolution was offered authorizing the collector to pay the several amounts in damages to the property owners affected according to the report. Nothing now remains but to go ahead and widen the street.

Mayor Smalley stated that he and several persons from the borough went to Somerville yesterday to protest against the granting of a license to Sisser on Somerset street. Judge Schenck reserved his decision in the

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Great Industries Find No Scarcity of Orders.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The week in general business has been without striking new feature, but in this respect the outcome has been favorable. Not one of the great industries finds any scarcity of orders for goods, and business is done at prices which show a slight tendency to rise, except in textiles which have been affected by the reduction of 10 to 20 per cent in the season's opening prices by the American Woolen company.

While steel mills have contracts on hand for their output from three to six months ahead, prices naturally rule firm. Few actual advances are recorded, but there is expectation of a higher figure soon for bessemer pig iron, while rumors are numerous as to a rise in billets, plates and structural materials.

Boot and shoe shops receive more orders, and although quotations are nominally unchanged many makers refuse new contracts without a small advance. The upward tendency is so general that purchasers are eager to do business at the current level.

A sudden increase in sales of wool at the three chief eastern markets to 5,412,000 pounds against 2,893,400 in the previous week does not appear significant. After such an unusually dull season some recovery was in order.

Commercial failures in January were 1,242 in number and $11,220,811 in amount against 989 last year, for $10,304,464. The increase was mainly in manufacturing branches, with 254 defaults, for $4,700,984, against 163, for $3,194,233, in 1900. Trading failures were exceptionally light. Although numbering 984 against 796 last year, liabilities were but $5,311,804 against $6,079,045. Brokerage, real estate and other failures numbered 40, with an indebtedness of $1,508,023, compared with 30 last year, for $1,031,186. There were eight banking and financial bankruptcies, for $1,070,857.

Test of Compressed Air Locomotive.

ROME, N. Y., Feb. 2.—A party of 18 prominent railroad men came here from New York in a special car to inspect the Hardie compressed air locomotive made at the works of the Compressed Air company of this city. The principal railroads in this and adjoining states were represented by managers, general superintendents, mechanical engineers, superintendents of motive power, officers or directors. The air locomotive was operated drawing a special car on the New York Central tracks to Oriskany and return. It proved very satisfactory. This type of locomotive is designed to draw trains on elevated, underground or suburban roads and is made to run 25 to 50 miles on one charge of air.

Venezuela Unfriendly.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Feb. 2.—The Venezuelan government continues to maintain a defiant attitude toward the United States. The report is now circulated that President Castro, having troops at his disposal in the eastern provinces since his victory there over the insurgents, will send a regiment to dispossess the Americans at Pitch lake. The company will resist, but no doubt it will be ousted if the threatened attempt is made unless large re-enforcements are received. Grave complications would inevitably ensue. Mr. Loomis, the United States minister, is trying to compose matters, but he is met in an unfriendly spirit by the government of Venezuela.

Fearful Death Rate.

BOMBAY, Feb. 2.—The famine commission at Ahmedabad, in the presidency of Bombay, the chairman of which is Sir Antony Patrick Macdonnell, has made some very strong remarks regarding the enormous mortality in the Guzerat famine camps. The commission asserts that the people there "died like flies when subjected to excessive tasks" and that "totally inadequate provision was made in the way of famine relief." These strictures are regarded as a condemnation of the Bombay famine administration.

Bank Defaulter a Suicide.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—John Prevost Mason, who was arrested on Jan. 15 on a charge of having embezzled $18,000 from the Continental National bank, of which he was the third assistant teller, committed suicide at his home, 1551 Washington avenue, yesterday. At the hour at which he was under bond to appear before United States Commissioner Shields he shot himself in the head while apparently making preparations to go down town to defend himself.

The Public Debt.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business Jan. 31, 1901, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,094,595,878, a decrease for the month of $4,595,432. The debt is recapitulated as follows: Interest bearing debt, $1,001,500,260; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $2,023,190; debt bearing no interest, $384,085,400; total, $1,387,608,851.

VAST RAILROAD DEAL

Union Pacific Now Controls Southern Pacific.

TERMS NOT YET ANNOUNCED.

The Transaction Completes the Establishment of a Transcontinental Line Under a Single Management—Harriman at the Head.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Another railroad transaction, reaching, it is believed, much farther in its ultimate results than any of the deals which have thus far marked the closing of the old and the beginning of the new century, became known just a few minutes before the closing of the market yesterday afternoon, when the transfer of the control of the Southern Pacific company into the hands of a syndicate in which Union Pacific interests predominate was announced. The transaction completes the last link necessary for the establishment of a transcontinental railroad under a single control. This control is at present vested in E. H. Harriman. The new route includes the following lines, in all of which except the Southern Pacific Mr. Harriman is officially connected: Starting at San Francisco, running over the Central Pacific and the Southern Pacific direct to Ogden, thence, first, over the Union Pacific to Kansas City and thence over the Chicago and Alton to Chicago, or, second, over the Union Pacific to Omaha and thence over the Dubuque and Sioux City branch of the Illinois Central direct to Chicago, where the Baltimore and Ohio connects direct to the Atlantic seaboard.

The control of the Southern Pacific just transferred includes the large holdings controlled by Speyer & Co. and also the Huntington holdings. The price secured for these holdings is not known.

Mr. James Speyer when questioned would make only the following concise statement:

"We have received a satisfactory offer for our holdings of Southern Pacific stock and have accepted it."

From a reliable source, however, it may be stated that holdings of the Huntington estate in the Southern Pacific have been acquired by the same interests which purchased the Speyer stock and that the two blocks in connection with recent purchases in the open market which have been responsible for the sharp advance in Southern Pacific securities have given the purchasers a working control of the Southern Pacific company.

The statement that Union Pacific-Harriman interests predominate in the syndicate may be made on authority. The syndicate is composed, in the first place, of the capitalists who have been behind E. H. Harriman, including Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who, it will be recalled, have very close relations with the Pennsylvania railroad interests, and, second, the Rockefeller interests represented by the National City bank.

There is good authority for saying that the Huntington stocks were secured some weeks ago. The amount of such holdings is not a matter of public knowledge. They were bequeathed by Mr. Huntington, Mrs. Huntington receiving two-thirds and Henry Edward Huntington one-third, subject to the condition "that such shares should not in whole or in part be disposed of during the lifetime of either except with the consent of both such legatees or the survivor of them."

About one year ago—before the death of Mr. Huntington—what was known as the Speyer-Huntington syndicate acquired, according to published reports, the Crocker holdings, par value $29,000,000, and Stanford holdings, $30,000,000, and the Hubbard holdings, $2,000,000. It was also reported at the time that the syndicate had purchased the Searles' holdings of $26,000,000.

Diphtheria In Navy Yard.

BOSTON, Feb. 2.—The marine barracks and prison in the navy yard and the receiving ship Wabash have been quarantined on account of diphtheria, 30 men having been sent within a few days to the naval hospital in Chelsea. None of the cases are called serious, and most of them are mild. Precautions have been taken to prevent contagion, and Past Assistant Surgeon Ward says there is no cause for alarm.

The Whereabouts of Andrade.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 2.—Signor Ignacio Andrade, former president of Venezuela, who was reported to have left San Juan, Porto Rico, last Tuesday for Cuba, traveling incognito, with the intention of meeting a filibustering expedition bound for Venezuela, did not touch at this port. Information from reliable private sources says that he has already landed at Havana and expects to start for Puerto Cabello soon.

Publisher Sues the Union.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 2.—The union printers on the Jamestown Tribune struck several weeks ago, since which time they have been making a fight against that paper. W. W. Clark, the publisher, has begun proceedings in the supreme court against the International Typographical union and the Jamestown Typographical union, claiming $10,000 damages.

The Jeffries-Ruhlin Case.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 2.—A motion for a temporary injunction in the Jeffries-Ruhlin case was filed yesterday in Judge Hollister's court. It is probable the hearing on the motion will be set for some day next week to be designated by Judge Hollister. As the action is brought in behalf of the state no bond can be required, as is usual in injunction proceedings.

Large Stamp Output.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The output of United States postage stamps at the bureau of engraving and printing during January was the largest in the history of the government, the total number being 504,676,615, of which 9,564,840 were put up in the little book form.

January Coinage.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The coinage statement for January shows the total coinage executed at the mints of the United States during the month was $15,523,680, as follows: Gold, $12,857,200; silver, $2,713,000; minor coins, $153,480.

Electric Light Consolidation.

TRENTON, Feb. 2.—The certificate of the consolidation of 21 electric light companies of Hudson and Essex counties into the United Electric Company of New Jersey, with a capital of $20,000,000, was filed with the secretary of state.

THE NAVY'S TRIBUTE

Queen Victoria's Body Borne Toward London.

CROWDS LINE THE SOLENT'S SHORES

Greater Crowds Await Today's Magnificent Funeral Pageant—The Last Sad Rites at Osborne House.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Half a million of the late Queen Victoria's devoted subjects lining the shores of the Solent yesterday witnessed a majestic and awe inspiring pageant and bade a last farewell to their beloved ruler, happy in the circumstances of her death, sovereign of the greatest naval power in the world and fortunate in the manner of her obsequies.

Yesterday's ceremony was a fitting tribute from a nation owning Nelson for its hero to its dead monarch. All who were witnesses of the function testify to the profound emotion it inspired and agree that the spectacle could not have been surpassed for splendor and solemn effect.

The dominant note in the whole scene was its grand simplicity and, so far as human utterance was concerned, its silence. The sad procession glided along in beautiful order and precision, as though moved by some hidden power. No incident of any kind occurred to mar its stately beauty. There was no accident of any sort ashore or afloat.

The weather was traditional "queen's weather."

The "queen of the seas" was carried across the waters to the accompaniment of minute guns and military music, a picture which will live in history.

If the elements should prove equally favorable today the millions of the metropolis will render their even grander military tribute to the queen, who desired to be buried as a soldier's daughter. Thousands of troops are now marching into London to breakfast hurriedly preparatory to taking their places on the line of march. With this peaceful military invasion is an equally large civilian invasion from the provinces and abroad.

It was next to impossible last evening to obtain a bedroom in any west end hotel, and until quite a late hour visitors were eagerly searching all along the route for windows and seats, held at exorbitant prices, to view the procession.

Crowds of people are standing in the early hours of the morning watching the army of workmen who are putting the final touches to the somber decorations and the other preparations.

The Daily Telegraph, commenting upon yesterday's ceremony, says:

"In the annals of 1,000 years and the records of our island dynasties there has been nothing to equal or approach the opening scene of the last progress of the mother of her people. The first stage has been traversed in the most regal and gracious burial that ever passed over English sea and land."

The Standard says: "The whole world is standing beside the open grave. We have arrived at a solemn and historic moment that will long be remembered in British annals. We need not go back to the Sagas for the substance of romance. There was no less poetry and there was better and truer pathos in the picture painted yesterday on the Solent than any legendary painting of a dead sea king floating away to the sunset from his native haven."

BODY TAKEN FROM OSBORNE.

King Edward and the Royal Party Walk to the Pier.

COWES, Isle of Wight, Feb. 2.—The ceremonies in connection with the funeral of Queen Victoria were begun at noon yesterday, when the bishop of Winchester conducted a service in the chapel and drawing room of Osborne House.

The chapel in which the queen's body lay opened immediately upon the hall of Osborne House. The house has wings, which stand forward on either side of the main building, and it was alongside these wings and facing the center that the group, consisting of the coffin bearers, the escort, etc., was gathered.

The coffin was moved to the end of the hall after the services and a new pall spread over it. This was of ivory satin with a great cross of cloth of gold down the center and the royal arms embossed in the corners. A large artificial crown had been placed at the head of the coffin and the real jeweled scepter at the foot.

Soon after 1 o'clock the red coated soldiers of the queen's company of the grenadier guards, bearing a great purple silk flag with a cloth of gold crown worked in it, entered the quadrangle and faced the royal entrance. Then the first military order was heard, when the officer in command said, "Rest on your arms reversed." The men leaned on the butts of their rifles in an attitude of mute grief, like the four watchers who guarded the coffin in the chapel. Meanwhile officers in brilliant uniforms who were attending royal personages kept passing in at the south entrance.

A six horse gun carriage with a 12 pounder below the platform for the coffin passed under the glass porch, the men wearing the blue uniforms and yellow braided jackets of the royal horse artillery. The carriage was halted at the door of Osborne House. A group of the Alberta's bluejackets stood behind the artillerymen.

The queen's highlanders, wearing short blue jackets with silver buttons, the royal Stuart tartan and kilts and white horsehair sporrans, entered the royal doorway at 1:20 o'clock, and ten minutes later from within the house through the glass porch the cloaked coffin was borne into the sunlight and placed at rest on the gun carriage.

Then, bareheaded, came the queen's male descendants. King Edward, Emperor William and the Duke of Connaught formed the first row. The king and the kaiser wore the uniforms of British admirals and the Duke of Connaught that of a British general.

Prince Arthur of Connaught, Prince Henry of Prussia and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha followed the first line. The young Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha looked very boyish in the uniform of a colonel and with top boots.

The naval and military equerries in white plumed hats and full uniform and wearing their various orders lined either side of the gun carriage.

It was the group behind the queen's sons and grandsons that appealed in the most touching manner to the onlookers. Her daughters and granddaughters walked deeply veiled, three each in three rows. Princess Beatrice was sobbing, and the Duchess of Albany was helping and comforting her.

At 1:40 o'clock the procession started in bright sunshine.

The queen's company of grenadiers, with the queen's colors, presented arms and formed in double column, through which the gun carriage passed. On the lawn facing the entrance to Osborne House the households of the late queen and of King Edward and Queen Alexandra were formed in line.

Preceded by the queen's highlanders, the queen's pipers took places immediately in front of the gun carriage and played from Osborne House to the queen's gate.

When the procession arrived at Trinity pier, the massed bands ceased playing the funeral march, but the drums continued the muffled roll as the gun carriage bearing the coffin was drawn up at the end of the pier.

The westernmost end of the line of warships was peaceful and motionless in the cold, sunny air.

Seamen from the royal yachts removed the coffin from the gun carriage to the Alberta, the grenadiers forming a double line down the gangway and presenting arms.

The coffin was borne to the chapel on the after deck. The awnings were thrown up, showing the glittering jeweled scepter, with two gold orbs surmounted by jeweled crosses, resting at the bottom of the pall, the large crown at the head and the royal standard between.

In this way the body of the queen was borne across the sunlit waters amid the booming of guns. Both banks of the river Medina to the point where it widens into the Solent were studded with groups of islanders.

The Alberta steamed from the pier toward the Solent at 2:55 o'clock. The bluejackets manned all the ships' sides.

AT PORTSMOUTH.

Queen's Remains and Royal Party Spend the Night In the Harbor.

PORTSMOUTH, Feb. 2.—When the Alberta entered Portsmouth harbor at 5 o'clock last evening, the minute guns in the forts were sounding, the bells of all the churches of the city were tolling, and the ancient frigate Victory, moored there, fired a salute from muzzle loaders. The marines manning her stood at arms. The admiral's band played a dirge.

The escorting torpedo boat destroyers drew ahead and steamed to their berths, and the Alberta was moored in Clarence yard. A guard of 100 marines marched on board. During the night the quarter deck where the bier rests is lighted by electricity. Conspicuous among the officers on duty aboard are Vice Admiral Seymour, who distinguished himself in the China campaign, and Captain Lambton of South African fame.

The king's yacht was made fast to a buoy in midstream, with the Hohenzollern lying near. The royal personages and their suits dined on board and passed the night there. Steam launches with armed guards patrolled around both yachts all night.

The crowd in Portsmouth was estimated at 100,000. Every town along the channel contributed its quota, and the railway companies were helpless before the rush of persons going home after the parade. Thousands crowded into the stations and literally fought their way into the trains. The special cars were at their mercy. Foreign officers, diplomatists and members of parliament mixed in the rush and took their chances with the mob. The cars going toward London were packed to suffocation by all classes of people.

Government Flags at Half Mast.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Flags over all the government buildings in Washington are displayed at half mast today out of respect to the memory of Queen Victoria. No order was issued, but President McKinley telephoned to the several heads of the executive departments that he would cause the White House flag to be placed at half mast today, and in accordance with an agreement reached at a recent cabinet meeting all the cabinet officers will follow the president's example with regard to their respective department buildings. The president and members of the cabinet will attend the memorial services to be held today at St. John's Protestant Episcopal church under the direction of the British embassy. Army and navy officers attending by invitation have been directed to wear special full dress, with the crape badge of mourning on the sword hilt.

An All Night Battle.

BOMBAY, Feb. 2.—Reports have arrived here of a sanguinary battle near Koweit, on the Persian gulf, between the sheikhs of Koweit and Binrashid, who calls himself king of Arabia. Binrashid had 20,000 men, partially armed with rifles, while the sheikhs had 10,000, all mounted and carrying rifles. Binrashid marched on Koweit, and the sheikhs advanced to meet him. The battle, which was fought by night, lasted from sunset until dawn. Binrashid charged repeatedly, but he was completely routed by the sheikhs, who captured a great quantity of booty.

A Murder Confessed.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Fred Guest, detained as a witness in connection with the murder of Lebbeus Rice, farmer of Schaghticoke, has confessed to District Attorney Howard that he killed Rice because the farmer refused to allow him to marry Viola Rice, the daughter of the murdered man. The girl is 15 years of age. Guest says that he killed the farmer with a shotgun, firing at him from outside a window. After the shooting he ran into a piece of woods and remained there for several hours.

Zion's Bank Teller Returns.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Arthur Barnard, paying teller of Alexander Dowie's Zion bank, who has been missing for over a week and was believed to have met with foul play or an accident, walked into the bank yesterday and announced himself as ready to resume his duties. Barnard said he left Chicago temporarily because of an estrangement with his sweetheart.

Germany Will Cover the Loan.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—From a high financial source it is learned that the empire will not ask the United States to subscribe wholly or in part the loans needed, aggregating 197,000,000 marks, but that the entire amount will be provided for at home.

LARGE SOUTHERN CLAIMS.

House Votes to Pay Old Scores—Senate Pushing Shipping Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The house yesterday passed an omnibus bill carrying 191 claims for stores and supplies taken by the Union army during the rebellion. The claims were passed on by the court of claims and aggregated $344,480. Practically all the beneficiaries reside in the south. Considerable opposition to the bill was displayed early in the day under the leadership of Mr. Cannon, the chairman of the appropriations committee, but it flattened out later, and the bill finally was passed without division. The bill to amend the Chinese exclusion act, with a view to preventing the fraudulent entry of Chinese into the United States, was passed, as were several other bills of minor importance.

The shipping bill was kept steadily at the front in the senate, and in order to further expedite its passage a motion was agreed to for a session beginning at 11 a. m. today. Senators Rawlins of Utah and Berry of Arkansas occupied most of the time yesterday in speeches of vigorous opposition. Toward the close of the day a spirited discussion was precipitated by an amendment offered by Mr. Clay of Georgia proposing to link the Nicaragua canal bill with the shipping bill. The proposition was strongly opposed by Mr. Frye and Mr. Chandler as calculated to embarrass and delay the shipping bill. Mr. Frye appealed to senators to permit the majority after fair debate to assume its responsibilities as a majority of passing the shipping bill. Messrs. Jones of Arkansas and Teller of Colorado took a hand in the discussion, insisting that there should be no limitation of debate. Mr. Morgan of Alabama, in charge of the Nicaragua canal bill, expressed disapproval of the plan for linking the canal measure with the shipping bill, saying each should stand on its own merits.

The opposition to the shipping bill and the disposition manifested in the senate to delay its passage resulted in the calling of a meeting of the Republican committee on order of business for the purpose of considering ways and means to secure action on the bill. A decision was reached to ask for earlier daily sessions than have been held heretofore and to make an effort next week to secure night sessions.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

Twentieth Anniversary Convention Proceeding Auspiciously.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 2.—There was not a moment wasted by the delegates to the Christian Endeavor twentieth anniversary convention yesterday, for address followed address, and each service had its own distinguishing feature. Clergymen from many prominent parishes of the country contributed to the programme, and the praise services gave a delightful variation and kept the hundreds of delegates thoroughly keyed up to the Christian Endeavor spirit.

As the Maine state convention is also combined with the Williston church observance the state's quota of delegates overshadows that from other places, and yet it is one of the largest gatherings in the east, excepting the national convention.

Today is the most important day of the meeting, the feature being the unveiling of the memorial tablet on Williston church, where the first Christian Endeavor society was formed by Rev. F. E. Clark 20 years ago.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Severe fighting in Abyssinia reported from Cairo.

Governor Allen of Porto Rico reports prosperity and contentment.

Jennie Bosschieter's four assailants were taken to Trenton for imprisonment.

W. M. Collier was elected president of the New York state civil service commission.

The Fosburg Case Cleared Up.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 2.—In a boast of his deeds to a prison official at Cranston recently William McCaughey, one of the "wire gang," said that it was his gang that killed Miss Fosburg. His statement coincides with that of another member of the gang, serving a sentence at Taunton, Mass., and the two men have not seen each other since their arrest. McCaughey was seen last night and named the five members of the gang who went to Pittsfield, "Dirty Dick" Quinn, "Shag" Smith, "Jack" Bly, Fred Patterson and one Hennessey. Bly, whom he has seen since the murder, told him that if any of them was caught it meant 25 years. McCaughey has a grievance against Bly and threatens to tell things that may clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of Miss Fosburg.

Mrs. Nation Warns Saloon Keepers.

TOPEKA, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Carrie Nation has sent a personal letter to all the saloon keepers in Topeka, warning them to stop their business. The letter was addressed to "The Joint Keepers of Topeka: My dear hell bound sinners." Mrs. Nation suggested in the letter that the joint keepers appoint a place of meeting with her in which the situation could be carefully canvassed and a decision concerning the future disposition of the joints arrived at. She intimated that forcible measures would soon begin if they did not heed her advice and close up.

Saloons Raided In Iowa.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Feb. 2.—Under the leadership of Mrs. John Davis, wife of the mayor of South Sioux City, and Mrs. William Luther, wife of the town marshal, 20 women raided John Peyson's saloon in that town yesterday under the protection of Town Marshal Luther. When they finished their work, they had tumbled all the beer bottles, demijohns and cigar boxes into the middle of the street. The front doors and windows were broken. No resistance was made by Thomas Mellen, who was in charge of the place.

President Diaz Ill.

AUSTIN, Feb. 2.—A dispatch from Monterey, Mexico, says: "It is reported in government official circles that the health of President Diaz is seriously impaired. He left the City of Mexico several days ago to spend some time hunting in the hot country in the state of Guerrero, but owing to his enfeebled condition he was unable to leave the private car in which he traveled but very little, and his condition has not been improved by the trip."

GOOD ADVICE TO CUBA

Welfare of Young Republic Rests With United States.

GENEROUS TREATMENT IS URGED.

Wide Range Shown In Bids For Raising the Battleship Maine. From $867,000 to Nothing. Work of Convention.

HAVANA, Feb. 2. La Nacion, treating editorially of the present condition of Cuba, says:

"The work of getting up a constitution is a comparatively easy matter. The important question of the future is the relations which Cuba is to hold with the United States. Not only should Cuba pay back with generosity favors received, but the economical situation for us depends upon the attitude of the United States, and the political question thus resolves itself into an economical question.

"The convention, in our judgment, would do well to adopt the following as the basis of those relations:

"That the republic of Cuba will respect and guarantee lives, property and acquired rights in the same form as the United States guaranteed these in the treaty of Paris.

"That the republic will guarantee rights acquired during the American intervention by law, decree, judgment or other act of the military government.

"That the republic for a period of two years after the establishment of independence will conduct foreign affairs through the United States, will make no treaty with any other nation prejudicial to the United States and will accept no compromise which might give rise to the occupation of the island or to intervention in its customs.

"That the United States for a period of two years after the establishment of independence may occupy forts in Cuba, provided the Cuban flag flies with the American.

"That Cuba will lease to the United States two coaling stations and will give no commercial advantages to any other nation which are not given to the United States, and

"That none of these concessions or promises is to be taken to imply any cessation of the sovereignty of Cuba or any lessening of her complete independence."

La Lucha editorially indorses the view of La Nacion as to the basis of future relations.

Bids for raising the wreck of the United States battleship Maine were opened yesterday. There were 12 bidders, whose offers ranged from $867,000, the bid of the Swartz Foundry of New Orleans, to the proposal of Chamberlain & Co. of Chicago to remove the wreck for nothing and to give the government 8 per cent on the sales of the material in the form of souvenirs.

The variety of plans for raising the wreck is no less astonishing than the difference in the bids. One contractor proposed to raise it by means of a balloon. Several suggested novel schemes involving coffer dams, and others named pontoons and air bags as lifting contrivances.

The task of raising will probably go to Chamberlain & Co. if the necessary bond is furnished.

The convention held a secret session yesterday morning, at which the anti-Gomez element announced its intention to remain away from the public sessions unless the naturalization clause was stricken out of the twelfth section. The Gomez faction replied that they had won over three delegates, although they had not yet secured a quorum. The Gomezites admitted that General Gomez did not desire the presidency and would not be a candidate, but they argued that the lower classes would regard it as a blow at him if the naturalization clause was not inserted.

It was decided to suspend today's session out of respect for the memory of Queen Victoria, and the delegates will not meet again until Monday.

Serious Coasting Accident.

CORNING, N. Y., Feb. 2.—A coasting accident occurred here last night in which nearly a dozen boys and girls averaging 14 years old were injured. The bobs on which they were riding was running at a terrific rate, when it struck a heavy double sleigh. Both were smashed to splinters. Francis Erwin had his leg broken and head badly gashed in four places. Margaret Haley had her leg broken and several bad bruises, Mary O'Brien had her face torn open, and the others were all bruised and cut.

Death of a Sculptor.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 2.—John Leoni, a noted sculptor, who was brought from Rome by the management of the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago, is dead at the City hospital from injuries received in falling from a scaffold while at work in the administration building in 1893. The fall fractured his skull and rendered him subject to fits of temporary aberration. Leoni was born in Ajaccio, Corsica, near the Bonaparte homestead.

Bank Circulation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The monthly circulation statement issued by the comptroller of the currency shows that at the close of business Jan. 3, 1901, the total circulation of national bank notes was $346,742,136, an increase for the year of $99,754,943 and an increase for the month of $6,680,726. The total circulation based on United States bonds amounted to $315,721,578, an increase for the year of $105,554,789.

Nicaragua and Costa Rica at Peace.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 2.—There is no truth in the report circulated in the United States that the Nicaraguan troops entered Costa Rica and captured La Cruz and that Costa Rica had dispatched troops to the frontier. On the contrary Nicaragua and Costa Rica are at peace with each other and the Nicaraguans are now occupied in celebrating the sixth anniversary of General Melaya's presidency.

Colliery Tied Up.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 2.—The Royal Oak colliery was completely tied up by the 250 employees going on strike for the enforcement of the semimonthly pay and also demanding that the men be not ordered to work close to a mine chamber which has been on fire for several months.

A Tramps' Retreat.

READING, Pa., Feb. 2.—Jacob Heisland, a rich farmer of this district, sheltered and fed 752 tramps for the year of 1900, an increase of 191 over 1899. The highest number on any one night was 12.

The Gubernatorial Race.

A gubernatorial campaign with only one candidate in line for the Republican nomination would be such an uninteresting affair. So it is not surprising that now State Senator Mahlon Pitney is out of the race for the leading nomination which the Jersey Republicans have to offer in the approaching campaign, the political writers from all over the State are suggesting numerous names of Republicans, more or less prominent, as possible rivals of Franklin Murphy.

At the present time, Mr. Murphy is way in the lead for the gubernatorial nomination. If the Republican State convention should be held tomorrow, he would undoubtedly be nominated for Governor by an overwhelming majority. But the delegates will not be elected for many months yet and the convention itself is still further away. So it is possible that some new candidate may develope enough strength in the intervening time to give Mr. Murphy a lively hustle for the nomination and possibly win out in the end.

While these things are within the bounds of possibility, the probable course of events will see Franklin Murphy nominated by the Republicans as their candidate for the next Governor of New Jersey.

The discovery of a means whereby the number of a bicycle may be proved despite the fact that the original number has been filed away, is one which will attract the attention of every owner of a bicycle. Bicycle thefts have been unusually numerous during the last few years and the thieves have, in many cases, been able to pursue their work with great freedom, owing to the inability of the owners of the wheels to prove their property. With the number filed away it was heretofore supposed that it was almost impossible to absolutely identify a wheel. This discovery gives a new aspect to the situation and goes far to protect the owners of bicycles.

Editor Harmsworth, the enterprising young man who has achieved a phenomenl success with his London newspaper and other publications, has said, remarks the Philadelphia Record, that in the first instance his business flourished because of the enormous amount of advertising which he placed in the daily newspapers. When he was asked whether he used other forms of publicity Mr. Harmsworth replied: "No; I don't, because I don't believe in them. We tried them and found they did not pay us. We pin ourselves strictly to newspaper advertising, and we know it is a good investment. We always use large space."

The Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company now stands alone between two great combines, the Central Electric Company to the south and west, covering most of Middlesex and Somerset counties, and the United Electric Company to the north and east, taking in the other end of Union county and practically all of Hudson, Essex and Morris counties. Rumors have been current that the Plainfield company would join either one of the other of these big combinations of electric light and power interests. While none of these rumors bear the stamp of authority, any such union would not greatly surprise the public.

Some action on the subject of placing proper street signs about the city may be expected at the meeting of the Common Council Monday evening. While the Council may not provide for signs over the entire city, the members of that body are beginning to realize the universal demand throughout the city for proper street signs and so are likely to take steps toward providing them.

The action of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company is giving transfers all over Plainfield and North Plainfield to passangers on the through line is a decided advance in the policy of that company, particularly as it comes without special solicitation.

The elevation of the railroad tracks through the city of Newark will be a great improvement and will undoubtedly be the means of greatly reducing the number of accidents which have regularly occurred on the railroad tracks in that city.

Gradually Plainfield's new railway station is being put in condition for use by the public. When it is completed, Plainfield will have the handsomest station of any city on the line of the Jersey Central Railroad.

The New Jersey Legislature will take another turn next week and consider some of the bills now before that body.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The sayings of the little folks are often very amusing. Not long ago a teacher in one of the local schools asked her pupils to give the definition of the word "remember." It was some moments before any one answered, and then as an answer that seemed to be right came into the head of one of the little ones, he raised his hand and said, "that's what you forget with."

. . . . . .

It was rather an amusing sight to see a number of men on one of the principal streets of the borough snow balling one another Thursday morning, and it was a caution the way the snow balls flew past pedestrians' heads. They kept this up for nearly a half hour before they became tired of the sport, and as they dispersed they said that they had not had so much fun since they were boys.

Phillip Leichentritt, aged 11 years, and Harry Rottberg, aged 13 years, of this city, have each written a letter to William J. Bryan at Lincoln, Neb., asking him to send them a copy of his new paper bearing his own signature. The boys told Mr. Bryan how sorry they were that he was defeated for the Presidency and they reaffirmed their allegiance to the cause of Democracy by telling him that when they become of age they will both vote the straight Democratic ticket.

Bed Bugs and Cock Roaches.

For destruction and complete riddance of Cock Roaches, Beetles, Wood and Water Bugs, Bed Bugs, Ants, Rats, Mice, etc., "Rough on Rats," though poisonous, if used with care is most effective. In fact it is the only thing that will permanently annihilate Bed Bugs and Cock Roaches. As an exterminator of Rats and Mice, "Rough on Rats" is the old reliable that never fails nor disappoints. They "don't die in the house." Is sold all around the world. Is used by all civilized nations of the earth. Is the most extensively advertised, the best know and has the largest sale of any article of its kind on the face of the globe. It gives satisfaction every time. Beware of imitations. I employ no peddlers. Have a suspicion of any dealer offering substitutes said to be as good. 15c. and 25c.

New Mining Company Formed.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the county clerk at Elizabeth by the Virgilena Copper Mining Company. The company is capitalized at $125,000, divided into $12,500 shares of $10 each. The incorporators are John A. F. Newton, Dudley P. Thorn and and Alexander G. Conoley. The company expect to commence operations at once. Their office will be located at 211 North avenue.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 2.—With the borough election but five weeks distant from next Tuesday, great interest is already being manifested in the probable outcome. The offices to be voted for are Mayor, Assessor, Freeholder and two Councilman. It is not at all unlikely that the regular Republican ticket will be opposed by a Citizens' ticket As to candidates, it may be a little early to name any particular aspirants, but several are known to be quietly working to secure the nominations. Altogether the election promises to be the most interesting the borough has seen in some time.

The next lecture in the educational series arranged by the Board of Education will take place within a few weeks. It will be given by H. M. Maxson, of Plainfield, and will be a description of a recent visit to Switzerland. It is to be hoped he will be greeted by a large audience. This lecture will probably conclude the series.

Miss May Taylor who recently passed through a serious illness, was able to walk to town for the first time yesterday. Under the care of Dr. Gaston she has regained her old strength and will resume her position in New York Monday.

The condition of Arthur Parker, who is seriously ill with pleuro-pneumonia, remains unchanged today and his recovery is still regarded as being doubtful.

Mrs. John B. Terry and daughter, of Brooklyn, who have been spending the past week with borough relatives, returned home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Trimmer, formerly of the borough but now of Roselle, were the guests of friends in town yesterday.

William Giddis has been confined to his home for the past few days with an attack of the grip.

Henry Weidenkaupt is entertaining Harry Zimmerman, of Elizabeth.

Mrs. W. H. Terry was the guest of relatives at Westfield yesterday.

Mrs. L. B. Nelson is one of the latest victims of the grip.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, Feb. 2—The school teachers of Middlesex county began their yearly examinations yesterday and will continue them today. The examinations are given by the Board of Examiners at New Brunswick.

The Township Committee held a special meeting yesterday for the purpose of conferring with the overseer of the poor.

John C. Morris sat up today tor the first time this week. He has had a severe attack of the grip.

S. R. Dayton was taken seriously ill Thursday night and the services of Dr. Nelson were required.

William VanNuis has returned home from a few days' visit with friends at Perth Amboy.

Mrs. Thornton, of New York, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. W. B. Smith.

The regular meeting of the Board of Eucation will be held Monday afternoon.

Z P. Osmun has rented the Tabb farm.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 2—Rev. G. M. Shott, of the Baptist church, has chosen for the subject for his Sunday morning discourse, "Missions in China, the Philippine Islands, Japan and Formosa". In the evening the subject will be "Honoring or Dispising God."

Clarence Lambert has finished harvesting his annual crop of ice. Mr. Lambert now has both his large houses at Willow Grove and the one in town filled and ready for the summer demand.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schrenier, of Mountain avenue, who have both been seriously ill for the past week, are improving now very nicely.

The members and friends of "The Saturday Night Club," of Fanwood, will enjoy an entertainment and dance in the Fire House tonight.

The Township Committee met in the township rooms last evening. A number of bills were paid and other routine business transacted.

Miss Josie Herbert, of New York, is spending a few days at "The Manse" as the guest of Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Shott.

The weekly prayer meeting in the Methodist church this evening will be led by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bright.

It is reported that "Ye Terrell Inn" is about to change hands again.

Miss Nettie Reick was the guest of friends in Plainfield yesterday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, February 2.—The funeral of Miss Matilda Winans took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her father on Plainfield avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Cubberley. The bearers were Roy Clawson, Raymond Payne, Ralph Eckart and Hollis Cubberley. A solo was sung by Mabel Cubberley, the title of which was "Bright Jewels." Peculiar sadness is attendent upon this funeral as the deceased is the only daughter and leaves a twin brother. The interment was at Hillside cemetery.

Installation of officers was held at the last meeting of the P. O. S. of A. The district president was present from New Brunswick. Joseph Eckart was installed as president, Jas. Carkoff, vice-president; W. E. Clawson, master of forms; R. B. Manning as conductor; A. Brundage as inspector and Chas. Brantingham as guard. George Smith is the new past president and R. B. Manning was reinstalled as trustee.

The congregation of the Baptist church was entertained last night at a "poverty social" held at the parsonage. Each one did his or her part toward the success of the evening. Gingham aprons, braided hair and unpolished shoes were in evidence. Refreshments were served and it was late in the evening before the party separated. The affair was in charge of a committee of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The pastor of the Baptist church will speak tomorrow morning upon "The Relation of the Local Church to the Evangelization of the World." The twentieth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Societies will be observed at the evening services. Addresses and music will be other features of the meeting.

McDonough Bros. started to cut ice this noon with a force of twenty-five men. This is the second crop of ice procured.

The skaters have partially cleared Holly's pond of snow, but it is yet not in very good condition.

William Vorhees, of Metuchen, was visiting friends in town yesterday.

Parker Morris is making a few days' visit with Hollis Cubberley.

Miss Nellie Manning is confined at home by illness.

A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying and exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. What is needed is that which is cleansing, soothing, protecting and healing. Such a remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. Price 50 cents at druggists or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. The Balm when placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. A cold in the head vanishes quickly.

ENDEAVOR DAY SERVICE.

Appropriate Meeting Held by Endeavorers of Park Avenue Baptist Church.

Endeavor Day was appropriately observed last evening by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church. There was an excellent attendance. Mrs Alice M. Runyon was in charge of the meeting and she made some helpful remarks concerning the day The junior society assisted in the service.

During the meeting there was a vocal duet by Florence Smalley and Willie Switzel. after which the latter sang a solo, the societies joining in the chorus. At the close a social time was enjoyed.

An Interesting Lecture.

"Some Features of British Rule in India" will be the subject of a lecture to be given by Prof. A. M. Wheeler, of Yale University, under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club, Monday afternoon, Feb. 4, in the Casino.

Mr. and Mrs James R. Joy have returned to their home on Myrtle avenue, after a ten days' visit with Mr Joys' sister, Mrs. Arms, at Detroit, Mich.

PLAYS OF MERIT ARE COMING NEXT WEEK

Manager Maze Edwards Has Three Strong Attractions Booked for Coming Week.

"OLD HOMESTEAD" COMING.

DENMAN THOMPSON WILL APPEAR HERE NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT.

Wm. A. Brady's Company Will Give "Sorrows of Satan," Monday Evening—"The Game Keeper" Wednesday Night.

The performances of the Charles H. Leyburne's Bon Ton Stock Company at Music Hall the past week have been unusually good, far above the average and beyond what is generally expected of a popular price show. In fact as far as dramatic ability and merit is concerned, the Leyburne company is the equal of any of the better known organizations which have appeared here. Mr. Leybrne himself is a pleasing versatile comedian, all his people are good, but the honors of the week must be accorded to dainty little Emma Bunting, that winsome little actress. The company give their final performance tonight.

Maze Edwards offers a tempting array of novelties the coming week, the first on Monday night, in the presentation of Wm. A. Brady's production of Marie Corelli's famous work, "The Sorrows of Satan," dramatatized by the authoress herself. It is conceded by literary people to be one of the best works of recent date. In the book and the play, Satan is represented as the victim of man's evil nature. He is being punished through all the ages for his rebellion in Heaven, and is forced to mingle with men, exerting his evil influence, yet yearning himself for salvation. He has grown weary of his power. He has supped his fill of damnation, but he cannot control his influence for evil. He can only feebly endeavor to do good. Whenever a human being resists his temptation, the term of Lucifer's punishment is shortened and the fallen angel is brought nearer the portals of the paradise he once affected to despise. As few mortals resist temptation to evil, the "Son of the Morning" has an almost hopeless case.

"The Game Keeper," a new and beautiful scenic production with Smith O'Brien as the star, will be the attraction Wednesday night. "The Game Keeper" is an Irish comedy drama with beautiful and costly stage settings, pathetic and pleasing incidents. Smith O'Brien in the title role is a fine looking and picturesque game keeper, singer, dancer and lover, who is always more than a match for his enemies, ready of wit, quick on the trigger. The cast is adequate. Kitty Coleman, the former colleen of Chauncey Olcott's company, Morma Hyatt and Baby Mildred always come in for their share of applause.

"The Old Homestead" comes on Saturday night, and a crowded audience is a foregone conclusion. There is only one company on the road this season, and it is headed by Denman Thompson, so there is no danger of the public being hoodwinked by false promises. The company is the same that recently played at the Academy of Music, New York, with all the original scenery and effects and is under the personal management of Mr. Thomson himself, who will appear as "Uncle Josh." The celebrated double quartette, and the choir singers, will present some new music, and a performance of merit is assured those who attend.

Monday, Feb. 11, Carl Haswin, a well known leading romantic actor, famous for his splendid rendition of "The Silver King," will present his grand scenic melo-drama entitled "A Lion's Heart." This play has had the greatest run of any of the famous English melo-dramas presented within the past twenty years. It was performed over 1,000 times in London without interruption, and has made a great success in this country. Thursday, Feb. 13, there will be Lincoln J. Carter's latest and best play, "The Eleventh Hour" "The Private Secretary" comes Feb. 16, and The Cohans in their new play, "The Governor's Son," Monday, Feb. 18, with other good things to follow.

The report of the collector was as follows: Taxes and interest, $3,039.69; Board of Health, $41.05; special school, $1,315.62; bills payable in note, $1,000; licenses, $878 75; fines, $9; Plainfield Street Railway, $200; balance, January 1, $3,857 29; total receipts, $16,341 40; disbursements, $11 345 11; borough account, $4,396 04; Watchung avenue, $610 25.

Mayor Smalley stated that he understood that at the end of eight years the trolley company was to pay $200, which is an increase over the per centage they have been paying. Clerk Rowley will investigate the matter.

Mr. Valiant made a report for the street committee in the absence of Chairman Clark. It showed an expended of $170 64 during the past month. Mr. Lee, chairman of the marshal committee, reported that there had been eight arrests during January. Mr. Rogers reported, in the absence of Mr. Swackhamer, that the committee on the collection and assessment of taxes had examined the duplicates of the collector, clerk and assesor and found them correct.

Mr. Valiant offered a resolution providing for the drawing of a warrant for $41 05 in favor of the Board of Health, and another resolution providing for a warrant for $1,315 62 special school tax.

Mr. Rogers offered a resolution which provides that Wm. Demarest shall have a fire tapper maintained in his house so long as he remains a member of the fire department. This action was taken on account of the services performed by Mr. Demarest. A copy of the resolution was ordered sent to Mr. Demarest.

Mr. Valiant offered a resolution providing for warrants to meet notes for $2,000 which are due this month. Another resolution called for the borrowing of $1,500 for forty days.

Mr. Rogers offered a resolution which allowed a reduction of $100 on the assessment on Robert Hayman's property. Assessor French explained that when he made the assessment the family was ill with scarlet fever, and he made a miscalculation. Another resolution by the same member provided for the erasure of several accounts off the tax list for various reasons.

The Council voted against a resolution offered by Mr. Rogers which, on the recommendation of Assessor French, favored a reduction in the assessment on the property on Greenbrook road owned by the First National Bank. The resolution made the assessment $300. It was formerly $1 100. Every member, including Mayor Smalley, was against the resolution, and Counsel Reed gave as his opinion that the Council had no legal right to reduce the assessment and the bank was not entitled to it.

Mr. Valiant reported in the matter of municipal ownership and stated that the committee, of which he is chairman, had held a meeting and had considered private ownership in the matter of lighting the borough streets. He said the committee expects in a short time to submit a practical proposition for lighting the streets. The Mayor called attention to the fact that the present lease with the Plainfield Electric Light Company expires this month.

Another resolution by Mr. Valiant called for the borrowing of $1,000 to pay the Watchung avenue certificate, in accordance with the plan adopted by the Council to pay one each year. In the early part of the meeting this matter called forth opposition on the part of Mr. Valiant to the Somerset street widening, but Mayor Smalley felt sure that the certificates could be paid as planned and that the additional expense for the Somerset street improvement met at the same time.

The Council then adjourned to meet in two weeks, February 15, when the annual reports will be presented.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Speyer. Der verstorbene amerikanische Bürger Henry Villard vermachte der Stadt Zweibrücken, wo er geboren war, 50,000 Mark. Außerdem erhielten an Legaten: die Stadt Speyer 50,000 Mark, das Krankenhaus der Stadt Speyer 60,000 Mark und das Museum in Kaiserslautern 50,000 Mk.

Edenkoben. Bei der jüngsten Volkszählung ergab sich das Kuriosum, daß in Edenkoben genau so viele Einwohner ermittelt wurden, wie im Jahre 1895. Ihre Zahl betrug nämlich beide Male 5128.

Zweibrücken. Drei Kinder des Wirthes Schäfer im Alter von sechs Monaten, zwei und fünf Jahren wurden an einem Morgen als Leichen in ihren Betten aufgefunden. Im Ofen war ein Feuerwerkskörper, ein sogenannter Frosch, explodirt, wodurch die Ofenklappe geschlossen und so der Tod der Kinder durch Erstickung herbeigeführt wurde. Ein viertes Kind konnte noch gerettet werden.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Die Technische Hochschule dahier zählt im laufenden Wintersemester 849 Studirende. Von denselben sind 528 Württemberger, 209 Angehörige anderer deutscher Staaten, 104 der übrigen europäischen Staaten und acht von außereuropäischen Ländern. Hierzu kommen noch 184 Hospitanten.

Alpirsbach. In Ehlenbogen schlug ein elfjähriger Knabe seinem sechs Jahre alten Schwesterchen wegen 20 Pfennigen, die er ihr abverlangt hatte, mit einem Stein den Schädel ein und bedeckte die Leiche mit Steinen. Der jugendliche Verbrecher ergriff die Flucht, wurde aber in einem benachbarten Ort festgenommen. Der Vater des jungen Mörders wurde vor einem Jahre wegen Mißhandlung dieses mißrathenen Sohnes zu 1½ Jahren Gefängniß verurtheilt.

Gönningen. Für den Uebergang der Bahn über den Breitenbach bei Gönningen wurde eine Brücke mit 1½ Metern Durchlaß gebaut. Da der Bach selbst unter normalen Verhältnissen über zwei Meter breit ist und jedes Frühjahr bei raschem Schneegang zur Größe eines Flusses anschwillt, mußte jedes Kind sehen, daß die Brücke viel zu klein war. Es stellte sich nun die verblüffende Thatsache heraus, daß die Pläne verwechselt worden waren und in Folge dessen ein kleines, über einen Graben in der Nähe von Ohmenhausen projektirtes Brückchen über den Breitenbach gebaut worden war. Es wurde nun die Brücke schleunigst wieder weggerissen, und dafür wird eine regelrechte Brücke mit einem Durchlaß von vier Metern erbaut.

Pleidelsheim. Anhier wurde der 50jährige Privatmann Gottlieb Jung in seinem Bette ermordet vorgefunden. Die Kasse Jungs im Betrage von 6000 Mark war geraubt.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Der Studirende am Karlsruher Polytechnikum, Waclaw v. Krzizanski aus Galizien, hat sich aus unbekannten Gründen erschossen.—Bei einer Schlägerei in einer hiesigen Wirthschaft wurde der 23jährige Glaser Jakob Wagner aus Appenhof erstochen. Vier der That verdächtige Personen wurden verhaftet.

Bretten. In unserer Gegend wird der Cichorienbau stark betrieben. Bei der Filiale der Firma H. Frank Söhne in Bretten wurden im verwichenen Jahre im Ganzen 6,290,500 Kilo abgeliefert und dafür 172,281 Mark ausbezahlt.

Emmendingen. Der Rechtsanwalt Weiler wurde wegen Unterschlagungen im Gesammtbetrage von 6000 Mark zu 1 Jahr Gefängniß verurtheilt.

Mannheim. Die Sammlungen für das hierorts zu errichtende Moltke-Denkmal haben innerhalb weniger Wochen die Summe von 30,000 Mark ergeben, so daß bereits die Errichtung des Denkmals als gesichert betrachtet werden darf.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Der Landesausschuß genehmigte in dritter Lesung den Gesetzentwurf betreffend den Verkauf eines Theiles des Bitscher Stadtwaldes an den Reichsmilitärfiskus für 5,500,000 Mark. Auf dem Gelände soll ein großer Truppenübungsplatz für das 15. Armeekorps angelegt werden.

Kolmar. Dahier wird das Projekt der Gründung einer Ober-Realschule lebhaft ventilirt. Die Schülerzahl der bereits bestehenden unteren Realklassen hat sich in letzter Zeit so bedeutend vermehrt, daß in mehreren Klassen Doppelunterricht ertheilt werden muß. Sie übersteigt bei Weitem die Schülerzahl der entsprechenden Klassen des Gymnasiums.

Notice as to Unmuzzled Dogs Running at Large.

By a city ordinance, it is provided that no dog shall be permitted to run at large within the city limits, unless a good and sufficient muzzle shall be placed over the mouth of said dog in such manner as to render biting impossible. If any person permits or suffers any dog owned or harbored by him and not so muzzled to run at large, the ordinance provides that he shall upon conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense.

Any person prepared to make complaint under oath of any violation of this ordinance may apply to the subscriber and have prosecution begun forthwith.

THE MODE.

Continued Pre-eminence of Lace as a Decoration.

Lace is the universal trimming. In application and insertion or mingled with embroidery it appears upon gowns, mantles and hats. There are innumerable boas are worn of ostrich or coq plumes, and boas of lace and net, and every day new designs are produced. A great many boas are worn of astrich or coq plumes, and especially of lace, crepe de chine and gauze. One of the newest is a voluminous ruche of black chantilly net which passes around the neck and has two long scarf ends falling to the foot of the skirt. There are three large tucks in the end of each of these scarfs, through each tuck a band of satin ribbon being passed, to give firmness.

Many cravats are of velvet or silk embroidered or with applications, and even bands of fur are sometimes used as a decoration for neckwear accompanying nice house bodices.

Another novel boa is of plaited black mousseline de soie mingled with large roses of black velvet having yellow centers. A scarf of crepon is trimmed with curled marabou. A pelerine collar of coq feathers is ornamented with black spangles and fawn velvet embroidered with jet and steel.

The cut shows a costume of wistaria silk upon which are applications of violet velvet ribbon in stripes. The skirt is decorated near the foot by a wide band of yellow guipure forming points. The fitted bodice is trimmed with guipure, which forms two horizontal bands near the top, while at the lower part it is placed between the bands of velvet. The sleeves, of elbow length, are trimmed with guipure in the same way and are continued by puffs of silk with velvet stripes, terminating in a guipure cuff. The belt is of guipure. The hat of wistaria velvet is trimmed with a long, jeweled buckle, a wistaria plume and a cluster of orchids. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER GOWNS.

Costumes For Morning Wear and Simple Occasions.

Among the trimmings most employed upon the plainer sort of costume are circular ruffles and bias bands of cloth or panne, which are arranged upon skirts to simulate a redingote or polonaise or are carried around horizontally in a style already familiar.

Mohair used in the manner of stripes is greatly worn upon simple gowns. Tailor made costumes of a more formal sort are embroidered with fine mohair braid, silk cord and even with minute bands of fur, especially otter; also passementerie, both wide and narrow, passementerie motifs of various kinds, including entire boleros to be applied over the bodice.

A great deal of black trimming is used upon plain goods of warm color.

Hats for children are rather elaborate this winter. As a rule, they are large and are of draped velvet or silk or are profusely trimmed. Few flowers are employed, but ribbons, fur, feathers and lace are freely used. The hat illustrated is of pastel blue felt and is trimmed with pastel blue velvet ribbon, of which the back is a darker and greener blue. This ribbon forms a bow the loops of which rest upon the brim, while the ends are erect in front. A band of the ribbon is carried around the crown and passes through a gold buckle at the back, the long ends falling upon the hair.

METALLIC TRIMMINGS.

Gold, Silver, Spangles, Beads and Jewels In Demand.

It would be difficult to guess at the amount of passementerie, motifs, galloon, etc., that is now employed to decorate costumes, from the simplest to the most elaborate. The taste for ornamentation seems to increase constantly, and there is no sort of trimming imaginable which does not appear. For rich costumes, gold and silver cords, ribbons and braids, jet and metallic beads, spangles, metal threads and jewels are immensely employed, and glistening effects, at one time decried as vulgar and eschewed by the most elegantly dressed women, are now sought after and highly esteemed.

A new decoration for bridal gowns consists of flowers of white mousseline de soie. These are applied in high relief on the ground of white satin. They are also used on evening costumes and are mingled with lace and embroidery.

The cut illustrates a gown having a skirt of plain turquoise blue cloth or silk. The bodice of cream silk is shirred and puffed vertically and has sleeves to match, with a frill over the hand. Over this bodice is a bolero of turquoise broche silk, draped at the left shoulder by a knot of black velvet having ends with gold tags. The collar is of black velvet with similar tags. The elbow sleeves of broche silk are caught at the edge by a velvet knot. The belt of black velvet is fastened by an artistic gold buckle. The hat of turquoise tulle is covered with a net of black chenille and jet and is trimmed with cream plumes and black velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

LONG WRAPS.

Many Varieties of the Straight Sack Now Seen.

The straight mantle has given rise to some curious methods of cutting the material. For example, where a considerable amount of fullness is desired as the mantle descends and yet the tendency to form folds under the arms is to be avoided a dart is sometimes carried from the top of the shoulder to the fullest part of the bust, thus insuring a straight fall in front and under the arms also. This dart is easily concealed by trimming which simulates a yoke or bolero.

EMPIRE MANTLE.

For long sack mantles the back is sometimes completely straight, but cut so as to form undulations toward the foot. Other examples show a curved seam under each arm and down the middle of the back, which is usually covered by a decoration of some sort.

Medici collars are disappearing, except for fur lined wraps, as many women prefer to wear a separate fur boa, collar or pelerine.

A long empire mantle is shown in the illustration. It is of cloth and has a yoke forming a sort of bolero, ornamented with two bands of fur and a flaring fur collar which crosses in front and fastens with an animal head and tails. The body of the mantle is laid in plaits, with a stitched strap running down each plait and the fullness left free toward the foot. The pagoda sleeves are bordered with fur, and the lining is of light silk. The velvet hat is lifted at the side by a gold buckle and is trimmed with ribbon and a curled feather. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Drew Scores Success in "Richard Carvel"

He Has Given the Title Role a Careful Interpretation That Gives the Production Its Value

JOHN DREW, who is the glass of fashion and the mold of form to the present generation, in this season's play, "Richard Carvel," has to forego the latest thing in clothes and don the apparel of a century and a quarter ago; but has compensations in the fit of his silken hose, the set of his mantle, the manner of wearing his rapier.

The young men of the metropolis have been wont to await Drew's first autumnal appearance in a new society play before deciding on their outer garments, knowing that what their model wore would be the correct thing for the season; and now are disconsolate that Beau Brummel has failed them, that there is no other such artist to design their costumes. They will have to depend on the tailor, let his dull brain evolve creations that are to influence the winter's garb of the adult masculine population of a continent.

But there are other things Mr. Drew can do besides design and wear clothes, and perhaps it is not too strong praise to say he can do them as well. The critics are almost agreed in pronouncing the dramatized "Richard Carvel" is John Drew; that it is his controlled farce, his refinement, his careful interpretation of the part, that give the stage production its value. The play drags till Drew appears, the play drags when Drew disappears.

This is the ninth season that Mr. Drew has traveled as star under Mr. Frohman's management. Last year he did particularly fine work in "The Tyranny of Tears" with Isabel Irving as leading lady. "The Tyranny of Tears" was a more artistic, finished production than "Richard Carvel," and afforded greater opportunity for Mr. Drew's carefully studied, quiet acting; but there are pirates and fighting and a dastardly duke, a mercenary father, a hapless maiden, an all-conquering hero in "Richard Carvel," which will doubtless appeal to the popular fancy to a degree that was not secured by last season's play.

In "Richard Carvel" we have another dramatized novel and another dramatized historical novel. The dramatist, Mr. Edward E. Rose, has not added to the story in any way to improve it; the general verdict being that Mr. Winston Churchill's original production is the happier, though perhaps the villainy is lurid and deep-dyed in both. The love-making of Dorothy Manners and Richard in novel and drama is the center of interest, from beginning to happy culmination.

"Richard Carvel" is a tale of Maryland, time the colonial days. It gives us the stately manners, the pomp and circumstance of the time; and though all Americans of course are democratic in their ideals, still—as Tom Moore dearly loved a lord—they dearly love to hear of the aristocracy that held sway in colonial America, love to dwell on the fact that here, too, there were folk of high degree. And though we delight to rail at American beauties that sell themselves for foreign titles, we take not a little secret pride that the daughters of our soil are so fascinating, so desirable; and the colonial girl, Dorothy Manners, appeals to our national pride and complacency when she spurns the duke of Chartessea.

Dorothy is a sad coquette. The play opens with Dorothy and a flock of admirers disporting themselves on the lawn before Carvel hall, in company with Dorothy's chum, pretty Polly Swain; Marmaduke Manners, her vain, foppish father; Richard's uncle, Grafton Carvel, who plots and finally gains the estate; Capt. Clapsaddle, Lord Comyn, and a sprinkling of Maryland ladies and gentlemen. Capt. Lewis, an agent of the duke of Chartessea, who is suing for Dorothy's hand, appears on the scene and consults her father as to ways for obtaining the girl's consent. Dorothy plays with poor Richard, pretending not to love him, refusing him for the fifth time.

On the morrow she is forced to set sail for England, but manages to see Richard before her departure, and give him hope that he shall see her again and then have the consent she has so long withheld. He sees her sooner than either expect, for a band of pirates, hired by his uncle, capture him and carry him to sea. He is rescued by Capt. Paul Jones and taken to London.

In the second act the scene shifts to the living room of the Star and Garter. Here Richard meets Sir Horace Walpole, and by him is informed of Dorothy's whereabouts. Later he meets the maid herself, who is suffering the fate common "if ladies be but young and fair;" pursuit by both knight and knave. Richard has an unpleasant introduction to the bloated, beady-eyed duke, marriage with whom, Dorothy confides, is now her duty, her father being in his grace's power. But her heart is Richard's. The duke is shown what a formidable rival young Carvel is, and resolves to get rid of the inconvenient gentleman. He professes friendship and invites him to a reception at his town house.

It is the duke's intention to force him, at this reception, into a quarrel, in which Capt. Lewis will put an end to him. During the evening Richard hears news from over sea, of his grandfather's death and of Grafton Carvel's accession to the estates; and hears that war is declared against America. Dorothy, remembering former utterances of Richard, full of America's patriotism and English disloyalty, urges him to fly. The guests, on hearing of the declaration of war, shout: "Down with the rebels!" Richard, in defiance, gives the toast "Lexington." Swords gleam about him, and he and the duke engage in combat. The duke is wounded, and Richard escapes.

There is an interval of two years between the closing events of the third act and the first scene of the fourth. It is 1777; the British have landed near Annapolis, and not far off Richard awaits with his continental troops. Dorothy and Richard meet at Carvel hall, and while in the midst of declarations of undying affection are interrupted by the duke of Chartessea and his companions. Richard is captured and the duke triumphant. But his triumph is short lived. The last act is almost wholly devoted to the love passages of Dorothy and Richard.

As a lover, a patriot, a most unhappy outcast, a fighter, a wronged man, a brave man, a victor, the tamer of a coquette, an all-round hero, Mr. Drew is quite convincing in "Richard Carvel."

Mr. Drew began to act at the age of 20 years, making his first appearance at his mother's Arch Street theater, in Philadelphia. He has been on the stage 27 years, being now 47 years old. Mr. Drew has appeared under famous managers, played with many famous theatrical stars. He was associated with Mr. Daly, playing in "The Big Bonanza," and later with Fanny Davenport in "Pique." He acted with Ada Rehan for over half a score of years, and, as the unhappy husband appears to be his happy role, was particularly successful as Petruchio in "The Taming of the Shrew." As Rosencranz in "Hamlet" he supported Edwin Booth.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

REVIVAL IS NEEDED.

Washington Preacher Wants to Shake Up the Capital City.

Not Since 1876 Has the Town Enjoyed a Period of Genuine Religious Enthusiasm—Cause of the Stagnation.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"WHY cannot we have a glorious revival of religion that will shake the pillars of the capitol and make this seat of government tremble before the power of fervent prayer?"

The preacher is one of the most eloquent and earnest of the clergymen who use their best endeavors in this city to increase their church membership and enhance the general morality of the community. He repeated his question again and again, and then announced that an effort would be made at the next Thursday evening prayer meeting to start a revival.

On the following Monday morning there was a preachers' meeting and our enthusiastic clergyman declared that if the 200 preachers in this city were imbued with the true spirit they could start a fire which would burn out all evil in our midst; and he cited the Pentecostal work of the twelve apostles, who were so successful as soul winners.

The other preachers were not awakened by his zeal. They were more conservative and did not believe that such a revival as was desired could be brought about. One of the elders said: "This is a peculiar city for revival work. It is an intellectual center, especially when congress is in session, and these intellectual men are all extremely conservative about religion. The majority of them do not believe in revivals anyway, but regard them as periods of nervous excitement rather than periods of souls saving."

"Nevertheless their souls can be saved," persisted the worker for a revival, "and for one I am going to insist upon an effort."

The old elder said: "There has been no revival here since 1876, when Hammond, the evangelist, aroused the District of Columbia and accomplished a great deal of good, some evidences of which still remain apparent to those of us who knew of the steady and perfect conversions of that time, but where are you going to get your Hammond? When will there come another?"

Well, the revival will be attempted, anyway. There is determination in the manner and voice of the preacher; a kind of determination which always produces results, but not always such great results as are desired. One of the veteran members of his church to-day said: "I shall try to stand by the pastor and do all that I can, just as I have done in all revival efforts for more than 40 years. But religion is not now what it was Even the religion of Wesley is not what it once was.

"In the old days every member of the church considered it his duty to seek converts and point out the way of salvation. No stranger could come into the church without having his hand clasped and listening to some words of welcome. Nowadays it is different. People are dignifiedly escorted to seats, but dignity exceeds cordiality.

"When I was a young church worker, 40 years ago, everybody took part in the singing, but to-day the choir does it all, or most of it. The pastors used to call on old men and women to lead in prayer in the churches. But the modern pastors do all of the praying, and they pray too long. When members were called on to help out they felt that they were factors in the work; and, feeling the responsibility, they sought converts under all circumstances. The choirs sing new hymn tunes, even when old hymns are used. This takes the best part of the worship away from the people. I am reminded of a couple of verses on old tunes that used to be recited here in our churches by a little girl who was born in Washington:

"THERE MUST BE A REVIVAL."

"We didn't have no hymn books then,
the congregation knew
Each song, each verse, each line and tune, the dear old hymn book through.
We didn't have no trumpets then, no organs built for show,
We only sang to 'praise the Lord, from whom all blessings flow.'

"An' so I love the old hymns, an' when my time shall come,
Before the light has left me an' my singing lips are dumb;
If I can only hear 'em then, I'll pass without a sigh
To 'Canaan's fair and happy land, where my possessions lie.'"

"You see I am nigh onto 75 years old," continued the old man, "and I know all of the old hymns and tunes, just as well as I did 40 years ago. But the young people who now belong to our churches do not know the hymns; and when they grow up there will be no 'old hymns' for them, because the choirs are taking all of the church music out of their mouths and out of their hearts.

"I was a clerk in a store here when I got religion, and I simply went to work like the men who were old men then, and I began talking my religion to all of the young men about me, asking and begging them to come to church with me. I could sing, and I induced a number of young men to come with me and join in the singing. Very soon they were singing the songs of Zion as earnestly as I was. So you see Moody was not the discoverer of the power of song. Charles Wesley lived and sang and worked long before Sankey came forword with his evangelical wonders."

One of the superannuated preachers of the Baltimore conference, a very venerable man, says: "What you have heard about the power of song in the early days is correct. In those days we did not hastily give preachers' licenses to young men, unless they could sing, as well as exhort. It is true that Washington has always been a chilly place for revivalists. We could get up big revivals in Baltimore, or Hagerstown, or even at Harper's Ferry, in the old days, but Washington was cold and unresponsive. We could get up tremendous revivals at Bladensburg, where statesmen would come from Washington to fight duels and kill each other."

"The religious newspapers and the secular papers show that great revivals are being held in other cities," says the enthusiastic preacher, "and I shall make the effort in spite of all discouragements from within and without the church."

That a Sunday school can be built up in this city has been demonstrated, and that is ample reason for believing that a church or churches may be built up here. About six years ago P. H. Bristow, a clerk in a large store, was made superintendent of one of our Sunday schools which had a membership of about 300. Inside of two years the membership of that school was upwards of 2,000. Mr. Bristow devoted his energies to the work, just as this preacher intends to devote himself to his work. There was no half-heartedness in it. He enlisted every man and woman of the church into his Sunday school picket brigade. He demanded that each one should send a child of his own, or some neighbor's. He was a good singer, and he developed all of the power there is in sacred music to aid in the work. Therefore he succeeded.

One of the most successful teachers in Sunday school work here says: "The real reason why revivals are so difficult to start and maintain is that the church members themselves need religion and true conversion. They are all good people, but they are all selfishly trying to live correct lives, and save their own souls. In that frame of mind they do not seem to care about saving the souls of others. No general could win battles if his soldiers were simply trying to save their own lives, instead of going forward with him. It seems to me that no preacher can produce a revival unless he can revive his own church before he tries to revive sinners. No preacher can do it all alone, but must have his congregation aroused to a pitch of his own enthusiasm."

That seems to cover the case rather succinctly, not only for Washington, but for all communities. The religion of love is a religion of unselfishness. Men and women who are trying to save their own souls may miss the mark, because their best lives can be but philosophic lives, like the perfect livings of intellectual and moral Buddhists and Brahmins or Mohammedans.

"I want no notoriety over this work," says the preacher. "I want to assume that all of the other preachers are as sincere and earnest for the salvation of souls as myself. I do not want to be singled out as doing any more than a sacred duty. I want to be able to ask the other preachers to send as many people to the revival meetings as they can; so that there shall be no rivalries and jealousies. I hope that within a week or ten days some of these preachers will come with me and take part in the exhortations from my pulpit. Therefore I do not want any notoriety, lest some of them might suppose that I was magnifying myself, when my whole endeavor is to magnify the Cross and hold it aloft, so that all may see it."

True worshipers everywhere, those who believe in old-time revivals of religion because of the necessity of saving souls from perdition will be interested in this earnest effort, and they will be told the result in due season.

SPORTING.

POOL.

Two games were played in the pool tournament at Krewson's parlors Thursday evening both of which were won by the same man. The successful man was Beekman who defeated McLaughlin 60 to 26, and Coombs 60 to 52.

The pool tourney between Franklin and Somerset Councils which is now progressing at Conover's parlors, has proved very interesting. Twelve games have been played so far this week, eight of which were won by the Somerset men. From three to five games are to be played each evening until the finish.

BASKET BALL.

In order to be more fully prepared for the game with the Fanwood team next Monday night, the Business Men's team gave up their basket ball game with the Wasserpachers at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. The game next Monday night promises to be a very interesting one.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The next bowling match in the series between the Y. M. C. A. and Hope Chapel teams will take place on the former's alleys Monday, February 11. Particular notice should be paid to this date as a number have been under the impression that it would be next Monday night.

GOLF.

Michael Higgins, of West Front street, who has been for sometime past engaged on the Westfield Golf Club grounds, is getting along satisfactorily. He says that the grounds will be in fine shape this spring when the opening takes place.

Working Overtime.

PRISONERS ENTERED PLEAS.

BIG BATCH OF THOSE INDICTED WERE IN COURT YESTERDAY.

Lawyer Trimble, of Elizabeth, Up for Embezzlement—Pleaded Not Guilty —Others in Court.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 2.—Judge Vail held a session of the Union County Court of Common Pleas yesterday morning to receive the pleas of a number of those against whom indictments were found by the last Grand Jury. Yesterday's Press told of the arraignment of the two Plainfielders, William Sweeney and Dennis Kane. Sweeney pleaded non vult to the charge of assault and battery on Wm. E. Barber and Mrs. Olive L. Lancaster, also with drawing a revolver and threatening to shoot. He was held under $200 bail for his appearance next Wednesday. James E. Martine, of Plainfield, furnished the bail.

Dennis Kane pleaded not guilty to the charge of highway robbery and his trial was set down for next Thursday.

A well known young lawyer of this city, Charles A. Trimble, was arraigned to plead to two indictments charging embezzlement. The amount involved is $259. The prisoner pleaded not guilty to both charges and said he reserved the right to move to quash both indictments when they were called for trial. Prosecutor English did not set the day for trial but said that it would probably take place some day next week.

John Alcoe, indicted for an assault and battery on his wife, pleaded guilty. His sentence was set down for Wednesday next.

William H. Freeman, of Rahway, colored, pleaded guilty to the larceny of goods and money, the property of Mrs. Sarah Noe. Freeman will be sentenced on Wednesday next. Having no bondsman he was committed to jail.

Charles and John A. Gibbons were arraigned on two indictments, one for atrocious assault and battery on George Hunter. The second bill was for simple assault and battery on Frank Parker.

To both indictments the accused pleaded not guilty. They were admitted to bail and their trial was set down for Thursday, Feb. 7. Their bondsman is William H. Reynolds.

Hugh Brady, Jr., and Alfred Dixon, both of this city, charged with having on Dec. 16 last stolen 3,000 pounds of scrap iron valued at $100, the property of the New Jersey Drydock and Transportation Company, entered a plea of not guilty. Their trial was set down for Thursday next. They were admitted to bail in the sum of $300. Their bondsmen are: For Brady, Thomas B. Fitzgibbons; for Dixon, Leander Stricer.

The jurors were discharged until Monday next, after which court was declared adjourned.

Tells of City Life in Jerusalem.

The Temple Builders of the First Baptist church have been particularly fortunate in being able to secure Madam Mountford, a native of Palestine, to give an illustrated lecture in the church Tuesday evening. Her subject will be "City Life in Jerusalem." Madam Mountford gave a lecture in this church Christmas Eve on "Village Life in Palistine," and those who heard her are anxious to hear her again. This woman is talanted and thoroughly understands every phase of life in her native country. Tickets for the lecture are on sale at pharmacies of L. W. Randolph and T. S. Armstrong.

Irving Clark, of Princeton University, is spending his mid-winter vacation at his home on Crescent avenue. He is accompanied by his college friend, Mr. Hawley.

PARKS WON TWO GAMES FROM LEAGUE LEADERS

Big Surprise For Westfield Club on Westfield Alleys in Press League.

THE PARKS ROLLED WELL.

FABER WAS TWICE HIGH MAN FOR PLAINFIELD TEAM.

Park Club Bowling Team Took Two Out of Three Games in Series on Westfield Alleys Last Evening.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 2—The Westfield Club bowling team, leaders in The Daily Press Bowling League, were defeated two out of three games rolled on the home alleys last evening with the Park Club bowlers, of Plainfield.

The Plainfield boys took the lead at the start and the Westfielders were never in it until the last frame when they pulled up a little, but the visiting team had too much of a lead and won out by 17 pins. Faber captured the honors for Plainfield by getting a score of 174 and Condit was high for Westfield with a score of 186. The home team was handicapped by the absence of Townley, who was nursing a lame knee, and Harbison who was out of town.

In the start of the second game Westfield took the lead in the very first frame and held it throughout the game, although the visitors tried hard to regain their former fast gait. The Westfield boys won by 74 pins. Condit again had the high score for the home team, having rolled up 181. Faber beat his score of the first game and added another honor by being high for the Parks with a score of 185.

In the third game the Westfielders took the lead and kept it until the seventh frame when a clean slate for the Parks and many breaks for the home team put them ahead by several pins and from that time on the game was close and exciting. In the last frame breaks by W. Smith and Forster lost the game for Westfield which went to the visitors by a score of 780 to 763. Hibbard this time had the high score for the Parks, it being 175. The highest man on the Westfield team was again Condit but this time he had but 169. The score:

WESTFIELD CLUB.	1st game.	2d game.	3d game
Forster	134	142	137
Condit	186	181	169
A. Smith	151	160	148

GOOD SHOWS.

The Leyburne Stock Company Will Give Last Performance at Music Hall Tonight.

The Leyburne Company gave a very spirited performance of the military drama, "Gettsburg," at Music Hall last night, before a large sized audience, eliciting great applause, and confirming the opinion heretofore expressed, that the company and show are all right.

Mr. Leyburne was seen to good advantage as usual, and so, too, was the entire cast, particularly dainty little Miss Emma Bunting. This little actress is magnetic and her performances and work will be long remembered by local amusement seekers.

The concluding performance of the organization takes place tonight on which occasion and by particular request, Mr. Leyburne presents "The Census Taker," a drama in which all the company are particularly good. Mr. Leyburne's character of "Ignitus Solasido," is one of his happiest efforts, and as "Polly Snipe," Miss Bunting is seen at her best. New moving pictures and illustrated songs will be features and everybody who loves good ballad singing should he ar "After All" and "Holy Light."

Success.

According to the deduction of experience success in life is due to the habit of doing the right thing at the right time, and the right time to do the right thing to your eyes, if you wish to preserve their usefulness, is when you detect the slightest impairment of their functions; and the right place to go to have that condition remedied, is Collier's, 103 Park avenue, where the knowledge of what to do in such emergencies is free to all comers.

Mr. Honeyman is Executor.

The will of the late Mrs. Julia Cornell was offered for probate at Surrogate Spencer's office, Somerville, Thursday. A. V. D. Honeyman, of the borough, is the executor. An inventory shows that her assets are $1,243 51, of which $1,016 25 is with the Morristown Trust Company.

MANY HONOR MEMORY OF MISS ANDREWS.

Impressive Service, Held at Residence of Her Parents, Was Very Largely Attended.

DR. RICHARDS IN CHARGE.

CASKET WAS SURROUNDED BY A BOWER OF FLOWERS.

Words of Comfort Spoken by Dr. Richards Who Was Miss Andrews' Pastor for Many Years—House Was Literally Crowded to the Doors.

Services in loving memory of Miss Mary Gertrude Andrews, who died on Thursday of typhoid fever, were held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Andrews, of 818 Central avenue.

The service, which was one of unusual beauty and impressiveness, was conducted by Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, who has been for a number of years Miss Andrews' pastor. The large house was literally crowded to the doors with the sorrowing friends of the well beloved young woman. From all walks of life, there came those who remembered so well the cheerful words and bright smile which Miss Andrews always had for those she knew. They gathered to mourn the taking away of the young life which had brightened their lives with the beauty and sweetness of its character. Many were present from out of town, including a party from Whittier House, the Jersey City social settlement in which Miss Andrews was greatly interested.

The drawing room, in which the casket had been placed, was darkened, ropes of flowers being hung against the lowered shades. A single light was placed at one side of the casket, over the head of which was hung white gauzy drapery. The room was a bower of palms and exquisite flowers, which were massed with especial richness and unusual profusion about the casket.

The keynote of the service was not gloom and sorrow, however, but rather thankfulness for the life so sweetly lived and for the fuller life into which it had been merged. It was opened by the singing of "The Holy City," by Miss Magdalena Perry, leading the thoughts of all at once to the Better Land. Then Dr. Richards read a number of Scripture passages, most of them being words of comfort, promises of immortality, or descriptions of the Heavenly City.

This was followed by a brief address, full of deep and sincere feeling, but comforting and uplifting. Dr. Richards told of the beautiful and sunshiny character of his young parishioner, who had let the light of her Christian life shine wherever she went, and had done good to all with whom she came in contact. That such a fair young life should be so early cut off seemed, he said, almost impossible to explain; but he went on to show what the influence of such a life and such a sure entrance into the presence of her Saviour must be, and how much dearer the Heavenly Home would be to many for her being there. The thought of death and Heaven had often been in her mind. In the Bible which she had used for a number of years the verse marked as her favorite was one telling of the joy of Heaven, and between the leaves lay a paper with notes of a Northfield address, of which one sentence read: "Man, you may be dead before next fall. Be up and doing!" During her illness she had been haunted by visions of the Beautiful City, and strains of music sung by the heavenly choir. It brought to mind, said Dr. Richards, the approach of Bunyan's pilgrims to the home toward which they had long been journeying; and he closed by reading that beautiful story of how the shining ones came out to welcome the wayfarers, and the seer, as he saw the gates close upon them, only wished that he were there.

Miss Perry sang "The Homeland," with its touching and comforting vision of the Land where sorrow and death never come, after which Dr. Richards offered a prayer giving thanks for the sure promises of God, and asking for strength and comfort, and that the influence of the true Christian life lived by this young girl might draw many others closer to Him. Then the tender words of benediction closed the service.

The burial service at Hillside cemetery was read by Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of Hope chapel, where FOOT SCALDED.

Peculiar But Painful Accident Which Has Temporarily Disabled Stephen Hope.

Stephen Hope, janitor of the Bryant school, is confined to his home on East Third street with a badly scalded foot the result of a peculiar accident which occurred yesterday. He was seated near a large cylinder stove on which stood a pan of water kept there for the purpose of absorbing gas. His son, John Hope, was removing ashes from the stove when in some manner one of the legs was knocked from beneath. The stove careened throwing the contents of the pan on Mr. Hope's right foot. Dr. Jenkins was called and eased the intense pain caused by the scalding liquid but it will be some time before Mr. Hope can attend to his duties.

POOL EXPERTS PLAYING WELL.

MUCH INTEREST TAKEN IN TOURNEY NOW IN PROGRESS.

Ammons Now Leads With Moore, Melvin and Beekman as Dangerous Rivals.

This evening will be the opening night of the fourth week in the pool tourney which has been in progress at Krewson's parlors. It promises to be an interesting week as some of the most expert of the fifteen players entered are matched against each other. Three games are scheduled each evening, and in order that there will be no breaks in the list, Manager Krewson has announced that all games will be forfeited for non-appearance.

While as yet it is a little early to pick a definite winner, still there are a number of the players whose chances of getting the coveted first prize are regarded as being very favorable. Ammons, who is in the lead with five games to his credit is playing good pool, but he has dangerous rivals in Moore and Melvin, the latter being the favorite.

Melvin has finished winner in all three of the games he has played so far and his handling of the cue has led many to believe he will get first place. Moore has three games in his favor and two against him but with careful work in the future his friends are confident of his being at the head of the list at the finish.

Another man who has been picked as a winner by the spectators is Beekman, who has won three close games and lost two after a strong fight. There are a number of other good men on the list but on account of losing several games they have been inclined to lag when in reality their chances were as good if not better than any of those mentioned.

The contestants each night this week and their respective classes are given as follows: Monday, Sutterlein 75 against Matthews 40; Dowd 75 against Kingston 45; Dowd 75 against Walsh 60; Tuesday, Melvin 60 against Stelle 45; Coombs 55 against Pope 45; Smith 60 against McCann 45; Wednesday, Dowd 75 against McLaughlin 40; Moore 60 against Beekman 60; Melvin 60 against Walsh 60; Thursday, Sutterlein 75 against McCann 45; Ammons 55 against Stelle 45; Melvin 60 against Kingston 45; Friday, Ammons 55 against McLaughlin 40; Walsh 60 against Matthews 40; Moore 60 against Matthews 40.

A Benefit Dance.

Andrew Wahl, of Manning avenue, who has been under treatment at the Muhlenberg Hospital for several months past, is regaining his strength very slowly. His friends are arranging a dance for his benefit to be given in T. A. B. Hall Friday evening, Feb. 15. All those taking part have offered their services gratuitously and their efforts will no doubt be successfully rewarded.

Invitation Dance.

The St. Mary Athletic and Literary Association will give an invitation dance and social in T. A. B. Hall Wednesday evening. The following committee will be present and assist in conducting the affair: Thomas McInerney, David Mack, James Monahan, Joseph Barry, John King, John Madden and George Taylor.

Map Showing Improved Roads.

State Supervisor of Public Roads R. A. Meeker, of this city, has in course of preparation a very fine map of this State which will be issued in a short time. Mr. Meeker has been at work on the map for many months and it is one of the best ever made. One feature is that it shows every improved road in the State.

Officers for Militia Company.

There will be a meeting of the committee of ten who has charge of the preliminary work of forming a militia company, tomorrow evening at the office of City Judge Runyon. Officers will probably be elected at that time.

MAYOR'S APPOINTMENTS TO BE MADE TONIGHT

Three Extra Men to be Added to City Police—Will Have Trial First.

TO BE SELECTED ON MERIT.

NO IMPORTANT CHANGES IN CITY OFFICIALS ARE LOOKED FOR.

Overseer of Poor Will be One Whose Name Has Not Been Publicly Mentioned For the Place—Other Probable Appointments.

Mayor Jenkins is likely to reappoint most of the city's officials this evening, and while some changes will be made, it is not expected that there will be any sweeping change. In the police appointments, three extra men will be appointed, and of the applicants the three having the highest averages in the recent examinations will be appointed irrespective of influence or anything else. It is the purpose of the police board to have men appointed as specials and then put them on trial. Thus it can be learned whether a man will make a good officer before he is made a regular policeman.

In the appointment of an Overseer of the poor, a man hitherto not mentioned will likely get the appointment, and not one who has been talked of outside. A reappointment is looked for in the Board of Health. It is also understood that Health Inspector Addis will be reappointed, and Street Commissioner Gavett will undoubtedly be continued in office. Those who ought to know say that Mayor Jenkins and the Council favor as few changes as possible, so long as the officials do their duty in the proper manner. The Mayor and Council seem to be in complete harmony and no dissention is expected.

CHILDREN'S MUSICALE.

Miss Palmer's Pupils Gave a Creditable Programme at Residence of S. A. Cruikshank.

A delightful children's musicale was given at the residence of Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank, on Belvidere avenue, Saturday afternoon at three o'clock by Miss S. A. Palmer and her pupils, assisted by Master Miner Walden Gallup, of New York city. There was an appreciative audience present and the various numbers were given with great credit to Miss Palmer and her pupils.

Part first of the programme was given by the Misses Helen Batchelor, Alice Ross, Helen Cruikshank and Edith Mellick and Hartley Mellick. The various selections were well executed and called forth hearty applause. Part second was devoted to a number of selections on the piano by Master Walden Gallup, of New York. His work was certainly of a superior order and was greatly enjoyed by everyone. He gave illustrations on clavics of "five points of technic," and this proved to be very interesting as well as instructive. After the musicale Miss Palmer received many congratulations upon the fine showing of her pupils.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Pleasant Affair Given at Home of Joseph Moon, of Grandview Avenue.

A reception was given at the home of Joseph Moon, on Grandview avenue, Friday evening, in honor of his wife's birthday. A very fine programme of music was rendered. Prof. Kroff, the violinist, discoursed excellent music, accompanied by his wife. Solos were rendered by Miss Katheryn Glen, Mrs. Annin and Mr. Moon. Mrs. Annin, of Summit avenue, gave some excellent recitations, which were very much enjoyed by all. Mr. Clark, from New York, delighted the company with his phonograph. Refreshments were served at 10 o'clock.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Paul, Mrs. Penfield, Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Manning, Mrs. Glen and the Misses Glen, Mrs. Runk, Miss Randolph, Mrs. Irving, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Lowrie, Mrs. Hance, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Thorton, Mr. and Mrs. Annin, Mr. and Mrs. Clark, of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Winnie, from Roselle.

Preparing Map of State.

Maurice L. Taylor, of Philadelphia, is engaged about the State in preparing an elaborate map of the State, showing every town, hamlet and place in New Jersey. Mr. Taylor is now in Plainfield getting necessary information.

MANY MOURNED HER DEATH.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT FUNERAL OF MRS. J. C. POPE.

Held From the Residence Yesterday Afternoon—Beautiful Floral Tributes—Rev. Mr. Herring Officiated.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. James C. Pope were held from the home on West Fourth street, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The attendance of relatives and friends was so large, that some were unable to gain admittance to the house There were many members of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school, Christian Endeavor Society and Young Women's Mission Band, of which the deceased was a member, present. The services were exceedingly impressive.

It was hoped that Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, would officiate. He was telegraphed for at Chatanooga, Tenn., by Mr. Pope on Friday, but the telegram failed to reach him and was returned. He could not be found. Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was then asked to officiate and be very kindly consented.

Mr. Herring read a number of appropriate Scripture selections containing the thought of faith in Christ and comfort for bereaved ones. He impressed on all the thought that there is no sorrow so great, no affliction so severe and no trial so heavy, but that Christ can give that peace of mind so much needed. He urged all to place their trust in Christ and be ready for the last call. In speaking of the departed, Mr. Herring said that he did not know her, but judging by the great numbers present he felt sure that she must have been highly esteemed in church circles.

During the service two selections, "Over the Line," and "Thou Art a Friend to Me," were sung by Miss Minnie Williams, Miss Kathryn Glen, Elmer Cutting and A. J. Moore, the quartette choir from Trinity Reformed church, under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist.

There was a profusion of flowers, including many set pieces. The beautiful casket, opened full length, was almost completely covered with flowers. There were four handsome pillows, one bearing the inscription, "Sister," another with the word "Mother" thereon, a third bearing the words "At Rest," and a fourth from the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, with the letters, "C. E.," in pink and purple flowers. The Young Mission Band sent a handsome wreath of galax leaves, studded with roses, accompanied by a note of condolence signed by the retiring officers of the band. From the Dime Savings Institution a large wreath of galax leaves was sent.

The remains were placed in the receiving vault at Hillside Cemetery, and will be interred later when a plot is selected. Those who served as pallbearers were: Postmaster Elias H. Bird, W. C. Startup, H. W. Marshall and Alfred K. Willett.

FREE FROM DEBT.

Announcement Made at Trinity Church That Entire Floating Indebtedness Had Been Met.

Yesterday was another bright day in the history of Trinity Reformed church, the fact being officially announced at the morning service by the clerk of Consistory, F. E. Smith, that the entire floating indebtedness had been met by the contributions of the congregation.

The early part of December disclosed the fact that during the past three years a deficit of about $600 had had accumulated, on account of needed repairs, insurance, etc., and it was at once proposed that the amount be raised by the voluntary contributions of all the congregation and try and start the new century free of debt. The last amount needed to make the effort a success, was recently donated and today the church starts off absolutely free of debt of any kind. The doxology was very appropriately sung by the congregation after Mr. Smith's statement, and at the close of the service there was general congratulations and hand shaking by the happy people and a firm resolve made to try and close the present year with a balance in the treasury instead of a deficit.

Endeavor Day Service.

A special Endeavor Day service will be held this evening at Trinity Reformed church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. Miss Beeching, of Watchung, will be the speaker and good music has been provided.

To Install at Trenton.

ICE AND SLUSH ARE RESULTS OF STORM.

Second Real Storm Brings With It Many of the Discomforts of Winter.

FOUR INCHES OF SNOW.

ELECTRIC SNOW SWEEPER DOESN'T PLEASE RESIDENTS ALONG LINE.

Swept Dirt and Stones Over the Sidewalk and Lawns—Storm Will End This Afternoon—Colder Weather Coming.

Plainfield's good folk are slipping and sliding about the streets today as the result of another visitation from the snowflakes. It was the second real snow storm of the winter and began last evening when the crowds were wending their way to evening worship in the local churches. There is four inches of the snow now, with the prospect of more before the time for clearing comes.

The storm started in as if it meant business. The flakes came down thick and fast and by midnight there was full four inches. Toward morning the snow turned to hail and the hail to rain. The mercury was close to the freezing point and the rain froze as it fell. A heavy crust was soon formed on the snow.

When the army of boys and men began to remove the snow from the sidewalks this morning the falling rain froze on the sidewalks and made the going even harder than ever. There was hardly enough snow on the roads to make much sleighing, although a few sleighs were out.

The two big electric sweepers were put to work on the lines of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company early in the evening and kept at work all night. The local tracks were swept very clean but the dirt and dust was hurled over the street onto the sidewalk and lawns. Those who happened to be passing caught the full benefit of the dirty shower. Great indignation was expressed by residents all along the line when they awoke this morning to find the dirt distributed all over the snow on their sidewalks and lawns. In some cases, where the houses were near the street, the dirt was thrown against the houses and on the piazzas.

All the morning a fine mist fell but towards noon, it changed to hail and finally to snow which first came in great flakes but eventually settled down to fine snow. According to the weather bureau, the storm will pass away this afternoon or tonight and clear, colder weather will follow.

FIGHT ON ICE.

Interfered With Boys Who Were Trying to Clean Snow Off Tier's Pond Saturday.

An exciting incident took place on Tier's pond Saturday afternoon between a number of boys who were skating there. Charles Palmer with a number of other young men was cleaning the snow from the ice and as fast as they threw it off, they claim a boy from Prideville, North Plainfield, kept throwing it back again. Young Palmer remonstrated with him, whereupon, it is said, he retaliated by hitting Palmer on the head with a hockey stick, cutting a gash about an inch long.

The crowd set upon Palmer's assailant. Mr. Tier separated the crowd and dispersed them.

Although Palmer's wound bled freely, no serious results are looked for.

FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. Floyd Appleton Preached at Grace P. E. Church Last Evening.

Grace P. E. church was filled last evening with members and friends who assembled to hear Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate, preach his farewell sermon. Recently he received and accepted a call to a large church in Brooklyn, and will leave the city in a few days to enter upon his new work.

Mr. Appleton's sermon last evening was a strong exposition of the Gospel, but it cannot be denied there was disappointment on the part of a great many, because he made not the slightest reference to his association with the church and the fact that he is soon to leave. A host of friends at the service looked for some mention of these facts, but the curate avoided this.

IN BEHALF OF CITY NURSE.

DELIGHTFUL SALE HELD AT CEDAR BROOK HOMESTEAD.

Given by the Benevolent Band of King's Daughters—Was Well Attended.

The Benevolent Band of King's Daughters held a very successful cake sale at Cedar Brook Farm, the old Martine Homestead, on Watchung avenue, Saturday afternoon. The object of the sale was to raise the amount pledged by the circle toward the support of the city nurse. At a previous sale the Circle raised half the amount pledged.

A better place could not have been selected by the members to hold their sale. The Martine homestead is a large house and there was ample room for the large number who attended. Fire was burning in the old fire places, which are over 182 years old, and everything was made as cheerful as possible.

Mrs. Electa S. Craft, president of the Circle, received the guests. She was assisted by Mrs. William W. Meyers, Miss Mary E. Martine and Miss Ella Louise Martine.

The cake table, which was in the dining room, and fairly groaned underneath the elegant display of cakes, was in charge of Mrs. Frank S. Martin, Mrs. Isaac Field, Mrs. Charles King and Mrs. F. Underhill.

The candy table was largely patronized and the artistic way it was arranged drew everyone toward it to partake of the delicacies found there on.

Miss Julia Rodman poured tea and was kept very busy, as all were anxious to try some of that beverage.

A large number of cakes were offered for sale and all were disposed of at good prices.

The members were much pleased with the success attending the sale and after the receipts are added up the Circle will no doubt have enough to make the second and last payment for their object.

DIDN'T EXPECT THEM.

Fifty Friends Gave Mrs. Julia Connolly a Complete Surprise.

Nearly fifty friends from this city, New Brunswick and High Bridge completely surprised Miss Julia Connolly, of West Fifth street, by unexpectedly appearing at her home Thursday evening. The callers had come with the intention of having a good time and as soon as she regained her composure Miss Connolly proved equal to the occasion by assisting them in every possible way. Dancing was the feature of the evening but there were other games for which three handsome prizes were given to the winning contestants. The serving of refreshments brought the affair to a close and the guests departed for their respective homes at an early hour.

Wonderful Fish Story.

While fishing in Green brook near the western part of the city a few days ago, Patrick Moran, of Plainfield avenue, captured one of the largest "suckers" seen in this vicinity in some time. The fish weighed exactly nine pounds which is regarded by local fisherman as being a rarity.

Good Entertainment Promised.

An entertainment consisting of reading, music and impersonations, will be given under the auspices of All Saint's P. E. church, Fanwood, in the Fanwood fire house Friday evening.

A Good Profit.

Now that the returns are about completed the officers of the Daughters of the Cross, of North Plainfield, believe that the sum of $80 will be realized as clear profit from the recent reception and sale.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace P. E. church for January are: Herbert Smith, John Yose, Albert Yaeger, Fred Kanen, Miss C. Miller, Miss A. Clark, Miss M. Yaeger.

INCREASE IN WAGES ON STREET RAILWAY.

Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railroad Company Announces a Raise.

ALL EMPLOYES AFFECTED.

CHANCE WAS A BIG SURPRISE TO MEN WHO DIDN'T EXPECT IT.

Was Made Without Solicitation—Will Pay $2 a Day on Through Line—New Men Will Get $1.75 at the Start—Promotions to Main Line.

Without previous conference with the men, the officials of the Elizabeth Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company have posted notices in the offices and car barns, informing its employes of an immediate advance in wages. The increase includes motormen and conductors on the several local lines as well as those of the through line between Elizabeth and Plainfield.

For some time past there has been considerable dissatisfaction with the old schedule of wages, but the men never made any formal complaint to the officials. The increase, coming unexpectedly as it did, was a great surprise to the men, as they did not have the least intimation of the company's intention.

By the new schedule the employes on the through line between Elizabeth and Plainfield will now receive $2 per day, an advance of twenty-five cents. A day's work consists of twelve hours, which inclues the time allowed off for dinner and supper, so that in reality the men are on the cars but a trifle over eleven hours. On the Green line at Elizabeth and the Plainfield and Rahway divisions, the men have been raised from $1.75 a day of twelve hours to $1 85. While the amount to an outsider is seemingly rather small, it amounts to considerable in the course of a week and, coming voluntarily, as it did, it is greatly appreciated.

The new order also states that hereafter no men will be appointed direct to service on the division between Plainfield and Elizabeth which has been customary since the line first began running. Hereafter new men will be placed on one of the smaller divisions at the rate of $1.75 per day for the first six months. At the end of that time their wages will be advanced ten cents a day and when a vacancy occurs on the through line they will be given the preference in filling it at the uniform rate,

While there is practically no greater responsibility attached to the men running on the through line than of the other divisions, it requires considerable experience to handle the larger cars used on the former and for that reason it is better that the men be taken off the small cars. With reference to the increase, General Superintendent James Smith stated that the company wanted good men and was willing to pay for good service.

TRIO IN COURT.

All Arrested For Being Drunk and Were Fined Various Amounts By City Judge Runyon.

Three offenders were arraigned before City Judge Runyon in the city court this morning, all of whom were charged with being drunk and disorderly. Raymond Walsh was picked up by Patrolman Higgins on West Front street Saturday evening for annoying and insulting passersby. He was fined $5 or twenty days.

Wm. Sanderson, alias "Maller," was helplessly drunk on East Front street Saturday afternoon. He was arrested by Sergeant Frederickson. He also received $5 or twenty days.

George Bilyeu was helplessly intoxicated on Park avenue yesterday when he was discovered and escorted to the city jail by Captain Kiely. He claimed to be on his way home, but the Judge thought the offense warranted a fine of $3 or ten days. He paid the fine, as did the other prisoners also.

Important Meeting of Council.

The regular February meeting of the Common Council will be held this evening, when a considerable amount of important business will be transacted. The usual appointments will be made by Mayor Jenkins and the Council will receive the customary batch of liquor license applications.

Received Into Church Membership.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams, Miss Florence Perrine, Miss Lillian Titus and Joseph Schultheis were received into the membership of the First Baptist church yesterday morning at the Communion service.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

William A. Brady's great production of "The Sorrows of Satan," will be seen at Music Hall tonight. The appearance and pranks of Satan on earth arrayed either in his conventional garb of flaming red, with cloven hoofs, a pitchfork and a tail, or in semi-human form, have been used as more or less entertaining material on the stage ever since the very birth of the English drama. In the old moralities and mysteries, which constituted the theatre of London in the centuries before Shakespeare, his Satanic Majesty was a familiar figure. In more recent years, he has been of service in both opera and the spoken drama. No fault can be found with the figure of the Devil created by the phenominally popular English novelist, Marie Corelli. The sales of her book, "The Sorrows of Satan," having in this country alone exceeded a million copies, it would appear unnecessary to even outline the story here. No detail has been overlooked, as regards the excellence of the cast and the perfection of the stage settings. The production is far above anything presented for many seasons.

When "The Game Keeper," which will be at Music Hall, Thursday night, was first produced last spring in New York, the entire corps of critics agreed in pronouncing the play one of absorbing interest. Its author, Con. T. Murphy, has written about all the successful Irish plays, such as "The Ivy Leaf," "The Fairies' Well," "Killarney," and here comes "The Game Keeper," his latest success. All types of society are portrayed in this play, high and low, rich and poor, and the action carries the various personages through some of the most picturesque scenes for which Ireland is famous. All theatregoers who revel in stirring situations and intensely dramatic episodes will appreciate "The Game Keeper."

. . . . . .

"The Old Homestead," with Denman Thompson appearing as "Uncle Josh," will be presented at Music Hall Saturday night. This presentation will be the same as Mr. Thompson gives at the Academy of Music, in New York, and will include his own excellent company, and the famous double quartette of singers. The organization is under his personal supervision, insuring the careful attention to the many details for which this play has become justly celebrated.

INDIANS IN JAIL.

Leader Says Whites Are Trying to Take Their Hunting Grounds.

MUSKOGEE, I. T., Feb. 4.—Chitto Harjo, or "Crazy Snake," the leader of the warring Creek Indians, and 17 of the minor leaders of that tribe have been landed in the federal jail here, where they will be held pending trial for treason. The Indians were brought here from Henrietta under escort of Troop A, Eighth cavalry, and United States Marshal Bennett and his posse. It is stated that certain attorneys, who, it is asserted here, misled the Indians, may be prosecuted.

Marshal Bennett states that while most of the Indians are in hiding some are still trying to hold meetings. A posse will be sent today to arrest Chief Letah Mekko, the real chief of the Creeks. When placed in prison here, Harjo and his followers were searched, fumigated, their shackles removed, and all were placed in one large cell.

A newspaper correspondent, with the assistance of an interpreter, had an interview with "Crazy Snake," who said that he saw no reason for arrest and felt confident when the Indians were given a trial before the great white father's courts that they would be released. He said they were acting in good faith and had papers from Washington that gave them the right to establish their old government.

As to all the talk about killing whites, he said it was never their intention, and they expected only to treat and act with their own people and in so doing expected finally to get all whites out. He also said that the "Great Spirit would see that they got justice, even though their white father in Washington and the oil syndicates were trying to rob them of their once happy hunting ground."

MRS. NATION THREATENED.

May Be Tarred and Feathered—Many Recruits For Her Army.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—A special to The Times from Topeka says:

"Policeman Luster has reported to City Marshal Stahl a plot on the part of the liquor men to tar and feather Mrs. Carrie Nation, the 'joint' smasher. Luster says that a negro tough whom he once befriended gave him the information. The report has frightened Mrs. Nation and her sister crusaders, but they declare they will continue the work of destroying 'murder shops.' They met at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at Mrs. Nation's room and held a session of prayer. Mrs. Nation braved the storm and made three temperance speeches.

"A recruiting office for the Topeka brigade, Kansas division, Carrie Nation's army, has been opened. About 300 'soldiers' have signed the roll, mostly women. The programme of the defenders is to march down Kansas avenue at 2 p. m. today, with drums beating and flags flying, and hold prayer meetings in front of every 'joint.' Mrs. Nation says that it was the intention of the home defenders to smash 'joints,' but this feature of the crusade may be postponed for a day to enable the secret service agents to inquire into the story that armed men are guarding the 'joints.'"

Preacher Shot by Accusing Husband.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The Rev. John Keller, secretary to Right Rev. Bishop Starkey, pastor of Trinity Episcopal mission in Arlington, N. J., and chaplain of the First New Jersey regiment, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Thomas G. Parker on Beach street near Midland avenue, Arlington, yesterday. Mr. Keller had just left the house of John S. Sands, where he ate his meals, when Barker, who was in front of the door, opened fire. One bullet went through the facial bone from the right side, destroyed the sight of the right eye and after tearing through the nasal bone buried itself beneath the skin on the right side of the face. Another bullet shattered the fingers of the right hand, and another passed through the clergyman's hat. The fourth went wide of its mark. The shooting, it is said, was the result of a disclosure made by Barker's wife, although Mr. Keller denies the accusation made against him. Barker after the shooting surrendered himself to the police and was locked up.

A Fight With Maya Indians.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 4.—A special to The Globe-Democrat from Oaxaca, Mexico, says: "The military authorities have been advised of another engagement which took place between the government troops and a large force of Maya Indians. The battle took place about nine miles from Santa Cruz, the stronghold of the rebels, and resulted in a victory for the government forces. The casualties on the rebel side were heavy, it being estimated that they lost over 300 men killed and wounded. Re-enforcements have joined General Bravo's command. It is asserted that there are several white men among the officers of the Maya forces. They are believed to be Englishmen from British Honduras, which country borders on the Maya territory."

The Mining Conference.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 4.—A canvass among the miners' delegates to the joint conference reveals a disposition on their part to insist strongly upon the single run of mine standard and a fixed differential of 7 cents between machine and pick mining. These are the two leading propositions in the miners' scale formulated at the Indianapolis convention. President Mitchell says the miners and operators are no farther apart than they were at the beginning of the joint conference a year ago. He is hopeful of an agreement. Some of the operators, on the other hand, regard an agreement as a very remote probability. There is no prospect of a meeting of the joint conference for several days.

Storm on Newfoundland Coast.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 4.—A furious storm is raging along the Newfoundland coast. The steamer Bruce, plying in connection with the Newfoundland railway between North Sydney, C. B., and Port-aux-Basques, N. F., had her saloon flooded, dead lights broken and lifeboats smashed at sea.

Tourists In Porto Rico.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 4.—The party of tourists from the United States on board the new cruising yacht Prinzessin Victoria Luise arrived here yesterday from Santo Domingo. A stay of about 27 hours will be made at this port, when the vessel will proceed to St. Thomas.

Duke of Cornwall Better.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Court Circular announces that the Duke of Cornwall and York is progressing satisfactorily toward convalescence.

PRIESTS DENOUNCED,

Filipino Leader Compares Them to White Ants.

BUENCAMINO'S EVANGELICAL WORK.

Tracts and the Four Gospels Distributed by Methodist Mission—More Insurgents of Delgado's Command Surrender.

MANILA, Feb. 4.—Fewer than 400 persons attended the meeting called yesterday by Senor Buencamino at the Rizal theater, in the Tendo ward of Manila, to inaugurate the "evangelical movement." Considerable interest was manifested in the proceedings, and there were some expressions of approval of the addresses. No attempt, however, was made to commit the meeting to Protestantism, that aspect of the case being left for subsequent action, at his discretion, to Rev. James B. Rodgers of the Presbyterian board, who was present.

Senor Buencamino explained that religious effort was wholly outside the Federal party, which had been organized solely to promote political peace.

The first mild applause occurred when he compared priests to "white ants, which eat the substance and leave nothing of value."

Senor Buencamino argued in favor of supplanting the present priests with Filipinos having the privilege of marrying. Gradually he led up to Protestant ideas and asked whether they were any longer to submit to the authority of a pope or an archbishop. Some shouted "No!" But others remained silent.

The Rev. Mr. Rodgers preached a short sermon, but refrained from any criticism of Roman Catholics.

The Rev. Mr. Prautch of the Methodist mission offered the four gospels in Tagalog and antifriar tracts, which were sold at the door by Nicolas Zamora, a native Methodist revivalist, who conducts exhortation meetings every Sunday.

Prior to the meeting in the Rizal theater there was a political gathering attended by practically the same people, at which the advantages of American sovereignty were explained from the Federal party point of view.

A Methodist minister baptized 100 Filipinos in the afternoon at Malibay, about four miles from Manila. The Rev. Mr. Prautch has secured a score of signatures in a neighboring village to a declaration in favor of handing the church over to Protestant worship and debarring Roman Catholics.

President Taft of the Philippine commission last evening entertained at his residence the members of the directorate of the Federal party. The reception was attended by many Filipino ladies and a number of high military and civil officials. There was a charming gathering on the lawn.

Three hundred insurgents, members of Delgado's former command, have surrendered at Santa Barbara, island of Panay.

Power For Railroad Commission.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—Legislators are just beginning to comprehend the farreaching significance of the bill introduced by Assemblyman Bedell of Orange county last week placing all the gas, electric light, heating and power companies of the state under the control of the state railroad commission. Should this bill become a law it will increase the authority and bureau prestige of the state railroad board nearly 100 per cent. It will indirectly make the board the arbiter of the price of gas and electric light in the various cities of the state. It will practically compel new electric light, heat and power companies to obtain the consent of the commission before they can commence business. It will prevent the same class of companies discontinuing a part of their service if they deem it no longer profitable should the commission decide that such service must continue. Assemblyman Bedell's bill amends the state railroad law by adding to the powers of the state railroad commissioners a general supervision of "corporations formed for supplying gas or for electric lighting, heating or power purposes."

National Guard Meeting.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—The National Guard association of the state of New York will meet in this city on Thursday next. General G. M. Smith, commanding officer of the Fifth brigade and president, will deliver his annual address. The following papers will be read: "A March Through Luzon," illustrated with maps and stereopticon views, by Major Lewis Balch, based on his personal experience in the Philippine Islands; "Instruction and Work of the Infantry Branch of the Army Service," by Captain J. H. Goldman, U. S. A.; "Practice Marches and the Care of Troops In the Field," by Colonel J. E. Brody, U. S. A., Brooklyn.

Anti-Jesuit Agitation In Spain.

VALENCIA, Spain, Feb. 4.—The anti-Jesuit demonstrations which began in Madrid in connection with the anticlerical play "Electra" have spread to Valencia. Yesterday crowds gathered in front of the Jesuit Church of the Sacred Heart, where a confirmation of children was in progress, and shouted "Liberty forever!" and "Down with the Jesuits!" A Jesuit who was leaving the church was hooted, and then the crowd marched to the Jesuit college and stoned the windows and doors, still shouting "Down with the Jesuits!" Finally the demonstration was dispersed by gendarmes.

Tornado In Texas.

COOPER, Tex., Feb. 4.—A tornado did great damage in the western portion of Delta county. The home of James Moody at Honest was wrecked and his 14-year-old daughter fatally injured. Tink Surrett was killed and his two daughters seriously injured at Rattan, where a number of houses were wrecked. At Denton an oil mill was wrecked, but no one was hurt.

Captain Schofield Dead.

HAVANA, Feb. 4.—The body of Captain Charles B. Schofield of the Second United States cavalry, who died Saturday at Matanzas of heart disease, has arrived in Havana and will be sent north by the United States transport McPherson.

Cadets to Graduate Early.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Official orders have been received by Colonel Mills from Adjutant General Corbin to take steps to graduate the first class of cadets on Monday, Feb. 18. The order was hailed with delight by members of the first class.

TARDY RECOGNITION.

Secretary Long Lays All the Blame on Congress.

OUR NAVAL HEROES SLIGHTED.

Hobson, Clark and Others of Santiago Fame Have Reason to Believe That "Republics Are Ungrateful."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Secretary Long has addressed the following letter to Senator Morgan:

"I have your letter with regard to Lieutenant Hobson, Captain Clark and others and to the failure of the government to recognize their services. I need not say to you that no one feels this more keenly than myself or has done more to endeavor to secure justice for the men who conducted and consummated the Santiago naval campaign. Will you let me say that the 'delay' is not with the executive branch of the government so much as with congress. I do not say this to in any way shift the responsibility, but in the hope that the cooperation of congress may yet be secured in this respect. With the interest which you and other members of the legislative branch feel in the case I do not despair.

"It is more than two years now since the president sent in nominations for promotion, and these nominations have never been acted upon by the senate. At each session of congress I have prepared and submitted bills asking for rewards for these officers. No action has been taken upon them. In each of my annual reports I have urged the matter with all the force possible, but it attracts no attention. The president has asked for the creation of the grade of vice admiral, which would perhaps lead to a solution of the matter.

"I feel keenly the lack of any recognition to Hobson, whose feat is famous the world over. I have repeatedly talked about him with the president, who, as you know, feels the most cordial interest in behalf of all these men. He cannot separate Hobson's case from the rest, nor can I advise him to do so. It would be an unjust discrimination against Captain Clark, to whom you refer and who is two numbers worse off now than if there had been no war. It would be an injustice to the commander in chief, who planned and consummated the whole campaign and who had a greater responsibility upon him for a longer time than any officer on the Atlantic. It would discriminate against the enlisted men, who have yet had neither thanks nor medal nor any recognition and are humiliated on the deck of every warship on which their shipmates who served in the Asiatic squadron display their medals, and the Santiago men have none. I feel almost like invoking the help of yourself and every other senator and representative to what seems to be the simplest justice.

"Not content with what has hitherto been done, it was only a few days ago that I wrote a letter to Senator Hale, chairman of the naval committee of the senate, a copy of which I inclose, asking him if he would not as a last resort have the naval committee or a subcommittee of it take up the matter and consider the report upon the deserts of these officers.

"Yesterday I wrote another letter to the president, a copy of which I inclose, reciting recommendations which I made to him in my annual report of 1899, that he make the same recommendation to congress in the case of the Santiago squadron which was made in the case of the Asiatic squadron—viz, that the thanks of congress be tendered to the commander in chief and be extended through him to the officers and men.

"I think you will cordially acknowledge that the president by his speedy nominations for promotion has been prompt and that this department has left no stone unturned to do justice in this matter and that it is now for congress, of which you are so distinguished a member, to act."

Governor Nash Scares Fighters.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 4.—There is more anxiety than training at the quarters of Jeffries, Ruhlin, Martin and Childs. It is now known to all the promoters of the fight that Governor Nash has not only given his ultimatum to the Sangerfest Athletic club and to more than 1,000 petitioners from the business circles of Cincinnati, but he has also given instructions to Prosecuting Attorney Hoffheimer and Sheriff Taylor. The latter received a letter from the governor after midnight by immediate delivery.

Russian Prince Shoots Himself.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 4.—Prince Bariatinsky, the youthful publisher of The Northern Courier, which was recently suppressed for its radical tendencies, shot himself last Thursday, inflicting a dangerous wound. His parents have never forgiven the marriage he made several years ago with Mlle. Yavorskaya, an actress, nor did they approve his newspaper enterprise, which absorbed the bulk of the estate of the prince. The family ranks among the highest Russian nobility.

Syracuse Saloons Closed.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 4.—All of the saloons of Syracuse, which have been wide open since soon after the Raines law went into effect, were ordered by the police Saturday night to close promptly at midnight and stay closed until Monday morning. Policemen went into the places that remained open after midnight, drove out the inmates and threatened to arrest the men in charge. This is said to be the result of the complaint and warnings made by the Antisaloon league.

Burned While Loading.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 4.—The Red Cross line steamer Silvia, Captain Clark, loading for New York, was partly burned, and 1,000 casks of fish and 300 casks of oil were damaged. For a time it was thought the steamer was doomed, and the entire fire department fought the flames for six hours before quenching them. The loss is estimated at about $25,000.

A Hunter Fatally Shot.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 4.—While Loren and Lewis Becraft and a neighbor were hunting rabbits three miles from Sloatsburg Saturday a gun was accidentally discharged, mortally wounding Loren Becraft. His brother carried him three miles to his home, where he soon expired.

Smallpox Patients Escape.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Three men quarantined for smallpox in a boarding house on Fuller street got drunk and after terrorizing the other inmates of the house made their escape. They are still at large.

CONVENTION CLOSED.

Christian Endeavor Society's Last Day In Portland.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 4.—With meetings in every Protestant church in Portland yesterday the twentieth annual convention of the Y. P. S. C. E. came to a close.

The day opened with the usual "quiet hour" service at the Second Parish church, conducted by Mr. John Willis Baer, general secretary of the society. Dr. Francis E. Clark of Boston, the founder of the society, delivered the sermon at this church, and other pulpits were occupied by Bishop Alexander Walters of Jersey City, Bishop B. W. Arnett of Ohio, Rev. W. F. Wilson of Hamilton, Ont.; Rev. S. W. Adriance of Winchester, Mass.; Rev. W. B. Wallace of Utica, N. Y.; Rev. F. S. Hatch of Monson, Mass.; President John Henry Barrows, L. D. L., of Oberlin, O., and others.

The principal gathering was at the city hall in the afternoon, when Dr. Francis E. Clark presided over a union meeting, and 30 minute addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. Hoyt of Philadelphia, Rev Mr. Wilson of Hamilton, Ont., and President John Henry Barrows of Oberlin, O. An immense crowd was present, and the hall was crowded to the doors, many being unable to gain admission. The special feature was the congregational singing of the most familiar Christian Endeavor hymns, the chorus of nearly 2,000 voices uniting in one tremendous volume of sound.

Mr. John Willis Baer also read a poem entitled "Looking Forward," which was written during the present convention by Rev. David James Burrell, D. D., of New York.

The general exercises of the day were concluded with two evangelistic meetings for men and women conducted respectively in the hall of the Young Men's Christian association and the Friends' church.

A BRITISH REVERSE.

Post at Moddersfontein Captured by One Thousand Boers.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, commander in chief in South Africa, dated Pretoria, Feb. 2:

"Our post at Modderfontein, on the Gatesrand, southwest of Krugersdorp, was attacked by 1,000 Boers. The relief column sent out from Krugersdorp failed to prevent the fall of the post. No details yet at hand, but officers and men captured at the post are arriving at Vereeniging."

The British have reoccupied Petrusberg.

A Lourenco Marques dispatch of Feb. 3 says:

"There is a commando of 2,000 Boers on Portuguese territory. It is supposed that their intention is to rescue the Boers here. The Portuguese authorities have decided to remove to Madeira such Boer refugees as decline to surrender to the British."

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Hugh Kerr, father of George J. Kerr, who was removed to state prison Friday, died at his home in Paterson, N. J., of a broken heart.

Eva Irwin, a deaconess in the Episcopal church, arrived in Atchison, Kan., in a snowstorm, having tramped all the way from New York alone.

Workmen excavating for the rapid transit tunnel in New York city found a well preserved skeleton of an Indian 30 feet below the surface of Center street.

Driver and Team Blown to Atoms.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 4.—By the explosion of 750 quarts of nitroglycerin at the magazine of the Gas Belt Torpedo company, four miles northeast of Alexandria, Perry Fort, a carrier for the company, with his team of horses, the wagon and the magazine, was blown to atoms, not a vestige of either having been found after the awful accident. Fort started from Knightstown with the explosive in his wagon and hauled the dangerous load over rough roads until he arrived at Alexandria. He passed through the city and had evidently reached the magazine, in which 40 quarts of the glycerin were stored, when the explosion occurred. A hole 15 feet deep and 40 feet wide was left where the magazine had formerly stood. Windows were generally shattered in Alexandria, and the report was distinctly heard at Kokomo, Muncie, Marion and Elwood.

Fatal Grief Over Victoria's Death.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 4.—James Platty, an English hostler, 55 years of age, is dead in the City home here, and it is believed that his end is due to grieving over the death of Queen Victoria, whom he fairly idolized. When the queen's death was announced, he left the stable where he was working and has ever since wandered about aimlessly, exposing himself to the elements. Last night he was striken with acute pneumonia and was taken to the City home. He claimed to have been in the British army that went to Khartum to relieve Gordon and to have worked for the late Duke of Manchester in England and for Cecil Rhodes in South Africa.

Heavy Snow In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Six inches of snow on the level and drifts in many cases in the outlying districts piled as high as second story windows is the condition Chicago is in. The snow began to fall early Sunday, and by the middle of the afternoon a regular blizzard was raging, with the wind blowing a gale from the west. At night the wind died down somewhat, and as the temperature began to rise the snow turned into sleet. The street car lines, with the exception of the elevated roads, were the worst sufferers. Many of the surface lines were compelled to abandon their schedules entirely until the worst of the storm had passed.

Date of Priori's Execution Fixed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Warden Johnson of Sing Sing prison has sent out invitations to those whose presence is desired at the electrocution of Lorenzo Priori, convicted of murdering Vincenzo Garagusi in New York on Dec. 11, 1898. Among those invited are a number of physicians. The execution will take place in the death chamber in the state prison here at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning next. The murder was the result of a quarrel over a game of cards.

Cramp Favors Shipping Bill.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Daily Mail this morning publishes a column article by Mr. C. H. Cramp of Philadelphia in favor of the ship subsidy bill. While he does not believe the bill a perfect measure he says it will give the United States a chance to secure an honest share of the ocean carrying trade.

National Wire Company Burned Out at Fair Haven, Conn.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 4.—Fire from an unknown cause destroyed the large plant of the National Wire company at Fair Haven yesterday, entailing a property loss estimated at $325,000.

The plant consisted of two one story buildings, which covered about five acres of ground space, and all, except the wire nail department, was reduced to ruins through the lack of facilities for fighting the flames.

The fire was discovered in the engine room and an alarm given, to which the Fair Haven hose company responded, but found itself utterly unable to cope with the situation, so that a call was sent to New Haven for help.

This the local department refused, except for the sending of one steamer and a hose cart, on the ground that the wire works, situated outside the city limits, were not entitled to protection from New Haven.

Meanwhile the fire was making great headway. The buildings, built near together, formed a double furnace in which the flames burned at will, spreading from one department to another until the whole plant was ablaze. The efforts of the one steamer and the hose company from New Haven seemed but a mockery, and the workers turned their attention to the adjacent buildings to prevent the spread of the fire beyond the confines of the wire works, leaving the burning structures to their fate.

The conflagration lasted until late into the day, and the spectacle, visible from all parts of this city, attracted crowds of people.

The detailed loss has not as yet been determined, but Mr. Wales, the general manager of the company, states that $325,000 is a conservative figure and that a large insurance was carried. The plant was formerly the New Haven Wire company and employed about 500 hands.

WORK BEFORE CONGRESS.

Senate Will Discuss Shipping Bill. House Working on Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The senate will continue its discussion of the ship subsidy bill during the first half of the present week, with probable interruptions during the morning hour of each day. There will probably be a movement to secure night sessions on the part of the friends of the shipping bill, and other strenuous efforts will be made to secure a vote upon the bill.

If it should appear probable that the end of the discussion is still not in sight, Senator Allison on Wednesday will ask the senate to take up the bill making appropriations for the District of Columbia for the next fiscal year. This appropriation bill will be debated for several days, and when its consideration is concluded there will be other appropriation bills requiring attention.

The earlier part of today was given to the ceremonies in honor of the memory of Chief Justice Marshall.

The house continues the consideration of appropriation bills this week. The postoffice appropriation bill is not yet completed. It will be followed by the consular and diplomatic and the sundry civil bill, which last will be reported to the house today.

A Small Riot.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 4.—Rev. Vincent Dillonis, an evangelical missionary, attempted to deliver a lecture in a hall at Pittstown last night, and a small riot followed. Dillonis is a Lithuanian and claims to have been at one time an ordained clergyman of the Roman Catholic church. He has made several attempts to deliver lectures in the town, but each time Mayor Corcoran, fearing trouble, prevented him. Last week Dillonis secured an injunction from the court to prevent the mayor from interfering with him. About 500 foreigners, mostly Lithuanians, were gathered in the hall. As soon as Dillonis made his appearance it was the signal for a violent outburst. In the tumult the gas fixtures were torn down, and the furniture was broken into kindling wood. Rev. Dillonis and his party succeeded in getting out of the place, and when they reached the sidewalk they were taken in charge by friends. No one was seriously hurt.

Cold Blooded Muurder.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Feb. 4.—At 1 o'clock Sunday morning Thomas McHenry, a well to do lumber merchant and farmer, 35 years of age, residing near Rohrsburg, Columbia county, was shot by an unknown assassin, and death ensued six hours later. Mr. McHenry was aroused from his sleep by a noise in his barn, and he arose and went to the barn to investigate. As he neared the place a shot rang out, and McHenry fell. A bullet struck him just above the heart and passed out of his back. Mrs. McHenry at once summoned aid, and the victim was taken into his home. He was conscious for an hour and then lapsed into an unconscious state, in which condition he remained until his death, at 7 o'clock. It is the general belief that it was a case of cold blooded murder, although every precaution had been taken to make it appear as a case of frustrated robbery.

Negro Lynched.

OCEAN SPRINGS, Miss., Feb. 4.—Rosaline Fontain, a white girl between 13 and 14 years of age, was assaulted Friday night by a negro named Warren Matthews, and he was lynched Saturday night. The crime occurred at the house of the family, which is about six miles from this place, on Back bay. Bloodhounds were secured from Biloxi and took the trail immediately. It led to the house of Jack Ramsay, a negro, and Warren Matthews was found there. The victim identified Matthews, and he was jailed at Ocean Springs. At 9:05 Saturday night a mob took Matthews from the jail. He was carried about a mile back of town and hanged.

Vaccinated In the Face.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 4.—While dressing the arm of her little daughter, who had been vaccinated about ten days ago, Mrs. Robert E. Farrier, wife of the pastor of the Baptist church in this city, chanced to brush her hand across her face. In this manner some virus from the child's arm was introduced into a slight scratch on the mother's face, which resulted in her thorough vaccination and left a bad sore on her face.

Farmer Murdered.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Feb. 4.—News reached here of the murder of J. H. Veltkamp, a prominent farmer near here. Indications are that the murder was committed for the purpose of robbery. Veltkamp was a native of Holland and was considered wealthy. There is no clew to the murderers.

THE LAST SAD RITES

Interment of Queen's Remains at Frogmore Today.

A SUNDAY REST AT WINDSOR.

Public Ceremony at the Royal Mausoleum Will Close the Most Memorable Funeral In Modern Times.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The body of the late Queen Victoria has been protected by guardsmen in the Albert Memorial chapel at Windsor since it was deposited there Saturday. The officials of the royal household at Windsor castle visited the chapel yesterday, as well as a number of friends, and admired the great display of wreaths.

The interment at Frogmore today will be at 3 o'clock p. m. The coffin will be conveyed on a gun carriage drawn by artillery horses which will rehearse in the morning. The guard of honor will be the late Queen's company of the grenadier guards, the regimental band accompanying the escort to the mausoleum.

By the king's command the ceremony will be public. The archbishop of York, the bishop of Winchester and the dean of Windsor will officiate. The choir of St. George's Chapel Royal, Sir Walter Parratt directing, will render the music. The choir will meet the procession at the steps of the chapel and with the clergy will precede the coffin, the royal personages with the servants and the late queen's pipers following.

A memorial service was held Sunday morning in St. George's chapel, attended by King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the Duchess of Cornwall and York, Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick William, the Duke of Connaught, other relatives of the late queen and 30 ladies and gentlemen of the royal household. The royal personages wore civilian clothing, the ladies wearing mourning veils. The only patches of color were the red coats of a few officers and the white surplices of the choir, the whole scene being in strong contrast with Saturday's brilliant display, for the body of the chapel was crowded by a congregation in black.

Sir Walter Parratt played a prelude by Chaminade, and Canon the Marquis of Normanby and the dean of Windsor read the special lessons. The prayers were the special prayers prescribed relating to the reign of Victoria and the accession of Edward. The choir sang Dvorak's anthem, "Blessed Jesus, Fount of Mercy," rendering it with beautiful effect. The Right Rev. William Stubbs, bishop of Oxford, delivered the funeral discourse.

After the service King Edward and Emperor William walked in the grounds, and in the evening they attended a strictly private service, at which Mme. Albani sang.

Emperor William will leave Windsor tomorrow, accompanied by King Edward. He will take luncheon at Marlborough House, after which he will drive to Charing Cross station, where he will take the train for Port Victoria. He will follow the same route by which Lord Roberts entered London on returning from South Africa, and a great ovation is expected.

SATURDAY'S FUNERAL.

Forty thousand men lined the route of the funeral procession through London Saturday. Of these 7,000 were police, and the rest were troops of all arms, 25,000 of whom had been arriving from all parts of the country throughout Friday night and up to 4 o'clock in the morning.

In the cortege itself there were rather more than 3,500 persons all told. This is no great number for the funeral escort of a great monarch through her capital; but, not counting innumerable members of the British nobility, it included four kings, an emperor, 20 royal princes and in addition the direct heirs to six thrones, nine ruling grand dukes or princes, the khedive's brother, a queen, seven royal princesses and three royal duchesses.

Along the route, besides the features mentioned elsewhere, a noticeable point was the aspect of Buckingham palace, every blind of which was down and drawn. The huge fore court was closed entirely and empty with the exception of two single lines of troops which were ranged along from the entrance to the palace to the gates.

Of the greatness of the multitudes who saw and the even greater multitudes who remained, but saw not, other dispatches have spoken. No coign of vantage was vacant. The trees in Hyde park were thick with people, and there were one or two accidents caused by the breaking of overloaded branches. Every roof was crowded. The women were not less enterprising than the men in securing a foothold, however scanty, from which it was possible to look over the heads of the crowd. Girls and women scrambled upon walls and railings and even trees, clinging where it seemed impossible for any one except boys, athletes or sailors to hold on, but even the briefest glimpse of the passing gun carriage was considered ample recompense for any exertion. Those able to say that they had seen that went home satisfied.

A commemoration service was held at St. Paul's at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The cathedral was full within 15 minutes after the doors were opened. The lord mayor and members of the corporation of the city of London in their robes, representatives of the Royal academy, the Academy of Music and other societies privileged to use the prefix "royal" were present. A full band played Sullivan's "In Memoriam" overture, "O Rest In the Lord" and Beethoven's funeral march before the service, introducing the dead march in "Saul" at the end of the anthem. Twenty-three clergymen were present.

Dean Gregory, who was born in 1819, preached the sermon.

The service at Westminster abbey began at 2 o'clock, when crowds of people attempting to secure admission were restrained by the police outside the grounds. Canon Henson conducted a most impressive ceremony, consisting chiefly of solemn music and funeral marches. Sir Frederick Bridge accompanied a band whose brass instruments with the thunderous tones of the organ in the dead march in "Saul" awoke every corner of the old abbey and found a sympathetic echo in every heart. This was evidenced by the tearful faces of many women.

The congregations at the abbey and at St. Paul's were in the deepest mourning, occasionally relieved by officers in uniform. No whisper or movements disturbed the solemn occasion.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair and colder; brisk to high southeasterly winds, shifting to northwesterly.

Borough Improvements.

While any increase of the tax rate is not desirable, the action of the Borough Council in providing for the widening of Somerset street from the borough line at Green brook to Jackson avenue, will undoubtedly find general favor with the citizens of that municipality. Even before the tracks of the trolley company ran out that thoroughfare, there was always a congestion of traffic during the busy hours. The Watchung avenue bridge over Green Brook was built partially to relieve the extraordinarily heavy travel and did to a certain extent. Now the bridge which spans the brook and unites Duer street and Madison avenue offers further relief.

With the trolley tracks there, however, there is no doubt but that Somerset street is too narrow to meet the present demands upon it. While the proposed addition to the width of the street is not very large, it will make a wonderful improvement in the appearance of the thoroughfare and be of material benefit to the vehicles which, for business or pleasure, have occasion to pass through the street.

The natural course of events has resulted in the bulk of business enterprises being located in the city of Plainfield rather than the borough of North Plainfield and it is to this city that the residents of the borough naturally come to do much of their trading. The improvement of Somerset street will undoubtedly attract some business men to that street as the location will then be far more desirable than it is at present.

From the standpoint of the boroughite, such a thing is greatly to be desired for the widening of Somerset street will thus help not only that portion of North Plainfield which actually bounds the street in question but the entire community as well.

While Somerset street is to be torn up, it does seem a pity that the much needed storm sewer should not be laid in that thoroughfare at the same time and thus do away with the necessity of tearing up the street again when the need of a storm sewer shall become imperative. The borough would then have two much needed improvements and they might be accomplished at a considerably less expenditure when made together rather than than coming singly.

In connection with the controversy between the city of Plainfield and the American Sewage Disposal Company, of Boston, the attention of The Daily Press has been called to a copy of The Engineering News, for December 7, 1899. In it the editor refers to the claim of Mr. McClintock, president of that company, for priority over a certain patent granted to Donald Cameron and others for septic tank, and says: "The Glover patents neither describe nor claim any of the special features included in the septic tank patent."

Despite the fact that there were twenty two witnesses who testified as to the good character of Edward Sisser's saloon and only seven whose evidence was that the place was not of a proper character, the feeling throughout the borough is that Sisser's establishment on Somerset street should not be licenced. Judge Schenck should not find it difficult to see that the Mayor and other city officials are opposing the granting of the licence with the entire sympathy of most of the people they represent.

It would be very nice to see State Senator Charles A. Reed as the Republican candidate for Governor next fall, and there are many Plainfielders who would like to see him so honored, but the existing state of things in the Republican ranks in New Jersey make such a nomination next fall very unlikely. There will have to be other Governors, however, after next fall.

The Morris County Chronicle declares that now Senator Mahlon Pitney is out of the race for the Governorship, Congressman John J. Gardner, of the Second district, is the strongest Republican candidate. It is evident that Franklin Murphy is not looked on with overwhelming favor by the editor of The Chronicle.

There is little likelihood of any important changes being made in the city officials appointed by the Mayor, the list of which will go to the Common Council tonight for approval. There are several places left vacant by the death of the last appointees, which will necessarily have to be filled by new men.

It was a genuine surprise when the bowlers of the Park Club invaded the territory of the leaders in The Daily Press Bowling League and won two out of three games. There is some hope for the Park Club bowlers after all.

The report that a trolley line from Easton to Somerville is contemplated, shows that the movement to cover the State with intersecting trolley lines is going forward.

When talking of Gubernatorial possibilities, what is the matter with Congressman Charles N. Fowler?

The ground hog has settled down for another nap.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

The divisions which will go to make up the ten new Congressional Districts of New Jersey have not as yet been determined upon and every few days some new scheme is evolved for grouping the counties. A late plan is to put Mercer, Somerset, Hunterdon and Warren into one district, with the view of making it Republican, but the wisdom of this is doubtful. The plan to unite Union, Somerset and Morris seems to meet with favor in all three of these counties, and would probably prove satisfactory. — Bound Brook Chronicle.

The proposed bill requiring that justices of the peace elected after 1901 must go before a Supreme Court Commissioner for examination as to their knowledge of law forms and preparation of complaints and commitments, etc., would save a vast amount of trouble. The office of justice of the peace is too important to have such illiterate persons as are often elected. The Grand Jury would be saved considerable labor and there would be fewer errors in commitments if some educational requirements were necessary. As it is now, a constitutional office is debased by the ignorant manner in which the incumbents frequently execute the functions. The district courts have curtailed the powers of the justices in the cities, but they still have many important cases to handle in the rural districts.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

It does not seem to make any difference as to the locality as long as the small boy has a place to coast. Saturday afternoon a crowd of them selected the small hill that slopes into Watchung avenue near East Fourth street, and by throwing on it snow, taken from the vacant field adjoining, they managed to make quite a slide. They not only endangered the limbs of pedestrians who were passing along the sidewalk, but ran a great risk of being run over by the trolley cars. They enjoyed it all the same.

Dear Sirs:—Some days since a package of your GRAIN-O preparation was left at my office. I took it home and gave it a trial, and I have to say I was very much pleased with it, as a substitute for coffee. We have always used the best Java and Mocha in our family, but I am free to say I like the GRAIN-O as well as the best coffee I ever drank. Respectfully yours,

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 4 — The breaking down of a large coal engine, near the roundhouse, caused a blockade on the Central for four hours early Saturday morning. A number of residents living along the railroad took advantage of the blockade and replenished their coal bins from the contents of the cars. Travel was not resumed until 7 o'clock.

Mrs. David Taylor, of Bound Brook, wife of the liveryman of that place, died at her home Saturday after a long illness. She was thirty years old and was the daughter of C. Wesley Blaine, of the borough. The deceased is survived by several children. The funeral services will be held from her late residence tomorrow afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council will be held this evening at which several matters of importance will come up for consideration. Previous to the regular meeting the fire and water committee will hold a conference with the Watchung Water Company's representative.

Miss Louise Brakeley has gone to Phillipsburg where she will spend a week with relatives and incidentally act as maid of honor at the wedding of a cousin which takes place Wednesday night.

The Misses Marlow entertained the Literary Society at the regular meeting held Saturday evening. There was a large attendance and the usual good time was had by all present.

Mrs. Scully, of Newark, has returned home after a pleasant visit with Mrs. John Hunt.

Miss Virgie Tunison has been spending a few days with relatives at Glen Gardner.

Irving Martine, of New York, was the guest of Herbert Wikoff over Sunday.

Mrs. Jane Apgar is confined to her home with an attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. Robert Giddis was the guest of New York friends Saturday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, February 4.—Miss Estella Sofield entertained a number of friends in a pleasant manner at her home Saturday evening. Various amusements made the hours pass quickly and the serving of refreshments brought the affair to a close.

Some of the residents of New Market are greatly displeased with the action of Overseer Hummer in regard to his request for privacy at the Township Committee meeting held last Friday, as they regard all matters coming before that body to be of public character. The matter in dispute will be considered at tomorrow's meeting. A special conference between the committeemen and the tax collector will be held this afternoon.

Rev. N. J. Sproul, of Dunellen, delivered an excellent temperance lecture in the First Babtist church last evening. It was given under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

The Township Committee will hold their regular meeting tomorrow afternoon when an interesting session is expected.

M. W. Casterline returned home Saturday from Philadelphia where Mrs. Casterline is recuperating.

Mrs. L. H. Danz is slowly improving from her recent severe illness.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 4.—An enjoyable evening was spent by the members of the Saturday Night Club and their friends at their entertainment and dance given in the borough fire house Saturday evening. After enjoying a pleasing programme of music, the members and their friends spent the balance of the hours to 12 o'clock in dancing. During the evening refreshments were served and the hour of midnight came all too quickly to those who enjoyed the club's hospitality.

Acting Mayor McKeown, of Fanwood, called down upon his head the wrath of several of the residents of the borough Saturday morning because he had ordered the borough flag at half-mast out of respect to England's dead Queen. The opposition was in the minority, however, and the flag stayed at half-mast all day.

Mrs. John Archibald, who has been dangerously ill for several weeks at the home of George Roll, has so far recovered that she was able to be removed Saturday to her home in Washington valley.

The Township Committee met in the township rooms Saturday night. The committee are busy preparing the annual township report which will soon be ready for distributing among the taxpayers.

Frederick Hoppell led the weekly Baptist Young People's Union meeting in the Baptist chuch parlors last evening. Subject: "Marching Orders."

Miss Josie Herbert, who has been spending a pleasant visit with Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Shott, has returned to her home in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stiliger and son, of Roselle, were the guests Sunday of Mr. Stiliger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stiliger.

Frank R. Allen has accepted a position with the R. L. Thomas Phonographic Supply Company of New York.

Mrs. Wm. S. Terry, of Plainfield, was the guest yesterday of his mother, Mrs. James Buckley.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, Feb. 4.—About twenty-five signers have been secured for the charter of a new lodge, the P. O. of A. The P. O. of A. is an auxiliary of the P. O. S. of A. Women will constitute the principal part of the membership.

Notices were given at the Baptist church yesterday of the Tuesday evening prayer meeting and of the meeting of the Woman's Mission Circle at the home of Mrs. Manning on Thursday.

Mr. Faulk's tenant house is again vacant. The parties to whom he rented, it is alleged, were not satisfactory to Mr. Faulk.

Parker Morris has returned home after a two days' visit with parties in town.

Miss May Bunting is making a visit with her uncle, Thomas Brantingham.

Mrs. George Ryno has been entertaining company from out of town.

Mrs. T. H. Brantingham is making a visit with friends in Tarrytown.

Mrs. Henry Teeple is entertaining friends from out of town.

Richard Randolph spent yesterday with friends in town.

PRIZE POR PATRIOTIC SONGS.

A CONTEST ARRANGED BY DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Will Give $10 For Best Story Preferably Referring to Stirring Events in Jersey During Revolution.

The Continental Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution instead of offering a prize to the public schools for the best essay on some subject connected with American History as hitherto, offer this year a prize of $10 for the best patriotic song to be written by any citizen of Plainfield under thirty years of age. The subject would preferably have some connection with the stirring events in New Jersey during the Revolutionary War and with some reference to Washington's Rock, the local Revolutionary landmark. The words should be arranged for the music of either the Soldier's Chorus in Faust or the Toreador's Song in Carmen.

It is hoped that with the numerous graduates from men's and women's colleges, and the bright girls and boys in the various local schools something worthy of the subject and of the occasion may be elicited.

It is desired that the songs may be ready by the first of May. They are to be sent to Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Regent of the Continental Chapter, who will appoint a committee to decide upon their relative merits.

The announcement of the choice will be made through the city papers together with details of the presentation. The poems, unsigned, should be accompanied with a sealed envelope containing the name of the author, addressed to the Regent.

HIGH MASONIC RANK.

It Has Fallen on the Shoulders of Congressman Richardson.

He Now Is Grand Commander of the Southern Jurisdiction of Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Masons.

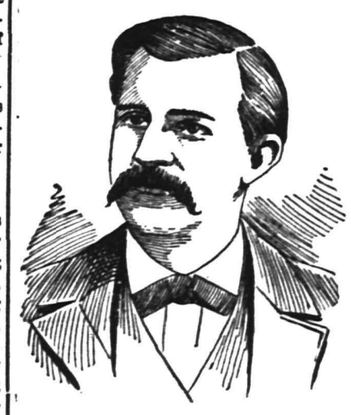
Albert Pike's hallowed mantle, symbolical of the world's highest masonic rank, now falls upon the shoulders of Representative James D. Richardson, of Tennessee. He succeeds to the exalted office of sovereign grand commander of the southern jurisdiction of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry. This office has just been left vacant by the death of Thomas H. Caswell, of San Francisco.

Mr. Richardson becomes a veritable potentate within the masonic sphere. Few monarchs will be more gorgeously enthroned, more picturesquely surrounded, more ceremoniously attended than he while executing the functions of his office.

He succeeds to a life position. He will have at his disposal a well-appointed dwelling. He falls heir to a generous salary. When he travels upon official missions his expenses will be paid. At the same time, he will be permitted to retain his seat in congress.

Mr. Richardson becomes the ranking mason of the world by virtue of two facts—first, that the Scottish rite confers the highest masonic degree, the thirty-third; second, that he will preside over the world's oldest or "mother" supreme council of that order. Thus he can claim masonic superiority over the king of England and President Diaz, of Mexico, respectively grand patron and grand commander of Scottish Rite masons of their countries.

As sovereign grand commander, says the New York Herald, he will draw a salary of $3,000 a year for life. This, added to his congressional salary of $5,000 per annum, will aggregate for him the same allowance prescribed for the speaker of the house. Mr. Richardson has aspired to the speakership ever since he has been democratic leader on the floor. While serving as sovereign grand commander and as representative he will be even better off financially than if merely speaker.



JAMES D. RICHARDSON,
(Sovereign Grand Commander of Scottish Rite Masons.)

"The Holy House of the Temple," at Third and E streets, Washington, will be at Mr. Richardson's disposal whenever he may choose to occupy it. It is owned by the Scottish Rite masons, and is valued at $150,000. Its modest exterior bears no suggestion of its luxurious appointments. It is a three-story brick building, with plain front and with two bay windows at the side. Above the entrance are chiseled ten Samaritan characters, forming the inscription "Holy House of the Temple."

The gorgeous throne upon which Mr. Richardson will sit while exercising the functions of his office overlooks a grand hall known as the senate chamber of the supreme council. This is entered from the west by two anterooms. Above it rises a domed ceiling lined with electric burners. The floor is covered by a luxurious red carpet. The sides are lined with high benches erected upon platforms and reserved for visiting masons of the "thirty-third and last degree." Just beneath are the 33 desks of the members of the senate of the supreme council.

While sitting upon his throne Mr. Richardson will wear a large triangular collar of white cloth embroidered in gold. Placing his head through the three-cornered aperture of this vestment he will arrange it so that the two upper points extend over his shoulders and the third hangs to his waist. The lower point will be embroidered with a small triangle enclosing the number "33" and surrounded by a rayed sun. Upon the right will be embroidered the American and Scottish rite flags, crossed; upon the left, the eagle of the supreme council beneath a jewel. Appended to the lower point of the collar will hang the sovereign grand commander's jewel — a masonic emblem displayed upon an array of stars and rayed sun of silver, two and a half inches in diameter, covered with diamonds. This decoration was made for Gen. Bacheller and descended to Judge Tucker and Mr. Caswell. Below it will be worn the apron of the last masonic degree.

The late Mr. William Woolsey, of Churchville, Hartford county, Md., left $58,000 for the betterment of roads in that county, naming the five highways to be improved. It would be difficult to devise a more lasting monument or one more constantly in view.

Crematories to Form a Trust.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Bei den Postämtern im Wiener Lokalrayon wurden in der Neujahrswoche 1,055,349 Postfrachtstücke (gegen 1,016,803 Stücke im Vorjahre) expedirt.—Jüngsthin wurde auf dem Sarkophag der Kaiserin Elisabeth in der Kaisergruft bei den Kapuzinern ein Schriftstück gefunden, das sich bei näherer Prüfung als ein Majestätsgesuch erwies. Die Aufschrift lautete: „Der edelsten Frau auf dem Throne zur gütigen Fürsprache empfohlen."—Dahier sind drei Kinder des Kutschers Joseph Rath in Folge von Einathmung von Kohlengas erstickt.

Brixen. Das bestens renommirte Hotel „Zum Elephanten" feierte jüngst das 350jährige Gedenkfest seines Bestehens.

Essegg. Im hiesigen Landesspital brach eine Typhusepidemie aus. Einer der Aerzte dieses Krankenhauses, der erst im 27. Lebensjahre gestandene Sekundarius Dr. Julius Vujnovich, ist der Krankheit als Erster zum Opfer gefallen.

Klosterneuburg. Karl Edler v. Werenbach, der weit über die Gemarkungen Oesterreichs bekannte Schöpfer der Bernsteinmasse-Fabrikation, feierte neulich im Kreise seiner Familie sein 70. Geburtsfest.

Linz. Der Hörer der Medizin an der Wiener Universität, Max Traxlmayer, Sohn des hiesigen Kafetiers Traxlmayer, hat sich in einem Anfall momentaner Sinnesverwirrung erschossen.

Mannersdorf. Im Juli v. J. wurde die in Hof wohnhaft gewesene Wirthschaftsbesitzerin Frau Aloisia Schuh in einem Kartoffelfeld ermordet aufgefunden. Der unglücklichen Frau war der Hals bis zur Wirbelsäule durchschnitten. Nunmehr ist unter dem dringenden Verdacht der Thäterschaft der Gatte der Ermordeten, Leopold Schuh, verhaftet worden.

Preßburg. Zwischen dem Techniker Ernst Zernek und dem Sohne des Hofbuchhändlers Stampfel, Hugo Stampfel, fand in der hiesigen Kaserne ein blutiges Säbelduell statt, bei welchem Zernek sechs Hiebe, darunter drei schwere Verletzungen, erhielt. Dem Duell ging eine ehrenräthliche Verhandlung voraus.

Teschen. In einer Sitzung des Gemeindeausschusses wurde Dr. v. Demel einstimmig zum Bürgermeister wiedergewählt.

Trient. Kürzlich wurde in der Kampagne des Maso Ceschi an der Fersina der 33jährige Schreiber Giuseppe Giuliani aus Bezzano mit durchschossenem Kopfe todt aufgefunden. Die polizeilichen Erhebungen ergaben, daß Giuliani, ein großer Jagdliebhaber, über einen Draht, mit welchem die Reben aufgebunden wurden, zu Falle gekommen und dabei durch Losgehen seines Jagdgewehres seinen Tod gefunden habe.

Triest. Der Oesterreichische Lloyd hat einen monatlichen Dampferdienst zwischen Durban, Südafrika, und Triest eingerichtet.

Schweiz.

Bern. Im Jahre 1899 sind von den patentirten schweizerischen Auswanderungsagenturen nach überseeischen Ländern 2493 Schweizer befördert worden. Den Agenten wurden 269,000 Francs übergeben, um den Auswanderern an ihrem Bestimmungsorte ausbezahlt zu werden.—In die kantonale Zwangserziehungsanstalt Trachselwald sind seit Eröffnung derselben im Dezember 1895 im Ganzen 188 Knaben und Jünglinge im Alter von 15 bis 20 Jahren aufgenommen worden, und zwar 159 Berner, 20 andere Schweizer und 9 Ausländer. In den nämlichen acht Jahren wurden 18 Zöglinge entlassen. Gegenwärtig beherbergt die Anstalt 20 Zöglinge.

Zürich. Der Kanton Zürich leidet zur Zeit an Lehrermangel. Auf nächstes Frühjahr wären etwa 100 neue Lehrkräfte erforderlich, es stehen aber nur 45 zur Verfügung. Der Erziehungsrath hat deshalb der Stadt Zürich statt der verlangten 20 nur 16 neue Lehrklassen bewilligt, so daß eine starke Ueberfüllung der Klassen in Aussicht steht.

Schwyz. Der allen Besuchern des Vierwaldstättersees bekannte große Gasthof „Zum Axenstein" oberhalb Brunnen ist neulich total niedergebrannt.

Freiburg. In der Kantonshauptstadt starb Kasimir Bussard, Waffenkontrolleur der zweiten Division, ein von allen, die ihn kannten, hochgeschätzter Mann.

Tessin. Der tessinische Ingenieur Fulgenzio Bonzango hat im Marobbiathale starke Gänge von Schwefelkies aufgefunden. Er hat bereits beim Staatsrath ein Konzessionsbegehren zur Ausbeutung derselben eingereicht.

Waadt. Drei junge, in Lausanne wohnhafte Leute machten von Finshauts aus eine Tour nach der Barberinehütte. Sie wurden hierbei von einer Lawine überrascht, welche einen derselben, den 17jährigen A. de Rham, mit fortriß. Eine von den beiden anderen Touristen herbeigeholte, 24 Mann starke Hilfskolonne suchte vergeblich nach dem Verunglückten.

Notice as to Unmuzzled Dogs Running at Large.

By a city ordinance, it is provided that no dog shall be permitted to run at large within the city limits, unless a good and sufficient muzzle shall be placed over the mouth of said dog in such manner as to render biting impossible. If any person permits or suffers any dog owned or harbored by him and not so muzzled to run at large, the ordinance provides that he shall upon conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense.

Any person prepared to make complaint under oath of any violation of this ordinance may apply to the subscriber and have prosecution begun forthwith.

THE MODE.

The Yoke Is the Favorite Accessory of the Season.

Yokes of one kind and another are very much worn by both children and grown persons. Sometimes they pass under the bodice like a guimpe; sometimes they make one with it, being applied or incrusted; sometimes they are separate and are simply laid over the shoulders, like a pelerine or long collar, with sleeve caps falling over the top of the sleeves.

As for the form and style of yokes, they are infinitely varied. Round, square or heart shaped, dropping over the top of the shoulder or carried across it, cut in festoons at the edge or straight, they are constructed according to the taste and fancy of the wearer and the kind of gown they are to accompany. The present moment being much influenced by empire fashions, the majority of yokes are large, and the real empire yoke is quite independent. It is of guipure, with ruches of mousseline de soie at the edge, or of faille or satin mousseline embroidered.

The cut illustrates an evening gown of sky blue crepe de chine. The skirt consists of a crape tunic edged with little scallops and slightly draped at the left side. Beneath is a skirt of blue silk, with one application of guipure de venise at the foot. The bodice of draped blue crape has a large application of guipure at the right side of the front and is held over the shoulders by garlands of parma violet. The draped sleeves of crape fall off the top of the arm, leaving it uncovered, and terminate at the elbow with a band of guipure de venise and a frill of lace. The belt of gold ribbon fastens with a jeweled buckle. A chain of cabochons encircles the neck and is carried to the left shoulder, where it is secured by a jewel. The gloves are of cream suede.

FOR YOUNG GIRLS.

Styles Most Favorable to the Youthful Figure.

Empire fashions, so attractive for grown persons, are very appropriate for very young girls who are yet unformed and whose angles and awkwad lines are well subdued by the flowing lines characteristic of these styles.

A pretty example of a skirt and bodice costume for a girl of 12 years old has a skirt of red cloth with a full circular flounce around the foot. This flounce is headed by a small piping of red and white plaid goods. The bodice is of red and white plaid, with a large plait in front forming a blouse, and there is a plaid sash bow at the back.

As children have large waists it is desirable to so arrange the costume that it will have little bulk about that part of the figure. Light and striking belts are also to be avoided for the same reason. The waist appears smaller if the shoulders are widened by trimming at the top of the bodice and sleeves.

The illustration depicts a wrapper of red serge for a girl. It is partly fitted to the figure by groups of stitched plaits which extend a little way below the waist and has a serge girdle with long ends in front. The yoke and plastron are of plaited red surah and are bordered by black velvet ribbon, which also trims the collar and the ends of the girdle. The pagoda sleeves are bordered with black velvet, and beneath them are full sleeves of red surah gathered into a band of black velvet at the wrist. The cravat is of velvet, with gold tips.

WINTER FASHIONS.

Metallic and Jeweled Effects In the Ascendant.

Guipure is still immensely used, the design being frequently enriched by an embroidery of gold thread. Gold, indeed, appears everywhere, and jeweled effects are unlimited. Laces spangled with steel, silver, gold, jet and rhinestone are greatly employed, with dazzling results. Broche silks continue in favor for ball gowns.

For young girls far simpler things are of course employed. Louis Quinze gowns of finely striped silk with little broche bouquets are very attractive. They have an open bodice, half length sleeves with a frill at the elbow, and a trianon fichu of mousseline de soie, edged with satin bordered ruffles. The tight vest and bolero are also much worn, made of silk with large directoire revers, and are suitable for dinners and demitoilet when accompanied by a light skirt of plaited mousseline de soie or liberty satin. The chemisette matches the skirt and is confined at the waist by a wide empire belt.

The picture illustrates a gown of pastel blue cloth. The skirt has a circular flounce around the foot, at the top of which are four narrow, nearly flat circular ruffles. The bodice has a plain back and open front, embroidered and edged with chinchilla, which joins the chinchilla medici collar. The chemisette is of white mousseline de soie. The sleeves, large at the bottom, are embroidered and edged with fur, and beneath them are full sleeves of white mousseline de soie gathered in at the wrist. Embroidered straps pass down the shoulders. The wide belt is of silver tissue. The chinchilla hat has a draped crown of pastel blue mousseline de soie.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION NOTES.

Materials For Young Women, Young Girls and Little Girls.

For ball gowns satin, taffeta, tulle, mousseline, velutine and crepe de chine are employed and also the pretty pompadour fabrics, which have reappeared in favor. For young girls the ball costume is very simple in character, so that the full charm of youthfulness may be apparent, unobscured by a mature style of dress.

CLOTH TOILET.

Tulle or mousseline de soie over white or tinted taffeta is much employed, with ruches and ruffles as a trimming.

Party dresses for little girls are of nainsook, swiss muslin, velutine, liberty satin or fine cashmere and are white or of some soft, bright color. Plaits, gathers and tucks form the trimming or lace and embroidery for the sheer materials. Large Louis XIII collars of guipure are also worn. The form of the gown is often straight, and in the fitted frocks the junction of the bodice and skirt is concealed by a sash tied at the back in a large bow.

The picture illustrates a pleasing costume of pastel blue satin cloth. Around the foot of the skirt is an embroidered application of darker blue panne, with a border of sable. The bolero bodice is draped in front and closed by a gold buckle, and there is a full chemisette of the blue panne. The yoke and collar are of guipure de venise over light blue silk, and a band of fur borders the yoke. The tight sleeves have a band of fur at the wrist. The toque of pastel blue panne is trimmed with sable fur, a drapery of panne and two curved feathers.

Crack Shots Preparing for the AMERICAN HANDICAP

SHOTGUNS are popping at the gun clubs and unfortunate birds are falling victims of the deadly aim of the sportsmen who are practicing for the annual Grand American Handicap, America's greatest shooting event. As in the past, there will be a whole week of shooting in connection with the G. A. H. at Interstate park. The programme for the big event is being mailed by Secretary Elmer E. Schauer, of the Interstate Park association, to all the gun clubs in the United States.

Monday, April 1, there will be an introductory handicap, at live birds, open to all. The next day there will be a handicap and several sweepstakes matches at live birds, open to all shooters; and Wednesday, April 3, the first round of the Grand American Handicap will be shot. Thursday, the second round will be contested, and Friday the winner of the much-discussed event will emerge from the throng of shooters and get his medals and money. The concluding day of sport for the gunners will be marked by a consolation event and some sweepstakes. It will be remembered that weather conditions seldom bother the enthusiastic shots. It is no uncommon thing for a gun club to run off events in snowstorms. The provisions of the G. A. H. call for contests "rain or shine," and it will surprise but few shooters if the weather is not blustery, even rainy.

EXPERT SHOTS OF AMERICA.

Champion D. H. Bates, the Canadian who won the event in 1900, has written that he will be a starter in the G. A. H. He not only thinks that he has as good a chance to win as he had last season, but he believes it his duty to defend the title won in the big shoot at live birds. Early as it is, the breeders of birds are preparing for the demands to be made on their cotes by those who purchase pigeons for the shoot.

There is a possibility that before many seasons the shooters will pay heed to the many charges of cruelty brought against them by the tender-hearted people who dislike to see so many birds slaughtered in the name of "sport." Sermons have been preached—others will be preached, against the useless destruction of birds in shooting matches. The shooters declare that they cannot get real tests of cleverness in shooting from clap pigeon events. The live bird, if not badly hit, will fly until it falls out of bounds, or the pigeon, when it leaves the trap, may quarter in its flight so cleverly that only the best marksman can hit the bird.

On the other hand, the friends of the pigeons say that the winning of a big live bird shoot adds nothing to the good of the community—that it might well be dispensed with, as the victors merely divide money and carry off some cast iron or bronze medals, which are soon forgotten. It is further urged that if clay pigeons were used, the contest would be equally fair to all shooters entered, and none would complain of being frozen out. The veteran wing shots say nothing when this matter of dispensing with the pigeons is discussed. They feel that it is slaughter to kill pigeons that rise from the traps scarcely able to comprehend where they are or what they have to do, before the shot comes tearing through them. These men will shoot at targets or composition "birds" only when they have to do so. So long as there are facilities for getting live birds and no one interferes with an injunction or some such process, they will squint along the barrels at the feathered victims.

Thomas W. Marshall, twice winner of the G. A. H., has signified his intention to shoot in the G. A. H. Dr. Ashley A. Webber, Robert A. Welch, T. W. Morfey, Louis T. Davenport, H. J. Hall, J. S. Schenk-Remsen, John L. Brewer, James A. R. Elliott, Charles W. Budd, J. S. Fanning, Phil Daly, W. R. Crosbey, Rolla O. Heikes, John H. Hallock, C. A. Lockwood, William H. and John R. Hopkins, Dr. Louis H. O'Connell, Fred Gilbert, Frank Parmelee and a host of other well-known shots are certain to be starters in the big event.

James A. R. Elliott, the Kansas City live-pigeon shot, who recently won the Dupont trophy from R. A. Welch, the Philadelphia shooter, in a great contest at Interstate park, now has every trap-shooters' cup and medal of importance in the country, with the exception of the Grand American Handicap emblem. That he will try hard this year to take down first honors in the biggest shoot of the country, seems to go without saying. In the Elliott-Welch shoot, the score was 97 to 88. The funny thing about it was that Elliott pinned his faith to a single-barreled repeater, while Welch used a double-barreled imported gun. Welch's birds were the most cunning of flyers, and he missed 12 in all. It was not until the twelfth bird, a driver to the right, that Elliott got a miss. Had he had an ordinary shotgun, his second shot at the bird might have been successful. As it was the pigeon left a few feathers behind and got well away. Such an occurrence in the G. A. H. might lose first place. Elliott's thirty-fifth, a quartering towerer, was his second miss, while a screaming quarterer to the right falling dead out of bounds was his only other miss. That was good shooting. If he does so well next April, he will give some of the rival shots plenty to worry over. Some of the best-known marksmen in the country were present when Elliott did this work, among them John S. Fanning, of San Francisco, and a sure starter in the G. A. H., and all declared that Elliott was in rare form.

It was ten years ago that the Dupont trophy was first put up, and R. A. Welch was the winner. He failed to successfully defend it, and it has been shot for oftener and changed hands oftener than any other trophy in America. Elliott won it several years ago and lost it. Welch regained it several months ago, and succeeded, a month later, in successfully defending it against T. W. Morfey, only to lose it to Elliott. Under the deed of gift, this trophy has to be defended every time it is challenged for. Morfey has a match for the Cast Iron championship medal with Elliott, which will be shot before the G. A. H.

Many states during the year just closed gave championships, sometimes at the State Sportsmen's association tourney, and these trophies so won are held by the winners until the annual shoots scheduled for this season. J. A. R. Elliott, at St. Louis, got 50 birds out of a possible 50, and won the Missouri championship. He will defend it this year. W. T. Brewer, of Nebraska, made a clean score in the tourney, and captured the state championship. Bert Woodford got the Illinois championship at Chicago last May by getting 21 birds. F. Coleman, with a clean score, won the Keystone state championship. J. L. Smith is the New Jersey state champion, and Mr. Hubby has the title for Texas. E. Voreis and J. O. Ward are the champions of Indiana and Kentucky, respectively.

The world's record on targets was made by J. S. Fanning. He broke 231 without a miss, in open competition for prizes. This work was done in two days, but the shooting was continuous and the record counts. In a roof garden exhibition at the same sort of shooting, Fanning got 175 straight.

Last season the long runs on live birds were few. Fred Gilbert and J. A. R. Elliott easily led any of the shooters in this direction. At Springfield, Ill., Gilbert had 126. At an eastern shoot he gained 75, and at Kansas City he made 71. Elliott fell one bird below Gilbert at St. Louis last May, getting a continuous kill of 125 birds. Fifties, sixties, seventies and even eighties were not uncommon in Elliott's work during the past year. Tom Morfey did well, as did George Roll, of Milwaukee, and Charles Spencer, of St. Louis. R. A. Welch's best mark was 58, made at Interstate park, in November.

"On paper" it would seem that Elliott would be a G. A. H. winner, but the field in the handicap is large.

Women as Bird Doctors.

One of the latest schemes of a clever woman forced to earn her own living is establishing herself as a bird doctor. Canaries are her specialty, and she has established a hospital where she attends to the ills of these pets. Broken limbs, disordered digestive apparatus, catarrhs and fevers are treated by the woman with benefit to the birds and profit to herself. Other song birds and house pets, and even the repulsive parrot, are treated for their ailments by this bird doctor, who is said to be the only woman in the world making a specialty of this business. So well established is her fame in this direction that she makes visits to Philadelphia, Boston and other cities, when called, and has established a regular clientele there, as well as here, among dealers who make the handling of birds an incident to their other business, as is the case at some of the department stores.—N. Y. Times.

In Ocean Depths.

The sea is a vast laboratory in which all things are dissolved. It is a significantly curious fact that of all of the thousands of dredgings made in the deep sea bottom nothing man-made ever has been brought up, except some worm-riddled portion of a ship's plank, dredged by Sir Murray from a depth of three-quarters of a mile, to the north of Scotland, during the Triton expedition, although many dredgings have been taken in main routes of vessels across the Aaltntic. The ocean receives what fortune brings, and not only swallows it silently, but utterly wipes it out of existence, in its original form, until its substance is a part of its own transparent blue.—Science.

New Portmanteau Words.

"Brupper" is the joyous meal you have after a very late dance, for instance, and consists of supper, which might almost be breakfast. "Brea" is early morning tea. "Tunch" is rather a common meal in the country, and would be partaken of on coming back late in the afternoon, after a morning's hunting or bicycling. "Brinner," on the contrary, can only be eaten by those people whose custom it is to dine heavily in the middle of the day. But, of course, "brunch" is undoubtedly for the best of them all, and is, indeed, the "resource of the indolent."—Academy.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
G. H. KENYON.

HONORED THE LORD.

All of Our Presidents Were Faithful Church-Goers.

From Washington Down to McKinley No Out-and-Out Atheist Ever Occupied the Executive Mansion.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"I AM 93 years old and have lived in this city all of my life," says William Birth, one of our most respected citizens.

"I can only hear from the world now by means of this ear-trumpet, but I can read without glasses eat with my natural teeth, and walk several miles a day without overtaxing myself.

"I have no genuine recollection of the war of 1812, but my earliest recollections are the conversations I heard about it. It has always been very hard for me to tell the difference between what I saw and what I heard. While I am sure that I was taken away and did not see the burning of the capitol, I heard so much talk about it, and so many descriptions of it, that I have a picture of it in my mind, and all of my mature life I have been inclined to believe that I really saw that great historic vandalism.

"I never saw Washington, but I have seen every other president of the republic. I have known some of them, and have worshiped in the same church with some of them. I presume that Washington was our greatest Christian president, and that Jackson was farthest from being an ideal worshiper.

"Five of our presidents were church officers, trustees or vestrymen, namely: Washington, John Quincy Adams, Grant, Garfield and Harrison, the last named being at present an elder of a Presbyterian church at Indianapolis. In addition to the above, Madison, Monroe, Tyler and Fillmore were communicants.

"Everyone knows that Washington was an Episcopalian, and nearly all visitors to the capital make a pilgrimage to Christ church, Alexandria, where the Father of His Country worshiped. A less visited scene of his religious devotions is the church at Pohick, Va., the site for which edifice Washington located. As it was nearer Mount Vernon than was Alexandria he attended service there more frequently than he did at the latter place, but it is now difficult of access and but little known to the general public. Washington's church at Pohick was vandalized during the civil war and finally used as a stable for northern troops. It is now restored, and a congregation weekly assembles for worship within its walls.

"John Adams came of old Puritan stock of New England. He was reared as an independent, or Congregational ist, but finally became a Unitarian in principles.

"Jefferson was what might be called a free thinker, and he imbibed, while in France at the time of the revolution, a good many of the ideas of what was called French infidelity, although he always recognized the existence of God. He was denounced during his campaign for the presidency as a

LINCOLN WALKING TO CHURCH.

French infidel. Of slavery he said: 'When I think of human slavery in this country and think that God is just I tremble for my country.' His two daughters were educated in a Catholic convent in France.

"James Madison was an Episcopalian, although educated at Princeton, the great Presbyterian stronghold.

"Monroe was also an Episcopalian.

"John Quincy Adams was a Unitarian, although he attended the Second Presbyterian church during the time of his stay in Washington.

"Jackson was a Scotch Presbyterian. When he came to Washington he attended the Second Presbyterian church, but got mad because Campbell, the minister, objected to Mrs. Eaton, and left the congregation. Jackson took up the cause of the wife of his old friend, Gen. Eaton, and defended her who in former days had had peculiar stories circulated detrimental to her good name.

"Martin Van Buren, who was from the Dutch Reformed church, while here attended an Episcopalian congregation, because there was no organization of the former sect in the city.

"William Henry Harrison was a Presbyterian, though during his short life in Washington he was never identified with any church.

"Tyler was a Virginia Episcopalian.

"Polk was a Presbyterian and attended the First Presbyterian church. During communion he used to sit in the back part of the church, while his wife, nearer the front, partook of the Lord's Supper.

"Taylor appeared to lean rather to the Episcopal church. He was an army man, and not much given to church attendance.

"Fillmore was a pronounced Unitarian and regularly attended a Unitarian church here.

"Pierce went to the First Presbyterian church. He did not attend communion, but his wife did. He often went to prayer meetings on Thursday evenings, and frequently, at the conclusion of the service, I walked with him to the white house. After his inauguration he became an Episcopalian, to which church he belonged at his death. He was brought up in the Congregational faith.

"Buchanan was a Scotch Presbyterian until his death. He attended service in Willard's hall, on F street, then used by a Presbyterian congregation.

"Lincoln had a pew in a Presbyterian church here, to which denomination his wife belonged. What he was I do not know, but he was not a member of any church.

"Andrew Johnson used to attend all the churches. If he had any religion, he kept it to himself; he never joined any particular denomination.

"Grant and his family were Methodist, although during the year of his first presidential campaign he attended the First Presbyterian church.

BISHOP NEWMAN CALLS ON M'KINLEY.

He afterwards went to the Metropolitan M. E. church, where his wife belonged.

"Hayes was a Methodist. He was brought up a Presbyterian, but his wife was pronounced in her belief, and with her he attended Foundry M. E. church. I do not think he was a member of that denomination, but he always went to services there with Mrs. Hayes.

"Garfield was a member of the Disciples' church, having during the earlier days of his life occupied the pulpit of that denomination as a preacher on numerous occasions.

"Arthur was an Episcopalian, and attended St. John's church, corner Sixteenth and First streets.

"Cleveland was a Presbyterian, and during his entire residence in this city was an attendant at the First Presbyterian church. He did not partake of the Lord's Supper, but his wife did. Perhaps you have heard of the man with a kodak, who stationed himself in the gallery, then, watching his chance, 'pushed the button' just as Mrs. Cleveland raised the wine glass to her lips. The people in the gallery were surprised at the performance, but they did not know whether he had any right to use the instrument there, and so did nothing. You may be sure he made his way out of the building as soon as the picture had been secured.

"Benjamin Harrison was a Presbyterian, and is an elder in a church in Indianapolis.

"William McKinley is a Methodist, and goes to church with his wife every Sunday morning. He has always been a good church man, and is to-day. He attended Foundry church when he was a member of congress. Now he attends the Metropolitan M. E. church, although he partly promised the Foundry church people that he would attend there. After his inauguration he received a call from Bishop Newman, who urged him to attend the Metropolitan church, of which church the bishop had been pastor when Grant attended there. The Metropolitan people invoked the influence of Bishop Newman, and he succeeded in persuading the president to attend there. This has caused a rather peculiar coldness between the two churches, which will probably wear away in time.

"President Lincoln used to walk down Pennsylvania avenue and along New York avenue with his wife and children to the Presbyterian church, which is only about three blocks away from the white house. The entire family went together. Although those were war times, Mr. Lincoln was not afraid to walk to church. Of course he was carefully guarded, although he probably did not realize that fact.

"President Arthur was a widower. He used to walk alone and unattended across La Fayette square, opposite the white house, to St. John's Episcopal church. He placed there a beautiful memorial window in memory of his wife.

"From my observations of them, I think that all of our presidents have been God-fearing men. Our people have chosen good men as occupants of the white house."

SMITH D. FRY.

What Grit Does.

All the great successes have been gained through opposition and struggle. Charles Goodyear, the inventor, whose name is now a synonym all the world over for fortune added to fortune, waded many years chin-deep through the world's scorn, was thrust into a debtor's prison, and came with his family to the verge of starvation, but continued his experiments with vulcanized rubber until he added more than can be estimated to the world's health and comfort, as well as to his own advantage. Columbus and John Fitch, and Stephenson and Robert Bruce, and Cyrus W. Field and 500 others, were illustrations of what grit and perseverance can do.—T. De Witt Talmage, in Success.

SPORTING.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The individual bowling tourney, in which twenty of Plainfield's crack bowlers have entered, will begin on Conover's alleys this evening. Several games will be rolled each evening until the finish. In order to make the tourney as interesting as possible, Manager Conover has offered four handsome prizes which will be awarded to the men winning the most number of games.

POOL

Although the pool tourney between Franklin and Somerset Councils at Conover's parlors, ended last week with the former council well in the lead, the Somerset men are not in the least dismayed and are confident of winning yet. This week several of Somerset's best men are scheduled to play with a number of Franklin's lesser lights and the prospects of decreasing the latter's lead is very good. The tourney has attracted a large number of spectators each evening and the players are frequently greeted with long applause as good shots are made.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Plainfield High School hockey team met and defeated the North Plainfield High School team on Herrman's pond Friday afternoon. The score was 1 to 0. The winning goal was made by Raymond Miller. A return game has been arranged to take place as soon as the ice is in condition.

GOLF.

At a meeting of the East Jersey Golf League, held at Newark Friday evening, the resignations of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, of Plainfield, and the Madison Golf Club, were read and accepted. The Morristown Field Club was elected to membership.

ORGAN RECITAL.

Ward Stephens Gave Another Recital in Crescent Avenue Church.

Ward Stephens, organist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, gave the fourth of his series of organ recitals in that church Saturday evening. He was assisted by Miss Magdalena Perry, contralto of the church choir. An appreciative audience was present.

The programme printed in The Daily Press was followed with a few changes. The selections were well calculated to show Mr. Stephens' ability at the organ. Miss Perry sang in her usual good voice.

Working Overtime.

Seventy Men Blown Into Lake.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 4.—A sudden squall precipitated seventy men into the cold waters of Lake Hopatcong yesterday morning. The men were harvesting the ice when the squall struck them. Every man was finally rescued.

As it is the only combination of all the natural digestants ever devised the demand for it has become enormous. It has never failed to cure the very worst cases of indigestion and it always gives instant relief. L. W. Randolph.

ENGLAND'S GREAT LOSS.

Rev. Dr. Snodgrass Reviewed Life and Works of Queen Victoria in Sermon Last Evening.

A review of the life and works of England's departed queen formed the theme of Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass' address before a large attendance at the First M. E. church last evening. His text was "She hath done what she could."

He referred in many ways to her many good works and impartial government which won for her the respect and admiration, not only of her of her own people, but those of other nations as well. Her success as a ruler she always attributed to the teachings of the Bible and not to her own able judgment. The speaker dwelt in particular on the Queen's profound sympathy expressed at the time of the demise of Lincoln and Garfield and also her friendly relations with this country during several trying times.

In conclusion Mr. Snodgrass offered prayer for King Edward that he might follow the example set by his beloved mother and with the Bible as his guide make his reign as successful as was hers.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. E. A. Parse, of Grove street, goes to Knoxville, Tenn., tomorrow to spend the balance of the winter at the home of her brother, John H. Honeyman.

PREPARED TO SHOOT BURGLARS

FORMER JUDGE CODDINGTON CAME NEARLY INJURING TWO MEN.

They Were Leaving a Note for Fred Cutter in the Early Morning Hours —Judge's Gun Wouldn't Work.

Fortunately for two young men of this city, a gun which Former Judge William A. Coddington keeps handy for midnight prowlers happened to be unloaded this morning or the men in question might have been seriously, if not fatally injured. About 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Coddington was aroused by the barking of his dog He listened for a moment and unmistakably heard the sound of footsteps. On going to the window he perceived two shadowy forms in a crouching position at the front door of the residence of Fred Cutter, which adjoins Mr. Coddington's home.

Mr. Coddington concluded that burglars were at work. He prepared to fire at the intruders, but, as before stated, the weapon was unloaded and refused to shoot. He then hurried to the telephone and notified the police, but in the meantime the men had disappeared.

Later this morning an investigation on the part of the police revealed the fact that the supposed prowlers were friends of Mr. Cutter, who had an important letter which they wished him to have the first thing in the morning. They were in the act of forcing the missive under the door when Mr. Coddington first discovered them and took them for burglars. Of course the mistake is pardonable under the circumstances, but it came near being a costly one for the amateur letter carriers.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Schutt, of Bayonne, spent Sunday with Mrs. Edward Morse, of Jackson avenue.

Miss Helen Doyle, of Plainfield avenue, has just returned from Philadelphia, where she has been visiting friends for a few days and attending a wedding.

Mrs. Phebe Marsh, of 21 Manning avenue, mother of Mrs. J. K. Arnold, suffered a paralytic stroke one day last week. She is, however, resting comfortably.

Mrs. Lewis, wife of Dr. A. H. Lewis, has so far recovered from her serious illness, as to be able to stand the trip from Battle Creek, Mich., to her home in this city. She is expected to reach her home on Wednesday. She will be accompanied by Dr. Lewis.

Renewed Hope.

"Henrietta," said Mr. Meekton, "did you say you bought this necktie because you thought it suited me perfectly?"

"Yes."

TALKED ON TRUTH OF BIBLE.

INTERESTING ADDRESS AT Y. M. C. A HALL YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Rev. W. L. Jones Spoke on the Subject, "Is the Bible True" and Gave His Reasons for Believing It.

A good sized audience was in attendance at the meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon and listened to an excellent address by Rev. W. L. Jones, of this city. The speaker is not unfamiliar to Plainfield audiences having occupied the pulpits of several local churches at various times.

His topic was "Is the Bible True?" and he gave many convincing arguments in regard to the question which impressed his hearers with the true worth and greatness of the book. In the first place, he declared, its teachings are superhuman and could never be conceived by an ordinary mind. Another proof of its truthfulness is the creation of man. He declared the theory of evolution as advanced by Darwin to be utterly impossible. Various reasons were advanced by Mr. Jones all of which were very convincing.

Previous to the meeting and during the intermissions a male quartette composed of Messrs. Hummer, Runyon and Martin rendered several excellent vocal selections.

ENDEAVOR DAY.

Pleasing Service Was Held at the East Third Street Chapel Last Evening By Endeavorers.

"Endeavor Day" was appropriately celebrated by the Christian Endeavor Society of the East Third Street chapel last evening. Miss Florence Dodge, president of the society, was in charge and spoke concerning the work of the society. Miss Dodge was assisted by Miss Edna Post and U. B. Crane, who also spoke of the work. Miss Lillian Titus read a poem, and an appropriate song was rendered by the Misses Lillian Titus, Florence Perrine, Kate Britton, Kate Myers and Edna Post.

At the close Superintendent L. W. Randolph made an earnest appeal to the unconverted present, and the meeting closed with a concert reading of the Endevor pledge.

Two Good Sermons.

The sermon of Rev. A. E. Main yesterday morning in Dr. Schenck's pulpit on "The Bible School; Its Place and Work," was greatly enjoyed by the people of Trinity Reformed church. In the evening Rev. W. L. Jones, of Westervelt avenue, this city, delivered a good sermon on "Daniel's Deliverance," which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Did Good Work.

The service rendered by the borough snow plow was greatly appreciated by commuters and business men this morning, otherwise walking would have been very difficult and tedious.

NO NEW SALOONS INCLUDED IN APPLICATIONS FOR LICENSES.

Board of Health Wants More Money—Petition to Have Madison Avenue Widened—Special Policemen Appointed.

The February meeting of the Common Council was held last evening, and in view of the important business on hand there was a good-sized crowd in the lobby to watch the proceedings. There was the usual batch of appointments, the receipt of the usual number of applications for saloon and hotel licenses, and several other matters which engaged the attention of the members. All the members were present. George B. Wean was called upon to act as clerk pro tem in the absence of Clerk J. T. MacMurray.

During the first part of the meeting several communications were received and acted upon. Isaac W. Kennedy, sexton of the First M. E. church, asked for the job of taking care of the town clock this year He was informed that Moraller & Son have charge of the clock. Residents of Madison avenue petitioned for an electric light at the new bridge on the city side. This was referred, as was also the petition from the Board of Trade urging the Council to provide street signs for Plainfield. Clarence L Murphy, owner of a piece of property at 714 LaGrande avenue, stated that the taxes on his property for 1900 were paid, but that taxes for the years 1897, 1898 and 1899 had been assessed on his and adjoining property as one piece of property. He asked the Council to apportion the taxes justly so that the same can be paid.

A petition signed by Woodhull & Martin and others, asked the Council to widen Madison avenue, from Front street to the railroad bridge, and cited several good reasons why this should be done now. The petition also asked for the establishment of the building lines on Watchung, Park, Madison and Central avenues and Liberty street, so that if in the future these streets want to be widened there will be less difficulty. The matter was referred.

J. Wesley Johnson and others asked for an electric light on Park avenue, at the city limits. The bonds of Constables John Gjettiesen, Amos Moffett and Peter V. Weaver and Collector Frank H. Smith were reported correct and ordered filed, while the bond of Constable Frank R. Vanderhoff was referred to the Corporation Counsel for examination as to correctness.

At this time the applications for liquor licenses were received. There were the usual number, no new ones being made. Those who applied were: Michael Watson, Henry Windham, Henry Haurand, Joseph A. Blatz, John Rafferty, Charles Schantz, John H. Staats, Daniel Galbraith, Alex. D. Findlay, Frank Linke, Bernard Clark, Eastern Bottling Association, Hibbard & Jones and James J. Walshe, the latter being for the Plainfield Hotel. The applications were all referred to the license committee. They will be advertised the usual length of time, and will be acted upon at the adjourned meeting to be held Monday, February 18.

Immediately after the licenses were presented a communication was received from the Loyal Temperance Legion, asking the Council not to grant any liquor applications. This was referred to the license committee.

The twelfth annual report of the Board of Health was received and it showed that during 1900 there were 284 deaths in the city. With an estimated population of 16,000 this made the death rate 17¾ per thousand. There were 110 marriages and 330 births. Health Inspector Addis made 859 visits to houses and places of visits. The receipts were $1,626 86 and the expenditures the same. Five cases of violations were prosecuted and conviction was secured.

The report dwelt with the milk question and cited the recent outbreaks of disease attributed to milk. It cited the fact that through the generosity of a number of the Board, extra work was possible and additional safety assured. The Board stated that it would like to carry on a more aggressive work, but could not unless more money was appropriated for the purpose. A request was made that $3 000

THE PALISADE COMMISSION.

GOVERNOR VOORHEES SENT APPOINTMENTS TO THE SENATE.

Assemblyman Meeker Introduced Important Bill—Several Bills Passed by Assembly.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 5.—Assemblyman Meeker, of Union county, again attracted considerable attention when he introduced a bill at last evening's session of the State Legislature providing that all moneys received from the taxation of miscellaneous corporations be turned over to the State school fund. The bill promises to start considerable discussion.

Last evening's session o the Legislature saw more nominations received from Governor Voorhees, others approved by the Senate and a number of bills both passed and introduced. Chief among the appointments announced by the Governor were the names of the Commissioners of the Palisade and Interstate Park, five of whom were named by the Governor of New York and five by himself, the entire Board being confirmed by the Legislature of each State. The appointments are: George Walbridge Perkins, of New York, and Abram S. Hewitt, of Ringwood, N. J., each for five years; D. McNeiley Stauffer, of New York, and Edwin A. Stevens, of Hoboken, N. J., each for four years; S. Du Pratt White, of New York, and Franklin W. Hopkins, of Alpine, N. J., each for three years; Ralph Trautman, of New York, and William A. Linn, of Hackensack, N., each for two years, and Nathan F. Barrett, of New York, and Abram Deronde, of Englewood, N. J., each for one year.

Among the bills passed by the House were the following: Ceding to the United States Government lands in Athema, Passaic county, to be used as an animal quarantine station; making hazing at any school or college, where bodily injury is inflicted, a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $1 000 or imprisonment for one year; authorizing the appointment of four Commissioners by the Governor to the Pan-American Exposition, whose expenses shall be paid by the State.

ENDEAVOR DAY.

Special Services Held at Trinity Reformed Church By Endeavorers Last Evening.

Appropriate services for "Endeavor Day" were held by the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church last evening. Miss Nettie Beeching, of Watchung, was the speaker of the evening, and took for her topic the first eleven verses of the first chapter of Joshua. Miss Beeching is a very interesting speaker and expounded each verse so thoroughly that all present were much pleased with her talk.

She also spoke at some length on the coming evangelistic meetings, and said what a help the Christian Endeavor societies could be to the meetings by having a large number present at every meeting, filled with the spirit of God and ready for service.

Miss Mabel Templin, of North avenue, added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening by her vocal selection, "The Holy City." She was accompanied by Miss May Randolph.

Mrs. G. P. Saums, violin, Elmer Wheeler, flute, and Miss Randolph, piano, furnished very fine music for the singing of the Endeavor hymns. At the close of the meeting a collection was taken for the benefit of the Christian Endeavor building fund.

Horse Taken Ill While Working.

A valuable horse owned by William Hand & Son, of East Second street, was taken ill yesterday afternoon while Mr. Hand was delivering goods at Netherwood. Mr. Hand managed to get the horse as far as East Second street when it became helpless. A drag was procured and the horse placed upon it, and brought to the stable on Second street. Dr. Pocock was called and said the trouble was spinal disease. He did all he could, but in all probability Mr. Hand will lose the animal.

The Proper Style.

The pompadour style of hats seem to be in vogue again, judging from the variety that Bonn, the Front street milliner, is showing. Some are made of velvet, others of chiffon, trimmed with bright flowers and foliage. They are pretty and becoming to most women, and the proper style for present wear.

To Complete His Labors Here.

Rev. Floyd Appleton, curate at Grace P. E. church, expects to relinquish his duties in Plainfield on Thursday. In the meantime he will be a guest at several private dinners given by his friends.

FANWOOD WON FROM BUSINESS MEN'S TEAM

Exciting Basket Ball Game at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Played Last Evening.

SCORE WAS 17 TO 10.

RIVALRY WAS HIGH AND PLAYING WAS HARD AND FAST.

Visitors Finally Put up Old Time Game and Won the Match—Business Men Lead at End of First Half.

Another victory for the basket ball team of the Fanwood Athletic Club was the result of the second meeting between the Fanwood boys and the Business Men's team of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last evening. Although the Fanwood team won, it was not by a large margin and only after one of the hardest fought games that has been seen here for some time. The score was 17 to 10. The rivalry between the two teams was quite high and toward the close of the game the play began to grow decidedly rough.

When the game opened, the Business Men appeared to have the advantage. Their team play developed to a fair degree while the visitors were evidently not accustomed to the gymnasium and most of their efforts were devoted to defending their own goal Nevertheless it was Fanwood which made the first goal, Smith scoring on a long throw. Smith made another goal while the Business Men scored twice from the field and once on a foul. The play was hard but clean. The score at the end of the first half stood 5 to 4 in favor of the Business Men.

There was a decided change in the play when the second half began. The Fanwood boys showed that they had not forgotten their old game, and showed some very clever team work. Both sides had plenty of chances to score, but the throwing was by no means accurate. At the same, time the play began to grow fiercer and rougher. The Business Men kept up their game, but the visitors showed a marked improvement over their play of the first half.

The Business Men were the first to score in the second half but after that the Fanwood team took the lead and kept steadily advancing it until time was called. George P. Smith, captain of the Fanwood team, and Eric Moraller, of the Business Men, both former members of the famous old five of Plainfield, were constantly in scrimmages together and other of the players took a hand in the rough play. Fouls were repeatedly called, six on the Fanwood players and five on Plainfield, but it did not stop the roughness.

Despite the roughness which slightly marred the pleasure of the last half the game was an interesting one and the gallery full of spectators was properly enthusiastic. Another meeting of the two teams will be watched for with much interest.

The teams were as follows:

BUSINESS MEN'S TEAM.		FANWOOD A. C.
Petterson	right forward	Long
Marcley	centre	Smith
E. Moraller	right guard	M. Moraller

Score—Fanwood A. C., 17; Business Men's Team 10. Goals from the field—Diane, Marcley (2.) E. Moraller, Bonny, Long (2.) Smith (3.) M. Moraller, Kleb. Fouls—Fanwood A. C., 8. Business Men's Team, 4. Referee—C. E. A. Heywood of Plainfield. Umpires—Fred Cranston, of Plainfield; C. French, of Fanwood. Timekeeper H. Brokaw, of Plainfield. Scorer—G. C. M. Smith, of Plainfield.

TO INTRODUCE MRS. WILSON.

Charming Reception Given by Mrs. Geo. Kirkner Saturday Afternoon.

A reception was given by Mrs. George Kirkner, of Madison avenue, Saturday afternoon, to introduce Mrs. Theodore Wilson, of Netherwood, to a number of friends. The home was prettily decorated, the prevailing color being yellow. Mrs. Kirkner and Mrs. Wilson received and were assisted by Miss Arens, Mrs. James Hallock, Miss Crane and Mrs. John Drayton, of this city, and Mrs. Fred Fisk, of Jersey City. At the table Mrs. Frank Coster, of New York, presided, pouring chocolate and tea.

The affair was largely attended and greatly enjoyed by everyone. There was a sociability evidenced that was delightful and Mrs. Wilson was most cordially received by those invited to meet her.

TELLS OF LIFE IN TEXAS.

FRED WRAGE JUST RETURNED FROM SCENE OF GALVESTON DISASTER.

Says People Have Not Yet Recovered From the Shock and That City Lacks Ambition to Rebuild.

Fred Wrage, of Flemington, who is visiting in Plainfield for a time, has just returned from Texas, where he has been since a month after the terrible disaster that visited that State some months ago. He had the typhoid fever while in Texas, and after recovery he thought it wise to come north to escape further illness, owing to the prevalence of many diseases there.

Mr. Wrage tells some interesting things concerning Texas and its condition. He says that there is plenty of work there, wages are high, but there seems to be a general lack of ambition and purpose in rebuilding the devasted portions of the State, especially about Galveston. The work of erecting cottages for the sufferers continues steadily, but as far as the building up of business sections is concerned the work does not progress rapidly.

Even at present bodies of people as well as horses and animals of all kinds, are being found every day. Mr. Wrage says that the people of Texas have strong courage and want to rebuild the wrecked portions, but the terrible effects of the cyclone still cling to them and they seem unable to get away from them. He says that no one will ever know nor even have any idea how many people were killed in that awful storm. The survivors deeply appreciate all that the people throughout the world have done for them, thus helping them to get a new start.

There is very little change even today in the general appearance of the wrecked portions, although the work of clearing up and rebuilding progresses. Mr. Wrage believes that it will require a very long time to get the State in its former condition. Now that there is so much disease throughout the State the people are greatly handicapped in their work.

CREMATION IN CHURCH.

Last Note of Indebtedness of Bound Brook M. E. Church Burned Publicly Last Night.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Feb. 5.—The congregation of the Methodist Episcopal church of this place held a novel service last evening to celebrate the clearing off of the balance of the debt of the church.

The feature of the service was the cremation by the pastor, Rev. F. Leonard Bounds of a cancelled note of $300, the last indebtedness of the church. While this was taking place the members joined heartily in singing "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow." Impromptu speeches were made by a number of those present and refreshments were served.

The church has been financially embarrassed for some time owing to a split in its membership, the wealthier element leaving. The faithful ones have been untiring in their efforts to clear off the debt and lately with the aid of two well to do friends they have succeeded in attaining their object.

Handsome Case of Insects.

Henry Rummel, of Park place, North Plainfield, who is an adept at catching and mounting all kinds of bugs and beetles, has presented the North Plainfield High School with a fine collection of the insects. They are artistically arranged on a card inside a wooden frame The collection hangs in the office of H. J. Wightman, superintendent of the North Plainfield public schools.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING OF FIREMEN'S FAIR.

Fair of North Plainfield Fire Department Began in Saengerbund Hall Last Night.

FIREMEN'S NIGHT TONIGHT.

BIG DELEGATIONS OF VISITING FIREMEN ARE EXPECTED.

Hall is Prettily Arranged With Booths at the Sides—Different Entertainment Every Evening—Those in Charge.

After weeks of preparation on the part of the fire laddies and their friends, the fair and entertainment arranged by the members of the North Plainfield fire department began in Saengerbund Hall last evening. If attendance counts for anything, then the success of the affair is already assured, as the number present last night was far beyond that expected. But the firemen are deserving of the patronage and are confident of a still greater attendance for the remainder of the week.

The hall has been decorated in a very tasteful manner, with greens and broad streamers of bunting predominating. Several fancy booths, also gayly decorated, are placed at various parts of the hall, each one presided over by an efficient corps of workers always on the alert to attend to the wants of the prospective purchaser. The articles for sale are mostly of the fancy variety, but many are also useful and will make pretty souvenirs of the occasion.

The largest booth is in charge of Mrs. William Bamberger, Mrs. George Kesselring, Mrs George H. Fairchild and Mrs Robert M. Clark. A grocery department, containing stock enough for a small sized store, is presided over by Miss Feiring, Miss Beglin and Miss Klinsman. A candy booth, whereon a most tempting assortment of sweetmeats is displayed, is in charge of Miss Koller, Miss Squires and Miss Stram. Refreshments are furnished by a committee consisting of Mrs. Thomas McGann, Mrs. William Debele, Mrs. Robert M. Clark and Miss Feiring, while the soft drinks are served by William Ricketts and William Pasch. A baby rack is in charge of Edward Smith, and downstairs the bowling alleys are kept in constant use under the supervision of H. G. Adams, Robert M. Clark and Rudolph Speigel.

In addition to the dancing the firemen have provided an excellent entertainment to be varied each evening. The programme last evening consisted of a laughable sketch entitled "The Village Postmaster," by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hammil and several pleasing vocal selections by Robert M. Clark.

To increase the spirit of good natured rivalry among individuals, departments and organizations, a number of voting contests have been started, to the winners of which handsome prizes will be given. Some of these are as follows: For the most popular foreman of either of the North Plainfield companies, a foreman's lantern; for the most prominent organization in the city or borough, a handsome silk flag; for the company having the largest number of members "Firemen's Night," an ivory and ebony gavel in a neat case. There are also a number of book contentests, some of the prizes being a rubber-tired road wagon, a kit of machinist's tools and a bronze tapper to be placed in a firemen's home.

This evening will be "Firemen's Night" and an unusually large crowd is expected. A delegation will be present from New Brunswick, accompanied by a band, a company from Somerville with a drum corps and delegations from the Bound Brook and Dunellen departments and the Elizabeth exempts including Captain Nat Astfalk. Other companies have also promised to send as many representatives as possible in order to compete for the prize gavel.

The entire proceeds of the affair will be used toward meeting the expenses of a parade to be given next fall which will eclipse any previous demonstration of a like kind yet seen in the borough. The committee in charge of the fair and who are devoting every effort to make it an overwhelming success consists of the following: Frank Kesselring, chairman; George H. Fairchild, treasurer; L. B. Bodine, secretary; W. J. Ricketts, W. W. Mills, John Schenck, Frank Gunning, R. M. Clark, W. Pasch, R. Peterson and Charles Stahl.

WAR AGAINST IMPURE MILK.

BOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH WILL ACT ON ANY NEW CASES.

Decided Not to Prosecute Dealers on Present Evidence—New Health Code Goes Into Effect Soon.

While the Borough Board of Health has decided not to take any immediate action on the alleged violations of the health code by milk dealers in North Plainfield, the Board is not going to let the matter drop. The subject came up for a long and earnest discussion at a meeting of the Board last evening. The members decided in favor of not starting any prosecutions at present. They were all in favor, however, of keeping a careful watch on the borough dealers, and, in case any further violations are discovered, they will make an example of the first offender found.

Recent tests made under the direction of the Board have brought to light facts which are not at all pleasing. Certain dealers are known to have put chemicals in the milk they sold to preserve it. Others have removed part of the cream and sold the remainder as fresh milk. Evidences of the use of water in the milk have been discovered.

One local dealer stated to the Board that there were a number of cases of tuberculosis among the cattle belonging to dealers who have routes in the borough. Most of the cases, he said, were not under the charge of a veterinary.

Any milk, which is suspected of being impure, will be gladly tested by the Board without cost.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the revision of the health code had been properly advertised and would go into effect in a few days.

ARRAIGNED ENGLAND.

Anti-Imperialist Views Expressed By Prof. Wheeler Before Monday Afternoon Club.

Professor A. M. Wheeler, of Yale University, lectured before the Monday Afternoon Club in the Casino yesterday afternoon on the subject "Some Features of British Rule in India." In his opening remarks Professor Wheeler declared himself to be an anti imperialist. He denounced the rule of England in India, calling it a military despotism, the power being merged entirely on the Secretary of State, resident in England, and the English Viceroy, residing in India.

An astounding array of figures was presented to show how the taxation of India had paid expenses for the English government, in which India had no share or interest. Prof. Wheeler considered that England was under greater obligations to India than India was to England for benefits received.

The lecture was regarded with widely divergent opinions by the audience.

WANT TO ABOLISH ALL SCHOOL TICKETS.

Trolley Company Proposes New Plan to Board of Education—Will be Considered.

THREE CENT FARE PROPOSED

SCHOOL CHILDREN COULD SECURE THAT RATE BY SHOWING CARD.

Assistant Superintendent Husbands Appeared Before Board—Lawyer Angleman Tried to Reinstate Colored Boy Who Had Been Dismissed.

Beyond the discussion of a new system in regard to the use of school tickets on the lines of the local street railway, no other business of importance was transacted at the February meeting of the Board of Education held last evening. All the members were present and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved, the usual number of bills were ordered paid.

The tax collector's report for the month of January showed a total of $1,856 01 had been received, which, with interest, amounted to $1,987 82. According to the report of the medical inspectors, 90 pupils have been examined during the past month with respect to their general health. Superintendent Maxson reported the receipt of $415 tuition fees for the winter term The custodian of school moneys' report was read and showed the receipts to be $23,778 85 and the disbursements $6,778 19, leaving a balance on hand of $17,000 66, which has been deposited to the credit of the Board. Upon request of George W. Sandford, teacher of stenography and typewriting in the High School, two typewriters with the necessary tables and chairs were ordered purchased, the cost of same to be paid out of next year's appropriation. Mr. Sandford has a class of thirty-five and but four machines which number has been found inadequate.

For the past three months a system of physical training has been in vogue at the Whittier School at a very small cost. The results in regard to the development of the pupils have been so gratifying that Mr. Maxson recommended its continuance for the rest of the year. The request was granted.

Assistant Superintendent Husbands, of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway, then appeared before the Board, and, in behalf of the company officials, requested that a change be made in the rule now governing the carrying of school children on the company's lines. School children have heretofore used a 3 cent ticket purchased at the company's local office, but facts have recently come to light which prove beyond a doubt that this system has been subjected to great abuse. Persons attending no school whatever have been in the habit of using these tickets and the conductors have been unable to detect the cheat. Mr. Husbands requested that the Board sanction a system now in use on lines of the North Jersey Street Railway which abolishes the 3 cent ticket altogether. The pupils simply carry an identification card, procured of the school principal, which is shown to the conductor when riding, accompanied with 3 cents, thus minimizing the chances for fraud on the part of non-pupils.

The members of the Board were of the opinion that the pupils would have considerable difficulty in carrying such a card, and, before definite action was taken in the matter, decided to communicate with the school officials in other cities, where the system is in vogue, in regard to its success. Mr. Husband agreed to furnish a list of the cities so that the matter might be settled at the next meeting.

Lawyer Winfield S Angleman also appeared before the Board in behalf of John Cox, colored, whose ten year old son, William, had been peremptorily dismissed from the Lincoln school on an alleged charge of stealing, from evidence furnished by other pupils. Mr. Angleman had investigated the matter and was of the opinion that the boy was entirely innocent of the charges made against him and said he had sought in vain to secure an audience with the proper officials in order to have him reinstated. He was confident the boy could clear himself if only given the opportunity which he declared had so far been impossible. The matter was referred to Superintendent Maxson for settlement.

President Probasco announced that the various committees of the Board would remain the same as last year, after which the meeting adjourned.

The committees appointed were as follows: Teachers and text books, Probasco, Richards, Abbott; books stationery and supplies, Richards, Lounsbury, Probasco; buildings and repairs, Lounsbury Probasco, Lovell; fuel, Abbott, Lovell Richards; finance, Lovell, Abbott, Lounsbury.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"The Game Keeper," a new romantic Irish comedy drama, which won immediate triumph on its first production, will be at Music Hall tomorrow night. A happy inspiration was manifested in the choosing of the title "The Game Keeper." It prepares the audience for an atmosphere at once new, strange and fascinating. No country in the world possesses so many elements of dramatic interest as dear old Ireland, where the line between rich and poor, aristocrat and pauper is more sharply drawn than anywhere else on earth. Derry Dollan, the Game Keeper, is the leading role of this play, and is in the hands of America's favorite singing and dancing comedian, Smith O'Brien, who for seven years starred in W. H. Power's successful play "The Ivy Leaf." Both plays are from the pen of Con T. Murphy.

Denman Thompson will be "Uncle Josh" in the forthcoming production of "The Old Homestead" at Music Hall Saturday night. "The Old Homestead" still exerts its old charm over the people, for they wish to see it again and again, and the more they see it the better they like it. One cannot define its worth better than to say, "the art of natural acting is so well exemplified in it as to completely submerge the theatre, and the audience seems to be with 'Uncle Josh' on the old New Hampshire farm; they go with him to New York in search of his son, and back with him to enjoy the prodigal's return. It is a human story, without the mystification of a complicated plot to to bewilder over, or having every commandment broken and trampled on. It betters all who witness it, as it teaches mercy and forgiveness, and there is not too much of either in the world.

* * * * * * *

"A Lion's Heart," the great scenic melodrama of the season, will be produced at Music Hall on Monday of next week in all of its captivating completeness and on a scale of magnitude superior to any other melodrama that has been seen for years. The play deals with an intensely thrilling story of the conflict between villany and virtue. The audience never takes its attention from the stage and at times is held spellbound. There is an ample amount of comedy running through the several scenes which brightens the more emotional parts. Carl A. Haswin as "Pierre Rizardo," has a part that fits him well.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. The World Almanac.

The World Almanac, the finest compendium published of records, statistics, historical and other data, and other useful information, has been issued for 1901. The Almanac is for sale by all newsdealers and should find a place upon the desk or library shelves of every business man It gives in easily accessible form just what is needed in this, the "encyclopedic age." It has been truthfully said that "it is not so much to know a thing as to know where that thing may be learned," and in nearly every case, it will be found right in the World Almanac.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours, G. H. KENYON.

FOR GOOD ROADS.

Bills Before the New York Legislature to Improve Highways.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Asembly Benjamin A. Babcock of St. Lawrence has introduced two good roads bills. One provides for the submission of a proposition to the people of the state for the issue of bonds not to exceed $50,000,000 for the construction and improvement of highways within the state. The proposition is to be submitted at the general election to be held in November, 1901.

If the proposition be adopted by a majority of the votes cast, the comptroller is directed to issue such bonds which shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed 4 per cent per annum and payable semi-annually in the city of New York. Such bonds shall be issued for a period not exceeding 50 years and shall be sold for not less than par. Any premium arising from such sale shall be applied to a sinking fund. They shall be so issued that not more than $1,000,000 of the principal thereof shall be due in any one year.

The other is an act to abolish the labor system of taxation for highway purposes and substitute in lieu of such taxation the money system in each of the several towns of the state. Immediately after the act shall take effect each town shall be divided into not less than three road districts by the commissioner of highways of such towns. The board of supervisors of each county is directed to levy a tax of $1 on each person liable to a poll tax for road improvement purposes. The act is not to apply, however, to assessments made for damages or charges for altering any road for bridge repairs.

New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, Feb. 5.—Among the bills introduced in the senate yesterday were these: By Mr. Hutchinsin, permitting the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New Jersey to organize a mutual fire insurance company for the purpose of insuring its own property; by Mr. Francis, providing that the present exemption from execution of $200 worth of property of a debtor shall not apply in the case of judgment obtained for a debt for the necessaries of life. The house at night passed these house bills: Making salaries of district court judges of Bayonne, New Brunswick and Perth Amboy $1,200 a year; legitimizing children born out of wedlock when the parents afterward marry; ceding land in Passaic county to the United States government for an animal quarantine station; providing a penalty of one year's imprisonment or $1,000 fine, or both, for hazing whereby bodily injury is inflicted. The house also passed a bill providing for four commissioners from New Jersey to the Pan-American exposition and providing for the payment of their expenses.

Prizefight Plans Go On.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—Notwithstanding the action of Governor Nash there has been no suspension of preparations here of the Jeffries-Ruhlin contest scheduled for Feb. 15. The work has been proceeding at the big hall as heretofore. The sale of tickets went on the same as last week. The programme was carried out as usual at the training quarters of Jeffries, Ruhlin, Martin and Childs. The Sangerfest Athletic club and its attorneys after repeated conferences insisted that they will carry out their programme unless a permanent injunction shall be issued by the courts. Arguments will be heard on the petition for an injunction today. The statements are repeatedly made by directors of the Sangerfest Athletic association that the fight would not be declared off until they shall have exhausted all efforts in the courts, even to the court of last resort. The promoters of the event insist that they will give a sparring exhibition and come within the provisions of the Ohio statutes for boxing contests.

Army Promotions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Secretary Root announces that the nominations of general officers authorized by the new army law will be sent to the senate today. The nominations, he said, include a lieutenant general, three major generals and ten brigadier generals. In military circles it is believed that General Miles will be made lieutenant general, but there is considerable uncertainty with regard to the other general officers. Generals Wade, Merriam and Young are the three ranking brigadiers in the present regular establishment in the order named, with General MacArthur No. 4 and General Ludlow No. 5. General Chaffee stands No. 7 in the list of colonels of cavalry, and General Wood is No. 60 in the list of captains of relative rank. All these officers have been mentioned as possible major generals, and the three successful ones are undoubtedly among the number. If General Miles is promoted, it will leave a vacancy in the list of major generals yet to be filled.

Nails Go Up.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 5.—The cut nail pool announces an increase in prices of 5 cents a keg to go into effect at once. Cut or old style iron nails have been selling for six months at $1.95 a keg in carload lots to jobbers. The new price advances the quotation to $2 a keg. In less than carload lots the price is $2.05 and to retailers $2.15 a keg. The increased cost of cut nails is due to the advance in wire products made last week by the American Steel and Wire company.

Dr. Rodermund Released.

FIRST JOINT MEETING

Foreign Envoys Confer With Chinese Today.

ABSOLUTE SECRECY IS ENJOINED

Only Twelve Persons Listed For Punishment—About Half of These Will Be Executed or Asked to Execute Themselves.

PEKING, Feb. 5.—Today will be held the first joint meeting between the foreign envoys and the Chinese plenipotentiaries. Only Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching have plenipotentiary rights. The other Chinese have merely the status of advisers.

All the envoys have agreed to maintain absolute secrecy and will endeavor to impress the Chinese with the importance of similar reserve, but as a matter of fact there are many Chinese who already know exactly the programme of the meeting.

All rumors and reports that large numbers have been listed for punishment are without foundation, as only 12 provincial authorities have been named. These the Chinese will be requested to punish commensurately with their misdeeds. There is a private understanding that at least half of them will be executed or requested to commit suicide, while the others must be banished or imprisoned.

The real subject liable to cause delay is the punishment of the officials of Peking and the province of Chi-li, regarding which the envoys have not yet reached an agreement. There is little doubt that the Chinese plenipotentiaries will agree so far as the provincials are concerned, although there may possibly be a few days' delay while the plenipotentiaries are conferring with the court.

Without doubt Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching have been ordered to protest to the uttermost against the execution of Prince Tuan or any prince of the blood royal. This is a source of disagreement among the envoys, many of whom feel that if Prince Tuan goes unpunished all others ought to go free. The Chinese plenipotentiaries profess not to be able to understand how Prince Tuan can be punished while his son is the heir apparent.

British and American telegraph linemen report having seen what they believed to have been a number of armed Chinese, at least 2,000, at dusk Sunday between Tung-chow and Ma-tow. The military authorities think, however, that the soldiers in question were a body of German troops. The matter will be investigated.

The Rev. W. S. Ament, one of the missionaries of the American Board of Foreign Missions, was recently arrested with two British subjects by German and French troops near Tung-chow. He was charged with endeavoring to extort money from the Chinese villagers. The British subjects were released, but Mr. Ament was held. He says he was merely trying to settle the affairs of the church there, and he has applied to Mr. Conger to request General Chaffee to send cavalry to release him. The matter has been referred to Count von Waldersee.

Private Hamilton of the Sixth United States cavalry, who was tried by court martial for killing Corporal Cooper, has been sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

The Hague Wedding.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 5.—Numerous royal personages are arriving at The Hague to attend the wedding of Queen Wilhelmina and Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. Her majesty, attended by the queen mother and Duke Henry, met Grand Duke Vladimir of Russia, his daughter, Grand Duchess Helene, and his son, Grand Duke Boris, at the railway station yesterday afternoon. Queen Wilhelmina was warmly cheered as she drove through the streets. Others who arrived were Princess Louise of Wied, the hereditary Prince and Princess of Wied and the Prince and Princess of Benthiem-Steinfurt. Queen Wilhelmina and Duke Henry have received the Roumanian grand cross of the Order of the Star and Duke Henry the Swedish Seraphim order.

Coffin Ready For Twenty Years.

NYACK, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Twenty years ago Michael Walsh, a well known schoolmaster in Piermont, a bachelor and a very eccentric man, purchased his coffin and tombstone and ever since had them in his apartments, where he lived alone. Sunday night he died at the age of 78 years, and he will be buried in the coffin which he selected a score of years ago and have the tombstone placed at his grave.

Russians Welcome Escaped Boers.

SEBASTOPOL, Feb. 5.—Dispatches received here say that the four Boers who escaped from a British ship at Colombo, Ceylon, sought refuge on board the Russian vessel Kherson, whose passengers received them enthusiastically. The return movement of Russian soldiers from China continues steadily. Sixty-five officers and 2,800 men arrived on the Theodosia yesterday.

Syndicate Wants Waterworks.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Feb. 5.—A New York syndicate represented by C. F. Street has offered $300,000 for the Oswego waterworks plant. The syndicate proposes to install a system by means of which water is to be obtained from Lake Ontario. The syndicate already controls the electric power and lighting of the city.

Storm In West of England.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A snowstorm in the west of England has seriously interfered with telegraphic communication between London and the United States. From five to nine land lines are down, and the railways are working with the utmost difficulty.

Record Broken In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The volume of business before the present congress was shown when the total of house bills introduced reached 14,033, which is the highest record ever attained for an entire congress.

To Sink Gas and Oil Wells.

ALBION, N. Y., Feb. 5.—A company is organizing, headed by ex-Comptroller Roberts, to sink a test gas and oil well here. Similar wells are to be put down at 24 other points.

Piano Works Burned.

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., Feb. 5.—The Stanley piano works have been destroyed by fire; loss, $18,000, partially insured.

SUBSIDY BILL SURE.

Senators Confident of Its Early Passage.

ARMY APPROPRIATION $118,000,000.

A Reduction of $12,000,000 From Department Estimates—The Sundry Civil Bill Nearly Completed—It Calls For Nearly $60,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The ship subsidy bill was laid aside informally by the senate yesterday to permit the consideration of the appropriation bills. This action was taken late in the day on Mr. Allison's request that the District of Columbia appropriation bill be taken up. Mr. Frye, in charge of the shipping bill, who had said he would not give way to appropriation bills without a vote of the senate, was not in the chamber at the time, but Mr. Aldrich, Mr. Hanna and others interested in the measure were present and joined in the general assent given to Mr. Allison's request. The shipping bill holds its place and as the unfinished business can be taken up when the appropriation bills are not occupying attention. The District of Columbia bill will occupy the attention of the senate today.

The subsidy bill did not receive attention, the greater part of the time of the senate being given to listening to a speech by Mr. Bacon of Georgia on the right of the senate to demand information on file in the executive departments.

Senators in charge of the ship subsidy bill gave notice that beginning tomorrow they would seek to have the senate sit regularly at night to consider the measure. The postponement until tomorrow is due to the absence from the city of some of the friends of the bill and to the fact that others had social engagements for last night and tonight.

The present plan is to have the senate take a recess each evening at 6 o'clock until 8 and then to sit until 11 o'clock, the night sessions to be devoted to the shipping bill.

When asked how long this programme is to be followed, they reply, "Until the bill is passed."

They profess confidence in their ability to get the bill through, and the leaders have been engaged in rallying their forces and in making sure of the attendance of a quorum.

"The bill will go through," said Senator Aldrich. "I have never known a filibuster to prevail against a bill which was supported by a majority of the senate."

He expressed the opinion that it would not be difficult to maintain a quorum for the night sessions.

The army appropriation bill making provision for the army under the plan of reorganization recently enacted was completed yesterday by the house committee on military affairs and reported by Chairman Hull. It carries approximately $118,000,000 as against estimates of about $130,000,000 made by war department officials. The total of army appropriations, general and deficiency, last year aggregated $119,000,000. Chairman Hull says the present bill will be ample and will not entail a deficiency measure later.

The sundry civil appropriation bill, one of the most important and most general supply bills of the government, was completed by the house committee on appropriations. The bill appropriates $59,703,084, which is $10,889,197 less than the estimates and $5,748,221 less than the bill for the current fiscal year. The items for river and harbor work now in progress under contract aggregate $6,840,623, or about half the amount appropriated last year. The debt of Hawaii assumed on the annexation of the islands is provided for, amounting to $3,447,535. For public buildings now in course of construction in various cities $6,746,625 is appropriated.

Agreement Not In Sight.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 5.—At the end of the third day's session of the scale committee of the joint interstate coal conference it can be said that miners and operators are no nearer an agreement than when the conference first met. The Illinois operators have broken over the traces again and voted with the miners on another proposition and are now in line with them on the demands for a run of mine scale and a uniform day wage in the mines of Jackson county, O. The committee went into session at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and resumed the discussion of uniform day wage for all outside employees. On the vote the miners were for and the operators were against the demand. It was the same with the demands for an advance of 30 per cent for underground employees, for eight hours to constitute a day's work, the time employed going into and coming out of the mine to be included; for the check off by the operators of all dues and that narrow work be paid for the same as entry work. The ninth proposition, that the same day wage scale prevail in Jackson county, O., as in other states, provoked long discussion. The operators insist that the question is a local one in that the district and the joint conference has nothing to do with it.

Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Secretary Gage has notified Chairman Tawney of the house special committee on the Louisiana Purchase exposition that he has examined the certificates of subscription, amounting to $5,000,000, raised by citizens of St. Louis and the ordinance authorizing the issue of $5,000,000 of bonds and is satisfied the city of St. Louis has complied with the requirements of the resolution of congress that she raise $10,000,000 before the government subscribes $5,000,000 in aid of the exposition to be held there in 1903. Chairman Tawney has called a special meeting of the committee for action on the bill carrying the appropriation of $5,000,000, and it will probably be reported to the house at once.

Copper Found In Chautauqua County

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 5.—It is said a rich vein of copper ore 20 feet thick has been discovered while digging for oil in Busti, the township adjoining Jamestown on the south and west. Leases have been taken on much of the land in the vicinity, and considerable excitement prevails.

Three Pairs In Four Years.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Feb. 5.—Twins born to George Rector, a farmer near town, were the third pair since his marriage, four years and four months ago. The first died in infancy, and the second ones are fine babies 16 months old.

ANOTHER BIG COMBINATION.

Makers of Bicycle and Automobile Parts Form a Trust.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5.—Cleveland men formerly conspicuous in the manufacture of bicycle parts and accessories have organized the Automobile and Cycle Parts company, with an authorized capital stock of $5,000,000, and purchased from the American Bicycle company the following properties: The saddle factory at Elyria, O., formerly operated by the Garfield Manufacturing company, the saddle factory at Westboro, Mass., formerly operated by the Hunt Manufacturing company, the steel stamping factory at Milwaukee formerly operated by C. J. Smith & Sons, the steel stamping factory at Chicago formerly operated by the George L. Thompson company, the chain factory at Indianapolis formerly operated by the Indianapolis Chain and Stamping company, the ball factory at Cleveland formerly operated by the Cleveland Machine Screw company, the pedal factory at Cleveland formerly operated by the White Sewing Machine company and the sheet steel factory at Chicago formerly operated by Hart & Cooley.

The business of each factory is taken over from Jan. 1, 1901. The officers of the new company elected yesterday are as follows: President, A. L. Garford, Elyria, O.; vice president, M. B. Johnson, Cleveland; treasurer, F. N. Smith, Elyria, O.; secretary, F. E. Little, Cleveland. Mr. Johnson was also chosen to act as chairman of the executive board.

The eight properties acquired by the new company are and always have been the larger of the cycle parts making industry. The new company will have its headquarters in the American Trust building, Cleveland.

Venezuelan Revolutionist Here.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—When the steamer Philadelphia reached the foot of Montague street, Brooklyn, yesterday, there were several friends of General Uribe awaiting the revolutionist's arrival. One of them, A. Diaz Guerra, said that the general did not wish to speak of his visit to this city, and after the party had their baggage examined the general, with Mr. Guerra and several friends, went to Mr. Guerra's office, 15 Whitehall street. The general refused to speak to the reporters who greeted him and busied himself in reading a large quantity of mail matter which awaited him at Mr. Guerra's office. He also sent a couple of cablegrams, after which he went up town to the Savoy hotel, where he will stop during his stay in this city. Mr. Ambrose Howard Carner, the managing director of the New York and Bermudez company, said that he came to the city on business pertaining to that company, but further than this he would not talk. Mr. Carner is stopping at the Hotel Manhattan.

Fire In Crowded School.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Fire broke out in Public School No. 83, a grammar and primary school for boys, in One Hundred and Eleventh street, between Second and Third avenues, at 12:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the 2,500 pupils were about to be dismissed. Abut 100 boys were marched out of the building in good order after the discovery of the fire, but their cries after they reached the street and saw the cause of their sudden dismissal started what threatened to be a serious panic inside the building. There was a wild rush for the doors, and the efforts of the teachers to force the pupils back into marching order were unavailing at first. The last of the pupils marched down through smoke filled halls, and they were out of the building none too soon. The building was badly damaged.

Deadlock Continues.

HAVANA, Feb. 5.—The Cuban constitutional convention held its first meeting yesterday afternoon since the deadlock occurred Thursday last over what is known as the "Gomez clause" in the twelfth section of the constitution, which provides that naturalized citizens shall be eligible to the presidency of the republic if they have served ten years in the war. A poll of the house before the meeting showed that none of the delegates had changed his opinion, but that the anti-Gomez faction was short one man.

Boers Being Hustled.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—General Kitchener, in a dispatch from Pretoria, dated Feb. 3, says: "French's column, in driving the Boers east, captured a 15 pounder and picked up parts of a second gun disabled by our fire. The commandos in the colony are being hustled. The midland commando is being chased by Haig in the direction of Steytlerville. Sixteen of them have recently been killed by our men."

Denver Bonds Illegal.

DENVER, Feb. 5.—In the United States district court yesterday Judge Riner handed down a decision declaring the $4,700,000 water bond issue voted by the city two years ago to be illegal. The decision was given in the suit brought by Mrs. Fannie Josephine Grant against the city of Denver to enjoin the issuance of the bonds, and an injunction was granted.

Heavy Snow In Western New York.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 5.—This city lies buried in 11 inches of snow as a result of the storm which has continued almost unremittingly for 24 hours. Owing to light winds drifting has been light, and steam and electric cars are but little delayed.

More British Troops Needed.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The Pretoria correspondent of The Times estimates that there are 19,000 Boers still on commando and says that more British troops are required.

MRS. NATION DEFEATED.

Attempt to Wreck Topeka Saloons Ends In Arrest.

TOPEKA, Feb. 5.—Mrs. Nation yesterday afternoon met the first defeat in her saloon smashing career. Later at the police station she laughingly declared that it was by no means her Waterloo and she would soon again be at her chosen work. With six women, each armed with new hatchets, she had started out at 3 o'clock to wreck a restaurant in East Sixth street that also dispensed liquors. Before she could wield her hatchet she was disarmed, and a free for all struggle between restaurant people and wreckers was begun. The greatest excitement prevailed for a time, during which numerous eyes were blackened and many noses bled. Mrs. Nation, herself unable to accomplish anything, shouted orders to her followers to reopen the onslaught, but the hatchet brigade had been stampeded, and not another hand was raised against the obnoxious restaurant. Mrs. Nation was led away to the station on a charge of disturbing the peace and was followed by a jeering crowd.

At the police station Mrs. Nation was formally charged with disturbing the peace, and her name was entered on the docket. The police judge was at the station. Mrs. Nation refused to go to his room to see him regarding her offense, but insisted that he come to her, which he did. Mrs. Nation was informed that she would have to report for trial at the police court this morning and was then released on her own recognizance. She said she would be glad to do so and then proceeded to hold an impromptu prayer meeting in the police station. She prayed that the work that she had begun in Topeka might be abundantly prospered. While she was praying a drunken man was brought in by a policeman. Mrs. Nation immediately went to the prisoner and informed him that she was his friend at all times, even though the policemen were not. She then delivered a scathing address to members of the police force present. She said they would permit the "joints" to run in open violation of law all the while and would then arrest the men who were made drunk by the liquor sold there. Mrs. Nation taunted the police, calling them cowards, afraid to arrest anybody but women and drunken men.

Followed by the crowd, Mrs. Nation went to the federal building, where she inquired for her mail. She then mounted the steps of the building and made an address to the crowd. She said she would smash all the "joints" of the city and she would stay here long enough to accomplish this purpose if it took months. She was not afraid, she said, as she had no reason in the world to be. There were many women in the city who would help her, and they would do so at the proper time. She had not intended to begin the "joint" raids until today. While she and other women were in a store buying the hatchets which were to be used in the raid a woman came in who said her son had spent all of his money in Murphy's place the night before. "Well, let's go and smash it right now," said Mrs. Nation, and the other women agreed. Some interesting developments are looked for.

Governor Yates Says "No Fight."

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Feb. 5.—Governor Yates has set the seal of his disapproval on prizefighting and has decreed that this pastime shall not be indulged in within the boundaries of the state of Illinois while he presides at the head of the executive department unless fights shall take place without his knowledge. His decision and his emphatic position on the subject were brought out on receipt of the announcement that a prizefight was scheduled to be held at Belvidere last night. He at once telegraphed the sheriff of Boone county to prevent the fight and that if he needed any assistance a company of militia would be sent to Belvidere subject to his orders. The sheriff replied that he had sworn in 100 special deputies and believed he could handle the situation. The governor made it emphatic to the sheriff that the fight must not take place.

Governor Allen Receives.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 5.—Governor Allen yesterday gave a reception in honor of the American tourists who arrived here from Santo Domingo on the Hamburg-American cruising yacht Prinzessin Victoria Luise. Some 200 persons attended the reception, where the guests were welcomed by Governor Allen, Lieutenant G. W. Logan, the governor's aid, and Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Logan. The band of the Mayflower rendered musical selections. Today Governor Allen will go on the Mayflower for a week's sail among the neighboring islands, Guadelope, Martinique and others, recuperating from his arduous labors during the legislative session.

Fierce Fight With Indians.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 5.—Merida advices show that on Thursday last a battle was fought between Maya rebel Indians and government troops 25 miles from rebel headquarters. Eight hundred Indians armed with muskets attacked the Sixth battalion, which held its ground, though outnumbered, and inflicted a heavy loss on the enemy, who had 50 killed and about 100 wounded. The federal troops lost four men. The Tenth battalion has gone forward to re-enforce outposts.

Wisconsin In Commission.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—The battleship Wisconsin, which was constructed at the Union Iron works, was formally placed in commission yesterday, Captain Reider taking command. The usual ceremonies were observed. About 300 marines were placed on the Wisconsin, and within the next two weeks she will leave for her first cruise under the flag, her destination being the Mexican coast, where she will engage in drill and target practice.

Mexican Contract Comes Our Way.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 5.—A contract for eight steel bridges on the National Tehuantepec railway has been given to an American firm of this city. The same firm has been awarded a contract for a railway bridge in Costa Rica. American bridges are preferred on account of their quality and the rapidity with which orders can be filled.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The worst snowstorm of the season is raging here. Nearly a foot of snow has fallen, delaying passenger trains and causing the abandonment of freight trains.

Big Storm In the Mohawk Valley.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The biggest snowstorm of the season is raging here, and all trains are delayed from four to five hours.

THE QUEEN'S BURIAL

Body Placed In Mausoleum at Frogmore.

FINAL SERVICE AT WINDSOR.

Coffin Placed on a Gun Carriage and Followed by King and Kaiser and the Royal Family to Its Permanent Resting Place.

WINDSOR, Feb. 5.—The king, Queen Alexandra, the kaiser and the members of the royal family attended a service at the Albert Memorial chapel yesterday morning. The service was conducted by the bishop of Winchester and the dean of Windsor. The coffin still remains in St. George's chapel.

The royal servants and police and their wives and children alone were allowed to view the queen's coffin by order of King Edward.

Punctually at 3 o'clock the tolling of the curfew bell and the artillery fire announced that the funeral cortege had started for Frogmore. At 3:30 o'clock the cortege entered Frogmore lodge, and the coffin finally disappeared from public view.

The bishop of Winchester, the dean of Windsor, the lord chamberlain and the lord steward walked in advance of the gun carriage.

Then came the king, the kaiser, King Leopold of Portugal, the Duke of Connaught, Princes Henry of Prussia, Christian of Sleswick-Holstein and Arthur of Connaught, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the Grand Duke of Hesse, the German crown prince, Prince Albert of Sleswick-Holstein, Prince Alexander of Battenberg, Prince Louis of Battenberg and Prince Adolphe of Schaumburg-Lippe.

Then followed Queen Alexandra, Princesses Christian and Louise, Henry of Battenberg and the other relatives of the late queen who are now at Windsor, followed by the ladies and gentlemen of the late queen's household and the gentlemen in waiting on the king and queen and other royal persons.

The choir of St. George's chapel met the cortege at the steps of the mausoleum. The highland pipers and servants entered the building, preceded by the bishop of Winchester and the dean of Windsor and the choristers. All the mourners were afoot, the women heavily veiled and the men in uniform coats, as on Saturday.

The gun carriage was the same one as was used on Saturday, but it was hauled by the artillery horses instead of the handy sailormen who dragged it from the station on Saturday.

There was an immense crowd along the entire route of the procession.

The service in the mausoleum began with the singing of Sir Arthur Sullivan's anthem, "Yea, Tho' I Walk." The committal prayer was then read by the bishop of Winchester. The choir sang "Sleep Thy Last Sleep," and the dean of Windsor read the rest of the prayers. Then followed the anthem, "The Face of Death Is Toward the Sun of Life," the words of which are by Tennyson and the music by Sir Walter Parratt. The services closed with the benediction by the bishop of Winchester.

THE KING TO HIS SUBJECTS.

The king has sent the following message to all the British colonies and dependencies:

"To my people beyond the seas: The countless messages of loyal sympathy that I have received from every part of my dominions over the seas testify to the universal grief in which the whole empire now mourns the loss of my beloved mother.

"In the welfare and prosperity of her subjects throughout Greater Britain the queen ever evinced a heartfelt interest. She saw with thankfulness the steady progress which, under the wide extension of self government, they had made during her reign. She warmly appreciated their unfailing loyalty to her throne and person and was proud to think of those who had so nobly fought and died for the empire's cause in South Africa.

"I have already declared that it will be my constant endeavor to follow the great example which has been bequeathed to me. In these endeavors I shall have confident trust in the devotion and sympathy of the people and of their several representative assemblies throughout my vast colonial dominions. With such loyal support I will, with the blessing of God, solemnly work for the promotion of the common welfare and security of our great empire over which I have now been called to reign."

Charged With Arson.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 5.—At 2 o'clock yesterday morning Dougher's hotel at Wyoming, five miles north of here, was discovered on fire. The firemen rushed through the building to alarm the inmates, but the place was deserted. Fresh tracks in the snow, however, led to an outbuilding. In this place were found four trunks filled with liquors, cigars, household goods, etc. The owner of the building swore out warrants for the arrest of Albert, Andrew and William Cossco, three brothers, who have conducted the hotel for some time past, charging them with arson. The men were committed to jail in default of bail.

Serious Boston Fire.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—Fire was discovered in the upper sories of the First National bank building at 1:20 o'clock this morning. A woman and boy were taken from the fifth story unconscious, and it is feared they will die. The First National bank building is one of four that form the block south of the old statehouse and bounded by Washington, State and Devonshire streets. The damage to the building is about $40,000. The other losses are heavy, but not ascertainable as yet.

Oldest Officeholder Dead.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Stephen Jennings Wilson died yesterday at his home in Babylon, N. Y., aged 97 years. He was the oldest resident of the village and the oldest officeholder on Long Island, if not in the state. He had held the offices of constable, tax collector, overseer of the poor, town trustee and sheriff. He was prominent in Odd Fellowship and is believed to have been the oldest member of that organization in the state.

Serious Mine Explosion.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 5.—An explosion of gas occurred in the Clark vein of the Cayuga mine, in this city, killing one man, Frank MacVitte, and injuring several others, one of whom, the Polish laborer working with MacVitte, is in a serious condition.

The Mayor's Appointments.

Last evening's meeting of the Common Council was watched with particular interest owing to the fact that the nominations of Mayor Olin L. Jenkins for the various appointive city offices would on that occasion be submitted to the Council for confirmation. While it was generally understood that no startling changes were to be made by the new Mayor, there was considerable curiosity as to what action the Mayor would take in appointing new policemen, filling the berth of overseer of the poor, and in selecting two members of the Board of Health.

The course taken in regard to the new policemen seems a very proper one. The three men who stood highest in the competitive examinations were appointed special policemen and will be assigned to regular duty. In that way they will be given a thorough trial and the Police Board can judge of their fitness for the positions before they are regularly appointed. By this course the city will be saved a great deal of trouble as should any of the candidates prove unsatisfactory the Board might have considerable trouble in dropping them from the force if they had once been regularly appointed.

There was evidently a hitch between Mayor and Council when it came to the appointment of an overseer of the poor. After approving the Mayor's choice, the Council changed its mind, reconsidered the decision and laid the nomination on the table.

The same assessors and the same members of the Board of Health went back to office although there had been rumors to the effect that changes were possible in both bodies. The reappointment of the members of the Board of Health was, practically a tacit approval of the present course of the Board as Dr. Murray, who was one of the two returned, has been president of the Board and largely instrumental in carrying out its present policy.

Must Be Stopped.

When many of the citizens of the city and borough, who live along the line of the trolley, awoke Monday morning, they found their sidewalks and lawns covered with dirt and mud which had been thrown there by the big sweeper of the street railway company. In some cases, small stones were thrown up on the piazzas of the neighboring houses.

Naturally the residents were indignant and they had a right to be. Nobody wants his lawn covered with dirt and mud. It is particularly trying when it is known that such a wholesale distribution of dirt is not at all necessary.

It is perfectly proper to allow the street railway company to brush the snow from its tracks. No one objects to that, but when the brushes are forced so hard against the ground that they not only sweep away all the snow but the dirt and loose stones as well, it is time for the city officials to protest and take effective measures to stop it. A little care in the use of the sweeper would eliminate the objectional feature and would still accomplish the desired end for which the sweeper was put into use.

Street Commissioner Gavett has written to Col. Hine, of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central New Jersey Street Railway Company, and asked the company to prevent any recurrence of Sunday night's objectionable happening. If that complaint does not have the desired effect it will be eminently proper for the city authorities to take summary proceedings in case the trolley company again offends in the same manner.

Although the street committee decided at a recent meeting to begin in a small way the placing of proper street signs about the city without delay, no action on that subject was taken by the Common Council at its meeting last evening. The only reference made to the subject was when the petition of the Board of Trade asking for that same thing was received and referred to the street committee. It is to be regretted that the Council did not act in the matter last night. It is a subject which needs immediate attention and each delay will not be forgotten by the people of the city who recognize the necessity of street signs.

Nothing but kind words are heard all over the State regarding the little boom for Senator Charles A. Reed as the Republican nominee for Governor. The general idea seems to be, however, that the Reed boom will not be actively pushed this year, but will rather put Mr. Reed in line for a future nomination. Nobody doubts the ability of Senator Reed to fill the duties of chief executive satisfactorily, but the course of political events is not such as to land him the nomination this year.

Senator Stokes has introduced a bill into the State Legislature to clear up a few points in the new State School law which were somewhat cloudy. The Plainfield Board of Education will be glad to see certain points in the law definitely settled.

As was expected, Mayor Jenkins and the members of the Common Council show every evidence of being in complete harmony.

The addition of three men to the present police force is a step in the right direction.

The ground hog went back into his cave just in time.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and its Citizens.

It's a toss-up between Assemblymen Meeker and Foote which will represent Union the better. Each is earnest and open in his efforts, but so too, is Assemblyman Smith, their colleague, and when it comes to figuring out their respective good points the honors are about even. Union is represented ably both in the Senate and House.—New York Press.

* * * * * * * *

Hon. James E. Martine, of Cedar Brook, urges all Jerseymen, of whatever section of the state, to unite in saving the noble Palisades. His appeal comes at a proper time. There seems to be spirit of indifference, particularly in some sections of this state, as to the fate of these grand cathedral piles of rocks along the Hudson, and such a spirit is less creditable at this time than at any other. A plan has been devised whereby the Palisades can be saved forever at a very small cost. The joint state commission has reported to the legislatures of New York and New Jersey; the governor of each state has recommended the adoption of the plan but the steps necessary to make the needed appropriation are not being taken in either State. There have, in New Jersey, been so many plans brought to the front for utilizing the State's surplus fund, in normal schools, in roads, in armories, etc., that the Palisades, having no political significance, seem likely to be overlooked. Yet the Palisades ought to be saved. They are New Jersey's grandest natural scenic treasure. There is no need of destroying them, for there is road metal of every kind in inexhaustible quaantities, to be had for the taking, without touching a single rock of the Palisades. New York and New Jersey should hasten to put a permanent stop to the destruction of the Palisades.—Elizabeth Journal.

Dunellen, Feb. 5—Tonight will be fireman's night at the fair now in progress in Saengerbund hall under the auspices of the North Plainfield Fire Department. The members of the local department have made arrangements to attend in a body as a prize is to be awarded to the company having the largest number of members present. In order to make a creditable showing it is requested that every member of the Dunellen department make arrangements to be present.

The funeral services of Arthur Parker, the fourteen year-old son of A. A. Parker, who died Sunday morning will be held from his parent's residence tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Frank Fletcher will be the officiating clergyman and his classmates from the New Market school will be present and sing several selections. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery, Madison, N. J.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council was held last evening but beyond the payment of the usual number of bills no business of importance was transacted. No conference between the fire and water committee and the Watchung's Water Company's representative was held owing to the absence of the latter.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held this evening at which it is expected the heating and ventilating apparatus recently installed in the Whittier school will be formally accepted. The budget for the ensuing year will also be made up.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will be held tomorrow afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Sutphen. It is requested that all members be present.

Scotch Plains, Feb. 5—Mrs. Nancy Wilcox received a sad telephone message last evening, announcing the death of her daughter Hattie, which occurred at the Brooklyn Hospital late yesterday afternoon. Miss Wilcox was taken to the hospital Friday suffering from appendicitis. Saturday an operation was performed and she was supposed to have rallied from it, and Sunday, when her brother in-law, Charles Haberle, was in to see her, she was in good spirits and a speedy recovery was hoped for. But Sunday night and yesterday other complications appeared and she began to sink rapidly, passing away about 6 o'clock. Miss Wilcox was well known in the village having been brought up here. Of late years she made her home in Brooklyn. She was loved by all who knew her for her many good traits, and the afflicted family have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement. The funeral services, which will be private, will be held from the home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Misses Meyers and a number of their friends enjoyed the first straw-ride of the season last evening, notwithstanding the storm. The young people were snugly stored away in a box sleigh with plenty of straw, and a run out toward Springfield was taken. Upon their return they drove around town for some time enjoying the sport before the weather got so bad that they were obliged to seek the firesides again.

Those who have been anxiously awaiting sleighing all winter had their wish gratified at last when they awoke yesterday morning and found several inches of snow upon the ground. By afternoon nearly every one who owned a sleigh was out to get the benefit of the sport while it lasted.

The new transfer system adopted by the trolley company meets with the approval of all. The Scotch Plains patrons of the line are now enabled to ride to Newark for fifteen cents. Under the old way it cost twenty cents.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Baptist church was held in the church parlors last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hazel, of Elizabeth, have returned home after a pleasant visit with relatives in town.

A number from the village attended the performance of "The Sorows of Satan" at Music Hall last night.

Rev. G. M. Shortt attended the ministers' weekly conference in New York yesterday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, Feb. 5—It is expected, by the local patrons of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, that the two local commuter's trains from Bound Brook to New York will be removed in the near future. This will leave the commuters, between here and New York, hardly any facilities and will compel several to drive to Plainfield and use the Central trains.

Work has been started upon the switch and signal connections to the new tower at the Lehigh Valley Railroad freight yards. It will take about three months to complete this work.

John Tingley is suffering from a severe cold, complicated with the grip.

Frank Poling has returned home after a week's vacation from business.

LITERARY.

Of the fourteen articles in the February Forum, the one entitled "The Rehabilitation of the Democratic Party," by "An ex-Democrat," will, perhaps, attract the widest attention. It treats of the causes leading up to the present predicament of the Democratic party, and suggests certain principles for the future, calculated to conciliate the disaffected elements of the party. In his article, "Nationalization of the State Guards," Gen. T. M. Anderson advocates a judicious combination of our regular and volunteer establishments. Hon. William Dudley Foulke contributes an article entitled "The Spellbinders," a narrative of the trials of stump speakers in the heat of political campaigns, which is replete with humorous anecdotes. "The Lessons of the Election—A Rejoinder," by Willis J. Abbot, is a reply from a Democratic standpoint to Mr. Heath's article, "Lessons of the Campaign," published in The Forum for December. Mr. Kelly Miller, the eminent negro scholar, a leader of his race, writes about "The Negro and Education."

John Johnson, manager of the carpet department at Woodhull & Martin's store, accompanied by his wife, are spending this week with Hackettstown relatives.

CITY OFFICERS NAMED BY MAYOR JENKINS.

be appropriated this year to the Board instead of $2,000. The report was signed by the president of the Board Dr. W. H Murray and the secretary, Dr. B VanD. Hedges. It was referred to the finance committee.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that 14 building permits were granted during January. The monthly reports of the city collector and treasurer were received, read and filed.

The regular appointments by Mayor Jenkins were then received and read. The assessors were the first to be appointed. Their terms are for three years and were as follows: First ward, H C VanEmburgh; Second ward, Charles H. Hand; Third ward, Joseph A. Hubbard; Fourth ward, Harry C. Runyon Craig A. Marsh was reappointed as corporation counsel for one year, and J. B. Coward was reappointed as a commissioner of appeal for a term of three years. Dr. W. H. Murray and Fred W Dunn were reappointed as members of the Board of Health for terms of three years.

There was a great surprise in the appointment of an overseer of the poor Alexander D. Ayers, who is now a conductor for the Plainfield Street Railway Company, was the man to receive the appointment. It is understood that he received the endorsement of the alms committee, but the appointment took the Council so much by surprise that, after having confirmed the appointment, a recess was deemed necessary.

The result was that the action of the Council in confirming the appointment was reconsidered and the appointment was laid on the table. Mr. Lee, chairman of the alms committee, voted in the negative to reconsider and to lay on the table. When the name first came up for confirmation, Councilman Corlell was excused from voting at his own request. It was generally understood that Charles Conover, of Emwood place, was to receive the appointment, and what occasioned the change was not made public last evening.

After Samuel Stranahan had been appointed poundmaster, the appointment of special policemen followed as follows: Stephen R. Hope, Charles Harris, Henry Pugh, Jesse Scull, Joseph Morrison, George Dean, David F. Stewart, William Downs, Arthur A. McGinley, Edward Martin, William Dagnall, Charles Geise, Dennis Carney, Nathan Pollard, Jacob Kriney, Aaron Mattox, William J. Monsell, Charles J. McCarthy, Samuel Robinson, David Bush, Thomas Morcom, Thomas Clarkson, William Addis, Sr., Frank Kelso, Isaac Kennedy, Edward Maynard, William J. Eakins, Edgar Brokaw, Lewis Peterson, J. C Carney, Jeremiah Cash, James Babbitt, James Bulmer, Bethold O. Hansen, Robert McCormick, Jacob Wagner, J. J. Gallagher, Wm. Forrestel, Thomas O'Gorman, Frank R. Vanderhoff, Isaac Houston, Wm. O'Connor, Herbert L. Overbaugh, Charles Flynn and Charles P Gamo. The last three named men will be selected to do regular duty. They were the three applicants for positions as patrolmen and they passed the highest examinations of all those who applied.

James McLean was appointed a call man in the fire department to take the place of Frazee Putnam, resigned, and E P. Townley was appointed to a similar position to take the place of John Kline, who moved out of the city. All the appointments by Mayor Jenkins were confirmed by the Council.

Mr. VanHerwerden reported back the communication received from Mayor Smalley, of the borough, regarding the proposed legislation to prevent taxpayers from shirking their just taxes, and recommended that no action be taken.

Mr. Corlell offered a resolution increasing the salary of Second Assistant Andrew Jennings, of the fire dedepartment, from $600 a year to $800. He stated by way of explanation that Mr. Jennings devotes his entire time to his position and $900 is little enough for such a position. The Council agreed and the change was made.

Mr. Gloak moved the amendment to the ordinance regarding the granting of wholesale liquor licenses to a third reading and the amendment was adopted This provides for a fee of $500 instead of $250 as formerly.

In accordance with a previous notice, Mr. VanHerwerden moved that the rules of order for 1900 be made the bylaws of the Council for 1901, after which the Council adjourned to meet Monday evening, February 18

Ants, Cockroaches, Bed Bugs.

Mix, say, a 25c. box of "Rough on Rats" carefully with a pound or so of mashed boiled potatoes, or with a loaf of finely crumbled dampened bread, or two tin cups of fine powdered sugar, and place about their haunts, out of reach of children or pet animals Even the hardier Black Cockroaches, Beetles, Wood or Water Bugs, in one or two applications will be completely annihilated. "Rough on Rats" is the only thing that will effectually and permanently annihilate Bed Bugs, and it stands unrivalled the world over for the prompt and effective extermination of Rats and Mice. 15 and 25 boxes at druggists.

Interest Laws of China.

The interest laws of China, with which the operations of banking are intimately connected, date from the year 1250 of our era. The enormous rate of interest is curiously defended by several writers. It results, they say, in securing economy, in order that the borrower may repay the loan, in producing greater industry, in deterring persons from borrowing, in reducing the number of renters of land, thus increasing the number of land owners and in inducing circumspection in regard to new enterprises. It is further stated by men of business that this 30 per cent. is also a maximum founded on the probability that the oscillations in the price of silver will never exceed that sum. It must be understood also that the ordinary rate of interest rarely exceeds 20 or 22 per cent., and that money may be had as low as 12 per cent., though the rate sometimes exceeds even 30 per cent.—Forum.

Origin of a Name.

Every schoolboy, as Lord Macaulay would say, knows that the halfpenny of Scotland is called a "bawbee," but how it came to receive that name is not a matter of such common knowledge. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, Queen of Scots, was made in the earliest infancy, and her "wee" face was engraved upon the Scottish halfpennies at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood that the name "bawbee," or baby, was originally given to the coin bearing the baby's effigy.—Liverpool Post.

No Letter "l" in Japanese.

One impediment to the use of the English language by the Japanese is that the latter has no letter "l" or the sound it represents. Nevertheless, they borrow English words containing the letter, changing "railroad" into "reiru," "tunnel" into "tunneru," "linen" into "rinneru," and "dollar" into "doru." The final "u" is tacked on to many words to meet the Japanese idea of euphony. The use of Roman letters in Japanese publications is spreading. New York's new Japanese newspaper will be printed in Roman characters.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Important Astronomical Discovery.

One of the most important discoveries of the century consisted in the establishment of the fact that our sun moves toward Vega, says Prof. Scharwerker. At the present time we are billions of miles nearer to Vega than ten years ago, and we still continue our flight. When and where that flight began, when, where and how it will end, we do not know. It is generally accepted by astronomers that no star stands still in space, but that every one of them has its individual orbit.—Scientific American.

WONDER OF SCIENCE

Telephone Lines to Europe Assured by a Late Invention.

Dr. Pupin Sells His Wonderful Long Distance System for $200,000 in Cash and a Yearly Salary of $7,500.

The Electrical Review announces the purchase by the American Telephone & Telegraph company (the parent Bell company) of the patents of Dr. M. I Pupin, of Columbia college, which, it states, cover the art of ocean telephony and which enable telephone messages to be sent over any length of land lines. It further states that the sum of $200,000 has been paid to Dr. Pupin for the invention, with an annual salary to him during the life of the patents of $7,500.

The invention referred to and for which two patents were issued in June 1900, is described at length, and it is characterized as one of the most brilliant and exceptional inventions of Dr Pupin.

It was thought necessary in order to talk a given distance, say 500 miles, in underground cables to employ large copper wires covered with insulating material. The expense of such wires and material has been sufficient to prevent the construction of long underground circuits. Dr. Pupin's invention is declared to furnish a method whereby conductors of relatively small diameter covered with insulating material of moderate thickness may be used in place of the large and expensive conductors frequently thought to be necessary.

The Electrical Review, in describing the invention, says:

"The essential feature of the invention, following the elaborate mathematical analysis of the subject by Dr Pupin, consists of the application of inductance and capacity to such a circuit that is to all intents and purposes equivalent to a continuous distribution of these qualities, but which is at the same time practically possible and commercial.

"Inasmuch as practically all waves that are used in the transmission of signals or of sounds through the telephones are of a highly complex character, containing many elements of different wave length and frequency, and since the attenuation suffered by any wave is directly dependent upon its frequency and wave length, it happens that in ordinary circuits waves are not only attenuated and dampened in the amplitude of their vibration, but are also distorted by the more rapid suppression of their high frequency elements and thus so transformed in character that, particularly in the case of telephonic work, they remain no longer recognizable as the original waves impressed upon the sending end of the circuit.

DR. M. I. PUPIN,
(Inventor of the New Submarine Long-Distance Telephone System.)

"Dr. Pupin's investigation, begun by considering the remarkable physical analogy between the case of a vibrating string and that of an electrical conductor transmitting waves, led him to conclude that a formula might be arrived at expressing the dimensions of inductance coils and condensers necessary to add to a given circuit in order to produce an effect sufficiently close to the ideal distortionless circuit for practicable purposes."

"Experimenting with artificial conductors, he discovered that it was possible to telephone over vastly greater lengths of cable of high capacity than had ever been possible before, and that, so far as land line telephone or rapid telegraphy is concerned, he was able so to improve existing conditions as to make any reasonable or desired length of telephonic circuit easily possible. Indeed, in the paper read before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at Philadelphia, May 18, 1900, he showed a design for inductance coils to be introduced at appropriate intervals in the length of a transatlantic cable, which, he demonstrated, would allow telephonic conversation to be held across the Atlantic ocean.

"It is believed by those who have investigated the subject fully that the improvement which his inventions contemplate will enable telephony over land lines of any length that are in use to-day, and will solve the difficult and attractive problem of oceanic telephony."

Horse Races with Train.

Capt. Baron Holzing, of the Baden dragoons, recently rode a horse on the public highway 15 kilometers, or nine miles, in 25 minutes. He raced against a railroad train to Carlsruhe and beat it by eight minutes. The horse had been trained for weeks on a new form of horse cake.

Once Was Jefferson's Slave.

Thomas Jefferson's last surviving slave died in Cincinnati a few days ago. He was born at Monticello in 1815, purchased his freedom in 1848, removed north and became a Baptist preacher.

Notice as to Unmuzzled Dogs Running at Large.

By a city ordinance, it is provided that no dog shall be permitted to run at large within the city limits, unless a good and sufficient muzzle shall be placed over the mouth of said dog in such manner as to render biting impossible. If any person permits or suffers any dog owned or harbored by him and not so muzzled to run at large, the ordinance provides that he shall upon conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense.

Any person prepared to make complaint under oath of any violation of this ordinance may apply to the subscriber and have prosecution begun forthwith.

BOYS MANAGE MINE.

Youths of Tender Years Conduct a Mining Enterprise with a Great Big Name.

In the Cripple Creek district near Anaconda is the smallest gold mine in the world and its owners and operators are the smallest persons on earth engaged in the pursuit of mining. It is owned by the Yellow Kid Gold Mining company and is capitalized at 30 cents. It is controlled by the O'Brien brothers, three in number, and as a miniature project is one of the most important and interesting in the district.

Dan O'Brien, five years old, is the engineer and president of the company. His bland countenance can be seen in the accompanying illustration, peering out of the "Yellow Kid" shafthouse, which is just four feet in height. He is full of original ideas, which he carries out with enthusiasm.

SMALLEST MINE ON EARTH.
(Run by Three Boys and Capitalized at 30 Cents.)

Bart O'Brien, boss ore sorter and treasurer of the company, is nine years old. His position as ore sorter was given him by reason of his superior knowledge of mineral. He is seen at work in the illustration at the ore bins of the "Yellow Kid," which consists of soap boxes.

John O'Brien is the "head push" and general superintendent of the company. In the illustration he is seen doing the duties of "top man." When not thus employed he works in the shaft, which is now down 25 feet and has three levels.

The three O'Brien boys built the entire plant of the "Yellow Kid" unaided, taking as their model the Morning Glory mine, just above them on the hill. The entire equipment, gallows frame, ore cars, buckets, bins, screens, dump, bell signals, shafthouse, tools and implements are exactly like those of the big mines of the district. Their father is the superintendent of the Morning Glory and although they imitate him in some respects the development of the "Yellow Kid" mine is being carried out on original ideas. The three young miners live in the neat frame cabin shown in the picture, where they retire each night after a hard day's work. The "Yellow Kid" mine does not indulge in any night or graveyard shifts, for the entire force puts in 12 hours of peaceful slumber that only comes to clear conscience and tired muscles. It is the ambition of the O'Brien boys to succeed their father in the management of the Morning Glory mine and they are rapidly equipping themselves for this serious duty.

Moses E. Clapp, of St. Paul, Elected United States Senator by the Minnesota Legislature.

Moses E. Clapp's career has been closely interwoven with the politics of Minnesota for 20 years. He was born in Delphi, Ind., but spent his childhood and youth in Wisconsin, where he studied law and graduated. He came to Minnesota in 1880, and first gained prominence as the champion of Senator Nelson in his first candidacy for congress. He was one of the earlier supporters of Senator Davis, and in 1886 he entered politics officially as attorney general of the state. He was reelected in 1888 and in 1890. In 1896 Mr. Clapp became a republican candidate for governor, but was defeated by Col. Clough. Since then he has taken little part in politics aside from his campaign speeches. During the last campaign he paid particular attention to state affairs and is credited more than any other man with the defeat of Gov. Lind. He is one of the leading attorneys of the state and has an enviable record.

Rapid Transit Police Patrol.

Hartford's new steam patrol wagon, costing $2,500, weighs 3,000 pounds and is operated at an expense of 2½ cents a mile. It is of 12 horse power and runs from 15 to 20 miles an hour. In five minutes 200 pounds of steam can be generated from cold water.

WOULD BE AUTHORESSES

HOW THEY FLOCK TO LARGE CITIES.

THEIR CHANCES OF SUCCESS AS VIEWED BY THREE WELL KNOWN WRITERS.

It all began in this way: I read in a Chicago paper about a girl who was found in a starving condition. She had come to the city because she thought it was the best place to become an authoress. In her native town she enjoyed the reputation of being quite gifted. She had written verses and one or two short stories which were much admired. But she couldn't seem to strike the right vein to please the city editors. Her manuscripts were returned to her by twos and threes. Still she persisted, denying herself the necessary food in order to pay for the postage and typewriting. Finally the time came when she lived for three consecutive days on crackers, and then— Well, I believe that after a long siege at the hospital they did manage to send her home a mere wreck of her former self and with all her ambition dead.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

After I finished reading this I did a good deal of thinking. Among other things it occurred to me how peculiar it is that country girls with literary talent are always crazy to leave home. They are possessed with the idea that in the city they will find the proper "atmosphere." On the other hand, the racked nerves of city writers crave the quiet and rest of the country, and they rush there at the first opportunity. Which was the best atmosphere for writing, that of the city or that of the country? I made up my mind to find out. First I went to Mrs. Seton-Thompson. I chose Mrs. Seton-Thompson because she lives in the country eight months of the year, and in her book, "A Woman Tenderfoot In the Rockies," she has made an earnest effort to bring women nearer to nature's heart.

"You know I'm very fond of the country," she said. "I have derived all my best inspiration from it. I live there as much as possible. What do I think of the chances of country girls who come to large cities in order to become authoresses? Why, the trouble is they don't become authoresses at all. They drift into newspaper work and stay there."

"Then you don't believe in newspaper work?"

"Not if you want to write books. I think journalism is a branch all by itself. Another of my objections to it is that it forces you to do a lot of machine work. This is fatiguing, and it prevents one from doing better work. I'll tell you what I think is the principal trouble with girls who start out to become authoresses. They come to a large city to get ideas. They haven't any themselves. They simply say: 'Well, I can't do anything else. I'll write a book.' Now, that is all wrong. One should never attempt to write unless one has something worth telling. But I'm afraid," she concluded, laughing, "that I haven't the commercial way of looking at literature. I don't consider it in the light of a trade, and I think that people who do are apt to be failures."

GRACE GALLATIN SETON-THOMPSON.

When I left her, I decided to see Miss Jeannette Gilder. She is an eminent critic and an editor as well, so I thought it possible that she might take a more businesslike view of literature. "What do you think of country girls who come to large cities in the hope of becoming authoresses?" I asked.

Miss Gilder pushed away a heap of manuscripts and turned with an interested expression. "Why, simply this," she answered: "If a girl has a great deal of talent, it doesn't hurt her, but if she has only a moderate amount she is likely to lose it entirely in the whirl of the town. Oh, of course there have been cases—take Frances Hodgson Burnett, for instance. I well remember when she first came to New York. She was almost crazy with delight. You know she began life in very poor circumstances, and in her early stories she used to satisfy her cravings for luxury by dressing her heroines in satin gowns, trimmed with swan's down!

"What do I think of reporting as an aid to novel writing? Well, you certainly see life, and it teaches you to write briefly. On the whole I am in favor of it, but it is a much overcrowded profession. I think the best thing for the country girl is to stay at home among familiar surroundings and write about the things she is well acquainted with. Afterward if she achieves success she can travel over the great world as much as she chooses."

JEANNETTE GILDER.

I knew that I wouldn't make a mistake by consulting Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox. She reigns in the hearts of more than half the women of this country. An expression of sadness came into her kind eyes. "Country girls? I think the best thing for them is to stay at home and cultivate their talent where they can breathe God's pure air and where they are surrounded by loving friends and parents. Yes; I know of girls who have come to large cities and succeeded, but it has been at the cost of everything a young girl values. They have lived in stuffy hall bedrooms, scrimping and denying themselves every little pleasure. They have been utterly without society and have realized only too fully the selfishness of a large city. I have received most heartrending letters from such girls. Genius? Why, it isn't a matter of environment; it is inborn. New writers are springing up everywhere—in the south, the extreme east, the west. They are full of vigor, strength and individuality. They write about the things around them, the things nearest to their hearts. If a girl can write and she has ambition, she will make a success anywhere, but surely," Mrs. Wilcox concluded earnestly, "the place where a true woman can do herself the most justice is in her home, surrounded by those she loves and who love her."

Where Pink Pearls Come From.

One of the most important industries of the Bahama islands is the gathering of pink pearls.

It is the only place in the world where these pearls are found.

They are not taken from the oyster shell, but from a shell resembling a large snail shell called a "conch."

A MODERN PENELOPE.

Princes from All Europe Sought Wilhelmina's Hand.

The Young Queen Is Not Beautiful, But Very Good to Look Upon—At Home in Kitchen as Well as Salon.

The young royal bride-to-be, Queen Wilhelmina Pauline Helen Marie of Holland, has had almost as many suitors as Penelope herself. For every royal house in Europe, except Roman Catholic families, that has a marriageable prince to offer has had designs upon Wilhelmina's heart and hand.

It is, by the way, to "King" Wilhelmina, not "Queen," that officials and other public servants take the oath of allegiance. This was decided upon some time ago by the Dutch high court of justice, and was in a line with Queen Emma's wishes. "I desire to make Queen Wilhelmina something more than a strong woman; I wish to make her a king."

The nuptial ceremonies will last a week and will take place at Amsterdam, instead of The Hague, the palace of the former being more commodious. The throneroom is one of the magnificent apartments of the world, with its superb marble columns and crystal chandeliers, of nearly 400 lights. The throne itself is covered with ruby velvet and edged with ruby and gold fringe; the back is surmounted by a crown containing sapphires, with lions in support; another crown and the letter "W" is wrought on the velvet just beneath. The front of the chair is a footstool to match the canopy. The canopy is curtained in ruby velvet, with gold cord; it is surmounted by a crown and ostrich plumes; on the inner center are embroidered the royal arms and motto: "Je maintiendrai."

The style of the ballroom is empire, with a small French piano at one end, while crimson and gold are the colors.

The order for her wedding gown the queen has given to the ladies of the school of art needlework in Amsterdam, who so successfully embroidered her coronation robes. One of her ball gowns will be of white satin, embroidered all over with forget-me-nots in silver and pale blue.

QUEEN WILHELMINA.
(Princes from Every Land Sought Her Hand in Marriage.)

The women of several different provinces will present their queen with national costumes. That of Friesland, the gift of 8,000 women, is described as quaint, if not strictly graceful, with its amplitude of drapery and silver hair ornaments. The gold and silver ornaments for the queen's headdress are preserved among the crown jewels as the property of the nation.

No ruler in the world attends more strictly to her duties than Queen Wilhelmina. She is busy every day with the matters which her ministers lay before her and with the affairs of her court. She has said of herself that she never plays, but always works. Those concerns which we might rashly consider to be her pleasures—her receptions and state banquets—are, in fact, her most irksome duties. During the "season" she is bound to notice, with exactly equal attention, each one of the 400 or 500 persons of the court. Note is kept of these courtesies and of the order in which she pays them, and she has punctiliously to acquit herself of the whole duty down to the properly timed and measured chat with the last diplomat and his wife before the close of the last levee.

The young queen is not beautiful, but very good to look upon—wholesome and frank, with a pleasant smile for everyone. She has blue eyes, a clear complexion, a Grecian nose; her forehead is broad and rather high and her teeth are large, white and even; her blond hair, which is slightly wavy, is brushed back to show the "orange ear." She has a well-shaped head and a slender, graceful figure, with a queenly bearing.

Her education having been conducted in the most conservative Dutch fashion, it follows that she is thoroughly versed in domestic science, knowing how to cook and sew; she embroiders beautifully.

To Stop Dueling in Cuba.

Gov. Gen. Wood has decided to issue a decree whereby not only the principals in duels are liable to be punished, as provided by the present law, but also the seconds and the persons who carry the challenges. Gov. Wood has received many requests from the mothers and wives of Cubans asking him to put down duelling, which is being used as a means of blackmailing or extorting money by certain expert swordsmen of Havana. It is expected that by making an example of one or two of these bullies or their assistants by putting them to work breaking stones this evil will be remedied.

A GREAT RECORD.

Hard To Duplicate It In Plainfield.

Scores of representative citizens of Plainfield are testifying on the following subject. Such a record of local endorsement is unequaled in modern times. This public statement made by a citizen is but one of the many that have preceded it and the hundreds that will follow. Read it:

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull, aching pain across the back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping, and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

NIAGARA'S WONDERS.

POWER FROM THE GREAT FALLS FOR THE BUFFALO EXPOSITION.

Niagara Falls Citizens Preparing to Entertain a Few Extra Millions of People In 1901—Many Costly Improvements by the State.

Within 30 minutes' ride of the Pan-American Exposition are the falls of Niagara, the most magnificent and inspiring spectacle ever wrought by nature for the sight of man. Here, also, are to be seen the greatest electric power development in the world and bridges which are marvels of engineering. To see these natural and engineering wonders over a million people visit Niagara annually. These objects may be said to form a part of the Pan-American Exposition, situated as they are within such a short distance of it, and visitors will find it convenient as well as pleasant to include them in their Exposition itinerary.

The trains of eight trunk lines of railroad and the cars of a double track electric railway will run between the Exposition grounds and Niagara Falls. Visitors at the Exposition who may be pressed for time, but would not miss having a general view of the wonders of Niagara, may board an electric car at the station on the grounds, which will take them along the frontier, through the power district, the city of Niagara Falls and the reservation, across the new steel arch bridge spanning the gorge, past the falls, along the top of the cliff to Queenstown on the Canada side, across the suspension bridge to Lewiston on the American side, along the edge of the water and past the whirlpool in the great gorge to the reservation and back to Buffalo, the entire trip taking up less than three hours' time.

The people of Niagara Falls are making preparations to accommodate such crowds as have never yet been seen at that famous resort. There are 150 hotels and hundreds of commodious restaurants, boarding and lodging houses in the city. Many of them are being enlarged for the anticipated Pan-American business. The city is adding to its many miles of asphalt pavement and park roads, and before the opening of the Exposition all of its principal thoroughfares will be in the finest imaginable condition for driving. A police patrol signal system is being installed, and the efficient police department will be recruited sufficiently to afford the most ample protection to visitors. Ordinances have been established governing the acts of all persons catering to visitors and fixing the fees for services rendered. In fact, the authorities and citizens generally of Niagara Falls, wide awake to the importance of the Exposition, are doing everything in their power to add to its success and glory.

The railroad companies are planning increased facilities for handling the enormous traffic expected. Their stations will be enlarged and trackage increased. The International Traction company is erecting a large and handsome terminal station directly opposite the Niagara reservation and within a stone's throw of the falls. The different lines of the electric railway system on the frontier—the finest in the world—are being equipped with new cars, possessing all modern improvements and conveniences, some of them 50 feet in length, and equaling in elegance the drawing room cars of the steam railroads.

In the state's Niagara reservation new beauties and conveniences are being provided for the Pan-American visitors. A new steel and concrete bridge to span the rapids from the American mainland to Goat island, for the building of which the New York state legislature appropriated $120,000, is in course of construction. A new administration and shelter building is being erected at a cost of $25,000. The old stone inclined railway building at Prospect Point will be razed to afford an unobstructed view of the falls from the park. A broad stone staircase connecting Goat and Luna islands, where the rainbows play and delight the visitor with their prismatic colors, has been built and new balconies for sightseers have been constructed. New beauty spots have been created by grading and seeding wherever the possibility was offered. A flock of sheep will wander at will on Goat island and add life to the beauteous scene. An automobile service in the reservation will be inaugurated. In the Canadian park many improvements are being made. Niagara Falls will be dressed in her finest for the Pan-American Exposition in 1901. Niagara is an ideal breathing spot. The parks are extensive, liberally shaded and constantly visited by cooling breezes. No Exposition ever yet held has offered to the public an attraction equal to Niagara.

Missouri's Grain Exhibit.

Charles C. Bell of Boonville, Mo., who is one of the commissioners for Missouri to the Pan-American Exposition of Buffalo, is at work preparing the agricultural display for the Pan-American from that state. He is working to obtain from various sources the best specimens of grains, grasses and everything pertaining to such an exhibit, and he expects to obtain from county fairs in Missouri much material for this purpose.

EXPOSITION BEAUTY.

PUTTING THE RAINBOW COLORS ON ONE OF BIG BUILDINGS.

Early Hints of What the Visitors May See of Molded Plastic Ornamentation and Color Decoration at Pan-American Exposition.

It is now possible to go somewhat more into detail regarding the plastic and color work upon the various buildings of the Pan-American Exposition. The most advanced of the buildings is that to be devoted to machinery. The staff upon the exterior of this edifice is now nearly all in place, and the great structure is in the hands of the color artists.

Though a very large building, 500 by 350 feet, the four facades are so broken by architectural features that there is nothing of monotony or severity. Every one who has the good fortune to visit the grounds during this advanced stage of development unhesitatingly applauds the happy results of both the architectural and color schemes.

In order that the reader may have a correct understanding let me first describe the molded work with which the exterior of the building is ornamented. By means of the very ingenious production known as staff, which is made out of white plaster, into which liberal quantities of manila fiber have been mixed in order to make it tough and durable, the Exposition buildings are given the appearance of solidity and massiveness as well as the beauty of richly carved stone. But, since the material is not stone, the idea of adding color to the work has been suggested. How to apply the color so that it would heighten the beauty of the work has taxed the ingenuity of the most famous mural painter of the world, Mr. Charles Y. Turner of New York.

The very intricate character of the staff work and the vast amount of it in delicate designs offered a most forbidding task. All four of the broad facades of the building have an arcaded effect. Every window is a deeply recessed arch, with wide soffits and casings. Every entrance is composed of one or more high arches, with massive pillars at the sides, and every pillar and pilaster is of very elaborate detail. Every window is grilled and finished with fidelity to the most artistic ideas of architects of the Spanish renaissance, from which the general architectural scheme of the Exposition is derived.

At the four corners of the great building are four towers, with open pavilions, 50 feet above the ground. Above the great arched entrances on the east and west sides are massive domes. Two very tall towers rise above both the north and south entrances and help to complete two wonderful architectural compositions. Imagine, if you can, the delicate and beautiful character of this unique work. Some one has said it reminded the observer of a skillful confectioner's best achievements in a fancy wedding cake many times exaggerated. The comparison is not inappropriate perhaps, for the Exposition celebrates a closer union of the several Americas, and in the original white the wonderful compositions of staff which crown these towers possessed the apparent delicacy of one of these marvelous creations of the confectioner.

MACHINERY AND TRANSPORTATION BUILDING

But color has been added, and the white has disappeared. The likeness is no longer there. The brilliant colors that the Moors loved so steadfastly hundreds of years ago in Granada and Andalusia have been revived, better than the originals. The majestic columns and fancy pillars look like carved ivory. The arabesques have a background of brilliant shades, such as yellows, pinks and reds of varying degrees of brightness. The round domes have bands of green and other shades. The roofs are all of red tile. The broad eaves are upheld by substantial brackets that resemble rosewood carved in intricate design. The lofty towers present a radiance of blues, reds and gold. Medallions of Ericsson and other famous men who have given the world wonderful machinery are surrounded with a glow of color.

Difficult or impossible as it may seem to the reader to employ brilliant colors so freely upon a great building such as this without destroying its grandeur and cheapening its appearance, the problem has been magnificently worked out, and the effect is not merely pleasing and harmonious, but the work is an artistic triumph that every person from far and near will delight to see. The wonderful harmony of the many colors that have been used is at once observed, and there is no one feature of the Exposition that has aroused more popular interest than the great color scheme. With the 20 or more other big buildings, all aglow with color and adorned with richly molded plastic work, the effect will be a profound surprise to those who have visited other Expositions.

SPORTING.

WHIST.

The New Jersey Whist Association committee in charge of the arrangements for the Metropolitan trophy contest, made the drawings this week as to the order of play of the challengers, which were in the hands of the committee, and were as follows: New Jersey Whist Club, Westfield Whist Club, Brooklyn Whist Club, Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club, New Jersey Whist Club, Orange Club, Knickerbocker Whist Club, Forest Hill Whist Club, Park Club, Passaic Whist Club. The first game for this trophy will be played at the rooms of the Jersey City Club February 9, and will be between the Jersey City Club and the Westfield Whist Club. If Westfield defaults, the Brooklyn Whist Club will play.

POOL

Of the three games played in the pool tourney at Krewson's last evening, two were won by Dowd, who defeated Kingston, 75 to 34, and Walsh, 75 to 39. The remaining game was between Sutterlein and Matthews, the former winning by a score of 75 to 16

Two games were played in the pool tourney at Conover's parlors last evening between Franklin and Somerset Councils, each side securing one game. The latter council is putting on some of its best men this week in order to reduce the lead secured by its opponents last week.

FOOTBALL.

The postponed football game between the Arlingtons, of Newark, and the Plainfield Association Football Club has been scheduled for Saturday afternoon on the Clinton avenue grounds. Having been beaten on two previous occasions the local men will make a determined effort to win. They have strengthened the team by the addition of five men from the Scottish American team, one of the strongest in the State. Their own men have also been shifted to positions where they will be of the most advantage. The kick-off will be made Saturday at 3 o'clock.

Trains Delayed.

The Royal Blue Line eastbound train, due in this city at 7:19 oclock this morning, was held up at the North Avenue station on account of a hot box on the engine. The delay of this train held up other passenger trains and many commuters were delayed.

Mrs. George H Babcock, of West Eighth street, is visiting at Ashaway, R. I.

Bert Halsey, of Cranford, has been spending a few days with relatives in town.

Reuben Knox, of Washington avenue, has gone to Massachusetts to visit his father.

Mrs. J. J. Shafer, of Plainfield, sailed for Porto Rico on the steamer San Juan Saturday.

Courtney Keller, of New York, has returned home after a few days visit with relatives in town.

Mrs. Robert Lowry, of Central avenue, is stopping for a few days with friends at Lewisburg, Pa.

Henry J. Talford, formerly of the Daily Press reportorial staff, left this morning for Washington, D. C., where he will remain for an indefinite period.

Miss Alice McClymont, of Myrtle avenue, is out after having been confined to her home for the past two weeks with a severe attack of the grip.

Constable Amos Moffett, who is slowly recovering from his recent illness, was able to sit up yesterday for the first and it is now thought he will soon be entirely well.

George H. Fairchild, of the borough, received a telegram early this morning telling him of the serious illness of his aged mother at Newark, and he went at once to her home.

FRIGHTENED TO DEATH.

Little Niece of Marcus Silbert, of the Borough, Died at Raritan Saturday.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 5.—The daughter of Carl Silbert, two years old, of Raritan, died Saturday from convulsions caused by the sudden appearance of an old colored beggar woman, who looked in at a window. The little girl was alone in the room. She cried out in terror, but before her mother reached her she went into convulsions. It was impossible to quiet her, and she died in a short time.

The child was a niece of Marcus Silbert, of Somerset street, the borough.

Editors Meet and Elect Officers.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 5.—The New Jersey Editorial Association yesterday elected the following officers: President, C. L. Stryker, of Washington; vice-president, H. C. Page, of Bayonne; secretary, Edward D. Stokes, of Mount Holly; treasurer, W. R. V. Mason, of Bound Brook; executive committee, Frank W. Baldwin, of Orange, Chas. Starr, of East Orange, Josiah Ketcham, of Belvidere, Antoby Kilgore, of Flemington, George W. McCowan, of Bridgeton.

Woman Burned to Death.

Mrs. John Bird, forty-five years old, of Bernardsville, was burned to death on Sunday at her home at that place. While raking the kitchen stove her apron caught fire, and before it could be extinguished her clothing was in a blaze. She lived for about two hours after the accident. She is survived by her husband.

Break in Fire Alarm Circuit.

The single blast of the fire gong about ten o'clock last night was caused by a break in one of the West End circuits. This morning linemen discovered the trouble and made the necessary repairs.

Ready For Cooking Classes.

Everything is completed for the work in the cooking department of the North Plainfield manual training school, and no doubt the class will be started tomorrow morning or Thursday.

Fire Bell Rang Once.

A break in the wire of the fire-alarm system of North Plainfield caused one ring on the alarm bell last night.

YEAR'S WORK WAS REVIEWED

CONVOCATION OF NEW BRUNSWICK IS IN SESSION TODAY.

Meets at Grace P. E. Church—Financial Condition Not Satisfactory Reports Received.

The Convocation of New Brunswick is in session today at Grace P. E church, with a good representation from the various places in the diocese The session opened this morning with morning prayer and Holy Communion, after which the business was taken up Bishop Scarborough conducted the regular morning services and presided over the Convocation. The sermon was preached by Rev. Thomas Conover, of Bernardsville, who gave a helpful discourse on mission work.

After the service Bishop Scarborough opened the Convocation with a few remarks concerning the church and clergy. He reported seven deaths among the clergy since the last convention. Then followed the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Rev. Thomas Conover. The treasurer, Aaron Devoe, of Spottswood, presented his report, showing a balance on hand at last report of $292 33, and the total receipts since then be $815 96. He reported the present balance to be $185 96 and there is owing $550.

Bishop Scarborough took occasion to say a few words to those present about the financial condition of the Convocation. He said that it was most discouraging, and he urged that some steps be taken at once to replenish the treasury and pay the indebtedness. He offered to contribute $100 toward the amount owing. It is quite likely that the balance will be raised and additional contributions made to carry on the work in the diocese. Several churches that have not contributed anything will be asked to do so.

An adjournment was taken about 1 o'clock for lunch, and this afternoon the session was devoted to hearing reports from the various churches in the diocese showing that the majority are in good condition and doing good work. This evening a missionary service will be held in the church.

It has been fully demonstrated that Ely's Cream Balm is a specific for Nasal Catarrh and cold in the head. This distinction has been achieved only as the result of continued successful use. A morbid condition of the membrane in the nasal passages can be cured by this purifying and healing treatment. Sold by druggists or it will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. It spreads over the membrane, is absorbed and relief is immediate.

Speedway Meeting Tonight.

A meeting of the Plainfield Speedway Association will be held this evening at the law offices of Reed & Coddington. The various committees appointed last week will make their reports and other important matters will be discussed. In order to get matters in shape for rapid progress before spring it is requested that all interested in the movement make arrangements to be present at this and all other meetings.

Tales of Alaska.

Miss Caroline Arnold will be at the mid-week service of the Congregational church tomorrow evening, and will tell of her experiences and observations in Alaska. Miss Arnold is a sister of Miss Arnold, of the Plainfield Seminary, and has spent a year and a half in Alaska, a part of the time in charge of a Government School.

Going to Have a Boulevard.

A meeting of the property owners fronting on Woodland avenue has been called for Monday evening next at the office of Silas D. Drake to take steps to carry out the proposed widening of that thoroughfare to at least 100 feet, to be known as the Woodland Boulevard.

Pleasing Entertainment.

An evening of music and mirth, including a large number of musical instruments and combinations, will be given by Winans and Cassler, comedian artists, at the Park Avenue Baptist church this evening, under the auspices of the Sunday-School.

Pretty Rig.

The children of Cashier Wm. F. Arnold, of the City National Bank, appeared today in a handsome little cutter with their little pony and they were the envy of other children, who enjoy sleighing. The rig is one of the most attractive in the city.

Slipped on the Ice.

A horse belonging to Jacob Meyers, a farmer living near Stirling, slipped and fell on the icy roadbed on Somerset street this morning. A shaft of the wagon was snapped off and the harness considerably broken. No other damage resulted.

The Origin of Writing.

Arthur J. Evans, the discoverer of the remains of a great prehistoric palace at Knossos, in Crete, which is believed to be the original of the fabled "Labyrinth," says that the revelations made there carry back the existence of written documents on Greek soil some eight centuries beyond the earliest known monuments of Greek writing, and five centuries beyond the earliest dated Phoenician record as seen on the Moabite stone. These discoveries, therefore, "place the whole question of the origin of writing on a new basis." Mr. Evans thinks that the Cretan hieroglyphs exactly correspond with what, in virtue of their names, we must suppose to have been the pictorial originals of the Phoenician letters on which the alphabet is based. Among these are Aleph, the ox's head; Beth, the house; Daleth, the door, and so forth. This contravenes the old theory of De Rouge that the Phoenician letters were derived from early Egyptian forms signifying quite different objects.—Youth's Companion.

Genuine Gratitude.

The portly gentleman in the black cutaway coat lighted his cigar, leaned against the bar and puffed away contentedly. Like most New York barrooms it was a cosmopolitan place, full of many sorts of people. A lean, hungry-looking individual, with grimy hands and the beard of an anarchist, approached the portly gentleman cautiously.

"I say, boss, could you let me have a nickel," he began, tentatively.

"What's the trouble?" asked the other.

"Well, you see, the fact is I haven't a cent, and I was out on an awful spree last night—and I want a beer."

He got the nickel. He looked at the coin meditatively for a time, and then at his benefactor.

"Say," he ejaculated, at last, "you're a good fellow. I wish I had another nickel so I could treat you."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Tides in the Stars.

Prof. Campbell, of the Lick observatory, reports that the star called Xi Geminorum, which has long been known as a variable, is in reality double, but its two components are so close that no telescope is able to separate them, and their existence is proved by the shifting lines in the spectrum. The variations in brightness, he thinks, can only be due to the attraction between the two stars raising immense tides in their molten or vaporous globes, which, through the effects of compression or otherwise, displace the spectral lines. —Youth's Companion.

Hospitality in Different Lands.

"Hospitality is a good deal a matter of latitude, I suspect," said Dr. Holmes. "The shade of a palm-tree serves an African for a hut; his dwelling is all door and no walls; everybody can come in. To make a morning call on an Eskimo acquaintance, one must creep through a long tunnel, his house is all walls and no doors, except such a one as an apple with a wormhole has. One might, very probably, trace a regular gradation between these two extremes."—N. Y. Times.

King Alfonso's Mother.

The mother of the young king of Spain is always anxious when his majesty takes his riding lesson. She was nervous when as a baby he only sat astride a wooden horse. Her nervousness in this respect is said to be in consequence of a gypsy woman's prediction when she was younger. The old hag told her her son would meet with a fatal throw from a horse.—N. Y. World.

A Deadly Weapon.

In Guatemala the favorite weapon of the native bandits and desperadoes is a sawed-off muzzle-loading shotgun of the blunderbuss pattern, and when they run short of buckshot they sally out to the railroad and steal a few dozen seals, which are simply disks of soft lead about the size of quarters. Pounded into rough balls, they make projectiles by the side of which a dumdum is an angel of mercy, and when one of their blunderbusses goes off it generally kills everything in sight except the man directly behind it.—N. Y. Herald.

New Use for Liquid Air.

In Germany a furnace has been invented intended for burning low-class fuels, such as lignite and peat, and in which the combustion is intensified by turning into the fire the gaseous mixture obtained by the evaporation of liquid air. The nitrogen is first set free and the residue, containing at least 50 per cent. of oxygen, is sent into the furnace.—Youth's Companion.

Concentrate Yourself.

Get yourself choke-bored; you scatter too much. There are shotguns that scatter to such an extent that they accomplish nothing; they bring down no game. The remedy is to have the gun choke-bored. Genius is concentration of effort; method and order in work. Many a genius fails of recognition because he scatters.—Atchison Globe.

Painfully Neat Dutch Town.

Brock, in Holland, is far famed as the "neatest town in the world." This town is so fastidious that until a few years ago horses were not allowed in its streets for reasons of cleanliness, and the entire town is as scrupulously kept as a man-of-war. It contains 2,700 inhabitants and its main industry is the making of Edam cheese.—N. Y. Sun.

Bad Manager.

Mrs. Black—I'm sure you have a good husband.

Mrs. Green—Yes; but then he is such a wretched manager! If you'll believe it, he went and paid our butcher's and grocer's bills last week when he knew well enough the children and I were just longing for bicycles.—N. Y. World.

The Sexes.

MUCH ACTIVITY IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Convocation of New Brunswick Ended Last Evening in the Grace P. E. Church.

DEFICIT WAS COVERED.

INTERESTING MISSIONARY ADDRESSES AT EVENING SESSION.

Memorials to Be Prepared In Honor of Memory of Two Rectors in The Diocese—Reports Received as to Mission Work—Other Business.

The Convocation of New Brunswick was continued yesterday afternoon at Grace P. E. church, Bishop Scarborough presiding. The report of the executive committee regarding the deficit was taken up, and all but $150 was subscribed. The Convocation then felt justified in making the customary appropriation of about $500.

An interesting letter from the General Missionary Board of the Episcopal church, signed by Bishops Doane, Potter and Sarterlee, was read by Bishop Scarborough. The letter told what has been done in mission work and what is proposed. The reading of this letter was followed by a highly interesting address by Bishop Wells, of Spokane, Wash., who told of his work and the needs for the same. He held the close attention of all during his talk, so vivid did he present his claims before those in attendance.

In honor of the memory of the late Rev. Mr. Schwarts, of Lakewood, and Rev. Mr. Roche, of Eatontown, Bishop Scarborough appointed a committee of three to prepare a memorial to be published in "The Churchman," the denomination paper. Those appointed on the committee are Rev. E. M. Rodman, of Grace church; Rev. H. H. P. Pearse, of South Amboy; Rev. S. H. Sleeper, of Elizabethport. Then followed reports from the various clergymen who have charge of mission work. All reported excellent progress and good results.

In view of the financial condition of the Convocation the Bishop appointed a committee whose duty it shall be to prepare a table of assessment whereby each parish may contribute a certain amount toward the total amount needed for the work. That committee consists of Rev. E. J. Knight, of Trenton; Rev. H. H. P. Pearse, of South Amboy; Augustus A. Devoe, of Spottswood.

One of the very interesting features of the afternoon programme was an essay by Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor on "The Spiritual Body." The subject was treated in a clear manner and elicited the earnest attention of all. He devoted much to the question of the resurrection, both as to theory and fact. Following the presentation of the essay there was an informal discussion, during which Rev. Floyd Appleton made a few helpful remarks.

Before the afternoon session adjourned it was decided to hold the next Convocation at Bernardsville, probably in June. Adjournment was then taken for supper.

Owing to the severe cold there was only a small audience present at the missionary meeting in the evening. Bishop Scarborough opened the meeting and gave a short talk on missions. He spoke of missions in general but did not dwell on any special place for the work. He thought that missionary work was something that everyone should be interested in and do all in their power to help along.

Rev. Mr. MacKellar, of Red Bank, gave a short talk on missions in general. Among the places that he mentioned was the United States, and he thought that the work could not be started in a better place than right here at home. He pointed out the need of all giving liberally to the support of missions so that the work could be pushed along as fast as possible.

Rev. Mr. Fielding, of the Mission Home in Trenton, was the last speaker of the evening, and he talked at some length on the missionary work in Alaska among the Esquimaux. He said that of all the places that had missionaries, he thought that Alaska was the most in need of more missionary stations. "To think," he said, "That the Esquimoux learned all the popular songs of the day in about six months after they have been printed, and that it has been nineteen hundred years, and yet they have not heard of Christ."

He urged all to put their shoulder to the wheel and aid in the work of missions. He hoped that they would see it in the same light that he did and push forward the good work.

FOR MOODY MEMORIAL DAY.

NEXT SUNDAY WILL BE GENERALLY OBSERVED THROUGHOUT LAND.

Plainfield Churches Will Probably Take Part—To Raise Funds to Continue Moody's Work.

The Moody Memorial Endowment committee has arranged to have next Sunday observed among the churches and religious societies throughout the country as a Moody Memorial Day and an effort will be made to secure funds toward the Memorial Endowment. This day will be observed in Plainfield.

The idea is to get funds to perpetuate the labors of the late Dwight L. Moody through the institutions he founded, namely, Northfield Seminary, Northfield Training School, Mount Hermon School and the Moody Bible Institute. The first institution is for young women, the second for men and women, the third for young men and the fourth for men and women. It is proposed to raise a sufficient amount of money to insure the continuation of these institutions in all their present prosperity.

Curtis M. Thorpe, of this city, is the secretary of the executive committee, and any further information concerning the matter will be cheerfully given by him.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WANTS PIANO

MEETING OF OFFICERS AND TEACHERS OF TRINITY SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Considered That Question and Proposed Change of System of Teaching—No Action Taken.

There was a very interesting meeting of the officers and teachers of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school in the church parlors last evening.

Superintendent E. E. Anthony was chairman, and E. H. Bird acted as secretary. The main subjects taken up were a fund for a new piano and a new system to teach the international lessons.

W. D. W. Miller spoke at some length on the subject of a new piano. He said that the Sunday-school was surely in need of one, and thought that some steps should be taken to get one.

After considerable discussion a birthday box was thought to be best to start with, and that, with the other suggestions, was left in the hands of the music committee, to be settled at the next meeting.

The question of how to get more thoroughly acquainted with the Bible was also brought up and a number of useful suggestions were given by some of the teachers.

The intermediate class system was approved by some, but as the subject could not be decided upon at so short notice, it was referred to a committee of five, composed of Robert Clark, Jr., chairman, Horace J. Martin, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, O. W. Dunham and W. F. Oliver, to look into the system and report at the next meeting.

After this subject was settled for the present, all adjourned to the primary room, where a bountiful supper was served.

The Sunday-school committee of the Christian Endeavor Society had charge of the social part of the evening, and is composed of George Bolsterle, chairman; Miss Helen H. Bogart, Miss Anna V. Fenner, Mrs. E. E. Anthony and Henry Seader. They were assisted by Miss Mabel Wilson, Miss Mabel Woodruff and Mrs. J. M. Tier, of the executive committee of the Sunday-school.

Parish Year Book Issued.

The Parish year book has just been issued by Grace P. E. church. It is handsomely printed and the information therein concerning the church and the various societies is complete and interesting. The book also contains a list of the families of the Parish, and many other items of interest to every member.

From Pen of Mrs. Hall.

"The Judgment of Minerva," a bright, sparkling comedy, written by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, is being produced in various parts of the country. The play treats in an amusing fashion of the women who oppose suffrage for women and is full of fun from beginning to end.

Twenty-two In Hospital.

Four new cases were admitted to Muhlenberg Hospital last Tuesday, making the total number about twenty-two. There are no serious cases, however.

Meeting of Legion.

A regular meeting of the Loyal Temperance Legion was held yesterday afternoon, when matters concerning the progress of the society were discussed.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR NEW SPEEDWAY.

Another Meeting of Plainfield Speedway Association Was Held Last Evening.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PROMISED.

LITTLE DIFFICULTY ANTICIPATED IN SECURING CONSENTS.

Expected That All Interested Property Owners Will Willingly Agree to Building of Speedway—Subscriptions Needed.

Another large attendance was present at the second meeting of the Plainfield Speedway Association held in Reed & Coddington's office last evening and by the reports of the various committees it was shown that none of the members had in any way lost the degree of activity displayed at the previous meeting. In the absence of Secretary E. M. French, that office was filled for the time being by P. S. Dayton. Mayor N. B. Smalley presided as chairman.

In behalf of the committee on consents Chairman Charles H. Hand reported that a written form of agreement had been drawn up and that the members of the committee were now in readiness to visit each property owner along the proposed speedway and if possible secure his signature to its contents. Several of the committee had already performed a little preliminary work in the way of speaking to property owners and had met with a most gratifying reception most them declaring their willingness to sign.

Chairman L. M. French, of the committee on subscriptions, reported excellent progress and that a large number of citizens had signified their intention of contributing to the work of the association as soon as the subscription list was properly presented. In order to cover as much territory as possible and to make the committees' work more effective, a list of possible subscribers was given to each member and they will devote the time intervening between the next meeting in visiting the citizens named on the respective lists and secure their contribution or pledge for any amount.

The matter of imposing a membership fee for use in meeting current expenses was brought up and discussed in an informal manner, but no definite action was taken. It will probably be acted upon at some future meeting.

The secretary was instructed to procure two minute books for use in recording minutes, the same to be paid for by the members. As there were no other matters of importance to discuss the meeting was adjourned until next Tuesday evening when further reports will be given.

Women Hold Office in Jersey.

The women suffragists of New Jersey are greatly pleased with a recent report which states that there are twenty-seven women school trustees in this State. They consider this a most favorable sign of the times and they believe that the time is not far distant when more women will have charge or at least an equal vote in the management of the public school system. In the case of the twenty-seven mentioned good work is reported and many desirable changes have been inaugurated.

Sold Out Paint Works.

P. H. Latourette, the auctioneer, disposed of the contents of the Naylor Paint Works yesterday afternoon at the receivers' sale. The entire contents were sold at good prices, and New York parties were the principal buyers. The proceeds from the sale amounted to $927. John Powers, of Elizabeth, is the attorney in the matter, and in a short time the building will be sold.

Lockers in Fire House.

Carpenters are at work putting new lockers in the West Second street engine house. These will be a great convenience to the firemen stationed there, who had no available place to keep their clothes.

Recovering From Accident.

The veteran janitor, Stephen B. Hope, of the Bryant Public School, is much improved from his recent accident. It is Dr. Probasco that is in attendance and not Dr. Jenkins, as previously stated.

Bowling at Park Club.

There will be bowling for mixed doubles at the Park Club this evening and a very enjoyable time is anticipated. Allan B. Laing will be in charge of the affair.

BRUNSWICK LADDIES WON PRIZE GAVEL.

"Firemen's Night" Brought Out a Lively Contest Between Visiting Companies.

BIG CROWD LAST NIGHT.

BOXING BOUT AND COMPETITION CAKE WALK WERE GIVEN.

Phœnix Engine Company, of New Brunswick, Had Largest Attendance of Any Visiting Company—Dunellen Second; Bound Brook Third.

Saengerbund Hall, in which the North Plainfield firemen's fair is being held, proved entirely inadequate for the large crowd which attended last evening. But for the efficient work of Floor Manager L. B. Bodine and a corps of assistants the crush would have proved uncomfortable. Through their efforts, the good natured crowd seemed not to mind the pushing and hauling in the least.

The unusually large attendance was due to the announcement that it would be "Firemen's Night" when visiting companies would contest for a prize. There were three companies entered for the contest, and a handsome gavel was awarded to Phœnix Engine Company, No. 3, of New Brunswick, which brought forty-one members. They came in a special trolley car and were accompanied by a fife and drum corps. The other companies present were Defender Engine Company, No. 1, of Dunellen, with twenty-six members, and No. 3 Hose Company, of Bound Brook, with twenty-one members.

Small delegations were also present from Elizabeth, Somerville and other places.

Dancing was, as usual, the feature of the evening but an additional attraction was a five round boxing match between William Mack, of Elizabethport, and John Ward, of Newark. The contest was a spirited one from the start both men showing a thorough understanding of the art of self defense. The referee declared the bout to be a draw. Another feature of the programme was an competition cake walk, between William McKinley, of this city, and "Dusty," the mascot of the New Brunswick company. The former gave a laughable exhibition and was awarded a handsome cake.

The several contests progressed favorably and the booths also secured an excellent patronage during the evening, the members of the visiting companies purchasing numerous little trinkets for souvenirs.

This evening another excellent programme will be rendered and the various committees are looking forward to another large attendance. The first two nights have proved beyond a doubt that the citizens of the city and borough are anxious to assist the firemen in making the affair a success and at its close a handsome amount will be added to the company's treasury.

Played Quoits.

The members of Protective Conclave, Improved Order of Heptasophs, met last evening and after routine business, they enjoyed quoits. J. P. D. Kirch was defeated by V. W. Nash by a score of 21 to 0. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and V. W. Nash defeated Samuel Boss and C. E. Hepburn two out of three games played, and Samuel Boss and V. W. Nash defeated J. P. D. Kirch and C. E. Hepburn three straight games.

Want Special Instruction.

Owing to the demands made at the Borough High School for tuition by those who are unable to be at the school at the regular sessions, arrangements have been made to accommodate them. Applications should be made to at the school where hours and tuition rates will be arranged.

In Interest of Trolley Line.

There is a meeting scheduled for this evening at the Watchung schoolhouse by those interested in the project of extending a trolley line to that place. It is requested by the promoters that all interested in the scheme will be present.

To Talk Trolley at Watchung.

A meeting of interested property-owners will be held at Watchung this evening to advance the scheme of a trolley through that section. It is said that most of the consents of the property-owners have been secured toward the project.

Endeavor Business Meeting.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church Christian Endeavor Society will be held tomorrow evening at the home of Miss Henrietta Cuming, 1012 Putnam avenue.

HILLSIDE CLUB HELD ITS ANNUAL MEETING

Trustees and Other Officers Elected for the Year—Changes to Constitution.

GEO. A. CHAPMAN PRESIDENT

DECIDED NOT TO INCREASE THE INITIATION FEE OF ACTIVE MEMBERS.

Limit of Non-Resident Membership Increased to Fifty—A Few Resignations But Enough Applicants to Fill Active Membership of the Club.

The annual meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club was held last evening at the Casino with a very good attendance of members. George A. Chapman, president of the club, occupied the chair. Several amendments to the constitution were offered and with one exception all were adopted.

The first amendment changed the number from twenty five to fifty as the limit for non-resident members. The second amendment provided for a change in the wording in article 8, section 2, but there is no special significance to this change. The third amendment offered, which was not adopted, was to raise the entrance fee from $15 to $25. The last amendment changed the fee for non resident members from $12 to $15

The committee on nominations proposed the following candidates for trustees to serve for three years, Ernest R. Ackerman, George P. Mellick, Lewis E. Waring; for the unofficial members of the committee on nominations for 1901, John T. Baker, Townsend Bushmore and H. Reeve Stockton All were elected unanimously.

It was stated that the active membership limit, 250, had been reached. There are eight or nine resignations, however, to take effect March 31, but there are enough applicants, however, to bring the membership up the limit and fill the list.

The report of the treasurer, Jan van Herwerden, was presented, and it was received with a great deal of satisfaction by the members. The financial condition of the club is flourishing, which is a source of gratification to all. A synopsis of the report was recently published in The Daily Press.

After the meeting the members of the Board of Trustees met and elected the following officers: President, Geo. A. Chapman; secretary, A. H. Atterbury; treasurer, Jan vanHerwerden. George P. Mellick was elected chairman of the house committee and he will select the other members of his committee.

There are a number of details of more or less importance to be arranged later. The opening of the course will depend entirely on the condition of the weather. It is practically decided that the same help shall be employed at the club during the coming season, and a very prosperous one is predicted by the officers and members of the club. As soon as other details are arranged the season's schedule will be arranged and made public.

ENTERTAINED CLUB.

Pleasant Evening Spent at Home of Mrs. Kelley, of East Second Street.

The East End Twentieth Century Euchre Club was entertained last evening by Mrs. Kelly, of East Second street, and a very pleasant time was had by the entire membership. Miss Lizzie Piker won the first prize for the women, while Miss Abby Graham won the second prize. For the men, William Abbott won first prize and H. C. Corsa the second prize. Horace Huff was awarded the booby prize.

After play an informal dance was enjoyed by the club and at a late hour refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wikoff, of Watchung avenue, will entertain the club in two weeks.

Cooking Classes Started.

The cooking department of the borough manual training school opened this afternoon. The sessions will be every Wednesday and Thursday from two until half-past three o'clock. The grammar school will have their session every Thursday from 11:30 until 1 o'clock.

To Attend Wedding.

Lawyer Clarence L. Murphy, of the firm of Murphy & Blatz, went to Easton, Pa., today, where he will attend this evening the marriage of Miss Rhoda B. Brakeley, niece of Dr. Brakeley, of Dunellen. Dr. Brakeley's daughter will be one of the bridemaids.

MUSICAL ARTISTS PLEASED.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR BENEFIT OF PARK AVENUE BAPTIST SCHOOL.

Winans and Cassler, Musical and Comedy Artists, Were Chief Entertainers.

The first of a series of entertainments for the benefit of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school was given in the Sunday-school room last evening. Despite the extreme cold weather there was a large audience present.

There was no formal programme, but each number was announced by Joseph M. Hawkins. The first on the list was an overture by Winans and Cassler, the musical artists, who had been engaged for the evening. They played a duet on the banjo and xylophone, which was heartily received by the audience.

This was followed by Mr. Winans playing "The Holy City" on the bottles, which was loudly encored and repeated. Following this selection Mrs. C. F. Dayton gave a very pleasing recitation. Miss Arline Brown followed with another recitation, which was well received.

The remaining portion of the evening was given up to the musical artists who kept the audience in continual applause by their comedy and other sketches.

NEW SIDEWALKS FOR FANWOOD

RESIDENTS DECLARE IN FAVOR OF CONCRETE WALKS AT A MEETING.

Fanwood Borough Council Plans to Replace Old Gravel and Crushed Stone Walks at Small Additional Cost.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Fanwood, Feb. 6.—A public meeting was held by the Borough Council Monday evening for the purpose of getting the opinions of the taxpayers regarding the plan of replacing the gravel and crushed stone walks through the borough with concrete. The Council have had several estimates upon the work and have brought the matter up at several of the Council meetings, but it was decided to give the taxpayers a chance to meet with them and discuss the proposed improvement before taking any decided action in the matter.

The meeting was well attended and while some few were opposed to the improvement the majority of the taxpayers favored the plan, and there is but little doubt but what in the near future the Council will decide to have the old walks replaced with a fine concrete walk.

The plan proposed is to have the walks, of which there are over five miles, laid in slabs, four feet square and two inches thick. This will enable them to repair the walks at any time by simply replacing a broken slab with a new one or the slabs can be removed at any time and put down in another place.

The contract most favored by the committee gives the borough a five years' guarantee against frost or any other ordinary damage to the walk. If the work is started ten year bonds will probably be issued, and each taxpayer will bear his proportionate share of the improvement, having it added each year to his tax bill. This will make the improvement so cheap that the taxpayers will be enabled to enjoy good sidewalks at but a trifle more expense than the cost each year of keeping the old walks in a passable condition.

NEW MEN ON DUTY.

New Policemen Were Temporarily Assigned to Beats Last Evening—Uniforms Not Yet Arrived.

Charles P. Gamo and Charles Flynn, two of the new policemen appointed at the last meeting of the Common Council, were assigned to duty for the first time last night. Flynn patrolled West Seventh and West Eighth streets and the former was placed on Watchung avenue.

The beats were only temporary, however, as the regular monthly shift of all the patrolmen will take place this evening when they will be permanently assigned. Herbert L. Overbaugh, the third officer will not begin his new duties until next week. All three of the officers will remain in civilian's clothes until their winter suits can be made.

PITNEY APPOINTED TO SUPREME COURT BENCH

Name Sent to Senate by Governor Yesterday and Was Immediately Approved.

SEVERAL BILLS PASSED.

SENATOR REED MAY BE APPOINTED VICE CHANCELLOR.

Senator Hupspeth Introduced Bill Providing for Appointment of Two Additional Judges—Reed Introduced Constitutional Amendment.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 6.—All possible doubts over State Senator Mahlon Pitney's appointment to the bench of the State Supreme Court were settled at the session of the State Legislature yesterday. Governor Voorhees sent Mr. Pitney's name to the Senate as his choice for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and the nomination was immediately confirmed. It will take effect November 16. Garret D. W. Vroom, of Trenton, was appointed to succeed Judge Hendrickson in the Court of Errors and Appeals. The Senate will report on it later.

Yesterday proved a busy day for the legislators. Beside the appointments which went to the Senate, both Houses considered a number of bills, passed several important ones, rejected others and received a number of new ones. Both Houses then adjourned for the week.

The constitutional amendments proposed by the New Jersey Bar Association were introduced in the Senate in the form of a concurrent resolution by Mr. Reed for the President. The essential features of the amendments are the creation of an independent Court of Errors, consisting of a chief judge and four associate judges; making the Vice Chancellors constitutional officers, and providing for their appointment by the Governor, instead of by the Chancellor, and making the Court of Pardons consist of the Governor, the Chancellor and the Attorney-General. Besides simplifying the present judicial system, the amendments, if adopted, would make the Supreme courts entirely separate from the courts whose judgments they review.

A bill which also affects the judiciary was introduced in the Senate by Mr. Hudspeth, providing for the appointment of not more than two additional Vice-Chancellors by the Chancellor for a term of seven years. It is rumored that Senator Chas. A. Reed, of Somerset, will probably be appointed to one of these offices if the bill passes.

Among the other bills introduced in the Senate were the following:

By Mr. McKee—Giving gas companies power to mortgage their real estate or personal property, including franchises when necessary.

By Mr. McKee—Amending the Veterans act, relative to the removal from office of old soldiers by eliminating from its provisions statutory offices, so that it shall not apply to constitutional offices or positions with a fixed term.

By Mr. Smith—Providing for scientific investigation of the propagation of oysters by the director of the biological department of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station at New Brunswick.

By Mr. Carter—Providing that the secretary and each member of the Board of Taxation shall receive $300 annually for expenses.

The Senate passed Mr. Pitney's bill permitting Princeton University to add five members to its Board of Trustees. The House concurrent resolution providing for a suitable memorial to the new battleship New Jersey also was passed by the Senate.

The House passed Mr. Abbett's bill providing for the appointment by the Governor of five commissioners to revise the statutes relative to taxation. The House passed Senator Cross's bill preventing the acting Mayor of Elizabeth from signing ordinances as Mayor of the city; also the House bill permitting the Common Council of Englewood by a two-thirds vote to remove any officer of the city.

Mr. Lord's bill making it a misdemeanor for Councilmen to refuse to divide election districts where there are more than six hundred voters was lost by a vote of 17 to 32. This bill applied to the Oranges.

LITERARY.

The February issue of Leslie's Monthly is full of entertaining features, and while the number has a decidedly individual character, it appeals by its variety to the most diverse tastes. For those who love the water, there is an article on the "Fishermen of the Great Lakes," a race trained to one of the most fascinating of trades. For the lover of art there is a pleasant paper of reminiscences of Ridgway Knight, filled with beautiful illustrations. For those who prefer adventure, the "Sand Hogs of Caisson Sinking" will prove absorbing, and all who care for the study of human nature will read with keen interest the true history of "The Last of the Fighting Editors," a class which has given to the journalism of the west and south its piquant flavor.

Frank Marcley, of Woodhull & Martin's store, has planned to take a trip to Buffalo next month, when he gets his week's vacation.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"The Game Keeper," that will be presented at Music Hall tonight, is unlike any other Irish comedy drama that has been produced in the past decade. The play treats of a simple life in the Emerald Isle, showing love, hatred, passion and intrigue. Con. T. Murphy, the author of "The Ivy Leaf" and "The Fairies Well," changed almost his entire methods in writing "The Game Keeper." Smith O'Brien is the star of this attraction, and of his work as an actor, and his clever singing and dancing too much cannot be said. He is ably supported by the recognized "Colleen" of America, Miss Kitty Coleman, of Chauncey Olcott's and the late Dan McCarthy's companies. The rest of the cast is also very capable, including a very clever child artist, Baby Mildred. The production requires an abundance of special scenery which is all carried by the company.

"The Old Homestead" is the attraction at Music Hall Saturday night and that it is to play here is a welcome announcement, bringing to our minds a host of kindly sentiments. It is far more interesting to know, however, that Denman Thompson will accompany the piece himself, and appear in the part he made famous as the ideal Yankee. This is the first time in many seasons Mr. Thompson has visited this section, or, in fact, left the east at all, and is assured of a reception that will equal the occasion of his last visit here. The sale of seats is now in progress.

One of the most magnificently staged melo-dramas ever seen in this country will be at Music Hall next Monday night, when Cari A. Haswin's superb production of "A Lion's Heart," which has to its credit a run of over one thousand times in London, will be produced. The thrilling and interesting story is ably told by Mr. Haswin, who plays the part of Pierre Rizardo, a lion tamer, and a company of well-known players.

"The Eleventh Hour," a comedy in five acts, will be presented at Music Hall on Wednesday of next week. It contains many bright situations and climaxes and most gorgeous scenery; the cast is composed of thoroughly competent artists, and the play has made one of the greatest "hits" of the season. The play was written by Lincoln J. Carter author of the "Fast Mail," "Heart of Chicago," "Down Mobile," "The Flaming Arrow" and other successes: scenery by Messrs. Buhler and Mann, the well-known scenic artists.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours, G. H. KENYON.

MRS. FORCH.

IT WAS COSTLY.

The State Asked to Pay $40,000 For Gardiner Investigation.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—The state is now being called on to appropriate money to defray the expenses of the investigation into the affairs of former District Attorney Asa Bird Gardiner's office in New York city, and according to claims and estimates made at the meeting of the senate finance committee the investigation instituted last February, which was not the one that resulted in Mr. Gardiner's removal, will cost the state upward of $40,000 and possibly more. Ansley Wilcox, a Buffalo lawyer, who was appointed by Governor Roosevelt a commissioner to take the evidence taken against Mr. Gardiner, put in a claim for $10,000, which he said was moderate, and Attorney General Davies corroborated him in the statement. Mr. Wilcox claimed that he made his bill moderate so as to avoid criticism. He had been paid $2,500 on account by the state and hoped that the gentlemen of the finance committee would have the item for the remainder inserted in the supply bill.

The stenographers' bill, Mr. Wilcox said, would amount to more than his claim. The stenographers' bill, it was stated, would amount to upward of $12,000.

Attorney General Davies made a statement to the committee in which he said he was in no way responsible for these extra charges.

Police Bill Passed.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—The bill providing for a single commissioner of police for New York city was mailed to Mayor Van Wyck last night. It passed the assembly yesterday by a vote of 101 to 43. The vote was on strict party lines. It was taken after a whole afternoon devoted to debate, in which very little interest was manifested. The determination of the assembly to pass the bill was so well known that the eloquence of the orators was wasted. There were very few spectators in the chamber at any time during the debate, and there was a very large proportion of empty chairs on the floor of the assembly. The expectation is that Mayor Van Wyck will hold the bill for the full 15 days allowed by law and then send it back to the legislature without his approval. It will then be passed over the mayor's veto by the senate and assembly and signed by the governor. It will probably become a law by Feb. 22.

FAMOUS PAPYRI FOUND.

Recently Discovered Specimens For American Colleges.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—The unique gift of 118 papyri to American universities by the Egypt Exploration Fund of London has recently been announced. These papyri for immediate distribution have just reached Rev. Dr. W. C. Winslow of Boston, the American vice president of the society, who has examined a portion of them. Among the 16 papyri for Yale are portions of a lost comedy of the second century and of Plato's Republic of the century before and after Christ. Harvard's share includes a fragment of Paul's epistle to the Romans, of Aloman, the chief lyric poet of Sparta, 631 B. C., and 17 other papyri. Columbia receives Zenophon's Hellenica, first century, a letter to the king of Macedon and 14 other pieces.

Johns Hopkins gets extracts from Thucydides of the second century, two of Demosthenes on the crown and 13 other fragments. A piece of Herodotus of the second century, a complete contract for a loan in the reign of Nero and 11 other pieces are assigned to Princeton. Of five papyri for Hamilton college one is a letter to the clerk of the court in the time of Trajan acknowledging the receipt of a will, and of four payri to Vassar college one is about a loan of 3,000 drams of silver which shows that 8 per cent interest was then paid (third century). Of the total 118 papyri 29 are presented to the University of Pennsylvania.

The larger part of the papyri are from Oxyrhymcus and the rest from various sites. The former is where the "Sayings of Jesus" were found by the society and also portions of St. Matthew, Mark and John far antedating any other known texts.

IS CHARLIE ROSS.

Man In Chicago Says He Is the Long Sought Individual.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Eugene I. Gowell visited detective headquarters here and announced that he is the long sought for Charlie Ross who was kidnaped from Germantown, Pa., in 1874. Gowell says he remembers nothing, however, of the kidnaping.

"I was brought up in Los Angeles," he said, "believing Mrs. Clara Robbins, with whom I lived, to be my mother. She married John or William Gowell, and I took her husband's name. The fact that I was only an adopted child was told me by my half brother, Clarence. Some years ago I left home and have since traveled about the country. Mr. and Mrs. Gowell still live in Los Angeles. Some time ago I told my story in Logansport, Ind., and was adjudged insane for my pains."

Heavy Snow In Maine.

BANGOR, Me., Feb. 6.—One of the heaviest snowstorms of the winter has been in progress here since 5:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon. More than a foot of snow has fallen, and railway traffic is delayed. The storm west of here was more severe, but north of Bangor the snowfall has been lighter. Trolley service has almost been suspended, and traffic about the city is generally impeded.

PLANS FOR NEW ARMY

Presidential Nominations Sent to the Senate.

THREE MAJOR GENERALS NAMED.

Miles to Be Lieutenant General—Regiments Being Rapidly Formed and Will Be Sent Forward at an Early Date.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Secretary Root states that the military appointments made yesterday do not involve necessarily any change of commands in the Philippines and that there is no purpose of relieving General MacArthur of the supreme command of that division in the immediate future. Generals Wade and Ludlow, who recently were ordered to the Philippines, will relieve Generals Young and Bates, who have served in that country for over two years.

The following nominations were sent to the senate yesterday:

To be Lieutenant General of the Army—Major General Nelson A. Miles.

To be Major Generals—Brigadier General Samuel B. Young, Colonel Adna R. Chaffee, Eighth cavalry; Brigadier General Arthur MacArthur.

To be Brigadier Generals—Colonel John C. Bates, Second infantry; Colonel Lloyd Wheaton, Seventh infantry; Colonel George W. Davis, Twenty-third infantry; Colonel Theodore Schwan, assistant adjutant general; Colonel Samuel S. Sumner, Sixth cavalry; Captain Leonard Wood, assistant surgeon; Colonel Robert H. Hall, Fourth infantry; Colonel Robert P. Hughes, inspector general; Colonel George M. Randall, Eighth infantry; Major William A. Kobbe, Third artillery; Brigadier General Frederick D. Grant, U. S. V.; Captain J. Franklin Bell, Seventh cavalry.

Plans for the new army are now well under way, and the two battalions of the first new regiment, to be known as the Twenty-sixth infantry, are already organized. These two battalions were formed of recruits on hand at San Francisco and will be officered temporarily by officers under orders for Philippine service. The first battalion will sail from San Francisco for Manila about the middle of the present month, and the second battalion will follow in about two weeks. The Eleventh infantry will be detained in the United States until a new regiment is formed to take its place.

The final orders for the departure of eight troops of the Fifth cavalry were prepared yesterday. The two squadrons selected consist of the troops now stationed at Fort Myer and in Arizona. The squadron at Jefferson barracks will remain in this country as the home squadron. The troops of this regiment going to the Philippines are not expected to get away until some time in March. Meanwhile the Tenth infantry is expected to return from Cuba and go direct from New Orleans to San Francisco, where it will embark for Manila.

Bold Philadelphia Robbery.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Clarence V. Wallace, a contracting agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, is lying critically ill at home in this city as the result of an encounter Monday night with a negro highwayman, who secured $68 belonging to Mr. Wallace and then fled. The assault occurred in front of the Fourth street entrance to the Bourse, where Mr. Wallace has an office, and at a time when the street was crowded with persons returning from work. The negro asked Mr. Wallace for assistance in getting something to eat. He was handed 5 cents, whereupon he demanded more and reached for Mr. Wallace's watch and chain, at the same time knocking him down. The negro quickly put his hand in the railroad man's inside pocket and secured a wallet containing the money. Mr. Wallace was picked up unconscious and taken home, where he has since remained unconscious. His head is badly cut.

Railway Strike In Spain.

MADRID, Feb. 6.—The strike on the railroad to the Portugal frontier is causing a great dislocation of traffic. Only a few trains are running, and they are worked by military engineers. The engines and cars are lying deserted on the tracks. A general strike of all the trades at Gijon, a fortified seaport town of Spain, 11 miles from Ovideo on the bay of Biscay, growing out of the eight hour question has assumed alarming proportions. Over 15,000 men are out. The strikers thus far have been quiet, but martial law has been proclaimed throughout the province and the government has drafted there a sufficient force of troops to cope with any emergency. Several influential newspapers support the strikers, who declare they are justified in the action taken by the miserable conditions of labor. The minister of the interior, Senor Ugarte, is trying to secure a settlement on the basis of an increase of wages.

Two Lives Lost In Railroad Collision.

OLEAN, N. Y., Feb. 6.—A wreck that cost two lives occurred on the Erie railroad at Carrollton, N. Y., last evening. East bound passenger train No. 10 ran into the engine and caboose of freight train No. 94 that was standing on a siding about a train's length from the switch. The dead are Joseph Walters, freight engineer, of Hornellsville, and W. H. McDermott, freight conductor, of Hornellsville. Fireman Charles Gallagher of Hornellsville of the passenger train was crushed about the ribs, but will recover.

Window Glass Tank Destroyed.

SPRING CITY, Pa., Feb. 6.—The large window glass tank of the Penn Window Glass company, located here, was entirely destroyed by fire last night. There were 400 tons of liquid glass in the tank at the time it caught fire, and the loss is estimated at $40,000, partially covered by insurance. The fire was caused by a leak in the tank. The company is composed of State Attorney General Elkin, President pro tem. of the Senate Snyder, Superintendent of State Public Buildings Eyre and two other persons.

Postoffice and Mail Destroyed.

WELLSTOWN, O., Feb. 6.—Fire yesterday gutted the postoffice building and destroyed a large quantity of mail matter. The fire also damaged the First National bank, J. J. Vandervoort's wallpaper and book store and the Knights of Pythias hall. No estimate of the losses has been made.

Smallpox In Glasgow.

GLASGOW, Feb. 6.—Twenty fresh cases of smallpox and nine deaths from that disease were reported yesterday. There are now 433 cases in the hospitals.

POLICE PROTECT HER

Mrs. Nation Wrecks Another Saloon In Topeka.

KEEPER OF THE "JOINT" ARRESTED.

Mrs. Nation Taken to the Police Station, but Is Immediately Released—Great Rush For Souvenirs.

TOPEKA, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Carrie Nation and three followers yesterday wrought damage to the extent of $1,500 in the "Senate," the finest equipped "joint" in Topeka. She did more, for she gained the first police protection given her since she started out on her saloon smashing career at Wichita a month ago. The police followed up her raid of yesterday and arrested the proprietor of the "Senate" and two men who were guarding the place. Mrs. Nation was arrested, but promptly released.

Mrs. Nation and her wreckers, each armed with a hatchet, sallied forth at daybreak. They forced their way past a negro who guarded the door of the "Senate" and in less than ten minutes had strewn the floor with broken mirrors, bottles, slot machines and splintered bar fixtures. The negro fired a shot of warning into the ceiling, but it had no effect. Presently a policeman stalked leisurely into the room and said, "Well, Sister Nation, I guess we'll have to arrest you again."

Mrs. Nation had just smashed the last bottle and was ready to go.

"All right," she responded cheerily; "you came just when I wanted you to."

She turned back as she reached the door and inquired, "Everything cleaned up, ladies?"

The police judge was glad to release her when she appeared for trial and administered a rebuke to that official. Mrs. Nation soon walked down Kansas avenue free again.

During the afternoon two deputies from Sheriff Cooke's office arrested Wagner, Shep Little and two guards and took charge of the stock of liquors.

Later Chief of Police Stahl, in an interview with a reporter, said:

"I do not care if Mrs. Nation smashes every 'joint' in Topeka. I sympathize with her. I hope she will close up the saloons of the city. As an officer of the law, though, it is my duty to arrest her every time she creates a disturbance or destroys property. If we had the right kind of state officers, it would not be necessary for Mrs. Nation to do what she is doing."

After Mrs. Nation and her followers had departed from the wrecked "Senate" and the place had been reopened for business by the proprietor the crowd in the saloon soon became so large that it required four bartenders to wait on them.

By 9 o'clock the crowd numbered nearly 200, and from the time the police raided the place it fluctuated between 200 and 250. Among those present were advocates of temperance who wished to see the work of the crusaders. The crowd around the bar demanded souvenirs, and the bartenders gathered up bits of glass from the broken mirror, giving away a small piece with every glass of beer. A man stationed himself at the front door and cried, "Souvenirs with each and every glass of beer." Those who did not drink begged for souvenirs. Small pieces of glass sold for 5 cents.

Newfoundland Governors.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 6.—Sir Henry Edward McCallum, the retiring governor of Newfoundland, will sail March 4 for England, en route for Natal, to whose governorship he has been assigned. Sir Cavendish Boyle, governor elect of Newfoundland, will leave Demerara Feb. 23, visiting London about the middle of March and reaching here early in May. During the interregnum Chief Justice Little will be the acting governor of Newfoundland. An official proclamation just issued summons the legislature to meet Feb. 21 in special session to renew the French shore modus vivendi for the current year.

Assay Office Superintendent Ill.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Andrew Mason is seriously ill with pneumonia at his residence in Orange, N. J. Mr. Mason has been connected with the assay department of the United States government for more than 50 years and for 17 years past has been superintendent of the assay office in Wall street, New York. Mr. Mason is over 70 years of age. As a result of the discovery of a cheaper method of separating gold and silver Mr. Mason has saved the United States hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Bank Thief Arrested.

ROSSLAND, B. C., Feb. 6.—Charles A. Hinckley, alias Charles S. Morris, has been arrested in Conconoly, a mining camp in Washington, just south of the boundary line. Hinckley was the paying teller of the West Side bank, New York, from the time it started, in 1868, to May 14, 1881. On that day he disappeared and with him went $97,000 of the bank's funds. It is claimed he went back in disguise when his wife died several years afterward and attended her funeral.

Snowstorm In Northern New York.

ROUSE POINT, N. Y., Feb. 6.—The worst wind and snow storm of the season is raging throughout northern New York and the Adirondacks. Trains on all railroads are from 2 to 12 hours late. On the Ogdensburg and Lake Champlain division of the Rutland road no trains have been got through for 24 hours. The snow is drifting, and it is very cold. There have been 74 days of continuous sleighing so far this season.

Colonel Dady Returns.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Among the passengers who arrived per Ward line steamer Mexico from Havana was Colonel M. C. Dady, who has been prosecuting his claim against the city of Havana in relation to the sewerage and paving contracts. Colonel Dady brought home a check for $250,000 and signed off all claims. However, this signing off does not prevent him from bidding for the work at the proper time.

Scandinavian Queen Ill.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—"The queen of Sweden and Norway is suffering from a dangerous affection of the throat," says the Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily Telegraph. "Her strength is much reduced and her condition very serious."

The Black Eagle For Roberts.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Emperor William has conferred upon Earl Roberts the Order of the Black Eagle, the highest German decoration.

WATCHING THE COAST.

Cape Colonists on a Sharp Lookout British Loss at Modderfontein.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 6.—Officials have been dispatched to watch all the bays along the west coast of Cape Colony against the landing of mercenaries or arms.

With the exception of one all the guns of the British cruiser Sybille, wrecked last month near Lambert's bay, have been recovered.

The Boers captured 200 British when they rushed Modderfontein Jan. 30. The prisoners were subsequently released. Thirty British were killed or wounded.

An order has been gazetted permitting the importation of goods into the Transvaal, subject to a military permit.

The newly formed guard for the Rand mines left Stellingbosh for Johannesburg last Wednesday.

The island of Reunion has been declared infected with bubonic plague.

Want War Stopped.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 6.—At a meeting of Boer sympathizers here attended by some 5,000 people a resolution was adopted appealing to Great Britain to stop the war in South Africa. Christian De Wet a nephew of the Boer commander, who was present, was carried around the hall on the shoulders of the promoters of the meeting.

Boers Driven From Vanrhynsdorp.

CLANWILLIAM, Feb. 6.—Colonel Brander drove the Boers out of Vanrhynsdorp, capturing a number of wagons and a quantity of merchandise. All the farms in this region are deserted. The only being found except armed Boers was an English governess on one of the farms.

De Wet's Intentions.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A special dispatch from Cape Town says that General De Wet, according to Cape Town reports, intends to annex various districts of Cape Colony and then to commandeer men and supplies, although he is now urging the colonists not to join him.

PRENUPTIAL FESTIVITIES.

The Hague In Gala Attire—Light and Mirth Everywhere.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 6.—Yesterday was marked by further receptions in connection with the forthcoming marriage of Queen Wilhelmina and Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. Additional guests arrived at the palace, and there were more choral serenades. Everybody is wearing a rosette or other favor.

In the evening a state banquet was given at the palace in honor of the foreign envoys. Earlier in the day there was a reception at the German legation.

The gala performance at the theater presented a brilliant spectacle. The house was draped in pale blue and beautifully illuminated by electric light. Flowers were everywhere in profusion.

The city was magnificently illuminated last night, and the streets were crowded.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Masonic temple at Toledo was burned. Loss, $150,000.

Sarah Bernhardt took out insurance policy for $100,000.

Chicago saloon keepers were arrested for violating Sunday law.

Rail communication with Europe via Bering strait is predicted.

Transport McPherson went ashore on Cuban coast eight miles west of Matanzas.

Governor Voorhees of New Jersey nominated Senator Pitney for supreme court justice.

Exposition hotel, Binghamton, N. Y., was burned. Two dead and three fatally injured.

Arrest was made in Philadelphia in connection with robbery of Adams Express car.

McPherson Going to Pieces.

HAVANA, Feb. 6.—A heavy easterly wind swung the United States transport McPherson broadside to the shore last night. She pounded a large hole amidships, her fires are under water, the engines have shifted, and the shaft has sprung. There is no hope of saving her, as she will sink if she is pulled off. She is rolling in the heavy seas and pounding badly, and she will go to pieces if the wind increases. The McPherson struck on a reef eight miles west of Matanzas in a fog while on her way from New York to Matanzas. She ran up on the reef about half her length. All the passengers were transferred in the ship's boats.

Youtsey Sentenced.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Feb. 6.—Henry E. Youtsey, stenographer to Governor Taylor during his incumbency and who was tried as a principal in the shooting of Governor William Goebel and found guilty, was arraigned before Judge Cantrill late yesterday and sentenced to life imprisonment. When sentence was pronounced, Youtsey exclaimed: "I am innocent. I have been convicted by base and infamous subornation of perjury." No appeal will be taken, and the prisoner will be taken to state prison shortly.

Home and Children Burned.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Feb. 6.—A fire, supposed to have been started by tramps, destroyed the residence and farm buildings of Guy Whiteside of Tynehead and burned to death his two children, who were asleep when the flames broke out. Whiteside rescued his wife with difficulty, and the two made frantic efforts to save the children, but were driven back by the smoke. Search is being made for the supposed incendiaries.

Colliery to Start Up.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 6.—Work has been resumed on the Scott shaft, owned by the Union Coal company. Five years ago the shaft, after being sunk, was allowed to fill with water owing to the then poor coal trade. Tunnels and gangways are being driven, and when the colliery is put in operation employment will be given to 800 men and boys.

Martinelli to Be a Cardinal.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The Rome correspondent of the Temps says a letter from the Vatican has been posted to Archbishop Martinelli, the apostolic delegate in the United States, notifying him that he will be created a cardinal.

CHEERS FOR THE KAISER.

London Gives William of Germany a Rousing Send Off.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—London's voice, which had been pent up for a fortnight in the presence of the dead, resounded yesterday with shouts of good will for Emperor William during his progress through the city. Flags were run mast high, and many stands which were covered with purple on Saturday were decked in red and gold.

The hour of the kaiser's arrival at Paddington was such that business people of the West End were enabled to curtail their lunch time and see the bright cavalcade. The king's wish that the people of the capital should have an opportunity to show their appreciation of Emperor William's devotion was only announced Tuesday morning, yet over 100,000 persons gathered between Paddington and Marlborough House.

King Edward, the kaiser and the German crown prince arrived at Paddington station from Windsor at 1:28 o'clock.

A troop of the Royal Horse guards, with shining helmets and cuirasses and wearing their white breeches, preceded at an easy trot the open landau from which the kaiser gravely saluted in response to the uninterrupted cheering.

The royal party that took part in the luncheon at Marlborough House included the king, the kaiser, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Christian and the Marquis of Lansdowne, secretary of state for foreign affairs.

The crowd remained about Marlborough House for an hour. There was a great cheer as the escort of the Horse guards reappeared at 3 o'clock, and the carriages soon resumed their journey to Charing Cross station, where the kaiser took a train for Port Victoria.

The enthusiasm of the people culminated in a great demonstration at Charing Cross station.

IN CONGRESS.

Shipping Bill Laid Aside, but Senators Say It Will Pass.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The senate yesterday passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill and partially considered the bill making appropriations for the support of the West Point military academy. During the day the ship subsidy bill by a vote of the senate was formally laid aside and superseded as the unfinished business.

The house continued discussion of controverted questions in regard to the postoffice appropriation bill. Mr. Griggs of Georgia spoke against the organizations of postal employees as existing with a view to forcing legislation in their interest. Mr. Moody of Massachusetts discussed the question of railway mail pay from the standpoint of a member of the joint postal commission. Mr. Bromwell of Ohio and Mr. Gaines of Tennessee assailed the appropriations for special mail facilities from New York to New Orleans and Mr. Catchings of Mississippi and Mr. Meyer of Louisiana defended these appropriations as necessary for the expedition of the southern mail.

The Republicans who favor the shipping bill declare that the measure will pass. They say the night sessions will soon dispose of the speeches to be made on the bill and that it will come to a vote. The opponents of the measure still claim they can defeat it. They point out that they will make no opposition to the appropriation bills, but are ready to debate the shipping bill at any length.

PATENT OFFICE REPORT.

Over 26,000 Grants Recorded During the Coming Year.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The report of the commissioner of patents for 1900 shows that during the year there were received 39,673 applications for patents, 2,225 applications for designs, 82 applications for reissue, 2,099 applications for registration of trademarks, 943 applications for registration of labels and 127 applications for registration of prints. There were 26,418 patents granted, including designs, 81 patents reissued, 1,721 trademarks registered and 737 labels and 93 prints. The number of patents that expired was 21,196. The number of allowed applications that were forfeited for nonpayment of the final fees was 4,215. The total expenditures were $1,-260,019.

The receipts over expenditures were $90,808. The total balance to the credit of the patent office in the treasury of the United States on Jan. 1, 1901, was $5,177,458. During the year 1,070 patents were granted to residents of Germany, 987 to those of England, 367 to those of Canada and 341 to those of France.

A Whipping Post Bill.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 6.—A whipping post bill was presented in the legislature by Mr. Freeman of Hartford. It provides for the restoration of the whipping post for all offenses by boys under 16 years of age when punishable by other means than imprisonment for life. The court may impose 20 strokes of the lash in lieu of a penal sentence or of commitment to the reform school. The bill also provides that any male found guilty of beating or assaulting a woman, or of attempting to commit robbery accompanied by great physical violence, or of kidnaping a minor to obtain a ransom, or of being a tramp and while being such of threatening women and children or endeavoring to secure anything of value, may be moderately whipped in lieu of or in addition to imprisonment.

Confederate Pensions.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 6.—By a decisive majority the house of representatives yesterday passed a bill appropriating $200,000 for Confederate pensions. This is double the amount heretofore appropriated for this purpose. The author of the bill is Captain J. Hampton Brooks of Greenwood, younger brother of Preston S. Brooks, who caned Charles Sumner in the United States senate before the civil war.

Mrs. Wolcott Dead.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Wolcott, 79 years of age, mother of United States Senator Wolcott of Colorado, is dead in the family home in Longmeadow, Mass. Her husband, Rev. Dr. Samuel Wolcott, was a missionary in Syria and was settled over the Longmeadow Congregational church in 1843. Mrs. Wolcott's maiden name was Harriet Pope, and she was born in Oxford, Mass.

New Alarm System For Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—The police of Berlin contemplate adopting a new general alarm system. This will involve the erection of booths throughout the city showing behind lighted tables automatic electric announcements when murders, bank robberies and other crimes are committed.

A JOINT CONFERENCE

Chinese Plenipotentiaries Meet Foreign Envoys.

PUNISHMENTS UNDER CONSIDERATION

Chinese Ministers Seem Anxious to Come to Terms—Li Hung Chang Weak and Unable to Walk.

PEKING, Feb. 6.—The Chinese plenipotentiaries, Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang, had a protracted meeting yesterday with the foreign envoys. Twelve names of prominent Chinese officials were submitted with the request that China keep faith with the powers and punish the persons named commensurately with their offenses.

The Chinese plenipotentiaries replied that China's earnest hope was to carry out fully the demands of the powers and that she felt sure the punishment which would be inflicted would be satisfactory.

It was discovered that 2 out of 12 of the persons named were already dead.

In certain cases the Chinese plenipotentaries gave reasons why the punishment inflicted should be banishment and not death, asserting that in those cases they particularly desired banishment only because the persons in question were so closely related to the throne.

After a long conversation on the subject of punishment it was decided that the foreign envoys should draw up a full list of all accused officials, both national and provincial, with indictments specifying the guilt of each and a statement of the punishment required, which would then be presented to the Chinese plenipotentiaries for definite action.

Li Hung Chang, who is very weak from his recent illness, had to be carried in and out of the British legation. He is unable to walk, but his head seems as clear as ever.

The foreign envoys were impressed with the evident desire of both Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang to come to terms. Prince Ching asked whether, provided China showed by every means in her power a desire to carry out the terms of the joint note, the foreign troops would leave Peking.

The foreign envoys replied that this was a subject they could not discuss beyond saying that, if everything were satisfactory, they believed the powers would begin to withdraw the troops early in the coming spring, but that this depended largely upon the Chinese themselves.

Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang said they desired to know the names of the places where guards would be kept for the purpose of maintaining communication with the sea in accordance with the terms of the joint note.

They were informed that this was a subject regarding which the military authorities had more accurate knowledge than the envoys, but that at present no determination had been reached.

Prince Ching was anxious to know what provision would be made to control the legation guards and to prevent them from disturbing business. He asked if the guards would be allowed over all parts of the city.

To this inquiry the reply was given that the guards would certainly not be allowed to interfere with any avocations of the Chinese, but would be merely kept to guard the legations in case of necessity. Prince Ching was assured that in whatever part of the city the legation guards might go they would be required to conform to laws which would be agreed upon under pain of severe punishment for any infraction.

The Chinese plenipotentiaries also touched upon the question of the forts, asking if it would be necessary to destroy these. As there seemed to be some diversity of opinion among the foreign envoys regarding this matter it was left over until the question of punishment has been definitely decided.

A Message From Waldersee.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Count von Waldersee, dated Peking, Feb. 4:

"The column under General von Trotha which left here Jan. 31 reached Yangfang, 30 kilometers northwest of Peking, Saturday, Feb. 2. Next day the column made an expedition from that point into the mountainous region westward. I leave Peking tomorrow for Shan-haikwan on a visit of inspection. Shall return Feb. 9."

Apologies to Germany.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 6.—A dispatch from Peking says Prince Chun has started for Germany to present the apologies of China for the murder of Baron von Ketteler, the German minister at Peking.

Work on the Constitution.

HAVANA, Feb. 6.—In the Cuban constitutional convention yesterday the question of provincial government came up for discussion, and it was voted that the governors of the provinces should be elected by the direct vote of the people, a motion to have the president appoint them being defeated. Senor Giberga, in the course of a patriotic address, the most stirring speech yet made in the convention, said he was in sympathy with the desire of the revolutionists to form an independent government, but he wished to warn the delegates to proceed intelligently, as a misstep now might result in losing forever that long sought goal which other republics had reached during the last century.

Inauguration Military Parade.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—According to the present plans the military representation will be a splendid feature of the parade on the occasion of President McKinley's second inauguration. The regular army will have a considerable contingent in line, and all the marines at the immediate command of the navy department will be present with a detachment of sailors. It is expected that the states will send a number of their crack militia organizations.

Chemical Works Burned.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The works of the Mutual Chemical company in Jersey City were destroyed by fire last night. The works consisted of seven two story brick buildings. The flames started in the engine room. An official of the works estimates the loss at $30,000.

Mosquito Fleet Sighted.

CAPE SPARTEL, Morocco, Feb. 6.—The United States cruiser Annapolis and the United States gunboats Frolic, Piscataqua and Wompatuck, constituting the mosquito fleet, passed Cape Spartel yesterday going east.

Chance For Improvement.

Now that the bridge over Green brook, connecting Madison avenue and Duer street, has been completed, the public is given a new and not particularly beautiful view of the brook and the property which borders directly on that stream. When the brook and the adjacent property was hidden behind the business blocks which border Front street and the residences on Craig place, the public cared little how the place looked Now, however, that it has been opened up to public view, the present unsightliness should be remedied.

From Watchung avenue east to the city limits, some care has been taken to keep the banks of Green brook in presentable condition. When properly cared for, that stream of water can be made to give a sightly appearance and become even an ornament to the vicinity through which it passes. A glimpse at the stream from the Duer street Madison avenue bridge, is far from that, however.

It is not necessary to build a park along the banks of the brook but a general cleaning up would do a world of good. City and borough might combine at very little expense to clean out and keep in proper condition the bed of the stream. There are a number of unsightly sheds which could either be torn down or placed in presentable condition.

Now that the bridge has opened up that section, it is in strict accordance with the policy of Plainfield to improve its appearance. Plainfield is noted for its beautiful appearance and that reputation has brought many home-seekers here. And so, when such an unsightly place comes into public view, the property owners should take enough interest in the welfare of the city to remedy it at once.

"If day in and day out the public have the name of any article pressed conspicuously upon their attention," says an authority on advertising, "that name is unconsciously fixed in the mind like a household word." This statement remarks the Philadelphia Record is as applicable to the name of a business man as it is to the name of a marketable commodity. The merchant who keeps his name on the tip of everybody's tongue by advertising regularly in the newspapers is the one whom people will seek out when they have purchases to make.

The action of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company, in raising the wages of its employes will tend to make the new management of that company much more popular with the men than before. Superintendent Smith says that they want good men and are willing to pay for them. The position of motorman, particularly, is one of responsibility, and the man who is constantly in charge of so much human freight is deserving of good pay.

Many people are wondering why it is that the Common Council neglects to provide proper street signs for the city. It cannot be that they do not see the need for them as the street committee, in its annual report presented last December, recommended that the signs be provided as soon as possible.

Now that the Palisade Commission has been presented by Governor Voorhees, it is the duty of the State Senate to approve of it as soon as possible and then it will devolve upon both Houses of the State Legislature to provide the necessary funds to save that natural wonder of which New Jersey should be so proud.

Thomas N. McCarter, of Newark, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the governorship on the Republican side has definitely announced that he is out for Franklin Murphy for Governor and for no other man. Thus ends another gubernatorial boom.

As the Plainfield Relief Association is such an important factor in providing for the poor and needy of the city, it would seem but proper that the wishes of the officials of that organization should be consulted, at least, in the appointment of a city overseer of the poor.

Winter has not forgotten this section altogether and the sound of the merry sleigh bells is heard once more. Sleighing in Plainfield, however, rarely continues very long.

The Boards of Health of city and borough are both preparing to take more stringent methods in looking after the milk supply.

Assemblyman Meeker is again coming to the fore with a bill which promises to cause considerable discussion.

New Jersey is one of the first of the states to take official cognizance of the evils of hazing.

The firemen of the borough are meeting with much success in their present fair.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

The horrible trolley octupus in Union county has just raised the wages of its motormen and conductors from $1.50 to $1.85 and $2 a day. The increase has followed closely the consolidation of the various Union county lines into the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company.—Jersey City Journal.

* * * * *

One by one the heavy guns of the Republican party of New Jersey are being brought forward by their enthusiastic friends for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination These introductions have not yet seriously affected the Murphy boom, but they have shown what a fine lot of Gubernatorial timber there is in the Republican ranks.—Jersey City Journal.

* * * * *

Bounteous crops of prospective Republican Gubernatorial candidates have sprung up all over New Jersey since the serious damage which Franklin Murphy's lightning rod is supposed to have suffered from the Pitney episode. Among the names which have been mentioned are those of Senator Stokes, of Cumberland; Representative John J. Gardner, of Atlantic; First Assistant Postmaster General Johnson, of Bergen; Senator Charles A. Reed, of Somerset; Judge Gilbert Collins, of the Supreme Court; Senator Thos. N. McCarter, of Essex; Colonel William Barbour, of Passaic; Representative Benjamin F. Howell, of Middlesex, and Representative Charles N Fowler, of Union. Some of these are regarded as very strong names, but the availability of several is doubted. It is known that Senator McCarter would not accept the nomination. He has positively declared himself for Franklin Murphy. It is not believed that Judge Collins would consent to run. Nor is it likely that either Representatives Howell or Fowler would permit the use of their names as against Mr. Murphy. The three strongest men in the list are Stokes, Gardner and Johnson. Senator Stokes, however, is a zealous advocate of Murphy's nomination.—New York Herald.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Noah Dove Encampment will hold a regular meeting tomorrow evening.

—Justice Nash has issued papers in the landlord and tenant case of Young against Snediker.

—Miss Strong, of Central avenue, will give a dance at her home Tuesday evening, Feb. 12.

—There will be a business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the East Third Street chapel tomorrow evening after the prayer-meeting.

—Like bad dollars, all counterfeits of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are worthless. The original quickly cures piles, sores and all skin deseases. L. W. Randolph.

—John Wirth, the baker and confectioner at 201 203 West Front street, is making a specialty this week of bread, cake and pies. He delivers orders early enough for breakfast.

Miss Carney, of Woodhull & Martin's store will have her vacation next week.

Bishop Scarborough was the guest last evening of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, of West Eighth street.

Alex. Manning, of 317 Park avenue, is detained at home with a severe cold and sore throat. Dr. Probasco is in attendance.

Gentlemen:—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 6.—For the past week or two one of the local coal dealers has noticed a pile of coal in one of his bins gradually dwindling away without any apparent cause, as he was not using it himself. A watch was set on the yard and to the dealers astonishment, a well known borough resident was detected a few mornings ago helping himself to the coal which he was carrying away in pails. While no formal complaint was made against the man a repitition of the offense will lead to his arrest.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education held last evening, the only business of importance transacted was the formal acceptance of the Whittier school heating and ventilating system and the making up of the yearly budget. The latter will be about the same as last year which was about $3,800.

Monday, February 11, has been definitely decided upon as the date on which Court Dunellen I. O. O. F. will hold its entertainment. A pleasing programme has already been arranged and the affair will terminate with a dance.

The funeral services of Mrs. David Taylor were held from her late residence at Bound Brook yesterday afternoon. They were attended by a number of borough residents. Interment was made in the Bound Brook cemetery.

Defender Fire Company turned out twenty-six strong at the North Plainfield firemen's fair last evening, but they failed to secure the prize. It was awarded to Phoenix Company No. 3, of New Brunswick.

There are letters remaining uncalled for at the postoffice addressed to Mrs. George T. Carter, Miss Lizzie Lane and Jacob Gillaland.

T. J. Bonayne was unable to attend to his duties at the station yesterday, owing to an attack of illness.

Mrs. Daniel Randolph, of South Plainfield, visited friends in the borough yesterday.

Ernest Peck, of Millington, has taken up his residence in the borough.

Mrs. Annie Abbott was the guest of Westfield relatives yesterday.

Augustus Todd spent yesterday with friends at Bound Brook.

John Wagner has returned from a brief visit to New York.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, Feb. 6.—On account of the funeral services of Arthur Parker which were held this afternoon there was no afternoon session of the New Market school. The members of the deceased's class attended the services and sang several selections.

The regular monthly meeting of the Township Committee was held at the Hotel Nelson yesterday afternoon. Beyond the settling of accounts no other matters of importance were brought up.

There are letters remaining in the postoffice for the month of January for Mrs. Daisy Booth, Nathan Howard, Mrs. Romauld Provost and the Linwood Rabbitry.

J. Y. Wilson's men are still harvesting ice and within a short time both houses will be filled.

Stanley Day is greatly improved from his recent severe attack of rheumatism.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 6.—The service rendered by the trolley company during the past few days, since the bad weather began, has been fully appreciated, especially by the early morning patrons of the road who are employed in the factories at Plainfield and Garwood. The cars have been kept up to schedule time and all have been enabled to arrive at their work at the usual hours.

The body of Hattie Wilcox, who died at the Brooklyn Hospital Monday, was brought to the home of her mother, Mrs. Nancy Wilcox, last night. Funeral services will be held from the house this afternoon at 2:30 o clock, Rev. G. M. Shott, of the Baptist church, officiating. Interment will be made in the family plot in the cemetery.

Another meeting of the Township Committee was held in the town rooms last evening. Business relating to the annual township report, which will be ready about February 10, was transacted.

Spencer's hill, which has been a favorite place for coasting for years, is in a fine condition, and the young people in town are enjoying their first coasting on this hill in several years.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fanwood Bucket and Engine Company will be held in the company rooms tonight.

The Epworth Literary Society will meet for reading and study in the class rooms of the Methodist church this evening.

Mrs. John Flannery, who has been quite ill for the past two weeks, is improving very nicely.

PAST MASTER'S JEWEL GIVEN.

PRESENTED TO STEPHEN BEECHING AT MEETING OF JERUSALEM LODGE.

Gift Was a Complete Surprise—Presentation Speech Made by C. W. Eoff.

A regular communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., was held last evening at which time a genuine surprise was given to Stephen Beeching, a past master of the lodge, Mr. Beeching was invited to attend the communication and deliver a lecture. He consented and gave a highly interesting declamation.

At the conclusion, Charles W. Eoff stepped forward and on behalf of the members, presented Mr. Beeching with a handsome solid gold past master's jewel. Mr. Eoff made a few remarks of a happy nature in which he complimented Mr. Beeching for the excellent work he had done for the lodge and for his faithfulness.

Mr. Beeching was completely taken by surprise, not having the slightest intimation concerning the presentation. He heartily thanked the members and renewed his allegiance to the cause of Masonry, which is so dear to his heart.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

IN DEFENSE OF UNIONISM.

"OLD MECHANIC" WRITES REGARDING BUILDING TRADES' COUNCIL.

Explains What The Council Wishes to Do and How It Aims to Aid the City of Plainfield.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—There has been considerable comment made regarding the workings of the Plainfield Building Trades' Council; how if they continue to enforce their rules it is going to stop people who contemplate building from doing so. Now, Mr. Editor, people do not seem to know what they are talking about. The council is to help not only union mechanics, but to help the contractors and merchants.

Consider the new station for instance By rights it should have gone to Plainfield contractors. As it was the merchants of this city had to suffer as well as the mechanics of this city, because all the work was done by outside contractors who brought their mechanics with them, made them work long hours, and then gave them free transportation to their homes to spend their money there. The council claim it is unjust for the people to allow such a state of affairs when many dollars from this town go to the railroad company.

The Hibbard Rodman-Ely Safe Works did the same thing, and the contractor from Wilkesbarre figured on the eight hour schedule, yet worked nine or ten hours per day paying the wages prevailing in this town, the contractor reaping the benefit and going to Wilkesbarre to spend it. Is that just? Is it fair? The Council desires to stop just such cases. To give the work to the taxpayers of this city, and not to floaters, is what the Council desires.

I do not say that all the contractors live up to union principles but those who do not, do work for some of our business men who want the four hundred mechanics represented in this council to patronize them. I do not think any fair minded person would consider this just. The members of the Council do not make any demands on their employers but simply go to them and ask them if they are willing to do as they state.

I have watched the workings of the Council since it started. It has tried to act fairly with all and has given all the bosses ample notice of what it was going to do.

The most important and the most binding rule of this council is that no union mechanic can work on any building where a non-union mechanic is or has been employed, be he either carpenter, painter, mason, tin or sheet iron worker, plumber, steam or gas fitter. That rule must be strictly adherred to.

I have been given to understand that there are not many mechanics outside of the union in this town and am pleased that such is the case, but if they were all united and would work hand in hand with the contractors as that is the object of the council, it would not be long before people would realize what a benefit unity is. What we want is to have Plainfield the banner city of the state and if the people will co operate with the mechanics of this city and help them in their endeavors to do what is just to all, it would not be long before both banker, merchant and mechanic would be proud of the name, "Plainfield."

CO-OPERATION GROCERY.

Several Local Men Interested in New Company Just Incorporated at Trenton.

The Aspell Co-operative Grocery Company with a capital stock of $100,000, has filed articles of incorporation at Trenton. The head of the concern is Captain Aspell, of New York, who has been in business since 1858. The formation of the company was done by him in order to keep up the name of Aspell in connection with the grocery business in which he takes great pride. It will be conducted on the same plan as the Army and Navy Club of London. Every shareholder participates in the earnings of the company and by depositing his share of the stock has credit to the par value of that stock for any provisions that he may buy of the company at the same time getting his goods at wholesale prices. The Army and Navy Club pays 60 per cent. dividends each year.

The business is located on West Broadway, New York Ira La Rue, of this city, has charge of the stock, $50,000 of which has already been paid in. The attorney of the concern is R. M. Clark, of Park avenue.

John Kelley, of East Third street, has been unable to attend to his business for the past two weeks owing to the severe attack of the grip.

FOR ENDEAVORERS.

Interesting Side of the Work Being Carried on by Young Christians.

(Conducted by Press Department Union County C. E. Union.)

An unheard-of feature of the New Mexico Christian Endeavor convention was the paroling of a prisoner from the penitentiary to attend a session on prison Endeavor held outside the walls of his prison. Sessions of Christian Endeavor conventions have often been held with the prisoners within the walls.

The Nagasaki, Japan, Christian Endeavor Home for Seamen has received donations of an upright piano and a soda fountain (the only one in Japan) during the past year. There is some prospect of opening a branch home in Manila, where Superintendent Makins is now investigating. A soda fountain has already been offered for Manila by the donors of the other one. Offerings for the work should go to Treasurer Antoinette P. Jones, Falmouth, Mass.

Among the prominent speakers at Christian Endeavor's twentieth birthday celebrated at Portland, Me., recently, were Dr. and Mrs. Clark, Treasurer Shaw, General Secretary Baer, Managing Editor R. Wells, of The Christian Endeavor World, Bishop Walters, Bishop Arnett, Rev. C. H. Daniels, D. D., Wayland Hoyt, D. D., William Patterson, David James Burrell, D. D., President John Henry Barrows, D. D., of Oberlin College, and State presidents and others representing almost all the religious denominations.

Spare moments, and change that couldn't be spared without missing it, were the ingredients out of which the missionary committee of the Polo Ill., Presbyterian Endeavorers made a delightful holiday surprise for the Snow Hill Mission, Alabama. They sent a barrel of clothing. A box of games and dolls also went to destitute children of Chicago. The Endeavor girls paid the freight.

The last payment on a $4,000 organ for their church was recently made by the Trinity Endeavor Society of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

A comfortable reading room, with a piano, circulating library, periodicals and daily papers, has been provided at Spring Forge, Penn., by the Lutheran Christian Endeavorers.

From a wretched hovel to a comfortable bed in the hospital a poor, sick girl in Topeka, Kan., was taken by the missionary committee of the First Congregational Endeavorers. The society raised $100 for her comfort, and she is now convalescing in a private home, where the Endeavorers meet her once a week.

Seventeen hundred letters were written by Kentucky Endeavorers as New Year's greeting to the prisoners in the State penitentiaries.

Of timely interest in connection with Christian Endeavor's twentieth birthday celebration in Portland, Me., January 31—February 3, is the statement made by Secretary Baer at the Detroit Convention, 1899, that over a million and a half of church members had come out of the ranks of Christian Endeavor in the last ten years. It has also been shown by carefully tabulated statistics that the denominations that keep records of missionary offerings of Christian Endeavor societies received, in 1898, over $300,000 from that source.

Miss Harriet Seward, of Cranford, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Anna Seward, of Chester, Morris county, spent yesterday at the home of Miss Lillian A. Force, 82 Duer street.

WAITING FOR FORTUNE.

But Meanwhile Joseph Moore of Rahway Has Decided to Continue His Present Occupation.

The claims for the Moore millions are again being agitated by the heirs in New Jersey. Joseph C. Moore, of Rahway, who has the same name as the famous Joseph Moore, of England, is the one who has lately been brought into notority by claiming that he is the great grandson of the famous Joseph Moore, of England.

Mr. Moore is a carpenter by trade and seems sure that he will soon get the fortune that is awaiting him in England. He will not give up his trade, however, until he has the fortune in his grasp.

The old Joseph Moore settled in New Jersey many years ago, and when he died there was considerable wealth left in England, which has been increasing since with the advance in property, until now, it is claimed, there is about one hundred million dollars.

There is a large number of heirs in this city who patiently are awaiting the problem of the family history to be solved. There are a number of lawyers who are working on the case, and they all tell the same story, that there is a large fortune in England, and it will only be a matter of time when the heirs will get it.

UNLIKE HIS FATHER.

Personality of J. Ogden Armour, Son of the Great P D.

He Is Deliberate, Cautious and Refined—Few Changes Looked for in the Management of the Great Armour Interests.

J. Ogden Armour, who succeeds to the management of his father's vast business interests, is physically if not mentally wholly unlike his father, says the Chicago Record. Slim of form and face, deliberate if not slow in his motions, hesitating if not studied in his utterances, he has none of the personal characteristics which distinguished his father. The late head of the Armour house was square of stature, "bullet-headed," strong-jawed, round-faced, quick of movement, alert in repose, impulsive, positive, aggressive and relentless in the pursuit of an idea.

J. Ogden Armour has a long, narrow head, a chin pointed like his mother's, a refined rather than a strong contour. He is as calm in action as at rest. He lacks impulsiveness to the verge of coldness. He is cautious, modest, evasive as opposed to aggressive, conciliatory, generous and always well-poised. Nobody who knows him believes that he absolutely approves of his father's almost slaving adherence to early hours, hard work, devotion to detail and personal supervision of a business so perfectly organized and officered that, like a great railroad or a good government it can almost "run itself."

Those who are nearest to the young head of the great packing business agree that he will introduce no startling changes in the affairs of the company. He is notoriously averse to changes, opposed to revolutionary methods and fearful of "scenes." He has always shown a disposition to "take up" with the men who assisted and advised his father and to let well enough alone. Innocent of any of the combative qualities of his sire, it is probable that he will never engage in those fierce speculative combats that seemed to delight and almost inspir the founder of the house. Yet withal, conciliatory, gentle and deliberate as he is, the young president of Armour & Co. is said to be possessed of a spirit as stubborn and self-reliant as that of his father.

Arthur Meeker is perhaps the dean of the late millionaire's advisers, and there is every reason to believe that J. Ogdn will lean confidently upon him and his associates. The young man has not thus far departed from the routine hours set forth and observed by his father. He knows every detail of the business even better than Phil, his brother, knew them at the time he was taken ill. But he does not take business details as seriously as the others. He seems content to know rather than to do.

Already most of his well-conceived and well-digested ideas have been profitably used by the company. There is no reason to suppose that he will abate any of the great projects that may become feasible for the business. There are some who believe that his cool, quiet, deliberate ways are even better suited to the altered conditions of trade than were the swift—almost headlong—methods of his father in the days when commercial victories were won by wit and audacity rather than by diplomacy, finesse and cold calculation.

J. Ogden Armour was born 37 years ago. He spent two years in the public schools and was later sent to Yale, graduating in the class of '89. After an extended European tour he returned to Chicago, and the second day after his arrival was invited by his father to accompany him to the yards. From that time he has worked steadily.

Mr. Armour is a member of the Chicago club, Union league, Chicago Athletic club and various other associations. At least twice a year Mr. Armour, accompanied by his wife, makes a trip to London, where he visits the big markets. They are usually gone from four to eight weeks.

Genuine Chicago Enterprise.

Chicago footpads are audacious and ingenious. Two of them despoiled a helpless woman of her purse and fled, pursued by a dozen citizens. When the highwaymen had lured the pursuers to a comparatively deserted street, they turned at bay, and held up the entire dozen, not leaving a nickel in any of their pockets.

Progress in the Far West.

Seoul, Corea, has successfully inaugurated an electric tramway. This city boasts of the largest electric plant in the far east, with the exception of that at Tokio, Japan.

Ornithological Contest.

Something entirely new and interesting. Read what you are to do. You may get 1,000 dollars. Our contest is to see who can make the largest list of names (or kinds) of birds from the following list of letters:

W D O O O C C K Q U L I A P R T A R
I D G E S P N I E L V E B R D I M W
A D O H T L

We will recognize as a bird anything belonging to the feathered tribe, whether it be a Hen, Crow, Singer or any other kind. You can use any letter as many times to make a name as it appears in the list of letters above; for instance Woodcock, Plover, Snow Bird, etc. To any persons who can make a list of 25 or more different names of birds, we will give absolutely FREE a beautiful Prize value 1,000, dols. or less.

BIG PRIZES AWARDED DAILY.

When you have made out your list fill out the line on the bottom of this advt, and send to us with a Stamped Addressed envelope, stamp of your country will do, then if you are awarded a prize you can if you desire get the prize by becoming a subscriber to The Woman's World. We shall award a prize to every person who sends the name of 25 Birds, and our gifts will be as follows: For the best list, received each day, a Gold Watch; for the second best solution each day a beautiful Imported Tea Set; for the seven next best solutions each day, a Konrah Sakih Diamond and Ruby Ring; for the next best solution, a Gold Piece; and for all other correct solutions, Prizes of Good Value. These Prizes will be forwarded daily, you will not have to wait a long time in uncertainty before you know the result. There is no element of lottery in our plan, it makes no difference whether we get your solution late or early in the day. All you need is to mail this advt. to us, and on the day it reaches us, if your list is the best, You shall have the Gold Watch, or if second best the beautiful Tea Set, and so on. We guarantee that we will award you a prize. There is absolutely no opportunity for deception on our part—we cannot afford it. We want to get 1,000,000 well-satisfied subscribers, and for that reason we don't want you to send any money until you know exactly what prize you have gained by answering the puzzles. As soon after 4 p. m. each day as possible, the examiners will judge the lists to the best of their ability, and will designate the prizes. We will write to you at once notifying you what prize has been awarded you, then if you are satisfied you can send your subscription to The Woman's World and your prize will go by return of mail, carriage paid. To a person of narrow ideas it seems impossible that we should be able to make such a gigantic offer, but we have the money, brains and reputation, we know exactly what we are doing, and if we can legitimately gain a million subscribers by this grand idea we know that this million of well pleased subscribers can be induced to recommend The Woman's World to all friends, thereby building up our circulation still further. We are willing to spend 25,000 dollars in this contest in building up a big subscriptionlist, and when this money is spent we reserve the right to publish a notification that the contest has been discontinued. Don't delay until it is too late. The contest will continue until July 1, 1901.

We give a Bonus Prize of 250 dollars, independent of all others, to the person who sends in the list gotten up in the best and handsomest manner. Our committee will decide and award prizes daily, but the special 250 dols. prize will be awarded in September, 1901. Any birds name found in the dictionaries accepted.

FANCIES OF FASHION.

Extreme Length of Luxury Seems to Have Been Reached.

The Gowns of the Well-Dressed Woman of To-Day Are Sumptuous Creations and Beautiful in the Extreme.

[Special New York Letter.]

IT WOULD really seem as though luxury in feminine dress and the thousand and one accessories that go to make up the costume of the hour could never have been pushed to the extreme length it has reached this season. I am well aware that this statement has been made with more or less truth for many succeeding seasons, also that the general reckless extravagance of womankind has been discussed by those who think they know all about the matter, until the subject has become hackneyed and threadbare, yet it is nevertheless a truth, and one well known to those who have studied the matter with discriminating eyes, that most women with their innate love of all that is pretty and becoming are inclined to be extravagant, and that women—the woman of the smart set, I mean, who is supposed to set the pace in fine dressing—were never more recklessly lavish than at the present moment. Her gowns are the most sumptuous that money can buy, and usually as perishable as handsome; her dainty neckwear is at once fragile and costly, while the amount of money represented by her exquisite lingerie and fine hosiery would seem a veritable fortune to many women. Nothing suits her capricious fancy but the most delicately tinted gloves, which are irredeemably ruined by thrice wearing, while her various silken petticoats, each a dream of loveliness in itself, are taken as a matter of course. Priceless laces and embroideries are cut up in such a way that they can never be used again, while only the most expensive feathers and costliest jewels ornament her fashionable headgear. And so I might run the entire gamut of her extensive wardrobe, but time and space forbid.

A reaction is bound to come sooner or later, but just when or where is beyond the ken of man. That there is no sign of the immediate approach of any such change is evidenced at all the leading shops, where the display of fine clothing and exquisite fabrics is lavish and costly beyond compare. The subject most talked about and admired in the world of fashion just now is the new summer dress materials, which have been displayed within the past few days. It takes a readier pen than mine, and one, too, dipped in ink having all the colors of the rainbow, to describe their gorgeous colorings and manifold charms. Many of the handsomest specimens come under the head of "wash goods," which, as you know by this time, is a much misused expression. For instance, if you go into a dry goods store and ask for wash material, just as likely as not the obliging salesman would show you one of the many new swisses which, because they are new and the correct thing, retail at the modest sum of $2.50 per yard, or perchance an equally expensive organdy of so fine a texture and such delicate coloring that it would shrink and fade away into a mere nothing at the bare mention of a laundry tub. I am bound to say, however, that many of these new goods are not nearly as expensive as at the first glance they seem to be, for they are of such extreme width, especially the swisses, that six yards will be found amply sufficient for the most elaborate gown. Swiss mounted over a shimmering taffeta silk is fascinating and the right thing to buy if one can afford a silken lining, but where the case is otherwise a fine French lawn answers the purpose in the most admirable manner.

For those who prefer a snug bank account to fine raiment there are cool-looking dimities and fine muslins galore, not to mention the many handsome silk ginghams and delicately tinted lawns that are seen on every hand and can be procured for the proverbial song. But I want to say right here that if one has to hire gowns made it is not always wise to economize in the material, for after paying the bill with the long list of "findings" tacked on by the fashionable dressmaker one soon realizes that the material itself is, after all, the smallest item of expense.

The all-white costume will be the favorite this summer, just as it was last, and, although a somewhat extravagant fashion, it is one so universally becoming to both old and young that no one ought to demur at its continued popularity.

There is a decided feeling in favor for summer gowns of grays and gray-greens, while later on we may expect a bountiful mixture of green and gray, than which there is no more beautiful combination.

Fashion makers claim that the really pictureque tea gown cannot be constructed unless lace and chiffon play an important part in the manufacture thereof; and, after looking at the latest models sent out by a well-known house, I am inclined to agree with them. The all-lace tea gown, either in black or cream lace, is extremely dressy and becoming, more particularly when worn with the jeweled girdle of the moment, or a wide embroidered belt, but its charms are quite lost sight of when placed beside one showing the ideal mixture of lace and chiffon like the one in the picture.

For wear at this particular season of the year the tea gowns should be of the most luxurious colorings, deftly mixed with lace, and perhaps a touch of fur. For this purpose nothing quite takes the place of velveteen, which comes to us nowadays in such exquisite colorings and in such an absolute state of perfection that it is permissible to use it in the construction of the dressiest of tea gowns. Of course the beautiful soft panne velvets are much superior, but these are not at everybody's command, and for home wear at least velveteen suits the purpose most admirably. Crepe de chine is another material much sought after for tea gowns, and, as its draping propensities are vastly superior to all the other fabrics, it is deservedly popular.

Within the week I have seen some delightful specimens of the tailor's art in the way of tailor gowns which are being constructed against the day of need. Some follow rather closely the general style of those worn late in the fall, while in others the changes have been radical in the extreme. Not a few are made with their tight-fitting jackets cut with the new habit back. I am wondering how this style will take, as I am quite sure it can only be seen at its best when worn with a long trailing skirt, and the best tailors are not making their new skirts in any such manner, but are fashioning them to just clear the ground, unless ordered to do otherwise.

There are now on exhibition at a leading tailor's some very handsome coat and skirt costumes made of the ever popular tweed, the one shown in the illustration being among the smartest looking. To those who have given the matter any attention during the past two months the announcement that the three-quarter coat is the coming fad will not come as a great surprise. It is a length that is not generally becoming, but we can trust to the fertile brain of the wide-awake tailor to make it so. These coats come to us under the joint reign of velvet and silk, and are dressy and chic enough in appearance to tempt the most resolute woman. The one in the picture is fashioned of black panne velvet and ornamented with handsome buttons and worn open, showing a vest of fine lace. The hat worn with it is in the "three-cornered" shape, a style, by the way, that created a perfect furore in Paris during the closing days of the exposition.

KATE GARDNER.

In the Public Eye Abroad

Dealing With Commercial and Industrial Conditions in Foreign Lands

Egyptian scenery is, as a rule, not inspiring. The great sandy plains are not pleasing to the eye, though they do represent the seat of a civilization almost as old as the world itself. But the hand of man has in various ways made these great stretches of sand attractive. The great monuments builded by the Egyptians of centuries ago are among the wonders of the world, and attract visitors from all climes and all countries. To these have been added yet another attraction in the form of groves of the magnificent lebbek tree. As an attempt is now being made to introduce this same species into several countries of southern Europe, and into some of our southwestern states as well, they are not without interest.

This tree is of a large, spreading deciduous species, which grows wild in the forests of India, where it is known as the siris tree. Its leaves are compound, like those of the honey locust. The greenish-yellow flowers are in heads of three or four together, and these are followed by strap-shaped yellowish-brown pods six to 12 inches long and from three-fourths to one and one-half inches wide.

A GROVE OF LEBBEK TREES NEAR CAIRO, EGYPT.

The trunks of the mature trees are smooth, with light-colored bark. The sapwood is white, and the heartwood hard, brown mottled with darker longitudinal streaks. The wood seasons and works well and is durable.

The lebbek was introduced into Egypt before the beginning of this century, and probably was extensively planted during the reign of Mohammed Ali, who was a great patron of horticulture (1805-1848). During the reign of the Khedive Ishmail the French gardener, M. Braillett, in 1809 superintended the planting of many hundreds of thousands of trees. Judging from those now standing in the city of Cairo and along the roadsides outside of it, the lebbek tree must have been one of the principal trees planted at that time. As a result of this extensive planting the roads outside the city instead of being tiresome ridges of yellow sand, unprotected from the fierce rays of the almost tropical sun, are cool, shady avenues covered so completely with a roof of foliage that almost no sunshine reaches the road below. One of the avenues, that leading to the great Pyramids, is over four miles long and the trees are said to have been planted at the time of the opening of the Suez canal in 1869, in honor of Empress Eugenie's visit to Egypt. I know of no other avenue in the world which compares with this when it is considered that this is a country of desert sand. Almost the only other trees visible are the date palms and gum-bearing acacias. There is certainly no more striking example in the world of the blessings of judicious selection and extended planting of a single shade tree.

In many respects the lebbek tree is an ideal one for southern roadsides. It grows rapidly, produces a dense shade, thrives in soils which contain little moisture and is as easily transplanted and propagated by cutting as a willow. Large trees can be dug up, severely pruned back, and set out, with very little risk of their dying. The crowns and irregular branches of the tree are unsymmetrical enough to relieve that monotony incident to long rows of such trees as the Lombardy poplar, so common in Italy and Chili and in Utah, or the cypress so continually met with about north Italian cities.

Around Lake Baikal.

The Trans-Siberian railway authorities have had a great deal of trouble with Lake Baikal. The lake is about 65 miles wide, very deep, and exceedingly stormy the greater part of the year. The banks are very marshy for a long distance from the water line to the hard surface. At present they have large ice-breaking steamers of the American system, with barges attached for transportation of passengers and merchandise. The cars are also conveyed on these barges. This preliminary arrangement was made, as they were in a hurry to make connections, while at the same time they were surveying a line around the lake. It sometimes happens that passengers and cars cannot be landed on the other side, in consequence of the storms on the lake, and are kept on board of the steamers from 25 to 40 hours at a time.

At present they have finished the surveying of two Kroogo-Baikal lines. The word "kroogo" means "circuit." One of these lines has been selected and will no doubt be built in the near future. This will run by way of Olchy and Toogoontchili, thus avoiding a number of tunnels, so that in the whole distance from Irkutsk to Kooltooga it will only be necessary to build two tunnels, each 1,120 feet long. By this means several million rubles will be saved which were expected to be expended in the construction of the line around the lake. Engineers believe that if the selected line is again carefully looked over even the two tunnels can be avoided, and in this case there will be no underground excavations to be made on this section.

Growth of German Cities.

Under the system which prevails in Germany a census of the population is taken on December 1 every five years, namely, each decennial year and the intermediate fifth year. The census which was taken on the 1st of last December shows the following changes since December 1, 1895, in the population of the 32 principal cities, which have each more than 100,000 inhabitants:

*Decrease.

To these many be added Essen, the exact statistics of which have not yet been published, but which is known to have passed the 100,000 limit, its present population being reckoned at 110,000. Berlin naturally leads all German cities in the increased number of its people, but its percentage of increase falls far below those of Nuremberg, Frankfort, Halle, Mannheim and Posen, all of which owe their rapid growth mainly to the development of manufacturing industries within their respective limits.

The significant decrease in the population of Crefeld is attributable to the fact that it is a city of textile industries—silks, velvets, woolen and cotton goods—which were formerly largely exported to the United States, but which of late years have suffered from the competition of similar goods that are now produced at home for the supply of the American market.

One hundred years ago Berlin had 169,000 inhabitants; Hamburg, 100,000; Munich, 38,000; Leipzig, 32,000; Breslau, 40,000, and Dresden, 54,000. The first census taken under the empire, December 1, 1871, found Berlin with 825,389 inhabitants, so that its increase during the past 30 years has been 1,058,956, or considerably more than 100 per cent, and this does not include the population of Charlottenburg, Rixdorf, Friedenau, Wilmersdorf, Steglitz, Panckow, Schoeneberg and Halensee, all of which suburban cities are inhabited principally by people who do business exclusively in Berlin. Including these suburbs Berlin would have a population of more than 2,500,000 souls.

Hamburg had in 1871, 240,251 inhabitants; Breslau, 208,251; Dresden, 177,089; Munich, 169,478; Cologne, 129,233; Frankfort, 90,922; Nuremberg, 82,929; Mannheim, 39,614, and Kiel, 31,747 Charlottenberg, a suburb of Berlin which properly belongs to the capital, had in 1871 15,518; so that it has more than quadrupled in population during the past 30 years.

A Question of Strength.

The systems required to endure so much in the extremely severe weather from the taking of cough and colds, that it should necessiarily be fortified with a special food which will provide nourishment and strength.

Nagle's Egg Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is just what is needed to build up the system and give strength to overcome the severe weather. Nagle's Egg Emulsion contains only the best Cod Liver Oil, combined with fresh Yolk of Eggs, brandy and Hypophosphites of Lime and soda, made fresh at our labratory. Large bottle 50 cents.

There was an old woman
Who lived in a shoe.
She had so many children
She didn't know what to do.
But that was long and long ago.
She's troubled now no more;
She gives them nickles all around.
And sends them to Harker's store.
And no wonder they are happy, because for 5 nickles they can buy
60 Sheets of Fine Note Paper and 60 Envelopes.

ELECTRICAL EXHIBITS.

Wonderful Collection and Grand Display of Electric Lighting.

It is the plan of the management to make the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo next year the greatest electrical Exposition ever held. In view of the wonderful advance in the electrical science since the World's fair there will probably not be a single duplication of an exhibit seen at Chicago in 1893. Nearly everything in the electrical line then exhibited has been superseded in the market by new machinery and appliances constructed upon a better understanding of the wonderful force. The discovery of the Roentgen rays, the invention of wireless telegraphy and the development of the electromo-bile are among the well known new and useful applications of electricity unknown at the time of the Columbian Exposition. Electricity is to be extensively used in making attractive displays at night. For this purpose a steel tower 375 feet high has been planned which will face the Court of the Fountains. Upon this great tower and in this broad and beautiful court there will be seen at night fantastic and beautiful displays in electrical illumination. More than 200,000 electric lamps are to be used for this purpose, it being the intention of electricians to have all the large buildings surrounding this court outlined with a fringe of brilliant electric lamps. These wonderful electrical displays are made possible by the nearness of Niagara Falls, from which nearly all the power used for the Exposition will be drawn.

THE MINES BUILDING.

WEST VIRGINIA ALERT.

Governor Will Urge Appropriation to Have State Represented.

Governor Atkinson of West Virginia announces that he will embody in his next message to the legislature a recommendation for an appropriation to pay the expenses of the state commission having in charge the state exhibit for the Pan-American Exposition. West Virginia is one of the many states that are inviting capital and labor to come in and help develop their natural resources. With her 15,000 square miles of coal lands, her thousands of acres of hard wood forests, her wonderful stores of petroleum, her iron ore deposits and her great acreage of lands suitable for farming, stock raising and wool growing, she has much to offer in the way of exhibits and much to gain by bringing her resources properly before the world. It is expected that an exhibit will be made showing by maps and specimens, statistics and information of a general character what a newcomer to the state may be able to do in the way of advancing the fortunes of himself and those who depend upon him. The millions of visitors to Buffalo next year will be interested in knowing what the possibilities are in all parts of the western hemisphere. The West Virginia commission is composed of Stuart W. Walker of Martinsburg, president; J. C. Morrison of Charleston, secretary; R. B. Battelle of Wheeling, treasurer; James M. Porter, Jr., of New Cumberland and E. E. Smith of Parkersburg.

GUARDING AGAINST FIRE.

Every Precaution to Be Taken at the Pan-American Exposition.

There are two fire houses upon the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y., which are fully equipped with the apparatus and men necessary to fight any outbreak of fire upon the grounds.

In addition to this there are chemical fire extinguishers in all of the buildings. These are of the same type used at the World's fair at Chicago and are attached to the wall on the interior of the building. A cog on the bearing of the reel releases a valve which turns on the water in case of fire. It is only necessary to unreel the hose and thus turn on a stream which can be directed upon the blaze without a moment's delay. In this way every precaution is to be taken to prevent the occurrence of any fire and consequent destruction of valuable property.

Excursions to the Pan-American.

All over the country the people are planning to make excursions next summer to the Pan-American Exposition. Clubs are being organized whose members are saving money for the trip in this way. Pan-American study clubs are also being organized. Some large business firms are planning to give excursions to their employees, and in many manufactories the employees are organizing to go in a body to the Exposition. In the large shoe manufacturing concern of Hanan & Sons of Brooklyn the employees, who have organized themselves into an association called the Mutual Aid society, have decided on a five days' excursion to the Pan-American and Niagara Falls and have engaged a special vestibuled train for the purpose. The trip will be made during Independence week, and it is expected that at least 1,000 persons will participate in the journey.

EXPOSITION MAKING.

THE PAN-AMERICAN TO EXCEL IN MANY PARTICULARS.

The Most Delicate and Intricate Plastic Work Ever Attempted For Exposition Purposes — Color and Horticultural Embellishment.

The development of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo is observed with profound interest throughout the western world. Almost every day shows some new feature of the magnificent enterprise completed. Some new tower rears aloft its ornamental pinnacle, some new dome presents its rounded top to the sky, or some new decoration of form or color is added to the wonderful bouquet of architectural loveliness.

Never was there an Exposition so novel, so unlike what the world has learned to expect, as this. With the glorious examples of the Exposition builder's art and genius to look back upon with fond remembrance and admiration, the world has wondered if all that has been promised for the Pan-American would be realized. If one may judge by the present stage of the vast work, the millions of visitors to Buffalo during the exposition season, which begins on the 1st of May next, will suffer no disappointment.

The Pan-American Exposition will outshine its distinguished predecessors in many particulars. Of these the court settings are of first importance. In order that there may be abundant room for the elaborate decorative effects, 33 acres are alone devoted to courts. This area is two and a half times the area of the courts at the Chicago Columbian Exposition. About these broad courts are grouped a score of great buildings, in which the multitude of exhibits from all parts of the western world are to be displayed.

As a second important feature may be mentioned the ornate architecture, the use of plastic ornamentation of very intricate and beautiful design and the employment of original sculptured groups in the exterior decorations of buildings, entrances and architectural features. No less than 125 original sculptured groups, modeled by some 30 or more distinguished American sculptors, will be used in this feature of the decorative work.

The use of an elaborate color scheme has never before been attempted at an exposition. The appropriate title of the "Rainbow City" has already been applied to this great group of brilliantly colored buildings, and lovers of color will find the exquisite harmony of tints that has here been produced a most delightful subject for contemplation and study.

As a fourth point of superiority may be named the hydraulic and fountain features. In all the courts are broad pools containing numberless cascades and fountains. These will add to the beauty of the great work in no small degree. Many of the fine sculptures will form a part of these charming fountains. A broad and stately canal, a mile and a half in length, banked with grass and lined with a double row of young trees, completely encircles the main group of buildings.

The horticultural embellishment of the grounds constitutes a fifth point of excellence. Ornamental trees, shrubs, lawns and flowers of brilliant hue will delight the eye everywhere. Sunken gardens and formal beds of flowers will surround fountains and pools and border upon the walks throughout the courts.

Crowning the great work of producing unparalleled vistas and an exposition picture of unrivaled beauty will be the electrical illumination. Only when a great volume of power is available, such as Buffalo possesses in the newly harnessed Niagara, could electric illumination be undertaken on so grand a scale. With unlimited power to draw upon, the electrician has had no restraining conditions in his work. The electric tower, 375 feet high, of rich and elaborate design, will form the centerpiece of the electrical brilliancy, while every building, fountain and architectural feature and even the broad surfaces of the artificial lakes and pools, with floating lights, will glow with electrical radiance and luster. The scene will be one of unsurpassed loveliness, hitherto impossible and unlikely soon to be repeated again on account of the vast expenditure of electrical energy necessary to produce it.

INTERESTING LECTURE BY MADAM MOUNTFORD AT 1ST BAP. CHURCH.

Young People of Church Appeared in Native Costume to Assist, Her—Explained Strange Scripture Phrases.

An audience that half filled the First Baptist church gathered last evening to hear Madam Mountford, a native of the city of Jerusalem, who gave one of her interesting lectures on "City Life in Jerusalem." The lecture was given under the auspices of the Temple Builders' Society of the church, and it was one of the most entertaining ever given. As stated, Madam Mountford is familiar with every phase of life in the Holy Land, and in her talk last evening she explained many difficult passages of Scripture in the Bible.

The lecturer illustrated her talk and was assisted by several young people in the church, who appeared in native costumes. The scene was a parlor in Jerusalem and Madam Mountford then went on to tell about Jerusalem, the walls and proclamations, washing the feet, the eye of a needle, street cries, inhabitants and pilgrims, the immortal scene in the Upper Chamber, courtship, wedding precession, marriage ceremony, unveiling the bride, etc., all of which were explained in a simple, yet thoroughly interesting manner.

In connection with Madam Mountford's appearance B. A. M. Schapiro, editor and publisher of The People, The Land and The Book, was present. He has secured the former as co-editor and contributor to his quarterly which treats of the old and historic people of Israel, of their native land, Palestine, and of the Book, the Bible, and Jewish traditions and literature. He enlisted the support of several persons last evening.

SPORTING.

POOL

The most interesting game of the series played in the pool tourney at Krewson's parlors last evening was that between Melvin and Stelle. Both are skilled handlers of the cue, and the game was close and exciting from start to finish. At the close both men had eight points to get in order to win the game and in a lucky moment they were secured by Melvin who won by a score of 60 to 37. The game between Smith and McCann was forfeited on account of the latter's non-appearance.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Manager Claude Cubberly, of the Plainfield High School hockey team, has arranged a game with the Leal team on Holly's pond this afternoon. The knock off will be made at three o'clock. WILL NOT SOLICIT TAXES.

CITY COLLECTOR SMITH OBJECTS TO GOING AFTER DELINQUENTS.

Proposed to Either Have a Comptroller Appointed By Mayor Or Appoint Deputy Collector.

A rather unique and peculiar state of affairs exists in the office of Tax Collector F. H. Smith regarding the collection of taxes. It will be remembered that Mayor Jenkins said in his message to the Council that he favored a method whereby everyone who owes the city taxes shall pay the same promptly. Mr. Smith is perfectly willing to receive all taxes that come to his office, but he will not go outside of his office to collect taxes as some people believe he should. Futhermore, it is said, Mr. Smith is supported in his position by the law, which plainly infers that he is not compelled to do so.

The reason why Collector Smith refuses absolutely to leave his office to collect taxes is that, while his office is an elective one, he does not propose to jeopardize his own interests and gain the ill will of the people, only to have the head cut off, figuratively speaking, at the next election, by people who have been forced to pay their taxes under such circumstances.

Mr. Smith has the sympathy of many friends in support of his position, and he is determined to strictly adhere to the law in the matter. Mr. Smith believes that if the Mayor or Council want taxes collected under such procedure they should at least take the office out of the hands of the people and make it an appointive one. Then without fear or favor he will do as he is bid by the higher officials.

In Elizabeth there is a comptroller and the same is true of Newark. In both cities the office is appointive and no trouble is experienced in enforcing the collection of taxes. There is one way in which Plainfield could escape the appointive feature, and that is by selecting a deputy whose duty it would be to go outside of the office and collect delinquent taxes.

It is true that many Councilmen favor Mr. Smith's plan in the matter and would like to see his office made appointive. It is now a question as to whether a sufficient amount of support can be secured to change the manner of securing a collector, and to take advantage of the law which permits the change.

HUNDRED MEN FOR COMPANY.

ANOTHER MEETING OF COMMITTEE OF TEN LAST NIGHT.

Sub-Committee Appointed to Circulate Petition Formally Asking for Location of Militia Company Here.

The militia company committee of ten held a meeting last evening in the parlors of the Hotel Kensington, to further the interests of the proposed company. The resignation of City Judge Wm. N. Runyon, as chairman and a member of the committee, was received and accepted, and John P. Mosher was elected chairman pro tem. Several names were added to the list, making in all about one hundred names.

A committee of five, consisting of Dr. W. Kempton Browning, John P. Mosher, John M. Lewis, Fred M. Letson and Charles Peterson, was appointed to circulate five duplicate petitions for signatures. This is in accordance with the usual form and petitions Col. Collins to locate a militia company in this city.

A preliminary meeting will be held soon when officers will be selected, to be elected at the meeting to be held Wednesday evening, February 12, at the Hotel Kensington. It is quite likely that the company will be mustered in two weeks from last evening. There is still a great deal of enthusiasm manifested on the part of the members and a first-class company will soon be a fact.

Cyclone Pranks.

A traveler in the west, Rev. C. T. Brady, says that of all the manifestations of power he ever witnessed, from an earthquake down, a cyclone is the most appalling. The midnight blackness of the funnel, the lightning darting from it in inconceivable fierceness, the strange crackling sound from its bosom, the suddenness of its irresistible attack, its incredibly swift motion, its wild leaping and bounding, like a gigantic beast of prey, the awful roar which follows—all this but feebly characterizes that strange ravener of the plains. He continues: "The cyclone plays odd pranks. I have seen two horses lifted in air and carefully deposited, unharmed, in a field about an eighth of a mile away. I have seen chickens and geese picked clean of feathers, and yet feebly alive. One house, I remember, had a hole ten feet in diameter cut out of its roof, as if by a circular saw. I have seen the black, whirling cloud lift a building and shake it to pieces, as one shakes a pepper-box. One of the worst cyclones I ever knew threw a heavy iron safe about as a child might toss a wooden alphabet-block in play. It is an irresponsible as well as an almost omnipotent monster, and it seems to love the hideous jokes of its own concocting."—Youth's Companion.

MANY TURNED OUT TO ENJOY SLEIGHING.

Low Temperature and High Winds Did Not Chill the Ardor of Young Folks.

ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION.

LOTS OF SLEIGHING PARTIES WERE OUT LAST NIGHT.

Prospect of a Continuation of the Good Sleighing—Some Speeding of Fast Horses on East Front Street.

Although the mercury kept close to the lower end of the thermometer and the north wind raged and roared, there were many who turned out last evening to enjoy the sleighing. It was good, particularly when the small amount of snow was considered. Where there had been plenty of light traffic the going was fine and there were many who were glad to take advantage of it.

Yesterday's sun did not injure the sleighing. The rough spots disappeared during the day under the constant traffic and many of the streets were in fine condition as evening approached. There were many out during the afternoon despite the bitter cold wind. All of the livery stables did a thriving business and could not accommodate all who desired to enjoy the sleighing while it lasted.

Straw rides and sleighing parties were arranged for the evening as it was generally supposed that the wind would disappear with the sun. But it didn't. It blew harder than ever but the young people ventured out despite the chilliness and the night air was merry with the sound of the sleigh bells. It was very cold, particularly in the open stretches where the wind had a chance to get a full sweep, but the jolly parties managed to keep warm by bundling up and the evening was a lively one.

Owners of fast horses were out with their cutters yesterday afternoon. They found East Front street the best place for speeding and several lively little brushes occurred between local trotters and pacers.

East Front street, South avenue and Park avenue attracted most of those who braved the cold for a good sleigh ride. They were all in good condition and will probably remain so until tomorrow and perhaps longer. The reports of the weather bureau say that the cold weather and high winds will continue today and tomorrow, moderating on Friday, when another storm may be expected. If it happens to be snow it will make the sleighing better than ever.

Many pleasure parties are arranging for straw rides this evening, and the local truckmen have a greater demand for their big box sleighs than they can meet.

One of the pleasant parties of last evening was arranged by a number of the young people who live in Washington Park. Twenty of them occupied a big box sleigh with Mr. and Mrs. George D. Hallock as chaperones. They enjoyed a ride out Park avenue to Pumptown and return.

Among the pleasant sleighing parties last evening was one for young folks given by Miss Marjorie Fleming, of Park avenue. The party included about twenty young people and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the fine sleighing. After the ride they all returned to Miss Fleming's home, where refreshments were served.

An old-fashioned box sleigh, filled with straw and twenty-one laughing young people, arrived in Plainfield shortly after ten o'clock last evening. The party was composed of members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Summit Presbyterian church. They stopped at the Hotel Imperial, where they enjoyed a supper.

During supper one of the young women suggested taking up a collection for the missionary box of their church. The suggestion was at once carried out and $1.40 was collected for that cause.

The party left for home shortly before midnight.

One of Wm. Hand & Son's big box sleighs with four horses attached, carried a party of young people out for a straw ride last night. The party was largely composed of young people who attend the Plainfield High School

WANT SENATOR REED TO GO TO CONGRESS

Redistricting of Congressional Districts Will Make Him a Prominent Candidate.

REGARDING OTHER BOOM.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF UNION, SOMERSET AND MORRIS UNITED.

Factional Troubles in Union Would Injure Congressman Fowler's Chances of Being Returned—Senator Reed Would Be Strong Candidate.

Now that State Senator Mahlon Pitney is no longer considered in the race for the gubernatorial nomination of the Republicans, a number of names have been mentioned as possible candidates who may appear as rivals to Franklin Murphy, of Essex.

For several years, it has been said that the time was likely to come when State Senator Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, would be the Republican candidate for governor. His name has now been mentioned but there is little chance that Senator Reed will even consider the possibility of such a nomination. There would be little chance of winning out in a contest with Franklin Murphy under the existing circumstances while Mr. Reed's friends have other plans for him.

If in the rearrangement of the Congressional districts of the State, the Fifth is formed of Union, Somerset and Morris counties as many of the Republicans of the interested counties are hoping, that district will elect its first representative to Congress a year from next November. The district will be naturally Republican and there will be every show of victory for the Republican candidate if he is at all popular.

Within the bounds of this proposed Congressional district live two Congressmen, Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, a Republican, of the present Eighth district, and Joshua Salmon, a resident of Boonton, Morris county, and one of the two Democratic Congressmen in the Jersey delegation. He represents the present Fourth district. Somerset county is part of the Third district, which is represented at present by Benjamin F. Howell, of New Brunswick.

Of course, Congressman Salmon would not figure in the Republican ranks and that would make Mr. Fowler the only candidate with Congressional experience who would be in line for the nomination. As Morris county's favorite son, Mahlon Pitney, has been raised to the Supreme Court bench, he naturally would be out of the question.

Somerset county would undoubtedly want a candidate. At present Senator Charles A Reed is by far the most prominent figure in the Republican camp over in Somerset, and there is no doubt but that his name would be strongly mentioned for the Republican choice in the new district.

A contest between Congressman Fowler and Senator Reed in a Congressional convention would prove interesting. The Senator would have the solid support of his county, while it is likely that the Union county delegation would be badly split. The present factional differences in the Republican ranks in this county, if they continue up to the time of the Congressional convention would be likely to materially affect Mr Fowler's chances of returning to Washington.

Just how the Republicans of Morris county would view the fight, it is impossible to say. In the preliminary skirmishes for the gubernatorial nomination which have already taken place, Mr. Fowler and his friends have been strongly in favor of Franklin Murphy as against Mahlon Pitney. Then the Morris county senator and the Somerset county senator are great friends and work together in the Upper House of the State Legislature and Mr. Pitney might be greatly inclined to throw his influence for his former colleague. If such was the case, Senator Reed would be sure of the nomination.

Of course, the dividing lines for the Congressional districts have not yet been fixed and it is anticipating things to pick the Republican nominee for a Congressional district which has not been and may never be formed, yet there is no denying the fact that wherever Somerset county goes in the redistricting, Senator Reed is far more likely to be a candidate for Congressional honors in the district thus formed, than he is to be the nominee of the Republican party for Governor next fall. There is a possibility, however, that a judicial appointment may come his way in which case, of course, he would be no longer a candidate for gubernatorial or Congressional nomination.

TWENTY-SIX YEARS A BISHOP.

BISHOP SCARBOROUGH CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY OF THAT EVENT.

Saturday Was The Anniversary — Is Greatly Beloved by All Who Know Him.

An interesting incident in connection with the recent visit of Bishop Scarborough to this city, was brought to the attention of his friends, when the Bishop announced incidentally at the Convocation of New Brunswick, held in Grace P E church, that Saturday last he completed the twenty-sixth year of his service as Bishop for New Jersey.

When the Bishop entered upon his duties twenty-one years ago the Episcopal church was not very strong. Today the northern diocese is stronger than the whole was at that time and the church was never in a more flourishing condition.

The Bishop today is beloved, not only by his own people, but by every one who knows him. His wise rulings, fair judgment and universal courtesy to all have won a warm place for him in the hearts of all Jerseymen, and he is always welcome wherever he goes. He is also highly pleased with the clergy under his charge and thoroughly believes that all are called of God to minister unto His people. The recent visit of the Bishop was one of the most pleasant in the history of the Episcopal church.

MANY DANCED AND BOWLED.

FIREMEN'S FAIR CONTINUES ITS SUCCESSFUL CAREER.

History of Department Read by L. E. Barkalew—Cake-Walk and Prize Bowling Were Features.

There was a large crowd at the North Plainfield firemen's fair in Saengerbund Hall last evening. The main features of the evening were a cake walk, prize bowling and dancing.

L. E. Barkalew read a history of the North Plainfield fire department, which dated back from the time of its organization until the present day, and showed that the department had grown wonderfully since it had been organized, both in numbers and efficient work.

Dancing was stopped for a short time to allow the cake-walk to take place. The participants were William McGinley and Miss Helen Rector, and Henry Hatchett and Miss Adele Rector. The prize, a handsome cake, was awarded to William McGinley and Miss Helen Rector.

While dancing seemed to be the feature of the evening on the main floor, a great deal of interest was centered at the bowling alleys, where a prize contest was going on between the women who are assisting at the fair. The prize was an elegant crocheted shawl, and was won by Miss Mamie Kohler, who succeeded in winning by four pins over her opponents.

The Saengerbund will be present this evening, and there will be an entertainment consisting of comedy, song and dance artists.

The booths had a large patronage last evening, and the committee in charge are anxious to have all the donations which have been promised sent in. They can be sent to the hall or Debele's store. A postal card to the committee will result in a call for them.

LIBRARY DIRECTORS MET.

Paid Bills and Acknowledged Gifts of Books From Hugh Hastings, M. W. Tyler and Miss Schipper.

The regular meeting of the board of directors of the Public Library was held Tuesday evening. There were present M. W. Tyler, J. B Dumont, E. C. Perkins, J. W. Yates and William M. Stillman. After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, the bills presented for the general and for the Babcock libraries, respectively, were ordered paid.

The Secretary was directed to acknowledge the gift of Hugh Hastings of the three volumes of "New York at Gettysburg," and the 12 volumes of the "Convention manual of the 6th New York State constitutional convention, and the gift of Miss Schipper of "Masterpieces of German art." The thanks of the Board were extended to Mr. Tyler for his gift of 12 volumes of the Political Science Quarterly.

The Librarian's January report was received and ordered on file, after which the meeting adjourned.

Local Missionary to Speak.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold a meeting tomorrow evening. Mrs. E. B. Taylor, a local missionary, will address the meeting and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

PLAINFIELD PASTORS MET EVANGELIST HALL.

Held Conference With Them Yesterday Afternoon and Planned for Coming Meetings.

ALL FAVORABLY IMPRESSED.

OPENING SERVICES WILL BE HELD TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 12.

Will Be of a Preparatory Nature—Union Meetings For a Week Preceding Evangelistic Services—Factory Meetings Planned.

As the time draws near for the holding of the special religious services that are being planned for the last of this month and the first of next, much enthusiasm is manifested on the part of those who are in charge of the arrangements for the meetings. Progress was made yesterday afternoon, when the Plainfield Ministers' Association met in the parlors of the Y. M. C A. building to greet William Phillips Hall, the well-known evangelist, of New York, and Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Henderson, of Brooklyn, his co-worker, who will have charge of the special services.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass presided at the meeting, and Rev. G. W. Gardner was secretary. The attendance of members was gratifying and there was an evidence of unity of purpose and a strong spiritual feeling on the part of all. Several fervent and earnest prayers were offered by the ministers and Mr. Hall, wherein there was an earnest desire expressed for an awakening among the Christians of Plainfield and the working of the Spirit among the unconverted.

The members of the association were very much impressed with Mr. Hall. He evidenced much spirituality and seemed to be filled with the Holy Spirit. He gave all the impression that he is zealous and sincere in his desire to save souls and help his fellow-men. He showed an earnest and firm, yet tender manner and from the first won the hearty co-operation of all present.

It was decided that the first meeting should be held in the First M. E. church Tuesday evening Feb. 12 This meeting will be for pastors, Sunday school teachers, Christian workers, in fact, everyone who has a desire to assist in the evangelistic meetings to follow. Dr. Chapman will have charge of this meeting, and he will give a soul-stirring talk to Christians, showing them their duty and telling them how to perform it. Mr. Jacobs, the sweet singer, who will be present at the evangelistic meetings and have charge of the music, will also be at this first meeting. He will train a chorus choir that will sing at all meetings.

It was also decided that union meetings should be held the week previous to the special services. These will commence Sunday evening, February 24, in the First Baptist church, and will continue every evening during the week with the exception of Saturday. Rev. Dr. Henderson will have charge of these services which will be held for Christians as well as the unconverted. Mr. Jacobs, the singer, will have charge of the music and conduct a chorus choir.

The special services will commence, as already stated, Sunday evening, March 3, at the First Baptist church, when Evangelist Hall will be in charge. He will remain in Plainfield until March 13, holding meetings every evening except Saturday.

It has also been planned to hold short factory meetings during the time that Dr. Henderson and Mr. Hall are conducting the other services. These meetings will be held at the noon hour.

No Successor Chosen Yet.

The question of selecting a successor to Rev. Floyd Appleton, as curate of Grace P. E. church, was not brought up at the meeting of the vestry this week, but no doubt some one will be chosen in the near future to assist Dr. Rodman in his work.

At Loyal Legion Banquet.

Among those who attended the quarterly meeting and banquet of the Military Order, Loyal Legion, at Delmonico's in New York last evening, were S. C. Peck, Mason W. Tyler, John E. Stewart and M. C. Dobbins, of this city.

Will Start Cigar Store.

William George, of Bridgeport, Conn., has leased the store on East Front street formerly conducted by the late George W. Moore, and he will soon open the place as a cigar store.

WORKING FOR TROLLEY LINE.

MEETING OF PROPERTY-OWNERS HELD AT WATCHUNG.

Will Petition Township Committee To Aid Them By Extending Somerset Street Officially.

A very exciting meeting of those interested in the extension of the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway from the present terminus on Somerset street at Johnston's drive to Watchung was held in the Watchung school house last evening.

Freeholder Augustus Mobus was chairman of the meeting and William Demler was secretary. Harry C. Runyon, attorney in the interest of the trolley company, was the first to speak and gave a brief sketch of the desire and methods of the company.

John Y. Wilson, who owns the stone crusher and a large tract of land, was the chief objector.

To overcome his objections a petition was signed to have the road which runs from Watchung to the township line, called Somerset street. This petition will be presented to the Township Committee at their meeting tomorrow afternoon.

By gaining the consents of property-owners on the new road they will have the proportion necessary to secure a franchise.

A committee was appointed to look after the petition and get all the signers possible.

YOUNG PEOPLE BOWLED.

Pleasant Evening Spent on Alleys of Park Club—Bowling For Mixed Doubles.

Bowling for mixed doubles was the attraction last evening at the Park Club, and like the first event of this kind at the club, it was a most enjoyable one. There were about eighteen young people present to participate in the bowling. After a spirited contest the prizes were won by Miss Halla VanDeventer and Charles S. Cook who made a score of 276. After the games refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Among those present were Miss Long, Miss Overton, Miss Grace Overton, Miss Daisy Elsberg, Mrs. A. Brown, Miss Alice Barlow, Miss Mabel VanDeventer, Miss Halla VanDeventer, and Messrs. A. Brown, Allan B Laing, W. R. Faber, Orville Waring, Ralph Willis, Charles S. Cook, Morris J. Dumont, William M. McCutchen and Arthur A. Freeman.

The affair was in charge of Allan Laing and so successful was it that it was decided to repeat it two weeks from last evening, February 20.

MANY DANCED.

Social Given By St. Mary's Athletic and Literary Association in T. A. B. Hall Last Night.

St. Mary's Athletic and Literary Association entertained over two hundred of their friends at a sociable and dance given in T. A. B. Hall last evening. In honor of the occasion the hall had been decorated in an artistic manner, the work having been done by a professional.

Music for the dancing, which was the feature of the evening, was furnished by Prof. O'Reilly's orchestra. Refreshments were served in abundance at midnight by a committee composed of the following young women: Miss Katherine Mack, Miss Katherine Carty, Miss Maria Carty, Miss Nellie Meany, Miss Kate McInerny, Miss Anastatia Taylor, Miss Annie O'Keefe, Miss Teresa McGinley and Miss Nellie Casey.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Thomas McInerny, David Mack, James Monahan, Joseph Barry, John King, John Madden and George Taylor.

Trying County Board Again.

Martin Muldoon, an old offender, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning charged with begging. He was arrested for the same offense last August and committed to the county jail for thirty days. As it does not seem to have cured him of the habit a similar sentence was meted out to him this morning and he will be entertained at the county's expense for the next month.

Death Due to Hasty Consumption.

An examination was made yesterday afternoon into the death of Miss Ethel Terwilliger, aged 12 years, of 217 Craig place, which occurred at the hospital yesterday noon. Her death was found to be due to hasty consumption. The funeral services will be held from the late residence Saturday, Feb. 9, at 11 o'clock in the morning. Interment will be at Somerville.

Sweeney Released.

Law Student William Sweeney, who was fined $25 by Judge Vail in the county court yesterday, was released last evening. The fine was paid by a friend.

MR. MAXSON'S REPLY TO LAWYER'S CHARGES

Communication From Superintendent of Schools Regarding Case of Boy Expelled.

BELIEVES THE CHARGES.

SAYS MR. ANGLEMAN COULD HAVE EASILY FOUND HIM IF HE TRIED.

Mr. Maxson Investigated the Charges —Is Always Accessible at His Office Or Home to Those Who Desire to See Him.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Since your report of Mr. Angleman's visit to the Board of Education gives only what Mr. Angleman said, and inadvertently omits what I said, I must ask your permission to make a simple statement in your columns.

Did it concern my personal character only, I should say nothing; but it concerns the administration of my office.

Mr. Angleman is quoted as having said that he had vainly tried to secure an audience with me. Now, I am in my office at 9 o'clock every school day, and usually every afternoon; three mails are delivered to me daily; my office has telephone connection; the directory gives the address of my house, and every one of the sixty teachers in the various schools will assist any parent who wishes to see me: but neither by letter, by telephone, nor by messenger had Mr. Angleman informed me that he wished to see me, nor did I know he wished it until he spoke to the Board.

The principal had called to see him, at his request, and said the matter would be reported to me, but he did not ask to see me. She reported the case to me, as in duty bound, and I was investigating it. I have since finished the investigation, in the presence of the boy and his father, and I am convinced that the exclusion was just. My duty to the boy, as my pupil, forbids my discussing the matter in public print further than is necessary to refute the implication so publicly made by Mr. Angleman.

In closing, permit me to say for the benefit of all parents who may read this, that there is no one in Plainfield more accessible than I am, and every one that comes to my office, whatever the nature of his errand, receives a cordial welcome. Be he rich or poor, his wishes receive the same courteous reception, the same painstaking consideration.

H. M. Maxson,
Supt. of Schools.

SMASHED A THERMOMETER.

Thermometer Standing in Front of Armstrong's Pharmacy was Deliberately Wrecked—Police Investigating.

Some malicious person has again smashed the large thermometer which stands on Park avenue in front of the pharmacy of T. S. Armstrong, corner of North avenue. The thermometer was placed there by Mr. Armstrong for the convenience of the public. It was set in a post so deep that it was impossible to break the tube unless a deliberate effort toward that end was made. On a previous occasion the thermometer was smashed, but Mr. Armstrong was never able to discover the offender. He has placed this case in the hands of the police. He has not yet decided whether or not to place another thermometer on the post.

To Arrange For Union Services.

The executive committee of the Local Union of Christian Endeavor will meet Saturday evening at the home of Miss Ernestine Smith, on Madison avenue, to make arrangements to hold a union service of all the societies preceding the special evangelistic services to be held the last of this month and the first of next for the purpose of interesting the Endeavorers in the Union.

Oriental's First Ball.

The Oriental Social Club, composed of a number of well known Plainfielders, will hold their first annual ball in Saengerbund Hall Monday evening, February 18 The committee in charge of the affair consists of J. Day, president; Frank Keller, treasurer; Charles Keller, secretary; W. Messler, F. Perry, H. Bremmer, J. Kettles and W. O'Donald. Prof. O'Reilly will furnish the music.

OLD VETERAN PASSED AWAY.

TAKEN ILL ON STREET IN NEW MARKET YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Was Janitor of New Market School—Health Was Broken Down by Confinement in Libby Prison During War.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Feb 7 —Feeling somewhat ill Monday afternoon, William Spencer, of this place, janitor of the school here, left his home to request a neighbor to attend to his duties. The errand accomplished he was on his return when he suddenly fell unconscious in the street. He was carried to his home by Theodore Roantree where it was seen at once that he was seriously ill. Acute pneumonia immediately set in and he died yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. The funeral services will be held from his late residence Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Mr. Spencer was sixty years old and was born in the vicinity of Rahway. He was a veteran of the Civil War, enlisting for three months in 1862. When his time was up he re enlisted for three years. Toward the close of the war he was taken prisoner and was confined in Libbey prison for nine months. On regaining his liberty he returned to his home in South Jersey, afterward coming to New Market.

He married Miss Mary Jane Harris, of New Market, who survives him. The confinement in Libbey prison had so broken down his health that he never fully recovered, but he has never received a pension.

TO ENTER MISSION FIELD.

JACOB BAKKAR WILL BE CONSECRATED AT SERVICE SATURDAY.

Will Go Into South Africa For Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association.

An interesting service will be held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday, February 16, when Jacob Bakkar, of this city, will be consecrated to the foreign mission work in which he is soon to engage in Africa. The Sabbath Evangelizing and Industrial Association, of which David E Titsworth is the president, will send Mr Bakkar into the work.

His station will be at Blantyre, British Central Africa. The week following this service he will sail for his new field, going by the way of Holland, his former home, where his father is a Seventh Day Baptist preacher.

Mr. Bakkar is a native of Holland, but for some time past he has been employed as a machinist at the Potter Press Works. For a considerable time he has felt called upon to enter the foreign mission field and the association that sends him is assured that he is called of God to the work.

AMATEUR THEATRICALS.

All is Ready for Performance of "The Private Secretary" Saturday Evening, February 16.

Everything is now practically in readiness for the production of "The Private Secretary" at Music Hall, Saturday evening, February 16. The rehearsals for the play have been most gratifying to all the participants as well as to Alfred Young, the coach, and one of the best amateur performances ever given is looked forward to. As an additional encouragement for those in charge it is pleasing to note that the sale of seats has been better than for any previous play of the kind. Nothing will be left undone in making the affair all that it should be. There are yet a few seats left and those desiring to see this play should lose no time in selecting them.

LEGION'S LETTER RECEIVED.

Acknowledgement of it Sent by Government Officials to Temperance Legion.

Leo Moore, secretary of the Loyal Temperance Legion, has just received a letter from Washington, in response to a letter written by him on behalf of the Legion in which the latter organization urged the abolishment of the Army Canteen. The officials answering the letter stated that the same had been received, contents noted and it had been placed in the hands of the proper officials. The result of the agitation against the canteen is already known. It was abolished by act of Congress several weeks ago.

Photographed Assistants.

George Fountain took a flash-light picture of Mrs. Mountford and those who assisted her in giving her lecture at the First Baptist church last Tuesday evening.

Adjourned Meeting of Borough Council.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Borough Council Friday evening, February 15, when the annual reports will be presented.

BEGAN THEIR STUDY OF CULINARY ART.

Hot Chocolate and Cookies Made at Opening Lesson of Borough Cooking Class.

JUST GETTING ACQUAINTED.

THE FUTURE WILL BRING FORTH ALL SORTS OF GOOD THINGS.

High School Class Numbers Twenty-Three—All Uniformed for the Fray—Mrs. Taylor is the Instructor—Grammar School Class Met Today.

Hot chocolate and cookies were the productions of the opening day for the cooking class at the borough manual training school yesterday afternoon. The chocolate proved a delicious beverage while the cookies were excellent according to the testimony of those who partook of them. It was a successful opening for that department which has been the subject of no end of curiosity and speculation. There were accommodations for twenty-four and twenty-three pairs of hands assisted in the preparation of the chocolate and cookies.

All the cooking utensils arrived at the school several days ago but all the materials for use by the cooking class were not on hand yesterday afternoon. There was sufficient, however, to start the class according to schedule. Miss Bessie Taylor, of Watchung, is the instructor. She is well-known in city and borough and is a thoroughly competent teacher in that department.

Most of yesterday's period was devoted to securing an acquaintance with the various pots, pans, dishes, etc., which are to be used by the class. There is a place provided for everything and the pupils will be expected to see that they are all in order when they depart at the close of the lesson.

All of the pupils showed a decided interest in the subject and they were particularly anxious to begin an active campaign at once. When the class progresses somewhat, Miss Taylor will allow the young women to prepare a meal at each lesson, but their efforts yesterday afternoon were considerably more limited.

Of course the young women had to be properly prepared for the class work. Each wore a white cap and apron and white sleeve protectors. They made a charming picture as they grouped about the tables, their faces flushed by the heat of the range and every move revealing the earnestness with which they entered into the work.

Miss Taylor's plan is to have each pupil prepare a complete meal at each lesson when the class is thoroughly organized, and she aims to have them competent to prepare almost any dish by the time the term is ended.

Just what is to become of all these toothsome delicacies which are to be prepared has not been decided. There will be little difficulty, however, in disposing of them if the efforts of the class continue to be as successful as they were yesterday.

The class from the Grammar grades occupied the kitchen of the manual training school building this morning from 11:30 until 1 o'clock. The class was composed of twenty and it is possible that more will be added as the work continues. This class will not attempt as elaborate work as the class composed of members of the High School grades but will prepare more simple productions of the culinary art.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE IN JERSEY.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall Compiling Chapter on Work Done in This State.

Mrs. Susan B. Anthony, a pioneer woman suffragist, is directing the compilation of a book on the subject of woman suffrage which she proposes to publish in the near future. In connection with this work Mrs. Anthony has requested women from the various States in the Union to write a chapter concerning suffrage in their own State between the years 1884 and 1901. The duty of this work for New Jersey has been assigned to Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, and she has already commenced the work. The book, when completed, will be a valuable one from a literary standpoint, as it will show facts concerning this widespread movement during the past few years and will be used as argument in favor of it.

Meeting of Township Committee.

The last meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee before election will be held at Demler's store at Watchung tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The reports of the officers for the year will be read and acted upon.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Many years have passed away since the curtain rose for the first time on "The Old Homestead," but it still ranks as one of the strongest drawing attractions on the American stage All the phenomenal successes that have been exploited from time to time since its introduction have only held sway for awhile, while this story of New England continues with unabated prosperity. There seems to be some magnetic force sufficient to make all view it every time the chance is offered. May be it is because the piece is like the country itself, to which many wander each vacation time to seek calm and peace of its care-freed meadows. However, be that as it may, it attracts and many go, and probably will continue doing so as long as Denman Thompson cares to present "The Old Homestead." Denman Thompson will accompany the production this year, and appears as "Uncle Josh." At Music Hall Saturday night.

When a theatrical production, which receives no extra booming, becomes a success, it goes to show that it possesses more than ordinary merit. Such a one is "A Lion's Heart," the attraction at Music Hall next Monday night which was brought to this country by Carl A Haswin, as successor to "The Silver King." "A Lion's Heart" has been presented over one thousand times in London. It is a high-class drama with more than ordinary literary merit. As a scenic production, it surpasses anything on the road.

Lincoln J. Carter's latest production "The Eleventh Hour," will be presented at Music Hall on Wednesday of next week. This play was produced in Chicago on the 20th of May and made the most emphatic "hit" of anything that this gifted author has heretofore presented. "The Eleventh Hour" is unlike any of Mr. Carter's former productions, for, while it abounds with his humorous comedy—it is full of heart interest and has a vein of pathos that makes it doubly interesting to all. "The Eleventh Hour" is a comedy drama pure and simple, dealing with characters that all come in daily contact with, a story that is beautiful in its simplicity, and the "tout ensemble" of the play is more complete than any of his former productions.

Johnstone Bennett, the "Jane" of former days, will head a big holiday programme at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, beginning Monday. On Tuesday, Lincoln's Birthday, the doors will open at 10 a. m. and the performance will continue till 11 p. m. The all-star holiday numbers will include: Johnstone Bennett, assisted by Tony Williams, in the dramatic sketch, "A Quiet Evening at Home;" Geo. Felix and Lydia Barry, in a novel conceit, "The Vaudeville Craze;" Paulinetti and Pique, European gymnasts; Frank Cushman, the progressive minstrel; Mlle. Christina and her performing monkeys, dogs and cats; Williams and Adams, the Monte Carlo Millionaires; Alf Grant, in his original monologue; the Tobins, accomplished musicians, and others. The prices are always popular, 50c, 25c and 15c.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

A ROYAL WEDDING.

Great Preparations at Madrid For the Marriage of the Princess.

MADRID, Feb. 7.—The queen regent has conferred Spanish nationality on Prince Charles of Bourbon, who is to marry the Princess of the Asturias Feb. 14, and has created him an infante of Spain and a knight of the Golden Fleece. The programme of the wedding fetes is as follows: There will be a gala performance Feb. 8 at the Theatre Royal.

There will be a banquet Feb. 9 at the palace to celebrate the king's fete day. Among the guests will be the courtiers and members of the cabinet. Later there will be a distribution of gifts to the poor.

A grand municipal reception of the princess and Prince Charles will take place Feb. 10. Double bands will be stationed in the principal squares of Madrid and will play national airs.

During the afternoon of Feb. 11 there will be a court ball of a magnificent character. Three thousand invitations have been sent out. All the grandees of Spain will be present. There will also be a school fete in the evening.

Feb. 13 there will be military music in all the principal squares and free performances at four theaters.

The wedding will occur Feb. 14, on which occasion there will be a distribution of gifts to the poor and fireworks displays in the evening. The day will be regarded as a general holiday, and the troops will wear parade dress.

There will be military music in the public squares Feb. 15.

SALOONS CLOSED.

Mrs. Nation's Work In Topeka Bears Immediate Fruit.

TOPEKA, Feb. 7.—Topeka joints were closed yesterday aside from a few side doors, and the keepers have promised the city and county officials that they will get rid of their stocks of liquors. Chief of Police Stahl and Sheriff Cook had gone from place to place warning the joint keepers that they must close their places and keep them closed, and all gave their word that they would sell no more liquor.

When Mrs. Nation heard the news, she showed but little sign of emotion and said simply, "Thank God."

"But do you think this will do any permanent good? Do you think these saloons will stay closed?" she was asked.

"I think they will," she replied. "I think they are shut up for good. They will never open again if the women continue to be vigilant."

"How long will you remain in Topeka?"

"Until I am sure that I have kept the promise I made last week that I would stay until every joint is closed. Then I will go elsewhere."

While the officials were making the rounds of the joints last night, Mrs. Nation and her followers were holding a secret meeting in the Congregational church. The fact was known to the joint keepers, and the belief that another raid was being planned apparently had weight in their determination to close.

Lawson to Be Arrested.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Another gas sensation was sprung in the house yesterday, when Mr. Skerritt of Worcester offered an order for the appearance before the bar of the house of Mr. Thomas W. Lawson, the well known financier and yachtsman, who took a prominent part in last year's investigation of the Boston gas situation. The order charges Mr. Lawson with being disrespectful in a newspaper interview to the members of the house and further provides for his arrest by the sergeant-at-arms. Some days after the gas matter first made its appearance at the present session Mr. Lawson was quoted as saying that it did not matter how much the members of the house desired another investigation. No such investigation would take place this year for the reason the gas interests were too powerful and had decided that matters should rest at present. Mr. Lawson further charged that $30,000 was spent in changing the attitude of the house.

Silk Workers' Strike Settled.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 7.—The strike among the silk workers at the Klotz Throwing company at Carbondale has been decided by the acceptance by both employees and employers of the decision of the arbitrator, Rev. Father Coffey, vicar general of the Scranton diocese, who decided that the employees should have a slight increase in their wages. The mill owners and the strikers are satisfied with the decision.

Fire Sweeps a Pennsylvania Town.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Feb. 7.—Fire totally destroyed the wholesale and retail general merchandise store of T. B. MORE MEN TO AFRICA

England Will Send Thirty Thousand Mounted Troops.

RECRUITING PROCEEDS RAPIDLY.

General Brabant Appointed Commander of the Cape Colony Defenders—Bond Leaders Urging Boers to Surrender.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The following announcement has been issued by the war office:

"In view of the recent Boer activity in various directions the government has decided, in addition to the large forces recently equipped locally in South Africa, to re-enforce Lord Kitchener by 30,000 mounted troops beyond those already landed in Cape Colony. Recruiting for the imperial yeomanry has proceeded so rapidly that it is anticipated 10,000 will shortly be available.

"The South African mounted constabulary, including those enlisted in the colonies, may be relied upon to extend to 8,000, and the new colonial contingents to replace those withdrawn will probably reach 5,000.

"The remainder of the force will be made up of cavalry and mounted infantry from the home establishment. The enlistment of volunteers to replace those that have already served a year in South Africa is also being proceeded with. Arrangements have been made for the prompt equipment and transportation of the force. The first consignment will leave on the Aurania Feb. 9."

A Cape Town dispatch says that The Gazette announces that General Brabant has been appointed to the command of the force being raised for the defense of Cape Colony, with Colonel Girouard as his chief of staff. His headquarters will be at East London, from which point he will advance northward and westward, gradually clearing the colony of invaders and enabling the imperial forces to concentrate ultimately on the territory of the republics.

Commenting upon the situation at Delagoa Bay and the evidence that the Boers have penetrated 23 miles into Portuguese territory, The Daily Mail expresses a belief that British troops are now guarding the Delagoa Bay railroad down to the sea and that it will be possible to send British troops by the Delagoa route. It argues, therefore, that Great Britain gains by the Boer move.

The correspondent of The Daily Chronicle at The Hague, wiring the substance of an interview with Dr. Leyds, says: "Dr. Leyds reasserted that the Boers would never submit and that their subjugation was utterly impossible. He declared that they would continue filling their magazines, as hitherto, with every fresh capture from the British."

Bond Leaders Willing to Surrender.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 7.—The Bond leaders are willing and strongly urge the Boers to surrender provided the British offer those in the field the following terms—namely, that after giving up arms all shall be allowed to return to their farms and the rebels shall not be punished. Prominent burghers say that Louis Botha in the Transvaal and Christian De Wet in the Free State should be made members of the governor's council in order to watch the interests of the burghers.

Confederates Do Not Want McKinley.

SAVANNAH, Feb. 7.—The Confederate Veterans' association of Savannah passed resolutions against the invitation to President McKinley to attend the reunion of Confederate veterans at Memphis. The resolutions recite that the association entertains profound respect for President McKinley and his exalted station; but, "believing his presence on this occasion as the guest of the city of Memphis is sought by a few of the citizens of Memphis to further their political aspirations and is therefore derogatory to our idea of the proper respect due to the president of this great nation and contrary to the spirit of the U. C. V., partisan politics and all that tends to it being strictly forbidden in all meetings and reunions of the U. C. V. organization," the association calls upon General Gordon, commander in chief, to name some other city than Memphis as the place for the reunion.

Train and Five Engines Stalled.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Feb. 7.—The passenger train over the Chateaugay railroad due here at 10:50 a. m. Tuesday became stalled in the snow east of Dannemora. Engine after engine was sent in from both ends to pull the train out, until five engines also became stalled in the cut. All efforts to break through the huge drifts proved unavailing and at daylight yesterday morning a force of 50 men was set to work to shovel away the snow. The train at last reached here at 1 p. m. over 28 hours late. There were about 20 passengers on the train, some of them women, and the train crews went on snowshoes to nearby farmhouses for food.

Queen Wilhelmina's Wedding Eve.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 7.—The wedding eve of Queen Wilhelmina and Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin showed a winter carnival holding sway over The Hague. It was an ideal evening, clear and cold. Fully 100,000 Hollanders, with many foreigners, have been added to the population of the city. People were marching about or in carriages, singing or playing the national anthem. Queen Wilhelmina dined at the palace last evening with Duke Henry and the families of the two. Occasionally she appeared at an upper window to bow a response to some serenading society.

A County Snow Bound.

LYONS, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Wayne county is snow bound. The snow is two feet on the level and has drifted badly. There has been no rural free mail delivery since Saturday. The Central and West Shore trains are running behind time. Four engines are required to draw 40 car trains on the Pennsylvania division. It is still snowing hard, and a brisk wind is blowing.

Delirious Patient Drowns Himself.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 7.—William Howe, while delirious from typhoid fever, escaped from his house near here and running some distance across a field plunged from a bridge into the creek. His body was recovered from under the ice several hours later.

Illinois May Abolish Hanging.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Feb. 7.—A bill was introduced in the lower house of the Illinois legislature providing for capital punishment hereafter in the electric chair instead of by hanging.

A GREAT STEEL DEAL

Billion Dollar Trust Headed by J. P. Morgan.

CARNEGIE SELLS HIS INTERESTS.

He Owned 54 Per Cent of the $160,000,000 Capital Stock of the Company Bearing His Name.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—On the unofficial statement that J. Pierpont Morgan had obtained control of the Carnegie company there was a very buoyant opening in the steel stocks yesterday morning. For several days there have been persistent rumors that Mr. Morgan would bring order out of the chaotic conditions that have recently prevailed among the steel companies.

The first "billion dollar trust" became an accomplished fact when Mr. Andrew Carnegie affixed his signature to an agreement whereby his 54 per cent interest in the $160,000,000 capital stock of the Carnegie Steel company passed to J. Pierpont Morgan, representing the Rockefeller and Moore interests in the steel market.

The retirement of Mr. Carnegie from active participation in the steel trade leaves the entire situation in the hands of the mammoth combination which Mr. Morgan has been forming since early in 1897.

It is a well known fact that Mr. Carnegie has wanted to sell out for some time, desiring to retire from the activities forced upon him by the necessities of the gigantic corporation which bears his name. In the spring of 1899 it was authoritatively stated that he sold for $1,000,000 an option on his business to H. C. Frick and a promoter. Mr. Frick and the promoter, who was James Moore of Chicago, did not avail themselves of the option to buy out the Carnegie company. Unconfirmed reports were that Mr. Carnegie's price was $300,000,000, and talk was then heard about a "billion dollar steel trust." At the time there was a craze in the matter of organization of industrial combinations, misnamed "trusts," and the billion dollar story was reflected by a severe decline in the stock market.

The Carnegie company was organized March 24, 1890. The authorized capital stock is $160,000,000 bonds and $160,000,000 stock, the par value of the shares being $1,000. Of the capital stock $156,800,000 has been issued. The bonded indebtedness is: Collateral trust 5 per cent 100 year gold bonds, dated April 2, 1900, maturing April 1, 2000; sinking fund $800,000 per annum after April, 1905, bonds for sinking fund being subject to call at 105 and interest, $160,000,000.

No Decision For the Wrestlers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—For one hour and seven minutes Ernest Roeber, the American champion wrestler, and the French champion, M. Paul Pons, struggled for supremacy in a roped ring in Madison Square Garden last night. They might have gone on for another hour, but the arbitrary order of Police Inspector Thompson, who declared that he would not allow the bout to go on after midnight, stopped the match in a most unsatisfactory manner. Pons held the upper hand at nearly every stage of the contest, but he lacked the cleverness of the smaller man, who was never caught unawares at any moment, and Roeber, though by many years the older and in stature far inferior to the big foreigner, more than held his own. That the bout was on the level there can be no question, and the 7,000 people who left the big building had only the warmest praise for the athletes and a few hard words for the interference of the police inspector.

Miners and Operators.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 7.—The first sign of a break in the stand taken by either side in the conference between the coal operators and miners came yesterday, when it was decided by the miners that they would recede from the position they took in the Indianapolis convention. At least they receded to the extent of leaving the miner members of the scale committee free to make the best terms possible, subject to approval before final acceptance. This is expected to simplify matters to a considerable degree.

Injured by Schoolboys.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Mrs. Hannah Simpson, aged 84 years, lies at the point of death at her home in this city, and her condition is said to be due to bodily injuries alleged to have been inflicted upon her by young schoolboys living in her neighborhood. The police have been investigating and, it is said, have discovered that two boys who were found trespassing on Mrs. Simpson's property brutally assaulted the aged woman. Her injuries are expected to prove fatal.

Another Reading Dividend.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7. — The board of directors of the Reading Railroad company, which company controls the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company and the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company, has declared a semiannual dividend of 2 per cent upon the $28,000,000 of first preferred stock. The last semiannual dividend, of 1½ per cent, declared six months ago, was the first dividend declared by the company in several years.

Bishop Potter's Brother Dead.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 7.—Eliphalet Nott Potter, brother of Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York, died of heart failure at 6:45 o'clock last evening at the Hotel Jardin in this city.

FATAL COLLISION.

Accident on the Ontario and Western at Middletown, N. Y.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 7.—A fatal collision occurred on the Ontario and Western railroad at Hurleyville, Sullivan county, yesterday. An engine with a snow flanger, used to clear the rails of snow, crashed into a passenger coach attached to a milk train which had stopped at a siding to allow another train to pass.

Howard R. Schofield of Fishkill Landing, a traveling salesman and a member of the firm of John G. Turnbull & Co. of 294 Pearl street, New York city, died from inhalation of steam and the effects of scalds about the body. The injured are Ontario and Western Division Carpenter Daniel C. Lamont, Ontario and Western Supervisor Robert Brock, Daniel H. Webster of the firm of Howell & Webster, grain commission merchants; Sayor Fancher of the firm of Snyder & Fancher, wholesale grocers of this city; Henry C. Koppes of Calicoon Center, H. D. Percher of Albany and Dr. H. P. Deady of Liberty. These were all so severely scalded by steam that their faces and hands peeled. Some of them may have been fatally injured from escaping steam.

Both the passenger coach and the express car ahead were provided with coal stoves, and these, overturning, set the cars on fire. The train crew and the uninjured passengers worked heroically to extricate the injured passengers. Dr. Deady, although severely injured, assisted Dr. De Kay of Hurleyville in caring for the injured. The injured were brought to this city on a relief train taken to the scene in person by Superintendent C. H. Hopkins. The wreck is said to have been due to a misunderstanding of train orders.

RUNAWAY BOYS.

Tramped All the Way From Cohoes, N. Y., to Boston.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Tired and homesick and with frozen hands and feet, three lads entered the office of Station 12 here. When they had been warmed and felt able to talk, they gave their names as Adelard Bourgman, 16 years of age; Edward Berrigan, 17 years old, and Dwight Ashley, 14 years old, all from Cohoes, N. Y.

Before Captain Dalton continued his investigation he sent for a physician, as Berrigan was not only thoroughly exhausted, but suffering from frozen hands and feet. Later it was learned that the boys were employed in a cotton mill at Cohoes up to last Saturday, at which time Berrigan lost his place. As he did not think he could obtain another place readily he made up his mind to come to Boston. His two friends decided to leave the mill and come with him.

They started Saturday afternoon, but as they had little money they decided to walk. By stages they made the journey to Boston, sleeping in freight cars. The parents of the boys have been notified, and they will be cared for until a reply is received.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Lorenzo Priori was put to death in Sing Sing.

Operation on Mr. Kruger's eyes was performed at Utrecht.

Anti-Christian Science legislation was killed in Missouri legislature.

Kruger was cheered and Victoria hissed at Chicago pro-Boer meeting.

The Dutch are reported to have taken Achinese fortress of Batorilik, Sumatra.

Ferryboats and other craft were seriously delayed by ice in New York harbor.

Bill introduced in Danish folkething authorizing foreign loan of 25,000,000 kroner.

Many persons were killed and injured by petroleum fire at Baku, Russian Transcaucasia.

New York State Grange.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 7.—The second day of the annual session of the New York State Grange and the Order of Patrons of Husbandry was largely taken up with the reading of reports of state officers. A large number of resolutions were introduced, which were referred to committees. Among them were resolutions favoring an amendment to the excise law by raising the price of saloon licenses, indorsing Governor Odell's offer to reduce state expenses, indorsing State Commissioner of Agriculture Wieting and favoring his reappointment, opposing fake and immoral shows at county fairs, opposing the proposed repeal of the law providing for instruction in the schools of the harmful influences of alcohol, favoring the repeal of the Saturday half holiday and eight hour laws which the factory department is trying to extend to farm labor, a scheme which the grangers consider totally impracticable; favoring the passage of a law prohibiting the stopping of railroad trains within 50 rods of a railroad crossing for more than five minutes, favoring the selection of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and favoring pure beer legislation in the interests of the hop growers.

Rich Gravel Found.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 7.—The steamer Tees, from the north, brought news of a very rich find in the Atlin district near the discovery on Pine creek owned by Fritz Miller. Gravel showing $3.50 to the shovel has been found on bedrock. Prospectors in the Stewart river country are no longer confining themselves to Clear creek diggings, but are pushing over the divides to Twenty Mile creek and even farther, where rich strikes have been made. Thousands of acres of Yukon hydraulic concessions have been thrown open for placer entry.

Serious Fire In Havana.

HAVANA, Feb. 7.—A lumber yard, sawmill and 14 houses in the western part of Havana, near El Cerro, have been destroyed by fire, with a total loss of $700,000. The mill and yard, the property of Pedro Estanillo, show a loss of $300,000, against which there is insurance to the amount of $93,000. Eighty persons were injured, most of them firemen. The flames were under control at 8 o'clock last evening.

Fresh Outbreak of Plague.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 7.—The steamer Empress of China brings news of a fresh outbreak of the plague in Formosa. The Japan Mail says that the official report of the Formosan government gives the number of deaths as nine in seven days since the renewal of the malady. Three-fourths of those stricken with the disease do not recover.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair, followed by rain or snow; diminishing northwesterly winds.

A HEARING AT ALBANY.

Life and Fire Insurance Companies Oppose Taxation.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—Nearly all of the life and fire insurance companies of the state were represented at the hearing yesterday on the insurance tax bill before the joint committees on taxation and retrenchment of the senate and assembly. The companies represented have combined assets of fully a thousand millions of dollars or a seventieth part of the wealth of the United States. A brilliant array of counsel was present.

The principal argument on behalf of the life insurance companies was made by Judge William T. Hornblower, representing the New York Life, the Mutual and the Equitable. Judge Hornblower argued that it would be unjust to tax life insurance surplus because it in reality represented the savings and earnings of millions of policy holders, and a great percentage, in fact a majority, of these policy holders were residents of other states and other countries, and it was not at all fair for the Empire State to call on foreigners for revenue simply because they had seen fit to patronize a New York company. The tax bill revolutionized the time honored policy of New York and dealt a disastrous blow to the insurance companies of the state. There was every reason to believe that other states would emulate New York's example, and by the adoption of retaliatory schemes and measures the New York companies if not taxed out of existence would certainly lose millions of dollars' worth of business in not being able to compete with the companies of other states. Senator Krum expressed the opinion that the life companies had some fund from which the tax could be paid without affecting the policy holders. C. E. Patterson, representing the United Life Insurance company, answered that there was no such fund. There were perhaps a few millions outside of that portion of the surplus known as the deferred dividend reserve.

Others who spoke on behalf of the life companies included Gage E. Tarbell of the Equitable, Charlton Lewis and Emory McClintock of the Mutual and Miles M. Dawson of the Bankers' Life. After the life men had been heard the fire insurance men had an inning.

John H. Washburn of the Home Fire Insurance company presented the principal argument, which was in effect that there were only two companies in the state that were able to pay the tax off their earnings, not in New York alone, but in the entire United States. The fire losses in recent years had been enormous. A tax on premiums contained in this state alone would be tolerable. But in its present form the results of the bill would be disastrous. Elijah R. Kennedy, representing the New York city board of underwriters, was also heard in opposition. The hearing was continued late last evening.

A Monster Baby.

VINELAND, N. J., Feb. 7. — Vineland's infant prodigy that weighed 53 pounds at the age of 4 months is still doing stunts on the scales. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Munyan and now at the age of 7 months is keeping everybody guessing by her remarkable fluctuations in weight. At birth she weighed 10½ pounds, but immediately began to put on flesh until, at the age of 6 months, she weighed 70 pounds. Then she had the grip and began to cut her front teeth, with the result that she lost 30 pounds at the rate of a pound a day. Now she is regaining her former size almost like an expanding balloon.

A Consignment of Cats.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 7.—For the first time in the history of the Merchants' Exchange a consignment of cats was sold to the highest bidder on the floor while the session was at its liveliest. W. A. Colby's announcement that he had a consignment of 15 cats from a country trader which he would sell to the highest bidder the merchants in the grain pits thought was a joke, and when he showed the bill of lading they only laughed the more and said he had made good preparations for the ruse. D. J. Bushnell, who happened to hear the offer, took it seriously and offered 40 cents each for the cats. The offer was snapped up at once.

Railway Snow Bound.

TUNKHANNOCK, Pa., Feb. 7.—Drifting snows have tied up traffic entirely on the Montrose branch of the Lehigh Valley railroad, no trains having run since Tuesday morning. A double header started out at that time, and the crew is still battling with the blizzards that are sweeping over the hills of Susquehanna county. A telephone message from Montrose says the supply of coal for the two engines on the train is exhausted, and an effort is being made to haul some by team from that town.

An Arrest In Manila.

MANILA, Feb. 7.—Theodorio Carranza, a prominent and wealthy Spanish merchant and hemp and cocoanut buyer, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of furnishing supplies to aid the insurgents. Carranza is also a partner of D. M. Carman, an American contractor and owner of boats, who had considerable transportation contracts with the government. The provost marshal and secret service officers have been watching a number of merchants and transportation men for some time.

Miss Keller Promoted.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Helen Keller, the deaf and blind but no longer dumb student, who is now in her freshman year at Radcliffe college, has received new and exceptional honors. Miss Keller in the middle of the term has been promoted from what is known at the college as English 22 class to English 12 class. The promotion is a remarkable one and is made only on recommendation of the professor of English on account of extraordinary progress in studies.

Lunatics' Support Cheapened.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—The state lunacy commission has reported to the legislature that a gross reduction of $297,171 was made in the cost of maintenance of the 22,000 insane persons supported by the state during the past year. This is a reduction in the per capita rate from $3.43 to $3.18 per week. During the year there were 4,795 new cases of insanity and a net increase in the population of the state hospitals of 714.

Negroes Shot In Jail.

DADE CITY, Fla, Feb. 7.—Will Wright and Sam Williams, negroes, charged with being implicated in the killing of Dan Childers and the wounding of J. B. McNealy, both white, at Rice & Phelps' camp on Jan. 26, were killed in the county jail by a mob of 50 or more men at a late hour Tuesday night

NIGHT AND DAY WORK

Senate Holds Three Sessions. Two Bills Passed.

CHANGES IN REVENUE REDUCTION BILL

Shipping Subsidy Measure Taken Up In the Evening, but Little Is Accomplished—House Votes Today on Postoffice Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Two important measures were disposed of by the senate yesterday, the Military academy appropriation bill and the war revenue reduction measure. The former was under consideration less than an hour. The only change made in it was the strengthening of the provision against hazing at West Point.

During the remainder of the afternoon session the war revenue reduction bill was before the senate. A determined but unsuccessful effort was made to reduce the tax on bank checks and to provide that telegraph and express companies should bear the burden of the tax on messages and packages sent. The finance committee's amendment levying a tax on transactions in so called "bucket shops," modifying the tax upon cigars and cigarettes and providing for a rebate on unbroken packages of tobacco, in addition to several others of a minor character, were adopted.

An amendment substituting an income tax for the war revenue measure, offered by Mr. Morgan of Alabama, was rejected by a party vote—21 to 38.

Beginning at 8 o'clock last evening the first of a promised series of night sessions was held to discuss the shipping bill. The entire session was devoted to a continuous round of intellectual pyrotechnics. Practically every question that has been or is likely soon to be before the senate was discussed, but very little time was devoted to the pending measure. Notable speeches were made by Mr. Jones of Arkansas and Mr. Aldrich of Rhode Island. The Arkansas senator was passionate in his denunciation of the methods of the majority to force the shipping bill to an issue, and Mr. Aldrich's response was quite as keen and vigorous in their defense. From a spectacular point of view the session was interesting, and the sharp colloquies and snappy speeches were hugely enjoyed by those on the floor and by the large crowds in the galleries.

Debate on the postoffice appropriation bill consumed another day in the house. It was agreed before adjournment that debate should close today at 12:30 p. m., when the votes should be taken upon the several amendments which are pending.

West Point Report.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The special committee of the house which investigated the hazing at West Point has practically completed its labors and has framed its report and the bill which will be proposed as a remedy for the evil. Both bill and report will be presented to the house as soon as they can be printed. The committee held an extended session yesterday, going over the report and discussing the terms of the proposed legislation. The recommendations will be very stringent, and it is said that yesterday's action of the senate in providing expulsion from the academy and ineligibility for army appointment is exceedingly mild compared with the legislation proposed by the special committee.

Skinner Renominated.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—A joint caucus of Republican senators and assemblymen last night met in the assembly chamber to nominate a state superintendent of public instruction and a state regent to succeed the late Hamilton Harris. Senator Stranahan nominated Charles R. Skinner to succeed himself as superintendent of public instruction, and Mr. Skinner was nominated without opposition. Senator McEwan nominated Robert C. Pruyn of Albany as regent, and on motion of Assemblyman Allds Mr. Pruyn was made the caucus nominee by a single ballot. He is a social and commercial leader in Albany, in the prime of life and was educated in Albany and at Rutgers college. He is president of the Commercial bank of Albany.

Knox May Be Griggs' Successor.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—It is understood by leading Pennsylvanians that the president has decided to appoint as attorney general of the United States to succeed Attorney General Griggs P. C. Knox of Pittsburg, counsel in chief to Andrew Carnegie and his business associates. Mr. Knox, it is said, was desired by the president as his first attorney general, but at that time he was not able to consider the offer. He is an old personal friend of Mr. McKinley, has never been in office of any kind and has the reputation of being a lawyer of the highest attainments. He is not in the city, but it is understood that he is expected to arrive here in a few days to talk with the president about this appointment.

Site For Naval Arch Approved.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The approval of the city officials was given to Battery park as the site for a naval arch to commemorate the deeds of valor by the United States sailors. Mayor Van Wyck gave his approval of the site selected by a committee of the Naval Academy Alumni association, and he said that $1,000,000 should be raised for such a purpose.

To Rebuild Fredonia Normal School.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—The ways and means committee of the assembly will today report favorably the Fowler bill appropriating $170,000 for rebuilding and equipping the State Normal school at Fredonia recently damaged by fire. The state has received $80,000 insurance money.

Marine Disaster Probable.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 7.—It is feared that a serious marine disaster has occurred off St. John's within the last 48 hours. A quantity of wreckage, belonging apparently to a large and well found vessel, has drifted ashore near Torbay, seven miles north of St. John's.

The Sheridan Arrives.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—The United States transport Sheridan has arrived here, 27 days from Manila. She returned in ballast and has on board 27 officers and 640 men of the Thirty-seventh volunteer regiment.

A Hotel Fire Victim.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 7.—John Regon, aged about 30 years, died at the City hospital at 3 o'clock yesterday. This makes the fourth fatality connected with the Exposition hotel fire.

COMING EVENTS

February 10—Dr. F. Nice, the talented violinist from Salvation Army headquarters, will relate his experience and render violin solos at the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m.

The Overseer of The Poor.

It is very seldom that the members of the Common Council confirm an appointment of the Mayor only to reconsider the subject a few minutes later and then lay it on the table The peculiar treatment which Mayor Jenkin's appointment of Alexander D Ayres as overseer of the poor received has caused considerable comment. The Council must have had reason for its action.

The explanation of it is simple enough after all. There was no conference previous to the meeting on the subject, and the general idea was that another name than that of Mr. Ayres would be presented. When the Mayor's nominations were made, Councilman Lee, chairman of the alms committee, was the only member of the Council, who knew anything about the appointment. With the other appointments, that of Mr. Ayres went through as a matter of course. It was only when the members of the Council realized that they had confirmed the appointment of a man whom most of them knew nothing about that they decided that their action had been hasty and that it would be well to look into the man's qualifications before approving his appointment. So it was that the appointment was reconsidered and laid on the table.

In selecting a man for the position of overseer of the poor, the Mayor and members of the Council should carefully consider his qualifications for the place. While it would be perfectly natural for a Republican Council to select one of that party, it must be remembered that there are some Republicans who are better fitted for the place than others.

Properly filled, the position is one for which every man is not qualified. The late Christian Hansen made a wonderfully satisfactory overseer of the poor and the city will have to go far to find his equal. The overseer of the poor is constantly called on to work in unison with the Plainfield Relief Association and the Organized Aid Association. He is also brought in frequent consultation with the city judge These facts should be remembered by the Mayor and Council before they definitely decide on the next overseer of the poor and the wishes of the officers of these organizations and City Judge Runyon given some consideration at least.

It Must Be Done.

Sidewalks and front lawns of residents along the line of the trolley are hereafter not to be decorated with dirt and stones every time a fall of snow necessitates a visit from the snow sweeper of the trolley company. That decidedly unpleasant feature of the electric sweeper's visit was called to the attention of Col. E. W. Hine, of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company, by Street Commissioner Gavett, and Col. Hine has replied that it will be prevented in the future. There are, he explains, curtains on the side of the sweeper which, when properly placed, will prevent any such thing.

If the sweeper makes another trip over the same line in the future and the men in charge insist on running the brush at the speed they did on the first occasion, the same result is quite likely to happen despite the curtains. A little more care in keeping the brush the proper height from the ground will also eliminate to a great extent those unpleasant features.

Dr. Elmer E. Whittaker, pastor of the First Methodist church of Ashtabula, Ohio, recently decided to resort to attractive advertising as a means of increasing the attendance at the services which he conducted, relates the Philadelphia Record. By way of an initial experiment he inserted the following notice in a leading newspaper: "Wanted, a few more saints; a few more men; a few more Methodists; a few more sinners to become saints. Meetings tonight at the First M. E church; subject: "A Fool and His Companions." The first insertion of this "add," which was set in heavy, black-faced type, doubled the minister's congregation The next week another snappy "ad" increased the attendance (which had averaged 150) to 400, and crowded the church. What advertising did for that church it will do for any other—and its power is not confined to the building up of religious bodies.

As was long ago predicted, there has been no trouble in securing the requisite number of good men for a militia company. Responsible young men in the city are eager to join such an organization if it is conducted under proper auspices and the committee of ten has prepared a list of a hundred names of proper candidates for the company. The problem of securing the proper officers has not been so easy of solution and the roster of officers for the company is not yet definitely completed. The material is here, however, and careful selection will bring out the right men for the places.

Never a day passes but some stranger calls the attention of a local acquaintance to the fact that it is simply impossible for any one to find a street in Plainfield owing to the entire lack of street signs. That is no surprise to Plainfielders who have long realized the fact. The street committee of the Council has realized it too and recommended that immediate action be taken but still the Council does not act.

There isn't any question now but that Senator Mahlon Pitney is out of the Republican gubernatorial race for sure.

When the sleighs were out in force, owners of fast horses sighed because the new speedway was not ready.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

It is rumored that a consolation prize in the shape of a vice-chancellorship may be offered Senator Reed, of Somerset, to lure him off the gubernatorial track. Doubtful.—New York Herald.

. . . . . .

What desperate hurry is there about the Anti-Spring Election bill? Maybe it's a good measure; maybe it isn't. What the voters think about it one may not know to a certainty until the question has been submitted to them Now, why wouldn't it be worth while adopting the suggestion to submit this proposition to the people before instead of after making it a law?

There is a wide difference of opinion as to the wisdom or unwisdom of abolishing spring elections. Many men whose opinions are entitled to consideration honestly urge the enactment of such a law on the highest grounds. They say that it is hurtful, expensive and annoying to have two elections every year, and that an actual minority of the voters controls local affairs because of the smallness of the vote at the spring elections. On the other hand, it is contended that the abolition of spring elections is a slap at those voters who wish to keep municipal affairs distinct and separate from State and National politics.—New York Tribune.

LECTURE PLEASED.

Open Letter Written By Rev. Dr. Yerkes Regarding Mrs. Mountford's Lectures.

Mrs. Mountford's lecture at the First Baptist church Tuesday evening was so satisfactory to pastor and congregation that Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes has written the following open letter concerning the lecture:

"Mrs. Mountford delivered two of her lectures in our church, both of which I heard. They were very instructive and highly entertaining. I have rarely listened to addresses on kindred subjects with equal interest, and that must have been the experience of the audience, for they listened to her for two hours without any apparent weariness or impatience. Her methods of illustration and her own personality gave to her lecture a peculiar fascination. D. J. Yerkes."

Dr. Schenck Has Returned.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who went to Chatanooga, Tenn., January 30, to spend a short time with his brother in-law, S. R. Williams, returned home yesterday, much improved from a recent attack of the grip.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 7—Funeral services over the remains of Arthur Parker were held from the residence of his parents yesterday afternoon. They were in charge of Rev. Frank Fletcher, who delivered a most impressive discourse and offered consoling words to the bereaved parents. A number of the young lad's former schoolmates were present and sang in chorus. H. C. Cathers also sang very acceptably. Interment was made this morning in Hillside cemetery, Madison.

Engine No. 319, drawing the Washington express which reaches Plainfield at 3:12, was forced to cut loose from the train at the Dunellen station yesterday afternoon owing to a "hot box." Another engine was procured from the roundhouse and, with Smith Watson in the cab, the train continued its journey after a delay of ten minutes.

Extensive preparations have been made by the committee in charge for the entertainment to be given in Apgar's Hall under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. next Saturday evening. The Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar Club has been engaged for the occasion and will be assisted by a good array of talent.

John McElmair, of Long Island City, has been appointed night operator at the station in the place of William Dalberg, who has been transferred to Roselle.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Brakeley and sons attended the wedding of a relative at Easton last evening at which Miss Louise Brakeley was maid of honor.

John Barick has returned home from Newark, where he has been visiting his daughter for the past few weeks.

The Misses Kate and Pauline Kratzel have returned from a visit with relatives at Cranford.

Paxson VanArsdale is confined to his home with a severe attack of the grip.

Clarence Harrison has taken a position with a firm at Bayonne.

Mrs. Nancy Thomas is recovering from an attack of the grip.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, Feb. 7.—William Johnson, the young son of Andrew Johnson, is very sick with a heavy cold which it is feared will turn into pneumonia.

The Township Committee will meet today, when it is expected all business for the past year will be concluded.

Benjamin Pizie, who has been ill with nervous trouble, is slightly improved though still very sick.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meeker has been gladdened by the arrival of a son.

Mrs. Ella Mechling is slowly recovering from her recent severe attack of the grip.

J. E. Meeker is still confined to the house by grip, but is decidedly improved.

John Downie has recovered from an attack of the grip.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 7.—Sad and impressive funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Nancy Wilcox, when the sorrowing family and a number of their neighbors gathered to pay the last sad homage to her daughter Hattie, who died at the Brooklyn Hospital Monday afternoon. The services were private, owing to the illness of Mrs. Wilcox, but the neighbors and a number of friends who had loved the deceased in life, gathered with the family to mourn their loss. Rev G. M. Shott officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks, Miss Wilcox's former pastor. Both spoke words of comfort and consolation to the mourning ones, and likened the death to only a parting for a time. Many handsome tokens of love were expressed by the beautiful display of flowers which completely covered the casket. Interment was made in the family plot in the cemetery adjoining the Baptist church.

The officers of Fanwood Council, R. A., held an important meeting last evening at the home of Wm. B. Noble. An effort will be made by the recently-installed officers to make the council meetings more enjoyable to the members. A determined effort is to be made to increase the membership during the coming year.

The Ladies' Aid Society of All Saint's church are arranging to give an entertainment in the Fanwood firehouse Friday evening. Good talent has been secured and an enjoyable evening is promised those who attend. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church.

The body of Mrs. Frazee, who died at her home in Bordentown Sunday, was interred in the Baptist cemetery of this place yesterday morning. Mrs. Frazee was quite well known in the village. She was the mother-in-law of John Beick, of Forest avenue.

The Literary Society connected with the Methodist church met and enjoyed an interesting Bible reading and study in the class rooms of the church last evening.

Fanwood Bucket and Engine Company held their regular monthly meeting in their rooms last evening. Routine business only was transacted.

The old familiar ring of the Baptist church bell is heard once again, the damage to the pulley wheel having been repaired.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, Feb. 7.—Jacob Thuma awoke yesterday morning to find part of his house flooded with water. It seems that during the night a water pipe had frozen up and burst Considerable damage was done to carpets and other furnishings.

It is expected that important business will be transacted tonight at the meeting of the P. O. S. of A. A past president has been deputized to install all the officers who were not present last Thursday night.

John Taylor, a new employe of the cool storage plant, fell from a coal car yesterday and broke his arm. He was taken to New Market where Dr. Nelson set the bone.

Albert Manning has the contract for finishing the building of the new ice house.

Skating upon the brook is good today for the first time in several years.

William E. Faulks is slowly improving from an attack of the grip,

Mrs. Fred LaTurette has been visiting friends in New York.

SITUATION IS SUMMED UP.

EDITOR M'BRIDE WRITES CONCERNING GUBERNATORIAL RACE.

Unless Something Entirely New Develops Before the Convention Franklin Murphy Will be Nominated.

There has been no end of gossip concerning the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in New Jersey. Newspapers all over the State have had a great variety of opinions. The situation at present is well summed up by that veteran editor, Charles O. McBride, in yesterday's Elizabeth Journal. He says:

"The consensus of opinion in and around the State House at Trenton is that Hon. Franklin Murphy will be the Republican candidate for governor, next fall, notwithstanding the uncertainty of the present outlook. Plenty of new candidates have been named since Senator Pitney retired from the field. Plenty of other new candidates may yet be named. But as yet Mr. Murphy stands pre eminent in the list, and as yet the way is perfectly clear to his nomination. What the situation may evolve during the next six months no one can successfully predict, but unless Mr Murphy withdraws or unless some entirely new and unexpected phase of politics presents itself, Mr. Murphy is certain to be nominated.

The reason is plain. Mr Murphy is an able man, well qualified to fulfill the duties of chief executive. He is a gentleman of culture, refinement and of the highest character. He has devoted some of the best years of his life, without reward or compensation, to the interests of the Republican party in the State of New Jersey. As chairman of the Republican State committee he has been eminently successful, and has won the unqualified confidence of the Republican leaders, and of the party workers throughout the state.

"Put in a nutshell the situation is just this: Hon. Franklin Murphy is entitled, as much as a man can be entitled, to the nomination at the hands of the Republican party, and he will get it unless it is shown conclusively to Mr. Murphy himself or to the next Republican State convention that party policy has changed and that it is necessary to nominate another man to insure party success. This alternative is not probable, and even if it were it would be difficult to find a candidate better qualified, better liked or more popular than Hon. Franklin Murphy."

GREAT RECORD.

Annual Statement of The Prudential Insurance Company Shows Many Signs of Prosperity.

One of the many indications of the prosperity which has marked the year 1900 is to be found in the annual statement of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, which has just been made public. During the year the insurance in force was increased to over $604 000 000, while the company has a record of over $249 000,000 of insurance written and placed during 1900. The company's assets at the end of the same year were over $10 000,000, while it has paid its policy holders since the year of its organization over $49 000 000. $7,000 000, of this amount going to beneficiaries during 1900. The close of the century shows a surplus of over $6 000 000 an annual income of over $24,000 000, and a total of over 4 000 000 policies in force. In the 25 years of its existence the Prudential has born an enviable reputation for fair and liberal treatment of its policy-holders and for the liberal terms of its life insurance contracts.

Any information about the policies issued by this company can be obtained through a letter addressed to the president of the company, John F. Dryden, at the home office, Newark, N. J.

SPEEDING HORSES.

Many Took Advantage of The Good Sleighing on East Front Street Yesterday Afternoon.

All yesterday afternoon, East Front street beyond Richmond street, was the scene of some exciting brushes between some of the local trotters and pacers. Among those who speeded their horses during the afternoon were E M. French, Mayor N. B Smalley, Thomas Brantingham, William Van Sickle, Robert Fairborn, A. I. Smalley, ex Sheriff W. T. Kirk, W. A. Coddington, Senator Reed, E. C. Martin, Fred Nelson and D. C. Smalley.

One of the most exciting events was the one between D C. Smalley's "Ned Davis" and N. B. Smalley's "Fred." Three dead heats of a half mile were given in which the former seemed to have the advantage.

C. C. HOWARD DEAD.

One of the Most Prominent Masons in State Died at His Home on Putnam Avenue.

After a long illness, Charles Curtis Howard died this morning at his residence, 1008 Putnam avenue. For several days his life was despaired of. The best of medical attendance was secured and life was prolonged until this morning.

Mr. Howard resided in Plainfield for many years. He was connected with a New York banking house for thirty years. For the last year he has not been able to continue his active business career.

He was a past master of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., a past high priest in Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., and district deputy grand master and a member of Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar. He was one of the most prominent Masons in the State.

He leaves a son, C. C. Howard, Jr., who made his home with the elder Howard.

Other Adventures of Lytton.

While looking over a western paper this morning, which is devoted exclusively to police news, Chief Kiely instantly recognized the unmistakable features of "Professor Lytton" and his assistant, the wily confidence men who were indicted by the recent Union county Grand Jury for fleecing a number of Plainfield citizens out of large sums of money under the pretext of revealing the future. They were arrested at Old Superior, Wis., last August but were subsequently released as no complaint was made against them, although the police knew they were thorough crooks.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barry, of Howard street, are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby daughter.

Soloist at Concert.

P. Ludwig Conde will be a soloist at a concert to be given in the Y. M. C. A. at Newark this evening.

Dresden. Die Länge der sächsischen Staatseisenbahnen, einschließlich der gepachteten und ausschließlich der verpachteten Strecken, betrug am Ende des Jahres 1900 3042 Kilometer. Gegen die Länge am Schlusse des Vorjahres sind dies 36 Kilometer mehr. Hiervon sind vollspurig 2632 Kilometer, schmalspurig 410 Kilometer.—Anhier wurden durch Bruch einer Gasröhre 17 Personen betäubt. Der Tischler Breiſchneider erlag der Gasvergiftung.—Gestorben ist hierorts der Königlich Sächsische Generalarzt Dr. med. Karl Kurt Stecher im 61. und in Hosterwitz der Oberst a. D. Hermann v. Hinüber im 50. Lebensjahre.

Leipzig. Hermann Focius, der um das deutsche Gastwirthsgewerbe hochverdiente Vorsitzende des Bundes Deutscher Gastwirthe, ist im Alter von 52 Jahren gestorben.

Möckern. Der hiesige Kirchenbau ist vor Kurzem von Maurermeister Schichtholz in Angriff genommen worden. Die Kosten sind auf 60,000 Mark veranschlagt, wozu ein Ungenannter 20,000 Mark gespendet hat.

Oelsnitz. Das Wanderburschenwesen in Sachsen und namentlich in den Grenzgegenden nimmt wieder zu. Schon in den sechs Monaten Juli bis Dezember 1900 stieg die Zahl der hier übernachtenden Handwerksburschen von 186 im Juli auf 486 im Dezember, und auch im Vergleich zum Vorjahre wurde eine erhebliche Zunahme festgestellt. Insgesammt übernachteten in Oelsnitz in dieser einen Herberge im Jahre 1900 3357 Durchreisende.

Schneeberg. Im Streite um ein Paar Hosen erstach der Bergmann Weber seinen 19 Jahre alten Sohn. Der Thäter, ein wegen Körperverletzung bereits vorbestrafter Mensch, wurde verhaftet.

Wurzen. Dahier wurde der Protokollist und Kassirer der Wurzener Kunstmühlenwerke und Biskuitfabriken, vormals F. Krietsch, Karl Braune, wegen Unterschlagungen in Höhe von 51,000 Mark in Untersuchungshaft genommen.

Thüringische Staaten.

Böhlen. Im Rudolf'schen Saale kam es zwischen zwei jungen Leuten zu einem Streit, in dessen Verlauf ein gewisser Albin Pabst aus Friedersdorf durch circa 20 Messerstiche sehr schwer am Rücken und Hals verletzt wurde. Pabst erlag den erlittenen Verletzungen.

Jena. Im vergangenen Jahre haben im hiesigen Krematorium 45 Leichenverbrennungen stattgefunden; im Ganzen sind bis jetzt hier 113 Leichen verbrannt worden.

Koburg. Der Regierungsverweser von Koburg-Gotha hat den Landeskindern, die in China sich ausgezeichnet haben, Dekorationen verliehen. Dem Oberbootsmannsmaat Otto Möller aus Burgtonna und dem Bootsmannsmaat Kurt Lang aus Gotha, welche sich bei der Niederkämpfung der Takuforts ausgezeichnet hatten, wurde die Verdienstmedaille mit Schwertern, dem ersteren in Gold, dem zweiten in Silber, verliehen. Ferner hat die goldene Verdienstmedaille mit Schwertern erhalten der Seesoldat Richard Horn aus Neuses, welcher sich bei der Vertheidigung der deutschen Gesandtschaft in Peking ausgezeichnet und eine chinesische Fahne erobert hatte.

Schmölln. Der wegen betrügerischen Bankerotts im Dezember v. J. verhaftete und zu Weihnachten wieder aus der Haft entlassene Zimmermeister Emil Staudte von Zschernitzsch wurde dieser Tage wiederum festgenommen, weil Fluchtverdacht vorlag.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die Gesammtkosten der neuen Sternwarte, welche der Hamburgische Staat bei Bergedorf errichten läßt, sind auf 500,000 Mark veranschlagt. Für die Sternwarte war schon vor einiger Zeit auf dem Gojenberge bei Bergedorf ein Terrain von etwa 20,000 Quadratmeter angekauft worden.—Der von Hamburg nach Amerika entflohene Bankerotteur Krämer Mancheleit ist von dort zurückgekehrt und sofort verhaftet worden.—Der Tischler Schröder und seine 30jährige Tochter erstickten durch Kohlendunst. Die Ofenklappe war vorzeitig geschlossen worden.

Bremen. Der Norddeutsche Lloyddampfer „Kaiser Wilhelm der Zweite" ist in „Hohenzollern" umgetauft worden, und der neue Schnelldampfer, welchen der Lloyd zur Zeit beim „Vulkan" in Stettin erbauen läßt, wird den Namen des Kaisers erhalten.—Ein von der Dresdener Staatsanwaltschaft steckbrieflich verfolgter Hochstapler, der als Kunstkritiker Dr. v. Romen auftrat, fiel der Bremer Polizei in die Hände, nachdem er auch hier verschiedene Schwindeleien verübt hatte.

Lübeck. Bei einem Hausbrande kam das zweijährige Töchterchen des Papierhändlers Hohenschildt in den Flammen um.—Hauptlehrer Franz Sartori, Leiter der Dom-Mädchenschule, ist im 70. Lebensjahre gestorben.

Oldenburg.

Jever. Bei der Wahl von zwei Schulvorstehern im Sande wurden die aus dem Schullollegium ausscheidenden Sozialdemokraten Anbauer Bruns und Praß mit großer Majorität wiedergewählt.

A GREAT RECORD.

Hard To Duplicate It In Plainfield.

Scores of representative citizens of Plainfield are testifying on the following subject. Such a record of local endorsement is unequaled in modern times. This public statement made by a citizen is but one of the many that have preceded it and the hundreds that will follow. Read it:

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull, aching pain across the back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping, and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

THE ORIGINAL ENTERTAINMENT OF A CLEVER HOSTESS.

How the Jacks Gave a Dinner to Their Young Friends and Incidentally Helped Cupid Along—An Idea Which Others Might Follow.

It was Mrs. Jack's idea, of course, You see, she was the first member of the Kit Kat club to marry, and she still considered herself very much one of the girls. "Oh, Jack," she coaxed, "do let's give a St. Valentine's dinner! We'll have all the girls and a lot of those nice college chums of yours, and it'll be just jolly!"

When the appointed evening arrived, a crowd of pink cheeked girls and athletic men made the house ring with their laughter. Mrs. Jack had done herself proud, as her husband put it, and the decorations left nothing to be desired. The oak folding doors leading to the dining room had been ornamented in a most effective manner. Strips of black paper imitating iron bars had been pasted vertically and crosswise, so that the effect was that of the entrance to some mediæval castle. Overhead hung a wrought iron lantern with a ruby light, and from this swung a sign of black and silver which read:

ST. VALENTINE, HIS CASTLE.
All Are Welcome Save New Women and Confirmed Bachelors.

The table was heart shaped and was fairylike with gleams of pink and silver. At each place stood a silver candlestick, and the candles shed their light through shades of pink roses, on the edge of which little paper Cupids perched. In front of each man's plate there lay a silver arrow and by the side of each girl's a wax lighting taper. The menus were printed in gold letters on heart shaped pink paper. They read as follows:

Blue Points.
Consomme Coquette.
Lobster Timbales, Consolation Sauce.
Roast Duckling, Jelly a la Cupid.
Potato Hearts. Vegetables.
Salad of Love Apples.
St. Valentine Ices.
True Lovers' Cakes. Bonbons.
Cafe Noir.

The consomme owed its name to the numerous vermicelli hearts with which it was filled. Some of these had been tinted pink with confectioner's red. The jelly a la Cupid was very pretty. It consisted of little fancy molds of dark and light red jelly, through which quivered a silver arrow.

The salad was just one of tomatoes, to which the old fashioned name had been applied. The ices were pink and white sherbet made into little Cupids with silver wings. The cakes were most fancifully decorated in confectioner's sugar, with true lovers' knots and mottoes. The bonbons were served in pink satin heart shaped boxes and the after dinner coffee in tiny pink cups.

Immediately after the roast a silver urn was brought in filled with pink slips of paper. Then Jack rose and made a droll speech, in which he said that men were now about to choose their valentines for the year. "But," he concluded, "some of the fellows think they have grievances against St. Valentine, and I propose to let them air these grievances before Mrs. Jack and the girls as judges."

Then followed a lot of fun. Each fellow arose and made a mock complaint, with veiled allusions, which caused many a girl to blush and giggle. When Mrs. Jack had mischievously passed judgment, each man closed his eyes and drew a girl's name from the urn, after which he regained his seat and blew out his candle. When all the names had been drawn and only the girls' candles remained to light their laughing faces, each man advanced to his valentine and placed in her hair the silver arrow. As a sign of acceptance, she took his former partner's seat and relit his candle by means of her wax taper.

"I tell you what, there's nothing the matter with old St. Val after all!" exclaimed Tom Devereux enthusiastically as he shared a true lover's cake with Maisie Bender.

Maisie blushingly adjusted his arrow which she wore in her hair. "I think Mrs. Jack is a dear!" she murmured happily as her eyes met those of her hostess across the table.

R. DE LA BAUME.

AN ELABORATE RITE.

Opening and Closing of the Holy Door of St. Peter's.

Significance of the Imposing Ceremonial Which Is Under the Direct Supervision of His Holiness, the Pope.

As all Catholics and many Protestants are aware, the closing year of the century is a jubilee year in the Roman Catholic church. Many ceremonies have taken place to mark the period, but of these none have been or are more imposing than the opening and closing of the Holy Door at St. Peter's cathedral. The opening ceremony was witnessed a year ago, and the closing took place on Christmas eve. Owing to the delicate state of the present pope's health, the building in which the opening and closing ceremonies took place had been heated to the temperature of Leo XIII.'s private aparments to avoid any possibility of his holiness taking a chill.

The ceremony of opening the Holy Door is declared to be symbolical of the fact that the church is open to all men so long as they go there after a thorough and sincere conversion. When the pope opens the door the three knocks which he gives to it represents the three continents—Europe, Africa and Asia—to which the pope offers the treasures which he is the medium for dispensing. The three strokes also are looked upon as symbolizing the joy that the jubilee causes to the faithful of Heaven, Earth and Purgatory. The pope, who is seated on a raised throne in front of the large door in the middle of the grand portico, remains stationary for a brief while, until the prince of the throne presents a golden hammer to his holiness, which the latter takes in his right hand, and, rising from his throne, goes and knocks at the Holy

HOLY DOOR AT ST. PETER'S.
(Its Opening and Closing Are Imposing Church Ceremonies.)

Door. His clergy follow him, each with a candle in his hand. His holiness, after knocking three times at the door, says in Latin: "Open to me these doors of justice!" Then the choir adds: "This is the door of the Eternal One, and the just will enter in," etc. After this the grand master knocks down the wall which incloses the Holy Door, the wall being so lightly put together, however, that its four sides are held together but slightly, the stones of which it is composed not being cemented. Thus, no sooner has the pope knocked at the Holy Door than it falls without any resistance. The debris of the wall is distributed among the worshipers, who hasten to gather it in order to put it among their precious relics.

While this is taking place the pope reseats himself on the throne, but after the demolition is completed the penitentiaries of St. Peter take their brooms, clean the floor, remove the pieces of brick and mortar from the passage—which are not looked upon as material to be held in light esteem, since relics are made of them—and wash the moldings and all round the door with holy water. This work being finished, his holiness once more descends from his throne, singing the anthem which opens with the words: "Haec dies quam fecit Dominus," etc., which the choir continues to sing after him. Arriving at the Holy Door the pope recites some prayers, takes the cross, kneels before the door, intones the Te Deum, and, rising again while singing, passes through the Holy Door, his clergy following him. Everybody who can goes into St. Peter's to witness this superb ceremony or to take part in the vespers at the papal chapel. After the vespers the cardinals take off their robes and put on their red capes, accompany the pope to the door of his private apartments, and then retire.

After the morning mass on Christmas day his holiness goes to the lodge of the Benediction, where he blesses the faithful in the form which is only used on the occasion of the jubilee. The closing of the door is a very similar ceremony to the opening. The greatest solemnity is observed, and thousands of privileged pilgrims flock to the cathedral to be witnesses of what, except in rare instances, occurs but once in a lifetime. His holiness lays the first brick for the closing of the door, all the cardinals, monsignors and other dignitaries in Rome being witnesses of the operation. The bricks used for this purpose are about double the ordinary size, being covered with a thin layer of plate—in some cases of silver and in others of gold. They bear in relief the papal arms and the inscription: "Leo XIII. Pont. Max. Aperuit et clausit."

The Name and Fame of Chief Justice John Marshall.

Nation Owes the Great Virginia Lawyer a Debt of Gratitude Which It Can Never Repay—Some of His Decisions.

One hundred years ago President John Adams appointed "a Virginia lawyer, a plain man, by the name of John Marshall," chief justice of the United States. On February 4 John Marshall took his seat on the supreme bench and entered upon the career which was to prove him one of the greatest jurists the world has ever known.

Some men seem endowed by nature with mastery of judicial insight and analysis. Such a man was Marshall. "He seemed," in the words of a contemporary, "to handle judicial questions as the great Euler did mathematical, with giant ease." For crystalline clearness of thought, for invincible logic, for broad, statesmanlike and truly national views of public questions the decisions of Marshall are confessed to be unsurpassed. As stands Papinian in Roman law so ranks Marshall in American.

LEAL'S BOYS WON ON SKATES

EXCITING GAME OF HOCKEY ON HOLLY'S POND YESTERDAY.

Team From Leal's School Won by Score of 5 to 0—Superior Team Play Was a Factor.

Clever team play won the deciding game for the boys from Leal's School in their third match with the team from the Plainfield High School. The game was played on Holly's pond yesterday afternoon and resulted in a victory for the Leal boys by a score of 5 to 0. Despite the apparent unevenness of the score, the game was hotly contested.

There was some excellent work done by the High School boys but they lacked that all-important factor of team play and so lost the match. Several brilliant runs were made but good goal keeping by Corwin prevented any scoring for the High School.

Tilney carried off the honors for the winners by his really brilliant work on skates. He scored three times and played a steady, consistent game which told as play progressed. There was an improvement in the team work of the Leal boys and the return of Tilney to his old position seemed to give them renewed confidence.

An improvement was noticed in the work of the High School team as compared with that of previous games. The individual play was good and there was some betterment in the united efforts. It was rather ragged at times, however, and was an important factor in the result.

Following is the result:

Bound Brook Council Hears Adverse Report Regarding Railroad Company's Proposition.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Feb. 7.—The committee appointed by the Bound Brook Common Council to investigate the feasibility of abolishing the five grade crossings and joining the Central railroad in building a subway, in consideration of which the railroad company were to build a new station at Bound Brook, reported adversely on the proposition at Tuesday night's meeting of the Council, saying that the borough's proportion of the expense would be too much and more than the town could afford.

It is generally conceded that it would be cheaper for the borough to build the station than to stand the expense of grading for a subway, building retaining walls, buying land for the subway and standing for damage suits.

QUINLAN ACQUITTED.

Murder Trial at Morristown Ended Yesterday With Verdict of Not Guilty.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Morristown, Feb. 7.—After deliberating for forty-two minutes, the jury in the murder case of Charles Quinlan rendered a verdict of acquittal yesterday afternoon. There was great applause in the court room when the verdict was announced. Quinlan, who is 18 years old, was charged with the murder of aged Gustave Koetter, December 15 last.

EFFORTS OF CITY UNION.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MET AT Y. M. C. A. THIS MORNING.

Activity of Acting City Nurse—All Departments of Union in Good Condition.

The executive committee of the City Union King's Daughters met this morning at the Y. M. C. A. building and transacted some business of importance. The report of the treasurer, Miss Lillian A. Force, showed that there is a balance on hand of $336. A report was made by Miss Evans, the acting city nurse, showing that an average of twenty visits a week were made during the past month. Miss Evans has been kept very busy as there is and has been considerable illness among the poor.

One particular trying case was reported from North Plainfield, where a woman has been ill for a long time and every effort has been made to get her to consent to go to the hospital She will not go, and the case will probable be turned over to the Organized Aid Association, as it will be impossible for the city nurse to spend much of her time with the woman. All of the other departments of the Union were reported to be in good condition, which fact is gratifying to the members.

CLEANING SIDEWALKS.

City Is Looking After Those That the Owners Have Neglected To Clean.

The recent light snow has proved a great benefit to the street laborers, furnishing them with employment when they would otherwise have been idle. Before the elapse of the twenty four hours allowed property owners to clear their sidewalks before the city can start such work, the snow had turned to the hardest kind of ice and the continued cold weather has prevented it from melting.

In order to clear the walks at once and to prevent possible serious injury to pedestrians, the police are making lists of all cases of neglect, which are turned over to the street department men. The latter are following as closely as possible, but in spite of a large gang there are scores of places yet in need of their attention. The expense of doing the work is to be added to the tax bills of those who have failed to do it themselves.

WADE JONES ACQUITTED.

Arrested in Plainfield on Charge of Holding Up Farmer Near Flemington—Tried Monday.

Wade Jones, the Flemington colored man who was arrested in this city a few weeks ago on a charge of highway robbery, was arraigned before Judge Herr, in the Hunterdon county court, Monday and acquitted of the charge.

Jones was accused of robbing Farmer Charles Case, on a lonely road near Flemington, by jumping into his wagon and enveloping his head in the folds of a blanket. Suspicion pointed to Jones as he was present in a Flemington saloon when Case displayed a large roll of bills and was seen to follow him out. The suspected man soon afterward left town and was arrested in this city. He claimed to have been on a visit to his mother who resides here.

SOLOISTS ARE SECURED FOR CHORAL CONCERT

All Arrangements Are Complete for Giving of Oratorio, "Elijah," At Music Hall.

THE NAMES OF SOLOISTS.

SALE OF SEATS WILL BEGIN TUESDAY MORNING.

Nearly the Entire Capacity of the Hall Already Subscribed For—Orders on Box Office For Tickets Have Been Sent Out.

All arrangements are now complete for the rendition of the well known oratorio, "Elijah" by a chorus of Plainfield's musical people, assisted by a quartette of soloists from New York, at the Stillman Music Hall, Tuesday evening, February 19.

Some time ago it was announced that the committee in charge of the affair had been unusually fortunate in securing the well known basso, Joseph S. Baernstein, to take one of the solo parts. The other soloists have since been secured and they are equally as talented. The soprano soloist will be Miss Sara Anderson. Miss Corinne Welsh will be the contralto and John Young the tenor. They are all well-known in New York musical circles and will, without doubt, fill their positions very acceptably.

There have been some changes made in the chorus since the oratorio, "Messiah," was given in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last December. A number of Plainfield's best voices, who were unable for various reasons to take part in the rendition of the first oratorio, are now practicing regularly with the chorus and will sing in the concert at Music Hall. The chorus will number about one hundred and will be led as usual by E. J. Fitzhugh, of New York, who is so well and popularly known in this city. The orchestra will be from the New York Philharmonic Society.

There has been a very generous response to the request for subscriptions and there is now no doubt but that the entire capacity of Music Hall will be sold long before the concert takes place. Those who have sent in their subscriptions have received orders on the box office for tickets. The sale of tickets will not begin until Tuesday morning at nine o'clock.

Those who remember the experiences in the past in securing tickets for the concerts of the Choral Society will probably be on hand early that morning in order to get an early choice of the seats. The hall is so built, however, that for a concert there is not a seat in the house which is not a good one. So those who are late in securing their seats will be placed at no disadvantage as all the seats are of almost equal excellence. In securing tickets at the box office in return for the orders sent out, no one person will be permitted to select more than ten seats.

OLDEST POLICEMAN.

Lieut. Walker Visiting at His Old Home in This City.

Lieut. R. J. Walker and wife, of Philadelphia, have been visiting relatives in Plainfield. They formerly resided in this city, where they have many friends. Mr. Walker now boasts of being Plainfield's second oldest fireman, and although not in active service he claims to be the oldest policeman. Since being in the city he has met a number of old timers and all have enjoyed talking over old times. Mr. and Mrs. Walker do not age fast and they are as sprightly today as when they resided in Plainfield.

WAS A PROMINENT MASON.

CHAS. C. HOWARD WAS WELL KNOWN AMONG NEW JERSEY MASONS.

Funeral Services Will be Held in Grace P. E. Church Sunday Afternoon.

In the death of Charles C. Howard, of 1008 Putnam avenue, which occurred yesterday, Plainfield has lost a highly respected citizen, the local Masonic members have lost a faithful and staunch friend and the Masonic fraternity at large has sustained a great loss. Mr. Howard was a shrewd business man and socially he was liked by everyone who knew him. It was about a year ago that he was taken ill and since that time he had not attended business. His familiar face was greatly missed by many in the business and social world. Many times it was believed that he would recover and once more engage in the activities of life. This was not to be. That dread disease, lung trouble, fastened itself upon him and resulted in his death.

Mr. Howard was born at Pittsfield, Mass., sixty-four years ago, and he spent a good part of his younger years there. In 1864 he was made a Mason in Mystic Lodge at Pittsfield and from that time was always closely identified in Masonic circles. Many years ago he identified himself with the New York banking firm of J. W. Seligman whose offices are now in the Mills building. He was the firm's confidential clerk and was one of the highly respected and honored employes of the firm. He also represented the firm in the Board of Directors of the American Steel and Wire Company.

Soon after coming to Plainfield he affiliated with Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., and held many offices in that lodge. During 1897 '98 '99 and 1900 he was the district deputy grand master for the 5th District.

His work as an instructor was so thorough that he was considered indeed a peer. There is scarcely a lodge in the State that did not know Mr. Howard and honor him. For two years he was master of Anchor Lodge. Up to the time of his death he was prelate of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., and he was also a past high priest of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M.

In addition to Mr. Howard's business and lodge duties, he found time to be a prominent member of Grace P. E. church and he served that church as vestryman for several years. He is survived by a wife and one son, Charles C. Howard, Jr.

The funeral services will be held from Grace P. E. church Sunday afternoon next at 3:30 o'clock. Interment will be at Pittsfield, Mass.

THANKED CURATE.

Pleasant Letter Sent to Rev. Floyd Appleton by Grace Church Sunday School.

At the close of the session of the Sunday-school of Grace P. E. church, last Sunday afternoon, a letter was presented to Rev. Floyd Appleton, the retiring curate, signed by all the officers and teachers of the Sunday-school. The letter was as follows:

"We, the officers and teachers of the Grace church Sunday-school, desire to express to you our deep regret that the tie which has connected you with the Sunday-school as superintendent for the past four years, must now be severed.

"During that time, owing to your wise administration, the school has grown in numbers and has greatly prospered. We thank you for your faithful service, your uniform kindness and patience, and also for the clear and interesting exposition of the lessons which have so greatly helped us in our work.

"Our association with you in the work of the Sunday-school will always be held in grateful remembrance. It has been to us an inspiration and an incentive to better efforts.

"With best wishes for the success of your new work, which we shall follow with deep interest, we remain,

"Always sincerely your friends,

(Signed by officers and teachers of the school.)"

FEW FROM THIS CITY WILL ATTEND DINNER.

Plainfield Will Have Very Small Crowd at Annual Banquet of Lincoln Association.

THERE IS NO REASON GIVEN.

EXPERIENCE OF PLAINFIELDERS TWO YEARS AGO.

Seems Only a Strange Coincidence That Local Members Do Not Intend Going This Year—Excellent Speakers Have Been Secured.

Although the annual dinner of the Lincoln Association, of Union county, which is to be held at Jacob's Theatre, Elizabeth, Tuesday evening, promises to exceed all previous efforts of the association, it is quite probable that there will be only two or three Plainfielders present. A large number of Plainfielders, including all the prominent Republicans of the city, have been considered members of the association but they have, with few exceptions, decided not to attend this year. Roger F. Murray is secretary of the association and will, of course, be present, but the rest of the local leaders have declined with thanks the invitation to attend.

Careful inquiry fails to reveal any particular reason why it is that Plainfield is to be so slimly represented. Each Plainfielder who has at all considered the subject says that he has some other engagement for that evening and does not care to attend. Rumors that political troubles were the cause of it have been vigorously denied. It is apparently only a strange coincidence.

It may be that the experiences of the Plainfield men with Lincoln dinners have been so unsatisfactory in the past that they are inclined to avoid any further experiences of any kind in the future. There wasn't any dinner last year but one was held two years ago at Elizabeth. It will be remembered that a blizzard arrived in Plainfield that year the night before Lincoln's Birthday and had the country fast in its grasp when the holiday came around. Lincoln dinners all over the country were postponed but the committee in charge of the one at Elizabeth announced that it would be held if there were only three there to partake of it.

Nearly fifty Plainfielders had purchased tickets for the dinner, but they remained at home rather than brave the elements when the latter were in such a decidedly energetic mood. Roger F. Murray started out in the morning and finally reached Elizabeth in time for the dinner. Another Plainfielder, H. C. VanEmburgh, was visiting in Elizabeth the night before and was stalled there by the storm. He also attended the dinner. The other Plainfielders stayed at home and thought how comfortable it was there.

What was left of the dinner was disposed of by the committee and the proceeds turned into the association treasury. The Plainfielders never received even a cigar. This year the list of members was accidentally lost and the committee had to prepare a new list. Of course the names of some of the old membars were inadvertently omitted. The committee has since announced that fact and extended a cordial invitation to all, whether they received formal invitations or not, to be present at the dinner.

The committee in charge of the dinner this year consists of U. S. Senator John Kean, Governor Foster M. Voorhees and Frank Bergen, all of Elizabeth. Among the chief speakers who they have secured for the occasion are U. S. Senator McComas, of Maryland, Former Gover Black, of New York, and Rev. Dr. Henry Elliott Mott, formerly of Buffalo. A band of music and an excellent menu are among the other attractions promised for the dinner.

To Represent a Periodical.

A social will be held under the auspices of the Woman's Association and Christian Endeavor Society in the parlors of the Congregational church this evening. All who attend are requested to wear upon their person something representing a periodical, weekly, daily or monthly.

Annual Birthday Party.

GREAT CHIEFS WERE AT DISTRICT SESSION

Entertained Last Evening by Wetumpkah Tribe, Youngest in The State.

MANY VISITORS PRESENT.

GREAT SACHEM NEWCORN REVIEWED YEAR'S WORK.

Wonderful Growth of The Order in New Jersey—Past Sachem's Degree Conferred on Several Local Red Men.

One of the most successful district sessions of Red Men was held last evening by Great Sachem William Newcorn and the Board of Great Chiefs, in the wigwam of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M., on West Front street. Nearly all of the great chiefs were present, including Great Sachem Wm. Newcorn; Great Keeper of Wampum W. J. Smith, of Long Branch; Great Prophet Arthur Stiles, of Atlantic City; Mishinewa D. C. Kay, of Paterson; Great Junior Sagamore Blanchard H White, of Pemberton; Great Chief of Records Daniel M. Stevens, of Camden.

In addition to the above there were present Red Men from Somerville, Bound Brook, Raritan, New Brunswick, Rahway, Elizabeth and the local tribes. Sachem Robert Humphrey, of Wetumpkah, called the meeting to order and extended a cordial welcome to the great chiefs and visiting tribes, after which he turned the meeting over to Past Sachem William A. Westphal. There were talks by the great chiefs concerning the welfare and growth of the order.

Great Sachem Newcorn was among those to speak and he reviewed the history of the order in the State during the past year, showing that the increase in membership, 1,600, was the largest during any year for the past ten years. In every tribe there is growth and prosperity and the condition of each is very gratifying, not only to the members, but to the chiefs as well. During the year six new tribes were instituted. One tribe alone expended $1,900 during the year for sick benefits. There are in all 230 tribes, with a total membership of about 400,000, making the order one of the strongest in the State.

The past sachem's degree was then conferred by the great chiefs on Francis J. Blatz and Fred Huff, of Wetumpkah Tribe; Foster Johnson, Howard Woolston and Robert Siorah, Sr., of Miantonomo Tribe, and several members of out-of-town tribes.

After the business of the evening a bountiful collation was served, followed by a social time, during which there was vocal and instrumental music, short talks and a general good time. Frank Clark entertained the braves with Dutch songs and recitations, and other talented members helped to pass an evening of pleasure. All praised the members of Wetumpkah Tribe for the able and efficient entertainment of the tribes and great chiefs, it being the youngest tribe in this part of the State.

WANTED TO SUP.

Large Attendance at the Turkey Supper Given Last Night at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church.

There was a large attendance present at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church last evening. The event was a turkey supper, the proceeds of which are to go for the benefit of the church. Rev. J. W. Cooper, pastor of the church, acted as cashier, and had complete supervision of the affair. Everyone seemed anxious to have supper and the committee was kept busy waiting on the tables

The committee consisted of Mrs. H. Grobes, chairman; Mrs. E. Maynard, Mrs. M. Laine, Mrs. L. Cole, Miss Annie Mackintyre, Mrs. Sarah Sachel and Miss Fannie Olden They were ably assisted by Theodore Hooper, Albert Cole and Edwin B. Maynard.

Great Council of Red Men.

The Great Council of New Jersey, I. O. R. M., will convene at Trenton Thursday, February 28, and Great Sachem William Newcorn has just issued the usual notice to the various tribes for the same. This council will be the fiftieth great sun session and will commemorate a half century's work in this reservation.

Engagement of Dr. Spooner.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Dr. Arthur M. Spooner, of Camden, president of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Society, and Miss Effie D. Simmons, a popular teacher in the Somerville public school.

MANY SUBSCRIBED; PAPER NEVER CAME.

Local Republicans Are Wondering What Became of Republican Illustrated Weekly.

WAS WELL RECOMMENDED.

WAS TO HAVE APPEARED DURING THE NATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

Many Local Leaders Paid Their $4 for Subscription and Have Since Never Heard a Word—Man Had Personal Letters From Chairman Codding.

There are a number of Plainfielders, prominent in local Republican circles, who are wondering what became of an illustrated Republican weekly newspaper for which they subscribed. The subscription price was $4 a year and the representative of the publication, who visited this city last August, collected considerably over $100 before he departed. According to his statements, the paper was to appear during the national campaign and thereafter become a permanent thing. Despite his statement, however, they have as yet seen nothing of the newspaper, its representative or the money they paid in for the subscription.

This projected Republican weekly was first heard of by the local Republicans last August when a genial and well dressed man arrived in town with a number of personal letters from Charles N. Codding, chairman of the Republican county executive committee, to the local members of that committee, asking them as a personal favor to Mr. Codding to aid the stranger as much as possible. What the stranger was after was subscriptions for a Republican illustrated weekly which was, he said, to make its appearance in a few weeks. He had a number of specimen pages and explained that the new publication would be about the size of such weeklies as Puck and Judge. There was to be a double page picture in colors in the center. The stranger said that he was the president of the company which was preparing the publication and that the concern had taken a whole floor in the American Tract Society building, New York City.

He showed fac similes of letters from all the prominent Republicans in the country subscribing for the publication and telling what a field they believed there was for such an enterprise. These letters included ones from nearly every member of both Houses of the National Legislature. The stranger was, however, particularly sore against United States Senator John Kean, who absolutely refused to have anthing to do with the scheme. Local Republicans are wondering if, after all, Senator Kean was not the wisest of them all.

With the personal letters from Chairman Codding and such a collection of copies of letters as the stranger had, he encountered no trouble at all in securing subscriptions from all the local Republican leaders he approached. Had the subscription fee been $10 instead of $4, he might have collected that sum just as easily. Everybody thought it an excellent plan and waited the arrival of the new publication with much interest.

As the interest in the campaign increased, the new publication was forgotten. The campaign waxed hotter and hotter but still no copies of the Republican illustrated weekly appeared. Election Day came but no publication. Since that time, never a word has been heard of the genial stranger or his newspaper and the local subscribers are sadly wondering what has become of their money and whether the publication has been swallowed up without ever reaching an actual existance. If such is the case, they are also wondering who has the money collected for subscriptions.

Dime Sociable.

The third and last of a series of dime sociables being held by the Ladies' Aid Society, of Hope Chapel, will be given at the residence of Mrs. Hangliter, of Monroe avenue, Friday evening, February 15. The proceeds of this and the previous socials will be used toward paying the preliminary expenses of the Martha Washington supper which the society will give in the chapel on Washington's birthday evening.

CROWD AT FIREMEN'S FAIR.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL LEADS IN CONTEST FOR FLAG.

Miantonomo Tribe a Close Second—Entertaining Programme Given.

The capacity of Saengerbund Hall was not large enough by half to accommodate the crowd that was in attendance at the North Plainfield firemen's fair again last evening. Floor Manager L. B Bodine and his assistants were kept busy giving out dancing checks and clearing the floor for those who wanted to dance.

The Saengerbund was present and their quartette gave a number of pleasing vocal selections which were heartily encored by the listeners.

Taylor's "Black Diamond Quartette" was present and sang several selections which were also encored. They gave a number of comic songs in answer to the encores and also gave some fair specimens of buck dancing.

In the contest for the flag, Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr O U. A. M., is in the lead, with Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men a close second. The Saengerbund and Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O F., are also in the contest, but are so far behind that it looks as if they were out of the race. The contest closes at 10 o'clock tomorrow night.

F. Merton Lunger, of Warren Engine Co., No. 1, and Frank Perry, of West End Hose Co., are the contestants for the foreman's lantern.

Of course dancing was the main feature of the evening, but considerable interest was centered on the bowling alleys, where there were lively contests for jardiniers, sofa pillows, lamps, etc.

This evening the U. S. Grant Glee Club will be the entertainers and a rare treat is promised all who are present.

The fair will continue for three nights yet and the committee are anxious to receive all the donations as soon as possible. The booths did a good business last night and there is plenty of room for the gifts of those who have not yet contributed.

Among those who captured prizes on the bowling alleys was Mrs. M. Clark, who won a handsome scarf. A ton of coal was rolled for and won by H. Deike. A. Siedel succeeded in winning a fancy wooden rocker. There will be a handsome rocker rolled for this evening and also another ton of coal. There were a number of handsome prizes won at the baby rack by the women.

NEW CASTLE ASSURED.

Excellent Showing Made For Proposed Local Branch of Knights of The Golden Eagle.

The second preliminary meeting of those interested in the formation of a local castle of the Knights of the Golden Eagle was held in Washington Hall last evening with Grand Chief Arthur H. Hope, of Asbury Park, in charge. There was an increased attendance and the charter list continues to grow. There will probably be about sixty on the list when the castle is instituted which it is expected will be on February 28. The next preliminary meeting will be held next Tuesday night when Grand Master of Records A. L. Clark, of Trenton, will be present and confer with those intending to join.

Elected Two Members.

The members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the East Third Street chapel held a business meeting last evening and elected two active members. The various committees reported progress and a good condition, financially and spiritually.

MR. MAXSON ANSWERED BY LAWYER ANGLEMAN.

Communication From W. S. Angleman Regarding Case of Cox Charged With Theft.

CLAIMS UNFAIR TREATMENT.

SAYS BOY HAS NOT HAD A FAIR CHANCE TO DEFEND HIMSELF.

Mr. Angleman Declares That Boy's Guilt Should be Proven Instead of His Being Compelled to Prove Innocence.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—My attention has been called to a communication in your issue of yesterday from H. M. Maxson, superintendent of the public schools, in regard to the Cox case. I am much surprised that Mr. Maxson should endeavor to make a personal matter of what took place before the Board of Education Monday evening. His communication says that your paper "inadvertently omits what I said" at the meeting. Inasmuch as Mr. Maxson said nothing whatever beyond making an appointment to see me, (which, I may add in passing, he did not keep), it is not very strange that the public reports of the meeting fail to include any remarks from him. I made a simple statement to the Board in regard to the matter, which need not be here repeated. If there was any implication to refute, as Mr. Maxson says there was, then and there was the time and place to refute it, and not three days later in the newspapers.

The case was in regard to a pair of skates which it had been alleged, had been stolen two weeks before the Board meeting, and up to that time nothing definite had been done beyond sending the boy home and refusing him school privileges. The principal, five days after the theft took place, in her letter to me, said, "I require proof that he is innocent in the matter before again taking his place in his class. He has been neither expelled nor dismissed, In the interests of pupils' property, I am obliged to see that his honesty is proven before he goes into his class." In view of these words and of the fact that nothing had come from my request to the principal that she request the superintendent to allow us a hearing and for the superintendent to write me in regard to the matter, is it strange that I should appear nine days later before the Board and state the facts and ask for a hearing? Is it strange also, in view of this attitude of the school authorities, i. e., that a pupil's innocence must be proven and not his guilt, that they refused to allow the boy to be represented at the subsequent star chamber proceeding?

As I have pointed out to the Superintendent, this is not a case of a mere infraction of school rules. It is a case where a crime is charged, and that to brand a young boy as a thief is no light matter. I am sure the people of Plainfield will agree with me that a boy should not be so branded without full and exhaustive inquiry, and after giving him every opportunity to face his accusers—not behind closed doors but openly. If the boy was guilty, a lawyer's presence at the hearing could not make him innocent. A lawyer might, however, succeed in tearing apart a concocted story and might show wherein the boy's accusers were not telling the truth. Could it be that this was what was feared? The accused boy had skates of his own, and the little fellow, only ten years old, when asked went and brought his own skates, thinking the teacher wanted them.

It will be remembered that the investigation which was made on behalf of the boy located the skates in the possession of another boy in the school, and that I so informed the Board and later gave the name of the boy to the superintendent. In a letter to Mr. Cox, dated February 6, Mr. Maxson says: "——— (giving the boy's name,) brought the skates to school this morning, and they proved to be those that were stolen from ——— (giving name) I questioned the boy, and he said that he found them in a field, and he seemed to know nothing about how they got there." And later, in the same letter, he says: "The recovery of the property, of course, removes the chief difficulty, but that they were found in an open field does not exonerate Willie from the charge of taking them." In a letter to me yesterday, Mr. Maxson gives this version: "The skates have since been returned, having been

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Denman Thompson will accompany his celebrated production, "The Old Homestead," this season and appear as "Joshua Whitcomb" at Music Hall tomorrow night. In this character of "Uncle Josh," Mr. Thompson has given to the stage a creation foreign to any that has ever been presented, and in his delineation of the Yankee has hewn it so clear and natural that many go to see him as the cleverest exponent of this interesting type. Outside of this character the play, too, is of extraordinary calibre. Its success is one of the remarkable occurrences in dramatic history and has few, if any parallels. It touches the hidden heart-springs and makes all enjoy it over and over again.

* * * * * *

Carl Haswin, who will be seen at Music Hall Monday night, is one of America's leading "road" stars. He is recognized as a manly sympathetic actor. He makes no boisterous appeals to an audience in order to gain their applause. He depends solely on his art for success. The number of years he played "The Silver King" is the best proof of his sterling talent as an artist. Mr. Haswin this season is portraying Pierre Rizardo, in that famous English melo-drama, "A Lion's Heart." The production is a beautiful one and is magnificently staged. The costumes are rich and elaborately beautiful as well as historically correct. The story is interesting from start to finish. The company, which numbers twenty-five, has been carefully chosen from New York's leading professionals.

The famous block house system of signalling trains on all trunk lines is brought into prominence by Lincoln J. Carter, introducing it in his new play, "The Eleventh Hour," which will be seen at Music Hall Wednesday of next week. Mr. Carter demonstrates fully the entire workings of the "block" system that reduces accidents on railroads to a minimum. How few people that are riding on a fast train and flash by a block signal tower know what is contained therin and what an important factor that tower is to the safe guidance of trains. All of this is thoroughly demonstrated in "The Eleventh Hour."

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C., "I had Consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Mrs. Mosher, wife of Justice Mosher, who has been seriously ill, has recovered sufficiently to be moved to the home of her son, William Mosher, on New street. Although she is quite weak, she seems to be improving a little each day.

—For the weakness and prostration following grippe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly. L. W. Randolph.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
G. H. KENYON.

TAX BILLS ATTACKED.

Bankers Put Up Strong Fight Against Proposed Legislation.

ALBANY, Feb. 8.—Another of the administration's tax bills, that proposing to tax the surplus of savings banks 1 per cent, was the subject of combined attack at a joint hearing of the senate and assembly committees on taxation and retrenchment in the senate chamber yesterday afternoon. There are 130 savings banks, with a surplus of $111,000,000, and all of these institutions were represented either directly by their presidents or trustees or by a delegation from the New York Savings Bank association headed by its president, Andrew Mills of the Dry Dock Savings institution of New York. The arguments advanced by a dozen speakers who declared that the imposition of the 1 per cent tax on the market value of surplus would impair it and to do this would be a gross injustice to the depositors, who in reality would bear the tax burdens. They insisted that the value of securities fluctuates, and it would be better to tax the par value of the surplus, although they were opposed to any tax whatever because it was a radical departure from the policy of the state and was unwise and unjust.

Before the insurance and the savings bank tax bills are reported from the senate committee on taxation and retrenchment it is very probable that they will be materially amended. The senators did not expect that the opposition to these measures suggested in the governor's message would develop strong opposition. As a result several of the senators have questioned the insurance men and the savings bank men as to their idea of what a proper and just tax would be. The bank representatives argued that while any tax would be objectionable they would naturally prefer a tax on the par value of surplus rather than the market value, as the bill in its present form provides. So it is probable that the more conservative members of the committee will insist on this compromise being made.

Concerning the insurance tax bill, which imposes a tax on the capital stock and surplus of all insurance, title and guaranty companies, objection was made to the provision which provides for a report to the comptroller of the state on June 30 of each year. The bill will be amended so that the report made at present to the insurance superintendent will be all that is required. It is also likely that the committee will consider the suggestion to change the tax from surplus and capital stock to premiums paid on policies obtained in this state.

That Steel Deal.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 8.—An official of the National Tube company has received a telegram from President E. C. Converse which stated that the papers for the purchase of stock of Andrew Carnegie had been signed, but the deal was not closed. Another Pittsburg man, prominent in steel and financial circles, received advices from a correspondent in New York which stated positively that the deal was under way, but had not been closed and probably would not be for about a week. The articles of agreement are signed, but nothing further has been done. This last, it is said, came direct from Andrew Carnegie himself on Tuesday night. The sale will be of the stock, which carries the control. The bonds will be retained by Mr. Carnegie.

Troops For the Philippines.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Adjutant General Corbin has received a personal letter from General Shafter at San Francisco in which he refers to the phenomenal progress making in the organization of the three battalions of infantry destined for immediate service in the Philippines. He says that all the officers are taking the greatest interest in advancing the efficiency of the battalion and that the first and second battalions are fully prepared for service. These battalions undoubtedly will constitute the Twenty-sixth infantry, the first regiment organized under the army reorganization law. Nearly the entire regiment will be transported to Manila on the Sheridan, scheduled to leave San Francisco on the 16th inst.

The Golden Stool Lost.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Sir James Willcocks, who put down the Ashanti rising, says the work could not have been done by white troops owing to the impenetrable forests, the bogs and the flooded rivers. Out of 3,400 native soldiers employed 850 were killed or wounded, and 55 out of 200 British officers were killed or wounded. The golden stool, the symbol of Ashanti royalty, will probably never be found. Sir James Willcocks thinks, as its hiding place is believed to be known to two natives only, who would destroy it rather than reveal its whereabouts.

Verne Declines Academy Honors.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—There are several vacancies in the French academy. M. Jules Verne, when approached with a suggestion that he should become a candidate, replied: "I have just completed my seventy-third year and do not at such an age aspire to the academy. Dumas, the younger, asked me 28 years ago. I declined, and since then 59 academicians have died. They may be immortals, but they have not been rendered immortal." In closing M. Verne asks the proposer of his name to accept the "gratitude of an old story teller."

DE WET IS STILL OUT

Official Report Says He Has Not Entered Cape Colony.

AN EDITOR IN SERIOUS TROUBLE.

Criminal and Seditious Libel Is Charged—Kitchener Says Statements Were Utterly False—The Boers at Doorn River.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 8.—The official report on the invasion says:

"The anticipated invasion by Christian De Wet has not yet occurred, but it may be only delayed. Although there is no considerable movement, small bodies of men continue to dribble across the Orange river. The largest of these, 200 strong, crossed near Bangor station five days ago."

The report then gives elaborate details regarding the present disposition of the Boers and British in Cape Colony.

It is announced here that the imperial government will advance £100,000 for the relief of distressed refugees.

Proceedings are being instituted against Mr. Cartwright, editor of The South African News, for criminal and seditious libel contained in a letter under the nom de plume "British Officer," which said that General Kitchener had secretly instructed his troops to take no prisoners. Before the attorney general instituted the proceedings he wired Lord Kitchener the substance of the letter and asked if there was any foundation for it. Lord Kitchener replied that the statement was a base libel, entirely devoid of foundation, adding: "De Wet was never surrounded in the position mentioned, but had his retreat to the north open. Instructions in the nature reported were never given or thought of. We treat enemies who have surrendered with every consideration."

News four days old from the Doorn river country shows that the Boers have a base at Calvinia. From that point they have sent patrols far and wide. Colonel De Lisle is moving toward them. He lost Lieutenant Clowes and one man killed in a skirmish with a Boer patrol.

The country is wildly mountainous. British horse buyers have secured 4,000 good horses and 3,000 mules in the colony. It was not suspected that there were so many animals available.

Brisk War Preparations.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The government has requisitioned three of the Union Castle liners to transport re-enforcements to South Africa. The remount department is uncommonly active, its agents buying largely in several parts of the world. Following Wednesday's war office announcement recruiting has been brisk. The latest casualty list issued by the war office reveals another attack on Modderfontein not previously reported from South Africa. This occurred Feb. 2, the British losing 9 killed and 31 wounded. The previous attack, when the Boers captured 200, occurred Jan. 30.

President Rivera Resigns.

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—At yesterday's session of the Cuban constitutional convention General Rivera tendered his resignation, giving as a reason for so doing the demands of his private business. Others ascribe the resignation at this late date to a desire to avoid taking part in the debate on the nationalization clause in the twelfth section of the convention, a debate from which he had absented himself. Prior to his resignation General Rivera held the deciding vote on the question, the convention standing 15 to 15. His refusal to vote had left it possible for Senor Capote, president of the convention, to resolve the tie in favor of the anti-Gomez element, but his resignation and the appointment of a substitute put a new complexion upon the affair, and the supporters of General Gomez now claim that they hold the balance of power.

Miraculous Escape In Train Wreck.

EASTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—The Lehigh Valley mail and milk train No. 21, one of the fastest trains out of New York, was wrecked yesterday morning at Green's Bridge, N. J., three miles east of here. The train was running 50 miles an hour, when the driving rod of the locomotive broke while the locomotive was on the bridge, which is 100 feet high. The shock broke the engine from the train and set the air brakes. Every one on the train was thrown violently forward, but, marvelous to say, none was injured beyond slight bruises. The locomotive swerved to the left, toppled over and settled near the end of the bridge, blocking both tracks. The engineer and fireman escaped with injuries.

Powers to Be President.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 8.—Charles B. Powers of this city has accepted the presidency of the American Association of Ball Clubs and will enter upon the discharge of his duties at once. President Powers returned to the city after a visit to Indianapolis, where he was in conference with the committee appointed to select a president. Mr. Powers was the unanimous choice of the committee, and he will devote his entire time to the affairs of the association.

The McPherson May Be Saved.

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—The United States transport McPherson, which is ashore near Matanzas, is being lightened, and there is a possibility, if the weather holds with the wind continuing southward, of pulling her off. She is resting easy on the beach, close inshore and under the lee of hills, so that the work of lightening her is carried on to advantage.

A Fatal Fire.

KEMPTVILLE, Ont., Feb. 8.—The home of James Dulmage, South Gower, was burned to the ground Wednesday night. Mr. Dulmage's son, Will, aged about 22, and the boy's aunt, Bella, who lived with the family, perished in the flames.

ERIE FLIER WRECKED

Five Killed Outright and Many Missing and Injured.

Locomotive and Three Passenger Coaches Are Demolished—Terrible Scenes Inside Telescoped Cars. Engine Crew Escapes.

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 8.—Train No. 5, the New York-Chicago limited, on the Erie railroad was wrecked yesterday within the town limits. Five passengers were dead when taken from the wreck, several are missing, and there are a score of badly injured.

Hardly a passenger escaped without some injury. The ill fated train was composed entirely of vestibuled Pullmans, three sleepers, a day coach, combination smoker and baggage car and a mail car and was drawn by one of the new Atlantic type of engines. It was in the smoking compartment that death laid a ruthless hand, for there was not one of the 16 occupants who escaped without being killed or injured. This car was completely telescoped by the steel mail car ahead, which went through it as if it were paper, tearing, crushing, maiming and carrying death. The only wonder of the occupants is that they were not all killed outright.

The scene of the wreck is on a sharp curve. On one side 40 feet below flows the Chenango river; on the other is a steep bluff. The engine left the track at the curve and before it had gone two car lengths plowed into the steep hill, where it fell upon its side and was half buried. The train was running about two hours late, and the accident happened at 7:10, just about the time when the occupants of the sleepers had finished dressing.

After the terrible crash the uninjured passengers set about the rescue of the dead and wounded. Surgeons were summoned, and within a few moments the dead and dying were being cared for as fast as they would be discovered beneath the wreckage. It was several hours, however, before the victims had been removed and placed in the two rear Pullmans. The scenes inside the telescoped cars were terrible. Men begged to be released and screamed in agony. They were all heaped in a corner of the car, dumped there by the irresistible impetus of the mail car. The injured were placed on a special train and taken to the Spencer hospital, Meadville, about noon.

Very little was left of the baggage or express matter in the cars, and most of it was dumped into the river in order to clear the debris for rescue. Several hundred sacks of mail were apparently little injured.

The train was in charge of Conductor Sim Randel, with Engineer Brett Luce and Fireman George Eckert. Both the engineer and fireman escaped by jumping, though both were painfully bruised.

Russia's Demands Moderate.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 8.—A competent authority has authorized Russia's denial of the story that the czar's government is demanding 30,000,000 taels as the price for the restoration of Manchuria to China. That is altogether false. "Russia, like the other powers," said the informant, "is asking compensation for damages sustained and expenses incurred. But I venture the prediction that the whole world will acknowledge, when the facts can be properly divulged, that Russia's demands are extremely moderate compared with those of the other powers."

Charitable Bequests.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 8.—By the will of the late Nathaniel C. Brockway of this city filed in the probate court a considerable portion of the estate, valued at $100,000, is left for charitable purposes, including gifts of $2,000 each to the Albany hospital, Albany Orphan asylum, Home For Aged Men, New York Homeopathetic hospital and dispensary and Fairview Home For Penniless Children, all in Albany, and the Farnham reformatory in Columbia county, N. Y.

History of United States Burned.

FORSYTH, Ga., Feb. 8.—A copy of a history of the United States issued by a northern publishing house was burned in a coffin in front of the leading hotel of Forsyth last night. Addresses were made by three leading citizens of the town, including two ex-judges. The coffin was borne to the funeral pyre by Confederate veterans. The objection to the book lay in the author's use of the words "rebel," "rebellion" and "insurgents."

Plague In India.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—"Plague prevails in every part of India," says the Bombay correspondent of The Daily Express, "except the central provinces. It is particularly severe in Bengal, where there is a weekly mortality of 2,500. In Bombay the deaths reach 94 per cent of the cases. The scourge is intensified by the lack of an adequate medical staff, the doctors being chiefly occupied in the famine districts."

Steel Rails For Australia.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—A contract for 17,000 tons of steel rails has been secured by the Illinois Steel company for the Australian government, this branch of the Federal Steel company underbidding all competitors throughout the world. The rails will take the entire force at the South Chicago mill ten months to manufacture. They are to be shipped to Melbourne.

Mexican Mining Disaster.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Feb. 8.—News has just reached here of one of the worst mining disasters that ever occurred in Mexico. An explosion in the San Andreas mine, situated in a remote part of the Sierra Madres in western Durango, caused the death of 87 men, women and children and injured many others.

Chair Factory Burned.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Feb. 8.—The chair factory of Hiram Whitney at Shandaken has been destroyed by fire. The wind blew a terrific gale, and the painthouse containing thousands of dollars' worth of chairs was saved with difficulty. The loss is $25,000.

Mounts For the British.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8.—The steamship Cervona, under charter of the British government, has cleared from this port with 830 horses for the British army in South Africa. Her destination is Cape Town.

MRS. NATION TALKS.

Addresses Both Houses of the Kansas Legislature.

TOPEKA, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Nation addressed both houses of the legislature last night on the liquor traffic. She presented herself at the door of the house with the request that she be allowed to speak. The request was voted upon, and by a large majority Mrs. Nation was allowed to speak. Some few voted no.

"I heard those noes," said Mrs. Nation as she walked upon the clerk's platform. "I wondered why those people voted that way. Have I ever offended you? Why do you object to my talking? But, then, don't I know that those noes come from the liquor traffic?"

A storm of laughter swept over the house, and it was several minutes before Mrs. Nation could proceed.

"Hold up your hands!" yelled some one in the rear, but Mrs. Nation only smiled.

"Thank God the noes are in the minority," she continued. "I come to you today, men, as a woman, as a grandmother. I come to tell you our sentiments. I am glad of this opportunity to speak to fathers, husbands, protectors of wives who sit at their firesides, who know a woman's heart and her interests.

"Now, gentlemen," said Mrs. Nation in an earnest tone, "you can remedy this condition by knocking out the clause in the prohibitory law which gives the county attorney the right to summon witnesses, but refuses him the right to compel them to testify. You would do it if common murderers were running loose, why not do it in this case?

"Now, men," she said, "I am pleading with you. I have been forced to do this smashing business. I am going to tell the truth to you; you have not been doing your duty. A good solid vote is the best thing in the world with which to smash the saloons. You refused me the vote, and I had to use a rock.

"The saloon man," said Mrs. Nation, "is a malicious pauper. He thrives off the life blood of the men of this nation. Whisky makes perjurers. I would not believe a joint keeper on oath, even if it was only about a dogfight."

Mrs. Nation afterward addressed the senate along the same lines.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Costly Blaze In Scranton.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—A fire which caused $400,000 damage broke out yesterday afternoon and raged furiously for hours. The flames started in the motor room of the four story Henwood building at 316 Lackawanna avenue, occupied as a clothing store by P. J. Horan and on the upper floors by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western car accountant's office and Gramber's photograph parlors and Moses, overall manufacturer. The flames shot up the passenger elevator and stairway, and within 15 minutes the building was beyond saving. Matthews Bros.' drug store building caught fire next, and the flames swept rapidly from top to bottom. A stiff easterly wind fanned the blaze right through the rest of the block, destroying Norton's bookstore, F. L. Crane's fur store, Marcus Breschel's fur store, Ruddy & Kane's restaurant, Richard & Wirth's clothing store, Lewis E. Ruddy's and Davies & Murphy's stores. The last grand fight of the firemen was made at the last named store, and the fire was got under control there.

Union Pacific Ready to Pay Note.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Union Pacific Railroad company has given notice to United States Treasurer Roberts that it is prepared to anticipate the payment of one of its notes for $2,940,635 given in settlement of the government's claim against the company at the time of the reorganization of the road. The note, which bears interest at the rate of 3 per cent, would have matured in February, 1902, and by its payment now the company saves the interest and secures the release to it of an equal amount of Central Pacific bonds deposited as security. There yet remain unpaid 14 notes, all for the same amount, which mature every six months for seven years from 1902.

To Investigate Railroad Accident.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 8.—An investigation to fix the responsibility for the fatal accident on the Ontario and Western railroad at Hurleyville Wednesday is to be commenced here by Superintendent Hopkins today. In addition to the death of Howard R. Schofield of New York, who expired on the relief train, it is feared several victims of the disaster now in the hospital here will not recover.

French Premier Ill.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—The chamber of deputies yesterday continued the discussion of the law of associations bill. Numerous amendments were proposed, but all were rejected. Clauses 6 and 7 of the measure were adopted. At the close of the sitting the premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, became suddenly indisposed. He was unable to attend the banquet of President Loubet last evening.

PENSION BILL PASSED.

Senate Takes Up Shipping Subsidy. House Passes Postoffice Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The senate held both day and night sessions yesterday. At the day session the pension appropriation bill appropriating $144,000,000 was passed after a few minutes' consideration. The ship subsidy bill was then taken up, and Messrs. McLaurin and Morgan, both Democrats, made speeches upon it. Mr. McLaurin announced his intention to support the bill, and Mr. Morgan opposed it in vigorous language. He asked Mr. Allison for an estimate of the appropriations for the present session, and the latter replied that he thought the aggregate would be about $760,000,000. Mr. Hale expressed the opinion that the figures would be nearly $800,000,000.

The postoffice appropriation bill, debate on which has consumed almost an entire week, in the house was finally passed.

The Republican members of the ways and means committee held a meeting in the afternoon to formulate a plan of action relative to the war revenue bill, but no definite conclusion was reached beyond the decision to nonconcur in the senate amendments. The action of the senate in substituting an entirely new bill for the bill as it passed the house is looked upon as a distinct invasion of the prerogative of the house to initiate revenue legislation, and at the meeting yesterday some of the members favored radical action to sustain what they consider the constitutional right of the house to originate revenue legislation.

A PEACEFUL PROVINCE.

Benguet Thrives Under New Laws. Teachers Seek Philippine Work.

MANILA, Feb. 8.—Mr. H. P. Whitmarsh, governor of the province of Benguet, has returned from a circuit of that specially organized province. He telegraphs that the entire province is under the new laws and that the elections have been eminently satisfactory.

The Thirtieth United States volunteer infantry, Colonel Cornelius Gardner commanding, arrived here yesterday on the transport Kilpatrick from Tayabas province, island of Luzon, and will go into camp on the Lunetta, sailing for home Feb. 15.

Colonel Gardener says there are practically no insurgents in the province of Tayabas and that the pro-American sentiment is strong there. Eighty-seven members of the regiment have died of wounds and disease, and 250 have been discharged because of sickness.

The Twentieth infantry, which has been two years in Manila on provost duty, has sailed for Vigan on field service.

Hundreds of teachers in the United States are applying for positions in the Philippines. It would be easy to secure 1,000.

An authorized delegation of Bontoc Igorrotes are returning to the province with school books, flags and high opinions of the Americans.

Five Seamen Scalded to Death.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8.—The new steamer Ventura, which has just arrived here from Philadelphia, brings news of the scalding to death of five of her crew and the injury of five others as the result of the bursting of one of her steam pipes on the voyage. The accident occurred Jan. 23 four days after the Ventura left the straits of Magellan. At 6:15 p. m. that day the steamer was in latitude 30.58 south, longitude 87.42 west. While four men were working about the engine room the main steam pipe in the port boiler burst. Instantly the engine room was filled with scalding steam. The men could not escape, and to their cries of agony were added those of another who was caught in a small compartment near the boilers. When the other members of the crew were able to reach the men, they found them literally cooked to death. The five bodies were buried at sea.

Wu Would Not Dine.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Wu Ting Fang, Chinese minister to the United States, put himself on record last night as refusing to sit at the same banquet table with Major General Elwell S. Otis of the United States army. The Chinese minister took pains to explain that, while he felt only respect for General Otis as a military commander and esteem for him personally, his course in declining to share the honors of the feast with the general was due to General Otis' attitude while governor general of the Philippines in enforcing there the objectionable features of the Chinese exclusion act. This, the Chinese minister said, he could not possibly approve, and he would not put himself in the position of seeming to indorse it.

Opposition For Standard Oil.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—At 6 o'clock tomorrow morning the United Pipe Line company will enter into active competition with the Standard Oil company and will start 120,000 barrels of oil through its pipes from Bradford, McKean county, to the new works at Marcus Hook, a distance of 380 miles. The first steamship will be loaded and ready to sail on Feb. 15. This will be the first time the new double pipe line has been used. The entire line is within Pennsylvania and taps the heart of the oil country. It skirts the northern part of the state until Wilkesbarre is passed, where the last pumping station is located. From this point it flows by gravity to tidewater.

Milwaukee Has a Saloon Wrecker.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 8.—An unknown female, emulating the crusade of Mrs. Nation, yesterday entered a saloon at Eleventh and Lloyd streets, seized an armful of pool balls and hurled them about with such good aim that the mirrors and other glassware about the place were quickly demolished. Habitues of the saloon scrambled for the doors when the woman began throwing the balls. She finished the work of demolition and escaped before an officer could be brought to the scene.

No Decision This Week.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 8.—In the hearing on the application for an injunction against the Jeffries-Ruhlin prizefight Feb 15 the defendants offered testimony yesterday and will continue today. This means two days to each side for testimony and that the arguments will be made Saturday, and the decision of Judge Hollister probably will be reserved until next week.

The Astral Mutiny.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The three ringleaders of the mutinous crew of the ship Astral, who were taken from that vessel by the United States officers, are still retained on board the revenue cutter Gresham, which is anchored off Tompkinsville, Staten Island.

WILHELMINA WEDS.

Holland's Queen and Prince Heinrich United.

BRILLIANT SCENES AT THE HAGUE.

Thousands of Loyal Subjects Throng the City—Those Who Could Not Be Present Celebrated the Happy Event at Their Homes.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 8.—Queen Wilhelmina's marriage to Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who yesterday became Prince Heinrich of the Netherlands, was a huge family affair. All Holland that could came to The Hague to participate. Those who staid at their homes in other cities and villages of the kingdom celebrated with parades, decorations and banquets.

Never was seen a more beautiful and happy wedding. The popular belief is that it is a love match, like that of Victoria and Albert, and this gives a romantic coloring to the event which is generally lacking in royal marriages.

The ceremonies were the same simple and unritualistic rites of the Reformed church by which the humblest of Queen Wilhelmina's subjects are married. The whole spirit of the affair was plain and democratic, although the costly gowns and jewels and the showy uniforms of distinguished personages, high officials of the kingdom, the army and the navy and representatives of the people in parliament and the municipalities furnished a regal stage setting. The venerable pastor administered to the bride and groom a caution that their high positions would not shield them from the common sufferings and sorrows of humanity.

Queen Wilhelmina made a very winning and human bride. She blushed and became confused over the ceremonial with the ring, as all brides are supposed to do, while her happiness and pride over the enthusiasm of her people were plainly deeper than a mere matter of form.

Prince Heinrich was an awkward but stalwart and manly figure. Either he was forgetful or badly trained in the part, for the pastor had to give him two or three hints as to how to carry himself. Those sitting near enough to hear the responses describe him as saying, "Jah, mein herr," when he should simply have replied "Jah."

The scene as the royal couple stood with clasped hands before the chaplain in a circle of brilliantly arrayed personages, including their relatives and people composing the highest families of Holland and the neighboring German principalities, almost beggars description, the masses of variegated coloring rendering more effective the blue, gold and white banked up high against the walls of the church. It was wonderfully gorgeous. The building itself is a cathedral in size, but is plain as a Quaker meeting house in its furnishings.

At night the populace was like a multitude of happy children. Thousands swarmed through the principal streets, which were nearly impassable, blowing horns, singing the national hymn, following the bands and smashing hats and lanterns. Aged housewives with their husbands from the provinces joined hands with stylish city folk and danced to the music of street organs. There was considerable mild hilarity inspired by wine, but no offensive drunkenness. Sailors, fishermen and farmers wore their usual quaint costumes, and a few soldiers mixed with the crowds. On all the principal streets were illuminated portraits of the queen, Prince Heinrich, the queen dowager and Duchess Marie, as well as the national arms.

"Wire Gang" Indicted.

TAUNTON, Mass., Feb. 8.—The grand jury of Bristol county has reported three indictments against Fred Patterson, William Smith, Jonathan Smith and William Hackett, members of the so called "wire gang," who are charged with stealing wire in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The men pleaded not guilty and were held for trial on Monday next. The indictments include charges of larceny of a large cannon at Attleboro, Mass., and of wool at Norton, Mass.

Troops and Strikers Clash.

HAZEBROUCK, France, Feb. 8.—Many gendarmes were wounded while attempting to disperse strikers at Merville, 22 miles west of Lille. The strikers were demonstrating in the streets, throwing stones at the city hall and breaking the windows in shops and other buildings. The principal thoroughfares are now patrolled, and the prefect has sent re-enforcements, squadrons of cavalry and gendarmes.

Branch Mints For Western Cities.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The house committee on finance has acted favorably on the bills establishing branch mints at Omaha and Tacoma and authorizing $200,000 of silver medals for the Washington memorial exercises to be held at Alexandria, Va.

An Imperial Edict.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—An imperial edict orders officials to protect foreigners from insult and to prevent insults being offered. It declares that 100,000 Chinese now enjoy safety abroad.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., FEB. 8 1901.

COMING EVENTS

February 10—Dr. F. Nice, the talented violinist from Salvation Army headquarters, will relate his experience and render violin solos at the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4:15 p. m.

The Fire Department.

While those who have had enough interest in the subject to investigate have long ago discovered that Plainfield possessed one of the best fire departments for a city of its size of any in the State, it is comparatively seldom that the public takes the time to carefully consider the excellence of the local department or what advantages are to be gained by it. The subject is now brought to the public eye through the annual report of Chief T. O. Doane, which was presented to the Common Council last December but has just appeared in pamphlet form.

Although the public does not consider the subject frequently, it is nevertheless a fact that the people of Plainfield are showing increased confidence in the work done by the department. This is shown by the increase in the number of fires over the figures of previous years. It is not that there are so many more fires, but rather that the department is called upon more times to aid in extinguishing the flames.

The people have come to realize that the Plainfield department is no longer an experiment, that it is a success and is ready to meet any emergency. The day when the duties of a fireman offered opportunities to deal destruction without regard to consequences is passed in Plainfield. That fact is recognized and so there are more calls for the department now that the householder can be assured that the arrival of the firemen is not to be dreaded more than the fire itself.

One strong evidence of the excellence of the local department which every taxpaper will appreciate is the fact that the insurance companies, while making an increase in the rates all through this section, have decided to allow the rates in Plainfield to remain as they are. This is practically of the nature of a reduction and saves property owners many hundreds of dollars that would otherwise be paid in premiums on fire insurance policies.

Every householder, who fails to clean off his sidewalk and then makes no provision for the icy condition which follows, has neglected a duty which he owes to the community. There is a city ordinance which makes it incumbent upon him to either clean off the snow or ice, or, when that is not possible, to put ashes or sand on the walk to prevent people from slipping. When the householder fails to obey that law, his sidewalk becomes a menace to the lives of passersby. If the householder himself was the only one to suffer, it would not be so unfair, but the trouble always comes for the innocent man who is not in the slightest to blame.

The Board of Trade is planning to turn aside for the moment from its usual methods and see if possible more of the citizens of Plainfield cannot be roused into activity in the work of advancing the interests of the city. While there will be nothing in the nature of a banquet, the Board has decided to provide something for the visitors to eat. The Board will do well to go carefully in arranging such an affair as the fate of the Plainfield Advancement Association, which has never been heard of since its clam bake, was an awful example of the dangers of combining such things.

In almost every city in the State, the officials of the street and police departments have combined their efforts to make the sidewalks passable since the recent storm left a coating of ice upon them. In many cities, proclamations have been issued asking the people to put ashes or sand on the slippery sidewalks to prevent serious accidents to those who have occasion to cross the icy places.

Assemblyman Charles S. Foote, of this city, is one of the few members of the lower House of the State Legislature who has not yet introduced a bill of some nature or other.

When Plainfield actually possesses proper street signs, the inhabitants of this city will hardly know the place, it has been so long since anything of that kind was seen here.

The good people of Watchung want to open up that neighborhood to some of the blessings of civilization and are working hard for the extension of the trolley system.

It seems possible that Plainfield, after having no boulevard or speed way at all, is suddenly coming into possession of two excellent ones.

The Jersey Legislature has settled down to business and is once more adding to the multitude of laws on the State statute books.

The cold weather has done much to improve the health of the community and the epidemic of grip is fast losing its hold on the city.

Evidently "Professor" Lytten, who worked his confidence game in this city so successfully, was not new at the work.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Roselle wants to be reunited. At last the residens of the north side of the Central Railroad track want to join with the residents of Roselle borough on the south side of the track, in order to get better light, better sewers and better borough privileges and improvements. If the time has not already come for reuniting Roselle, it will come sooner or later. That such a pretty and progressive place should be divided into two different municipalities by a railroad, each one independent of the other, and each somewhat antagonistic to the other, is an absurdity, and such a condition must come to an end sooner or later. Roselle as a whole is all right. Nothing could be better unless it is annexation to Elizabeth.—Elizabeth Journal.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Too much caution cannot be taken by those who are out sleigh riding, especially when in the vicinity of the trolley tracks. Yesterday morning a sleigh was upset on West Front street opposite the Babcock building, and the occupants, a woman and little girl were thrown to the roadbed. Except for a few bruises they were fortunately uninjured. The horse, which was a gentle one, stood quietly while they gathered up their robes and bundles which were scattered about.

SWORN IN.

Mayor Jenkins Administered Oath of Office to Special Policemen and Other Officials.

Mayor O. L. Jenkins met nearly all of the city appointive officers in his office on Park avenue last evening and administered to them the oath of office. Nearly all of the special policemen were present, as well as the assessors and other officers appointed by His Honor at the last Council meeting. The overseer of the poor was not sworn in, as that appointment was laid on the table at the Council meeting. After the swearing in was concluded Mayor Jenkins presented each official with a cigar as an evidence of good will.

Bonds Issued to Pay For Road Building.

An important meeting of the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders was held Wednesday at New Brunswick, when the finance committee presented three resolutions which in full give the Board power to issue $42,000 worth of bonds to meet the contracts for macadam roads provided for this year by the Board. This action was taken so that the Board can arrange to meet the contracts early in the year.

Surprised on Birthday.

Mrs. Charles VanWinkle, of 301 West Fourth street, celebrated the anniversary of her birthday yesterday. Last evening a number of relatives gave her a surprise in honor of the evening. An evening of music, vocal and instrumental, sociability, etc., was greatly enjoyed. A bountiful supper was served, after which the guests departed. Mrs. VanWinkle received several handsome presents as tokens of esteem.

Dear Sirs:—Some days since a package of your GRAIN-O preparation was left at my office. I took it home and gave it a trial, and I have to say I was very much pleased with it, as a substitute for coffee. We have always used the best Java and Mocha in our family, but I am free to say I like the GRAIN-O as well as the best coffee I ever drank. Respectfully yours,

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb 8—The next lecture in the educational series will be given in the Methodist church Thursday evening, Feb. 14. H. M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield schools, will be the lecturer, and will relate his experiences while on a recent trip through Switzerland. As Mr. Maxson is a very interesting speaker, all those who attend will no doubt be pleasantly entertained and benefited. The committee in charge of the lectures have made arrangements for two more in addition to Mr. Maxson's.

Appropriate exercises in honor of the anniversary of Lincoln's Birthday, which occurs Tuesday, were held in both the Whittier and Lincoln schools today. At the former school a varied programme of songs and recitations was given by the pupils.

found in a vacant lot by two other children."

This matter is one which interests every family in the city. It is this boy today. It may be another tomorrow who is to go forth branded as a thief without a proper opportunity to refute the accusation. Truth is never afraid of the light of publicity. Why should it be so studiously avoided in this case? W. S. Angleman.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Charles VanWinkle, of West Fourth street, is detained at home with a severe attack of the grip.

B. J. Shreve, of Grove street, is not able to go to business on account of a severe cold, resembling the grip.

James Guttridge, of Netherwood, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is rapidly recovering and will be out in a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Johnson, of Norwood avenue, will return from Hackettstown tomorrow, where they have been spending a week.

Mrs. B. Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., of Myrtle avenue, has sent out invitations for an "at home" Monday, Feb. 18, from four to seven o'clock.

Mrs. Cornelius Bristol and family, of Hartford, Conn., are visiting with Mrs. Bristol's parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Lowrie, of Park avenue.

DEATH OF MRS. SMOCK.

Was Well Known Here and Resided Many Years Near Bound Brook.

Mrs. Mary Ann Smock, aged 82 years, died Wednesday after a short illness, at the home of her nephew at Germantown, Pa., where she had been living since the death of her husband, W. H. Smock, a year ago last Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Smock was very well known in this vicinity, where she had a large number of relatives and friends. She lived for fifty-five years in the old homestead at Harris lane, and she was a faithful member of the Bound Brook Presbyterian church.

The funeral services will be held from the residence of her nephew at Germantown next Monday. The interment will take place in the cemetery at Bound Brook.

Will Open New Store.

Through the agency of Elston M French, of North avenue, J. H. French has leased his store on West Front street, adjoining B W. Hand's store, to Preger & Unger, of York, Pa., and that firm will open the place March 1, as a dry goods and men's furnishing goods store.

Women's Tailoring Firm to Locate Here.

A New York women's tailoring firm has leased the store at 243 West Front street, through the agency of Elston M. French, of North avenue, and will open the place about March 1.

SPEEDING HORSES ON SNOW.

LOCAL HORSEMEN TRIED CONCLUSIONS ON EAST FRONT STREET.

Many Watched The Races—Honors for The Day Went to A. I. Smalley's "Belle"—Other Horses Out.

From the standpoint of local horseman, at least, all roads seemed to lead to East Front street yesterday, where from early in the afternoon until late in the evening horse owners gathered to test the relative merits of their respective steeds. But not only did the horsemen gather but pedestrians as well, several hundred of the latter stationing themselves at various points along the street between Sandford and Farragut avenues, in order to witness the exciting brushes which took place. There were any number of fast heats between some of the speediest trotters and pacers in the city. The icy condition of the road has made the best of sleighing and the light cutters were whirled along with a speed which took the breath away.

Probably the speediest horse of the lot and one which outdistanced all competitors in the numerous impromptu brushes was A. I. Smalley's "Belle." With an even start the little mare showed her heels to the rival drivers in every heat despite the most strenuous efforts to overhaul her. "Belle" was clearly the favorite, but she had a dangeroue rival in Daniel Ginna's gray pacer, which surprised a good many of the enthusiasts by keeping well in the lead. Another speedy animal was Robert Rushmore's bay pacer, which won a number of fast heats apparently without any great effort. "Ned Davis," driven by his owner, D. C. Smalley, trotted some very good heats and held his own with all the leaders.

Among the other local horsemen who enjoyed the sport and exhibited their animals were Former Judge Wm. A. Coddington, ex Sheriff W. T. Kirk, Mayor N. B. Smalley, Frank Hand, L. M. French, Robt. Fairbairn, Edward Campbell, H. S. Taylor, Geo. Ball, with Charles W. McCutchen's horse, and Fred Nelson.

HAPPILY WEDDED.

Miss Emily Houess and James Chamberlain United in Marriage Yesterday.

In the presence of nearly fifty intimate friends and relatives, Miss Emily Houess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Houess, of England, and James Chamberlain were married at the groom's home on West Third street last evening. Rev. G. K. Newell, pastor of Hope chapel, was the officiating clergyman.

Mr. and Mrs. William Chamberlain acted as bridemaid and best man. Two little flower girls, Miss Jessie Chamberlain and Miss Lizzie Houess, looked very pretty in blue silk. The bride was becomingly attired in a dress of gray Henrietta cloth trimmed with silk.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain were tendered a pleasant reception which lasted until after midnight. They will take up their residence in this city where Mr. Chamberlain is a valued employe of the Potter Press Works.

Charged With Threatening Wife.

John H. Stevens, of Watchung avenue, was arraigned in the city court this morning on complaint of his wife, who charged him with using profane and indecent language and threatening to do her personal violence. He was arrested last evening and had spent the night in a cell. At the request of his counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, the case was laid over until next Tuesday morning, with the understanding that Mr. Stevens was to keep away from the house in the meantime.

Braunschweig. Anhalt. Lippe. Waldeck.

Hasselfelde. Bei Beginn der diesjährigen Holzhauerei im braunschweigischen Harze wurden an die Waldarbeiter eine Anzahl Blechkasten vertheilt, in denen sich Verbandssachen, als Binden, Pflaster und dergleichen befinden. Da bei der Waldarbeit nie sofort ein Arzt zur Stelle sein kann, so sollen die Sachen zur vorläufigen Verbindung von Wunden dienen. An verschiedenen Orten ist, um die Arbeiter in der Behandlung von Wunden, Brüchen u. s. w. zu unterrichten, von den betreffenden Kassenärzten Vortrag darüber gehalten worden.

Dessau. Die durch den Tod des Geheimen Hofraths Dr. Hofäus erledigte Stelle eines Bibliothekars der hiesigen herzoglichen Bibliothek ist dem außerordentlichen Professor der Geschichte an der Universität Heidelberg, Kleinschmidt, übertragen worden.

Detmold. Nach der jüngsten Volkszählung beläuft sich die Einwohnerzahl von Detmold auf 11,989, gegen 11,232 im Jahre 1895, von Lemgo auf 8810 (8096), von Lage auf 5317 (4717), von Salzuflen auf 5281 (4665), von Blomberg auf 3292 (3084) und von Horn auf 2268 (2045).

Korbach. Die kleinste Stadt Deutschlands, das benachbarte Fürstenberg, hat nach der jüngsten Volkszählung 320 Einwohner, gegen 351 im Jahre 1895.

Darmstadt. Der praktische Arzt Dr. Neuhaus hat sich erschossen.

Gießen. An Neubauten sind für die Universität Gießen im Staatsbudget vorgesehen: eine Universitätsbibliothek, eine chirurgische und ophthalmologische Klinik, ein medico-mechanisches Institut, ein veterinär-medizinisches Institut. Die geplante dritte Irrenanstalt wird, mit einem Provinzial-Siechenhaus, ebenfalls in Gießen errichtet. Sämmtliche Universitäts-Neubauten sollen bis zum Jahre 1907, in welchem das 300jährige Bestehen der Universität gefeiert wird, in Betrieb sein.

Kastel. Mit der Entfestigung unserer Stadt wird am 1. April d. J. begonnen. Die sich zwischen dem Frankfurter und Wiesbadener Thore befindenden Wälle werden durch die Militärbehörde selbst niedergelegt.

Mainz. Nachdem der Reservefonds der Mainzer Sparkasse Ende des abgelaufenen Rechnungsjahres auf 3,023,477 Mark angewachsen ist, hat der Verwaltungsrath der Sparkasse beschlossen, alljährlich einen Theil der Zinsen dieses Reservefonds der städtischen Verwaltung zu gemeinnützigen Zwecken zur Verfügung zu stellen.

Mombach. In Folge der andauernden strengen Kälte im heurigen Winter sind in vielen Orten Rheinhessens die Frucht- und andere Anpflanzungen erfroren. In der Gemeinde Mombach, die alljährlich über 1,000,000 Salatköpfe exportirt, sind diese Anpflanzungen vernichtet.

Bayern.

München. Die bayerische Polizei hat die Verfolgung des Räubers Kneisel, der seit länger als zwei Monaten die Bevölkerung in den dichtbevölkertsten Theilen Bayerns förmlich terrorisirte und trotz aller Bemühungen nicht erwischt werden konnte, völlig aufgegeben.—Schiffsjunge Hitz von der „Gneisenau," der einzige bei dem Untergange dieses Schiffes gerettete Bayer, Sohn eines Maurerpoliers in München, wurde von dem Prinz-Regenten mit einem Geldgeschenk bedacht.

Ansbach. Der aus Ansbach entflohene Betriebsdirektor des landwirthschaftlichen Kreditvereins von Mittelfranken, Georg Schneider, hat sich in einem Hotel in Mainz erhängt. Der Kreditverein hatte ein Defizit von 300,000 Mark.

Bamberg. Kommerzienrath Karl Dessäuer hat für die Arbeiter seiner Malzfabrik eine Unterstützungs- und Pensionskasse gegründet, die er mit 10,000 Mark dotirte.

Dachau. Bei der hierorts bestehenden Naturalverpflegungsstation erhielten im Laufe des Jahres 1900 10,397 arme reisende Handwerksburschen Verpflegung und zwar 3684 Mittagskost und 6713 Abendkost, Nachtquartier und Frühkost bei einem Gesammtaufwand von etwa 4000 Mark.

Deggendorf. Der Raubmörder von Wippstetten, der Tagelöhner Josef Braun von Aufhausen, der bereits mit zehn Jahren Zuchthaus vorbestraft ist, wurde jüngst behufs Beobachtung seines Geisteszustandes in die hiesige Kreisirrenanstalt eingeliefert.

Ebern. In Memmelsdorf wollte der Brauereibesitzer Nüßlein die undicht gewordenen Rohre seiner Acetylenanlage nachsehen und betrat den Raum, in dem der Kessel aufgestellt war, mit einem brennenden Licht. Es erfolgte eine furchtbare Explosion, durch die Nüßlein auf der Stelle getödtet und ein in der Nähe weilender Arbeiter schwer verletzt wurde.

Constitutions of the Nations.

If we except the provinces of the Netherlands, the Swiss cantons and such tiny city-states as Monaco and San Marino, which retain their ancient institutions, there is not a nation on earth, making any pretense of freedom and civilization, which has not a constitution in great measure copied, within the present century, either from English or from the United States.—Atlantic Monthly.

Where He Stubbed It.

Materfamilias (at bedroom door)—What are you groaning about?

Paterfamilias—Oh! I stubbed my toe!

Mater—Well, if you hadn't gone downstairs in your stocking feet it wouldn't have happened.

Pater—You're right. That young dude of Mary's would have skipped out before I got near him.—Philadelphia Press.

His Purpose.

"What makes you keep declaring that you will never again be a candidate for public office?"

"Well," answered the statesman, "I've got to keep saying something in order to prevent my friends from overlooking me as a possible candidate."—Washington Star.

Sorry She Talked.

The Visitor—Why, there's a picture of Archie Brown, who used to flirt with every woman he met and never paid his debts. Where is he now?

The Hostess—He's upstairs dressing; he's my husband, you know.—Philadelphia Press.

Small Talk.

He—You're a peach! No doubt about it.

She—Miss Jellus seems to think so, too. I overheard her say I looked well preserved.

"The idea; wouldn't that jar you?"—Philadelphia Press.

CAME BACK TO LIFE.

Two Women Who Were About to Be Placed in Their Coffins.

One Lived in New York, the Other in Indiana—Consciousness Returned to Both While They Were Clothed in Burial Robes.

Miss Louise Schaefer, of 140 East One Hundred and Twelfth street, New York, was to all appearances dead. The crape was ordered for the door. Friends and relatives had been notified. Father and sister were making plans for the funeral.

In an adjoining room Frank Faber, an undertaker's assistant, was preparing the body for burial. He took up the limp arms to fold them on the breast, but dropped them in amazement.

He was sure he felt a tremor run through the body. As he stood there astonished Miss Schaefer sat up in bed. Her eyes opened.

"What do you mean?" she gasped, and then sank back into a coma, seemingly as dead as before.

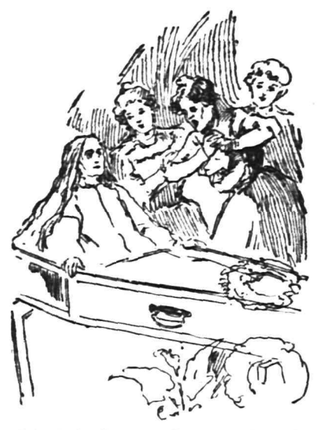
The startled Faber rushed from the house and returned with Dr. U. S. Ward, of 1808 Lexington Avenue. Hearing that Miss Schaefer had revived once from the coma, Dr. Ward resorted to heroic measures to restore heart action.

After a free use of nitroglycerin and digitalis Miss Schaefer's heart again began to beat, and again she sat up and gasped:

"What do you mean?"

This was on Wednesday afternoon. All night Dr. Ward worked with the young woman, keeping her heart in action by artificial respiration. Again and again she sank into a coma, from which she was with difficulty aroused. When finally restored she was so weak she could not be questioned as to her sensations.

Miss Schaefer on Thursday was removed to the Presbyterian hospital,



MRS. TAYLOR CAME BACK TO LIFE.

but her case attracted so much attention that she was removed to a private hospital, the location of which has been kept a secret.

She and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Schaefer, are teachers in the public schools. Miss Schaefer was ill of chronic gastritis. The nursing during the day was left to her old father. It was on Wednesday when she sank into a coma, from which he could not arouse her, and thought her dead.

"In all my experience," Undertaker Faber said the other night, "I have never before seen any one whose appearance more convincingly indicated death."

Another startling case of a like nature is reported from Brazil, Ind. Pronounced dead by her family physician, mourned over by her husband and others of the family, laid out in her burial robes awaiting the hour for interment, Mrs. Cyrus Taylor came back to life and is well on the way to complete recovery.

It was a dramatic and weird scene when the woman so near to the grave opened her eyes upon the room of mourning. Surrounding her were a number of neighbors, women who had known her for years, with tears in their eyes, recounting her good qualities. There was a quiver of the lip and Mrs. Taylor's eyelids twitched, then were raised, and she looked into the faces of her friends.

For a moment all were too startled to move, then one woman shouted with joy and members of the household rushed to the room. A physician was summoned and restoratives administered.

Taylor is a farmer, whose place is seven miles from Brazil. He is prosperous and well known in that part of the state. Mrs. Taylor, who is about 40 years of age, had been sick for some time and death had been expected, as she was weakened by a fever.

Mrs. Taylor is too weak yet to talk much about her unusual experience, but it is claimed that she realized her condition for some time before she could make known to her relatives that she was alive. She knew she was thought to be dead and that active preparations were being made for her burial, and she feared she would be buried while alive.

EVENING MATERIALS.

Dainty Fabrics For Full Dress and Demitollet.

A pleasing novelty of the season for fine evening gowns is a lace net embroidered with chenille—that is, with black chenille—following the outline of the lace design. It is placed over black, white or colored silk, but white is considered the most elegant.

Another delicate material is mousseline de soie painted with natural flowers. One of the most charming has clusters of orchids upon a mauve ground, but there are many other combinations.

Printed pannes are shown in a great variety of designs and colors, conventional, oriental and flower patterns being all used. This beautiful material composes many theater bodices and corsages for demitoilet. Plain panne is reserved for grand toilet and is usually enriched with applications of lace and with magnificent embroidery.

A comparatively new material is pompon net, which is sprinkled with chenille dots, of which the size diminishes as they approach the waist.

The illustration shows an evening gown having a skirt of nile green glace silk, around the foot of which are three bands of sable fur. The low cut bodice has a coat back of white satin embroidered with pearls and gold. The fronts of embroidered satin, much cut away at the top and terminating at the waist, are applied upon a full front of nile green mousseline de soie. The green silk sleeves terminate at the elbow with a band of fur and two puffs of green mousseline de soie. The decolletage is bordered by a band of fur, which is followed by a line of embroidery passing across the top of the sleeves. White kid gloves are worn, and the belt is of embroidered gold ribbon with a gold buckle.

FASHION HINTS.

Items of Interest Concerning the Feminine Wardrobe.

Empire gowns, modified to suit present taste, of course, are among the most effective of ball costumes. For them such materials as liberty satin and crepe de chine are employed, the softness of which makes them peculiarly suitable to this quasi classical style of attire.

White gloves continue to be worn with calling costumes in spite of the effort to totally oust them and replace them with delicate and more becoming tints. Some straw and biscuit shades are, however, beginning to be seen.

Net with embroidered eyelet holes traversed by baby ribbon is a novelty for evening gowns and chemisettes.

The muff as now constructed is an important accessory to the visiting costume. Muffs of plain fur are too frank, and most of the muffs carried are composed of materials allowing much frilling and drapery, beneath which are masked pockets, to contain the purse, cardcase and watch. The handkerchief occupies the space in which the hands are placed. The watch pocket is so arranged that the face of the watch may be uncovered and consulted without attracting observation, which is a great convenience. The newest muffs are rather long.

The cut shows a new ball bodice of white satin. It is very tight and is cut straight across, being held over the shoulder by a drapery of black mousseline de soie. A second drapery, carried across the top of the arm, serves as a sleeve. The top and bottom of the satin bodice are embroidered, and there is a sort of corselet of black panne, draped in front by jeweled buckles and crossing at the back. Two sash ends fall upon the skirt.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 10—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—If Christ should come tomorrow.—I Thess. v, 1, 2, 4-8.

One of the first great subjects that agitated the Christian church was that of the second coming of Christ. Paul's first epistle was written to the church at Thessalonia and was upon this subject. The Thessalonians looked for the immediate return of their Lord in answer to the angel's words at the ascension of Christ, "This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven." The effect of this belief upon the Thessalonians was serious. They ceased to be interested in the affairs of life and were reduced to poverty and want. They mourned for their dead because they believed that only the living would participate in the glories of Christ's reappearance. At the close of every day they looked for Christ's coming on the morrow. Do we ever look for it, long for it or expect it? What if Christ should come tomorrow?

1. If Christ should come tomorrow, we ought not to be surprised. The day and the hour of the Lord's return to earth have not been revealed. But it has been revealed that He may appear at any time. "But of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I should write unto you, for yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night." Since, therefore, we know that Christ may come at any time, we should not be surprised even if He should come tomorrow. Many, probably, would be, but no Christian ought to be. The doctrine of Christ's coming should be more precious and more familiar to us. Surprise at His coming would clearly indicate that we have not been as familiar with and interested in this great Christian truth as we ought to be.

2. If Christ should come tomorrow, we should be ready. "Ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of light and the children of the day. We are not of the night nor of darkness." If the Thessalonians had been found in unreadiness, it would have been inexcusable, because they would have been sinning against light and knowledge. The same can be truthfully said of us. We know that Christ will come again. We know that Christ may come at any time. We have light and knowledge, and therefore should not be taken unawares. If we are not ready, we will be inexcusable. The foolish virgins sinned against knowledge and opportunity and were excluded for their unreadiness. If we should not be ready, the responsibility will be upon us. Are we ready if Christ should come tomorrow?

3. If Christ should come tomorrow, we should desire to be found at our posts of duty. Asked what he would do if he knew that he would die the next night at 12 o'clock, Charles Wesley replied that he would do just what he intended to do and wake up in glory. On a dark day in New England it was believed that the world was coming to an end. A legislature in session was about to adjourn to spend the time in prayer and worship when such action was successfully opposed by a member who declared that if it was the end of the world he preferred to be found at his post of duty. In this spirit we should view the second coming of Christ. The thought that He might come tomorrow should not unfit us for our duties or lead to the neglect of them, but should encourage us to increased zeal and faithfulness. Is this our position? Could we go on doing what we intend to do if we knew that Christ was coming tomorrow? If not, we had better not do what we intend to do—Christ may come tomorrow.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Let the prayer meeting committee arrange a special programme, covering every phase of the question of Christ's second coming.

BIBLE READINGS.

Math. xvi, 24-28; xxv, 1-13, 31-46; Acts i, 1-11; Col. iii, 4, 5; I Thess. ii, 19, 20; Jas. v, 7, 8; II Pet. iii, 1-15; I John iii, 1-3; Rev. xxii, 11, 12.

Prisoners of Hope.

The man who lives for today is like one born in a prison, who has never learned that the great world throbs beyond his prison walls. He is a prisoner and does not know it. Now, it is said that our Lord came to release the prisoner, and there is no chain gang that needs the salvation, however, more than the prisoners of today. By as much as we lose sight of the ultimate destiny of our lives, by as much as we fail to come under the power of our transcendent hope, we are prisoners of today. We should be prisoners of hope, for, as St. Paul says, "We are saved by hope."—Reformed Church Messenger.

But One Standard.

A true Christian can have but one standard of ethics. That standard must apply with equal force to his dealings with honorable men and with men who are dishonorable, with individuals and with corporations, with the grocer and the butcher who supply his table and with the railway company which furnishes him a means of transportation for himself, his family and his goods. Jesus made no exception to the universal application of the moral law. Neither may we.—Rev. Edward G. Mason in Universalist Leader.

Making the Best of What We Have.

The common problem—yours, mine, every one's—is not to fancy what were fair in life, provided it could be, but finding first what may be, then find how to make it fair up to our means, a very different thing.—Robert Browning.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 10, "If Christ Should Come Tomorrow?"—Text, I Thess. v, 1, 2, 4-8.

"The day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night."

We have become so accustomed to the forms of life by which we are surrounded and matters move so naturally in their regular channels that it seems as if things must have always been as they now are and will continue unceasingly as at present. Changes occur, of course, improvements in society, in inventions, in government, increase of intelligence, greater comfort and wealth, but all in the familiar ways. Yet a little sober thought asures us that the present conditions have not long prevailed on earth. At the longest, man has been but a little while on the earth, and there is no reason to suppose he will remain any great length of time. Whether we open the rock record of the earth, search the heavens above or turn to the Bible, we are convinced that the stay of the human race on this globe is but a little space of time between measureless durations.

Numberless indications point to the preparatory nature of this life. We do not live long enough here as individuals, at the very longest, to establish any permanent plans. On the average all human works are renewed every 80 years, even taking into full account all enduring pyramids, cathedrals and like constructions. Character alone matures and endures indestructible and settles into fixed forms unchangeable.

A new society is emerging, forming, rising. All our efforts, good and evil, are beating it into shape. That the ideal condition shall be attained here on earth is the hope, the belief, of many. The reign of universal peace and righteousness is a beautiful fancy, but not to be soberly expected either as a matter of revelation or of scientific speculation.

The Christ shall come in the fullness of time and shall gather out of His kingdom all things which cause offense. He shall establish the reign of truth and endless peace. Conditions now inconceivable shall then prevail. Our duty is plain—not to dream or speculate on mysteries impenetrable now, but to prepare ourselves by humble, faithful service here for participation in the Master's triumph hereafter. "Occupy till I come," then share with Him forever.

An Epworth Leaguer Honored.

It is no uncommon thing for a Methodist to be elected governor of one of the states of the American Union, but the election of Richard Yates as governor of Illinois has some uncommon features. Just 40 years ago his father, of the same name, was elected governor of the same commonwealth and became the famous war governor. The son lives in Jacksonville, the city where he was born, attended school and college, not far from his widowed mother.

GOVERNOR RICHARD YATES.

He is devoted to his church and active in Sunday school and League. He was a lay delegate to the general conference at Chicago last May and spoke several times.

He has been a newspaper reporter and editor, graduated from Ann Arbor in the law department and has been judge of Morgan county, Ills.

It is a matter of great satisfaction to his close personal friends that early in the campaign for governorship he refused to preside at a banquet in Chicago of business men because liquors were to be served. The inauguration ball, a time honored custom, is omitted because Governor Yates and wife will not violate their church rules by attendance. The state is to be congratulated upon having a man at the head of affairs who has convictions and courage as well as ability. The church is honored when such a member can be elected to such an office and not sacrifice his honor and hers.

All will allow that true virtue or holiness has its seat chiefly in the heart rather than in the head. It therefore follows that it consists chiefly in holy affections.—Jonathan Edwards.

When Jesus Comes.

When Jesus comes to reward His servants,
Whether it be noon or night,
Faithful to Him will He find us, watching,
With our lamps all trimmed and bright?

Oh, can we say we are ready, brother—
Ready for the soul's bright home?
Say, will He find you and me still watching,
Waiting, waiting when the Lord shall come?

If at the dawn of the early morning
He shall call us one by one,
When to the Lord we restore our talents,
Will He answer thee, "Well done?"

Have we been true to the trust He left us?
Do we seek to do our best?
If in our hearts there is naught condemns us,
We shall have a glorious rest.

Blessed are those whom the Lord finds watching.
In His glory they shall share.
If He shall come at the dawn or midnight,
Will He find us watching there?

FLOWERS AT PAN-AMERICAN.

Charming Landscape Effects and Beautiful Floral Exhibits.

The Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo next summer will possess unusual charm for lovers of flowers and of beautiful landscape effects. Perhaps in recognition of this the members of the Society of American Florists have decided to hold their annual convention in Buffalo in 1901. Chicago was anxious to win the convention, but in view of the special attractions for its members which the Pan-American Exposition will possess it was decided to meet next year in the Pan-American city. The gathering will bring to Buffalo about 1,000 delegates and their families from all parts of the United States. The floral features of the Pan-American Exposition and its landscape effects will surpass anything ever seen before by visitors to expositions held in the United States. The laying out of the grounds was done with the view of providing for such attractions, and ample space was left for courts and fountains, canals and lakes, which will be bordered with plants and flowers of all kinds and descriptions. While there will be charming scenery of this character in all portions of the grounds, an especial effort will be made to embellish the southern portion, adjoining Delaware park, at the entrance to that part of the grounds where the main Exposition buildings are situated. On both sides of the splendid Triumphal Bridge at this point will be two artificial pools called the Mirror Lakes, connecting with the Grand Canal, which encircles the grounds. The slopes of these lakes and the whole vicinity will be adorned with a magnificent outdoor exhibit of flowering plants set in the midst of shrubbery and trees in such a way as most to enhance the beautiful effect. There will be a large display of rare water plants, including the Nilumbiums and the wonderful Victoria Regia, or Amazon Lily, and many Nymphæas not before exhibited. Applications for space for exhibits on the grounds and in the special building to be devoted to horticulture are coming from florists all over the country, and the expressed desire of the cultivators of flowers and plants to be represented at the Pan-American insures an extensive exhibition of these beautiful products of nature.

LIFE SAVING STATION.

One Is Being Erected by United States Government.

Work was recently begun on the United States life saving station upon the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y. The site of the station is on the north side of the lake in Delaware park, in one of the most beautiful portions of the Exposition grounds.

The life saving station will be fully equipped with apparatus and men and will be a most attractive as well as novel exhibit. Life saving exhibitions will be given every day during the progress of the Exposition. The apparatus in use by the government for this purpose will be shown and a crew of ten picked men will be employed in giving the exhibitions. The station is to be modeled after one of the regular stations along the coast of the United States.

Hoping to Make Their Fortunes.

The thousands of people who visit the grounds where the buildings of the Pan-American Exposition are rising like a city created by magic see many things which indicate that the value of the vacant lots surrounding the Exposition grounds for money making purposes next summer is duly appreciated. For instance, one real estate dealer advertises like this: "Can you keep a boarding house? Can you run a lunch counter? If so, here is your chance to make the most money." Another advertises, "Choice lots for hotels, boarding houses, saloons, summer gardens, restaurants, souvenir booths and other things by which you can make your fortune at the Pan-American Exposition." All the vacant property in the vicinity of the Exposition grounds is staked off and placarded by signs indicating its value for purposes in connection with the big Exposition to be held in Buffalo next summer, and many buildings are already going up which will be used for accommodations for Exposition visitors and all sorts of purposes connected with their entertainment.

Broad Scope of the Exposition.

Nearly all of the nations of Central and South America have already sent formal acceptances to the invitation to participate in the Pan-American Exposition. Exhibits showing the resources of all the principal countries of Central and South America are now in course of preparation. Government officials are preparing exhibits from the Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Cuba and the Hawaiian group. About 15 acres have been set apart for the court of the state and foreign buildings on the eastern side of the grounds and a little south of the main group.

THE STADIUM.

Greatest Year In Athletics at Pan-American Exposition.

During the Exposition of 1901 at Buffalo the greatest athletic sporting carnival that ever took place in America will be held. For the purpose of this grand carnival the largest sporting arena ever erected in America is to be built. It is to be known as the Stadium and will cover nearly ten acres, having a seating capacity of 12,000. It will be supplied with numerous entrances and broad aisles, so that the comfort of the spectators will be assured. The large space beneath the seats will be used for exhibits, being the equivalent of a very large building. The arena will contain a quarter mile track and ample room for the various pageants and exhibitions of live stock, automobiles, farm and road machinery, vehicles, etc. At the western end of the Stadium is a large ornamental building, which forms the main entrance to this grand arena.

CORNER OF THE STADIUM.

EXPOSITION NOTES.

Brief Items Relating to Progress of the Pan-American.

The Chittenango Pottery Company has been granted the exclusive privilege of selling pottery at the Exposition.

Frederick Law Olmstead, who advocates the abolishment of billboards because of their inartistic and unsightly character, is the landscape architect who laid out Delaware Park, Buffalo, a part of which is to be used for the Pan-American Exposition in 1901.

We have only admiration for the courage, enterprise, liberality and energy displayed by the city at the foot of the lake in preparing for the great Exposition which is to be held next year. If ever success was earned, Buffalo has earned it. The city deserves to be filled with visitors during the life of the Pan-American Exposition and to reap a rich harvest of honor, glory and substantial gains.—Cleveland Leader.

"We have never advertised the resources of our state half enough," says The Times-Democrat of New Orleans in an article upon the Pan-American Exposition, in which it urges an adequate representation of the resources of Louisiana. The same may be said of other states, and the opportunity now offered by Buffalo is of exceptional value.

The enthusiasm and interest displayed by the people of southern California in the preparation of their great display of products for the Pan-American Exposition present a lesson and an example for all citizens to contemplate. American enterprise seems to have a very high development in "the glorious climate of California." The Californians purpose to make a very large and effective display.

One of the most conspicuous features of the Niagara Falls landscape now is a mammoth sign handsomely lettered thus: "Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, N. Y., 1901." There are several similar signboards placed where thousands of people passing and repassing upon the great railroads may in this way have their attention called to the great event of next year which so vitally interests all the states and countries of the western hemisphere.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

Will Be Represented by a Fine Building and Exhibit at Buffalo.

The Argentine Republic will have a building and exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo next summer which will represent fittingly the progressive institutions and commercial and industrial prosperity of that South American republic. The sum of $30,000 has been appropriated by the Argentine government for this purpose.

Argentine merchants, and especially those of Buenos Ayres, appreciate the importance of representation at the Pan-American. Many agricultural and industrial organizations are notifying the minister of agriculture that they intend to send exhibits. It is probable the government will have its exhibit at the Paris exposition brought to Buffalo at the close of the French fair.

Buffalo's Mayor and the Exposition.

The Hon. Conrad Diehl, mayor of Buffalo, the home of the Pan-American Exposition, has great faith in the success of the enterprise and is more than pleased with the progress that is being made on the work of construction. He says: "I frequently drive out there and look over the buildings. It is phenomenal the rapidity with which the work is carried forward. The men who are directing the Exposition affairs are shrewd calculators, and they are going to make this enterprise the wonder of the world. Outsiders are becoming enthusiastic over it. Thousands of people who did not go to the World's fair at Chicago will come to the Pan-American. Let everybody prepare to receive them and give them a good time."

POOL

By defeating Kingston 60 to 43, Melvin took the lead in Krewson's pool tourney last evening. He now has six successive games to his credit. In the other games played last evening McGann won from Sutterlein 45 to 0, by forfeit, and Stelle won from Ammons 45 to 27. This is the first defeat that Ammons has suffered since the tourney began.

NO LICENSE FOR SISSER.

ACTION OF BOROUGH COUNCIL IN OPPOSING IT HAD GREAT WEIGHT.

Judge Schenck Decided to Refuse Application—Announced Decision This Morning—Zellar's License Revoked.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 8—The license of James Sisser for a saloon on Somerset street, North Plainfield, was refused by Judge Schenck this morning.

The Judge said that he had gone over the matter carefully and considered it proper to refuse the license. The manner in which the saloon was conducted was no doubt due to its location. Probably no one else would conduct it better. Mr. Sisser had done the best he could under the circumstances.

The action of the Common Council, he said, in unanimously asking the Court to refuse the license carried a great deal of weight. The members of the Council were prominent business men, not temperance cranks, and they were voting $400 out of their treasury, showing that the saloon cost them more than that.

The license of Theo. J. F. Zellar, in North Plainfield, granted in December, was revoked. Mr. Zellar had become involved in difficulty with his brewer and was unable to pay for his license.

REFORM CLUB MET.

Entertained by Terry and Harkins and With Musical Programme.

By way of entertainment at the regular meeting of the Reform Club held last evening, the comedy acrobatic team, Terry and Harkins, gave a laughable and at the same time, difficult performance. The young men went through a number of acrobatic feats which would have done credit to performers of more mature years and experience. There were also addresses by various members of the club and selections on the violin and piano by Miss Jennie Smith and Clarence Mills.

Been Building Roads.

REQUIREMENTS FOR MILITIA.

ADJUTANT GENERAL OLIPHANT ISSUES RECRUITING INSTRUCTIONS.

What Will Be Required of Plainfield Boys Who Are Going to Join Company K.

With a new militia company just about to be organized in this city the instructions which have just been issued by Adjutant General Oliphant, regarding the recruiting and examination of recruits for admission into the National Guard of this State, are of special interest to the Plainfield young men who contemplate joining Company K, Second Regiment, N. J. N. G.

Adjutant General Oliphant's instructions are as follows:

"The minimum height of a recruit is at present fixed at five feet four inches, for all branches of the service, although recruiting officers are allowed to exercise their discretion as to the enlistment of desirable recruits (such as band musicians, non-commissioned staff officers, etc.) who may fall not more than one-fourth of an inch below the minimum standard of height. The maximum height for the cavalry service is five feet ten inches; that for the infantry and artillery is governed by the maximum of weight, to which should be applied the rule for proportion in height.

"The minimum weight for all recruits is 125 pounds, except for the cavalry, in which enlistments may be made without regard to a minimum weight, provided the chest measurement and chest mobility are satisfactory. The maximum for infantry is 190 pounds; for cavalry and light artillery, 165 pounds.

"The recruiting officer is permitted to accept men desiring to re-enlist, who present themselves for that purpose, notwithstanding they may have some physical disqualification which would cause their rejection as recruits, provided, they have no serious defect which would probably prevent the discharge of their duties as soldiers. In such cases, the recruiting officers will note in red ink, over the entry of the soldier's re-enlistment in the descriptive book, the special physicial defect, or defects, in each case, and refer to this paragraph as authority for re-enlistment.

"The examination of recruits for admission into the National Guard will be conducted by recruiting and medical officers, as prescribed in the manual for the medial department, United States army."

SERIOUS FIRE AVERTED.

Quick Action of John Case Prevented Conflagration at Freeholder Lutkins' Home.

The home of Freeholder Andrew Lutkins, of Somerset street, narrowly escaped destruction by fire this morning, and only for the quick action and presence of mind of John Case, a brother-in-law of Mr. Lutkins, who was in the house, a serious conflagration would surely have resulted.

Mr. Case stopped for Mr. Lutkins, and while the latter was at the barn, he waited in the house. Mr. Case had occasion to go to the parlor and there he found the room filled with smoke. He hastily asked Mrs. Lutkins the cause for it, and she could not explain the trouble.

Further investigation disclosed the fact that the heavy curtains were all ablaze. Quickly he ran to that side of the room and with his hands fought the flames vigorously until they were extinguished. The curtains were about ruined, but further serious damage was happily averted. There is no explanation for the fire. The curtains do not hang anywhere near a fire and the family is much perplexed as to what caused the fire.

MINOR TOWN HAPPENINGS.

BRIEF ITEMS OF INTEREST TO EVERY DAILY PRESS READER.

Some Of the Doings In City and Borough Told In Concise and Pertinent Paragraphs.

—Campbell sells box goods of fine candy very low. Hark ye, young men.

—George Roberts, of this city, has opened a livery business at High Bridge.

—Neuman Bros. are selling two jars of pure fruit jam, assorted flavors, for 25 cents.

—Fine Jersey dressed poultry of all kinds, veal, lamb and mutton will be the specialties at the Crescent market tomorrow, Jeppe Sorenson, proprietor.

—"Elijah" rehearsal tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 at Y. M. C. A. Hall for sopranos and altos. Bassos and tenors at 7:30 at First Baptist church.

—Recent experiments show that all classes of foods may be completely digested by a preparation called Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which absolutely digests what you eat. As it is the only combination of all the natural digestants ever devised the demand for it has become enormous. It has never failed to cure the very worst cases of indigestion and it always gives instant relief. L. W. Randolph.

DELIGHTFUL RECEPTION.

Given by Mrs. H. R. Munger and Miss Munger at Their Home Yesterday Afternoon.

One of the most delightful receptions of the season was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. H. Raymond Munger and her daughter, Miss Munger, at their home on Washington avenue. The rooms were artistically decorated with palms, smilax and cut flowers, pink being the prevailing color. In the dining room pink carnations and pink-shaded candles produced a charming effect.

Mrs. Munger and Miss Munger were assisted in receiving by Miss Munger, of New York, Mesdames J. Kirtland Myers, Henry A. McGee, John Gray Foster, James R. Joy, George A. Chapman, S. St. J. McCutchen, Daniel Ginna and David Lewis. In the dining room Mrs. William E. Gibbs and Mrs. Frank D. Warren presided at the table, assisted by the Misses Ginna, Strong, Lee, Ackerman, May Shreve and Frances Weir. A large number of guests were present.

EIGHTY-SEVEN YEARS OLD

Mrs. George Mager Celebrated Birthday Surrounded by Three Generations.

It was a happy assemblage that gathered at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Mager, on Grandview avenue, Wednesday. Mrs. Mager was celebrating her eighty-seventh birthday, and was surrounded all day by her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Mrs. Mager is hale and hearty. She does all her own housework and has been engaged for the past two months piecing and making quilts for her children. She will allow no one to do any of the work on them and insists that she can do it all herself. She has made quite a number and they are all things of beauty.

She was the recipient of many useful and handsome presents and feels very glad that she has been remembered in her old age.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John W. Mager, of Brooklyn, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Mager, of Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mager and children and Miss C. Julia Mager, of this city.

PROSPEROUS SOCIETY.

Business Meeting of Endeavor Society of Park Avenue Baptist Church.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held last evening at the home of the treasurer, Miss Henrietta Cuming, of Putnam avenue, with the president, Miss Annie Wyckoff, presiding.

There was a good attendance and much interest manifested in the meeting. Written reports bearing upon the past month's work were read by the several chairmen, and the society was found in an excellent working condition. A social hour followed the transaction of business, and all present felt that they had enjoyed a pleasant and profitable evening.

Mr. Thompson is Surely Coming.

Many have inquired here if it is true that Denman Thompson of "Old Homestead" fame is personally to appear in this city tomorrow evening. It can be stated authoritively that Mr. Thompson himself will be in Plainfield tomorrow evening and play the part of "Uncle Josh."

Tea and Cake Sale.

There will be a tea given under the auspices of the social sales committee of the Guild of the Holy Cross church, in the rectory, Washington avenue, Saturday afternoon, February 16, from 3 to 5 o'clock. There will be home-made cakes for sale.

—Vegetables will be one of our Saturday specials. Neuman Bros.

OPPOSING DUTY ON SUGAR.

W. L. SAUNDERS IS ONE OF A COMMITTEE OF MANUFACTURERS.

Fear Russia's Threat to Tax American Machinery if Sugar Import Duty is Put Into Effect.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of Rockview avenue, has been one of a committee of prominent manufacturers of the country who have been at Washington during the past two weeks interviewing the Secretary of the Treasury and using their influence against the proposed duty on sugar brought to this country from Russia They are particularly interested in the measure because the Russian government has announced that in case the tax became operative, that country would retaliate with a tax on American machinery brought into that country.

The tax on sugar was agitated by the Sugar Trust to protect the local industries in the manfacture of sugar. The manufacturers argued, however, that while the total amount of sugar annually imported from Russia was not valued at a million dollars, the shipments of American machinery during the last year amounted to over $10,000,000 They therefore thought that their interests should be first considered.

While no decision has yet been reached the committee from the manufacturers are quite confident that their wish will be granted and the tax omitted. Mr. Saunders is first vice-president of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company which does a large foreign trade in drills, air-compressors and all kinds of mining machinery.

QUIETLY MARRIED.

Young Couple From Martinsville Came to This City and Were Wedded.

Bound Brook, Feb. 8.—It has just been announced that the marriage of Miss Cora Schorb, daughter of John Schorb, of Martinsville, but formerly of Plainfield, to Edward M. Bartle, also of Martinsville, took place Tuesday.

They went to Plainfield last Tuesday morning and when they returned Wednesday afternoon, informed their friends that they had been quietly married at that place.

They will take up their residence at Martinsville where the groom is employed as a stone cutter.

KANE RELEASED.

Prosecutor Decided That He Couldn't Convict Him and Case Was Discontinued.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 8—The trial of Dennis Kane, of Plainfield, on the indictment against him for highway robbery, was to have taken place today in the county court here. When the case was called the Prosecutor stated to the Court that he was convinced that a conviction could not be had on the evidence, and therefore moved to nolle pros the indictment, which motion the Court granted. Counsellor Angleman, of Plainfield, represented Mr. Kane, who was fully prepared to prove his innocence.

A New Class Planned.

All young men interested in the formation of a class in electrical engineering are requested to meet at the Y. M. C. A. tomorow evening at eight o'clock.

Address by W. D. Murray.

At the morning exercises of the Plainfield High School today the pupils listened to an excellent address delivered by W. D. Murray.

Chinese Geographical Names.

The confusion of Chinese names is appalling, and the foreigners who dip them over into their own tongue added to the confusion. There has been the greatest variance in the spelling and the pronunciation of geographical names, and the newcomer who struggles with the problem finds his mentality blurred. The foreign armies have fallen into the confusion and each goes on spelling names by whichever method the fancy elects None of the war maps agree, and there does not seem to be any means or desire to make them harmonize The Chinese themselves have an excellent system of applying geographical names that are descriptive, but it has the drawback of leading to endless duplication. The commonest dispute here is over "G" at the end of the name Peking. A good hostile argument on the subject can be stirred up whenever men congregate.—Paris Letter.

Well Qualified.

When the late Prince Christian Victor was a subaltern in the King's Royal Rifles he had in his company a corporal who was a severe disciplinarian, and considered it to be his duty to find fault with everything. On the expiry of his 21 years' service he applied to the prince for a testimonial as to character to enable him to procure a situation in civil life. Prince Christian Victor willingly assented, and credited the retiring corporal with being the most assiduous fault-finder he had ever met The recipient of the testimonial was lucky enough the first time he showed the prince's credentials to secure a congenial situation. He had applied for the post of assistant master in a workhouse, and the prince's letter secured him the berth. The ex-corporal still holds the position.

IN THE REALM OF SOCIETY.

PERSONAL JOTTINGS COLLECTED IN CITY AND BOROUGH.

Daily Doings of Plainfielders and Their Guests Carefully Collected and Tersely Told.

Mrs. Harry Tees, of West Fifth street, has been visiting Philadelphia relatives.

Miss Ella Conover, of Elmwood place, has returned from a visit with relatives at High Bridge.

Miss Ethel Laing, of East Front street, has returned home after a few weeks' visit with Brooklyn relatives.

Frank Cortwright, of Hackettstown, has returned home after a visit with his uncle, F. T. Woodhull, of West End Park.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Streuli, of Hillside avenue, are registered at the Chelsea, West Twenty-third street, New York, for the winter.

Constable Amos Moffett still continues to improve, and it is now thought that within a short time he will be entirely well.

Miss Josephine Fritz, of Somerset street, who has been at the hospital under treatment, has about recovered and will probably go home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place, left last evening for Oriskany Falls, N. Y., where Mrs Morse's mother, Mrs. D. M. Miner, is very ill.

Another McCarty.

Friends wish it stated that Timothy McCarty, who is now under arrest for alleged larceny, is not the Timothy McCarty who formerly resided on West Front street, this city, and connected with the Singing Manufacturing Company.

Insurance Adjusted.

The insurance on the building owned by C. E. Gulick & Co., Park grocers, was settled today, and the work of clearing up the place prior to repairs has been started.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD" HERE THIS EVENING.

One of Events of Local Theatrical Season is Appearance of Denman Thompson.

OTHER GOOD SHOWS COMING

THREE STRONG ATTRACTIONS ARE BOOKED FOR NEXT YEAR.

Two Excellent Performances Were Given This Week—Some of the Good Things in Prospect for Local Theatre-Goers.

Those who failed to witness the very superior performance of Wm. A. Brady's great production of Marie Corelli's great work, "The Sorrows of Satan," Monday night, missed one of the best presentations of the season. It was most artistically rendered, reflecting credit on all concerned. Smith O'Brien, in the new Irish drama, "The Game Keeper," Wednesday night, afforded much pleasure by his robust singing and pleasing impersonation of the title role. His supporting company was good and scenic effects all that good be desired. The event of the week, however, takes place tonight when "The Old Homestead" and Denman Thompson himself will be seen.

It is remarkable how easily this rural picture has outdistanced almost every play on the American stage in its popularity. The average life of the greatest metropolitan production is computed to be five years. Think of this and then of "The Old Homestead" years of vitality. Season after season it continues just as successfully as it did during its first triumph, and attracts the same throngs with its heart interest and leaves them with the desire to go again and again. The play can never grow old until the well fonts of humanity dry and hearts cease to respond to the tender touch of nature. The production of "The Old Homestead" will be presented by Denman Thompson and his own company of players, Mr. Thompson appearing as "Joshua Whitcomb" for the first time in this city.

Manager Maze Edwards has some strong attractions for the coming and following weeks. Monday, Carl Haswin and a large company of players will present the famous English melodramatic success, "A Lion's Heart," which has had an extended run at five different theatres in London of over two thousand times. Its production here will be given in all its entirety. The scenery is all new and has been reproduced from the original sketches while the costumes are exact copies of those used in the original London production. The play is enough stirring material to please the most melodramatic taste; there is a thrilling knife duel, a murder and other exciting incidents. Mr. Haswin as Rizardo, a lion tamer, has a part that his sterling qualities as an actor fits him to assume to the life. In the prologue he is seen in the dressing tent of a circus by the news of the flight of his wife with another man.

On Wednesday night for the first time in this city, Lincoln J. Carter's scenic comedy drama "The Eleventh Hour," a play that has more startling climaxes than anything the author has heretofore presented, will be seen. The first acts show a rural home in DeKalb county, Ill., the third act a block tower on the Chicago, North Western Railroad, near Chicago. The fourth act is the famous Bismarck Gardens of Chicago, a resort patronized by the elite of the city. The fifth and last act is a reproduction from a photograph of one of the best known millionaire's mansions on Michigan avenue, showing a most gorgeous drawing room with all of its costly bric-a brac, tapestry and hangings. The actual cost of the original of this scene was $885,000. The cast of this play is far superior to anything that Mr. Carter has ever sent out, comprising several of the best known actors and actresses in the profession.

"The Private Secretary," by Plainfield's own society amateurs, will be the attraction Saturday night, and it is an assured fact that one of the largest and most fashionable audiences in the city will be present.

The famous Cohans appear in their great specialty, "The Governor's Son," Monday, Feb. 18. This will be a genuine vaudeville drama surprise. They should be greeted by a crowded house. The oratorio of "Elijah," under the auspices of the Choral Society, will be sung Tuesday, February 19. Washington's Birthday, February 22, will be celebrated in true holiday style another week of repertoire plays will be inaugurated Monday, February 25.

TO BRIDGE THE RARITAN.

PERTH AMBOY AND SOUTH AMBOY MAY BE CONNECTED.

Middlesex County Board of Freeholders are Considering the Subject at Present.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Perth Amboy, Feb. 9—A committee of five has been appointed by the Board of Freeholders of Middlesex county to consider plans for a bridge over the Raritan River, between this city and South Amboy. Several years ago the question of a bridge at this point was put to a popular vote of the county, and was defeated. Since that time the agitation has been revived and the demand has increased until people beyond the limits of Middlesex county are asking for the bridge. Instead of carting their truck to Keyport and Point Monmouth, to be shipped to New York in boats, selling to commission merchants, the farmers of Monmouth county want direct access to Rahway, Elizabeth and Newark.

W. B. Pratt, of this city, is agitating for a grand macadam highway from the cities in the northern part of the State, along the shore to the coast resorts, connecting with the proposed ocean boulevard from Long Branch to Sea Girt. This highway is already completed from Elizabeth, Rahway and Woodbridge to this city, and from South Amboy, Matawan, Red Bank and the Rumson road to the coast. The missing link is the bridge over the Raritan river between the Amboys.

The committee appointed by the Board of Freeholders to consider the building of a bridge will begin work immediately. The South Amboy people want the bridge east of the railroad bridge, while the citizens on this side favor a site about half a mile up the river. The committee will examine the banks on both sides and also the lands adjoining, and possible access to the structure in the various localities. It is possible that the building of the bridge will be started within a year.

LIMITS TROLLEY ORDINANCE.

WOODBRIDGE TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE WANTS NEW CONCESSIONS.

Amended Franchise for Raritan Traction Company—Company Wants to Consider Proposition.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Woodbridge, Feb. 9.—A new proposition has been sprung on the officials of the Raritan Traction Company regarding their attempt to secure a franchise for a trolley line in this township. For three months public hearings have been held in an attempt to reach an agreement. An amended ordinance has now been introduced before the township committee granting a franchise to the Raritan Traction Company on the payment of $1,000 to the township; also making the fare five cents from any part of the township to any part of Perth Amboy, and limiting the franchise to ninety-nine years instead of being perpetual. The traction company asked for time to consider the matter.

The franchise only covers a few hundred feet of the highway at Keasbey. The traction company is endeavoring to get from Perth Amboy to Metuchen and New Brunswick. About a year ago it was granted a franchise through Woodbridge township without any compensation, except the widening of the highway, over which the tracks passed. At that time, however, the proposed route laid across private property at Keasbey. It has since been found impossible to use this route, and it is necessary to follow the highway the entire distance. To do this a new ordinance has to be passed by the Woodbridge Township Committee.

Quite an Affair.

Chinese Mother Goose rhymes, with tableaux, will be given at the First Baptist church Thursday afternoon, February 21, at 4 o'clock. A colonial supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock in the evening. There will also be ice cream, cake and candy for sale. The affair will be given under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the church.

Moody Memorial Tomorrow.

The Plainfield churches will remember the Moody memorial endowment fund tomorrow. An effort is being made throughout the country to raise enough money to endow the institutions founded by the late Dwight L. Moody, and all churches and religious organizations will be asked to assist.

Informal Luncheon.

Mrs. D. T. VanBuren, of Central avenue, gave an informal luncheon to a few friends at her home yesterday, after which a social time was enjoyed.

IMPERSONATED MANY POPULAR MAGAZINES.

Novel Social Given in Parlors of Congregational Church Last Evening.

PLEASANT TIME FOR ALL.

GUESTS REPRESENTED PERIODICALS IN VERY CLEVER FASHION.

Then Guessed World's Notables From Their Pictures—Some of the Best of the Impersonations—Committees in Charge of Affair.

Well known daily, weekly and monthly periodicals, with their names cleverly represented, puzzling all to guess the title, furnished the material for a novel social given in the parlors of the Congregational church last evening under the auspices of the Woman's Association and the Christian Endeavor Society. It was called a "magazine social" and all who attended were required to in some way impersonate a popular magazine, the object being for the others to guess the title. As all the representations were original, it is needless to say that some of them defied the scrutinizing of the most confirmed bookworm who thought they were acquainted with nearly all the periodicals.

The greater part of the evening was spent in guessing the titles and both guessers and wearers enjoyed the fun immensely. Some of the most clever makeups were "Life," a slip of paper worn by Samuel Craig, bearing the words "You'll have to give it up"; "The Saturday Evening Post," a large post of wood with a card attached giving details, devised by Harold Nomer; "The Puritan," represented by Miss Hattie Messersmith, dressed in the costume of that name; "Life and Light for Heathen Women," represented by Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, with cotton, pictures of oxygen and heathen women; "The Century," represented by Miss Harold, whose dress was covered with dates, and also by Mrs. E. L Suffern, who wore the date of the present year; and "The Horseless Age," represented by Edward Weeeman, with powdered hair and with a toy automobile attached to his coat. In addition to the magazines the walls of the room were hung with the pictures of past and present notables, whose names were to be guessed.

Previous to the guessing a pleasing informal entertainment was given, consisting of piano selections by Herbert Harold and readings by Miss Susie Davies and Mrs C L. Goodrich. The affair terminated with the serving of refreshments.

Among those who were active in making the social the success it was were Miss Agnes B. Freeman, chairman of the entertainment committee, from the Endeavor Society, and Mrs. L. B. Morgan, chairman of the refreshment committee, from the Women's Association.

SOLD BRUSHES.

Successful Sale Held in the Chapel of Crescent Avenue Church Yesterday Afternoon.

The Boys' Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue church held a successful broom and brush sale in the church parlors yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance, and the committee was kept busy waiting on the ready purchasers. A large number of orders were also sent in, and some of the members were on the lookout to see that all these were properly filled and delivered.

The proceeds of the sale are for the band and a snug sum was realized As the prices were reasonable the band had no trouble in disposing of their stock.

Mrs. Isaac L. Miller is superintendent of the band, and she did all in her power to make the sale a success. She was assisted by a committee composed of C. Ames Brooks, president; Richard Lovell, secretary; Alden Moore, treasurer, and Ralph Vail, Hugh G. Baldwin, William Glenny, Charles Perkins, VanWyck Brooks, Henry B Richards, Brockholst K. Miller, Lawrence Mead and Theodore Gavett.

First Special Service.

Dr. Wilbur J. Chapman, the well-known evangelist, will conduct the first meeting in the series of special evangelistic services to be held in this city. The first meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the First M. E. church. Dr. Chapman will be assisted by Mr. Jacobs, a well-known singer, and the service will be for all Christian workers or persons interested in the meetings soon to follow.

CALLED HIM RUBBERNECK.

THEN PATROLMAN McCARTHY ARRESTED SLINGER OF EPITHETS.

Frederick Durand Hailed to Police Court This Morning and Fined for Being Too Talkative.

Laboring under the impression that familiarity breeds contempt, Frederick Durand persisted last evening in addressing Patrolman McCarthy with such familiar terms as "rubberneck," "scab," "coward" and other cognomens not at all beneficial to his character. When the Patrolman objected the epithets were renewed in a more forceful manner. There was no other alternative but to escort the familiar Frederick to a prison cell but even this did not suffice to stop his name calling and he spent the greater part of the night applying epithets to every one in general and the Patrolman in particular.

Durand was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning, charged with being drunk and disorderly. He denied the former but admitted calling the patrolman names because he had a speaking acquaintance with him and thought he would not mind it. His remarks however had become of such a personal character that the Judge thought a $5 fine or twenty days would help him to remember that the guardians of the law are not to be addressed in slurring terms by every one who knows them.

BIG CROWDS STILL ATTEND.

UNINTERRUPTED SUCCESS OF NORTH PLAINFIELD FIREMEN'S FAIR.

Excellent Programme Given Last Evening—Prizes Won on the Bowling Alleys.

Saengerbund Hall was again crowded last night by the throng which attended the North Plainfield firemen's fair. But through the efforts of Floor Manager L. B. Bodine the usual good order prevailed. Dancing was, of course, the main feature of the evening and was commenced early in the evening.

The U. S. Grant Glee Club was present and sang a number of selections, which was loudly encored. Thomas McGinley and his sister, Miss Helen McGinley, gave a number of comic songs, which were followed by Mr. McGinley doing some amazing feats in clog dancing and twirling the baton.

The booths were more largely patronized last night than on any of the previous nights, and the committee think that everything will be disposed of by the time the fair comes to a close. There are yet two nights. It is expected that the fair will be run all night Monday night, and a big time is anticipated.

The handsome lamp which was presented by the Phoenix Engine Co., of New Brunswick, was won by Francis J. Blatz.

There was also a large assemblage at the bowling alleys, and a number of handsome prizes was carried off. Miss Mamie Koller succeeded in winning a handsome stand cover. Charles Emmons seemed to be at his best last evening and among some of his winnings was a handsome silver card receiver.

In the contest for the flag, the U. S. Grant Glee Club is in the lead. They did not commence in the contest until last evening and succeeded so well that they soon passed Franklin Council, which has held the lead all the week. F. Merton Lunger, of Warren Engine Company, is still ahead in the contest for the foreman's lantern.

Frank Gunning, of the West End Hose Company, succeeded in winning to ton of coal, and William Emmons is testing the rubber coat today which he won.

The committee is busy today making preparations for those in attendance tonight, as it is expected that the largest crowd of any previous night will be present this evening.

To Plan Union Services.

The executive committee of the Local Union Christian Endeavor Society will meet this evening with Miss Ernestine Smith, of Madison avenue, to arrange for a union Endeavor service in connection with the special series of services to be held in this city soon.

To Telephone Subscribers.

The March 1st edition of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company Directory goes to press Feb. 23 and unless contracts for service are signed before that date your name will not appear in that issue of the directory. c

Knights Templer To Attend.

The members of Trinity Commandary, No. 17 K. T., are requested to assemble in the asylum, Sunday, February 10, at 1:30 p. m., to attend the funeral of their late frater, C. C. Howard.

DEFEATED OLD RIVALS FROM ROSELLE CASINO

Park Club Bowlers Won Two Out of Three Games in Daily Press League.

ON PARK CLUB ALLEYS.

THRILLING FINISH IN LAST GAME WHICH ROSELLE WON BY FOUR PINS.

Warner Saved the Day for Visitors—Parks Showed Up in Old Time Form and all Their Scores Were Above 800.

Although it is a foregone conclusion that the Park Club bowlers cannot win the trophy in The Daily Press Bowling League tournament, they partially retrieved themselves last evening on their alleys when they met the Roselle team and won two out of the three games rolled. For some time past the Parks have been decidedly out of form and too much ground was lost early in the season for the members to hope to secure first place or even a position near the top.

In the games last evening the Parks bowled nearer their old-time form than at any time during the series. Dr. Thiers was the high man for the Parks. In the second game he rolled a score of 204. F. O. Ball was next high man. He rolled 192 in the third game. Faber, in the second game, made the lowest score, 121, with Hibbard a close second in the third game with a score of 127. With these two exceptions the Parks put up a strong game throughout.

On the wind up of the second game, that veteran, Dr. Thiers, warmed the hearts of the Parks and their friends by making three strikes in succession, thus making a glorious finish and winning the game. The first game was an easy one for the home team, but the third game was very exciting for all. The honors were about even throughout, and it was not until the wind up that the winner was known. The Parks took a good lead, but at the finish Warner for Roselle made three straight strikes and put the Parks on the shelf. When the scores were added it was learned that the Roselle team had won by four pins.

The Parks did fine work in keeping above the 800 and in the second game reached 821. The visitors only reached the 800 mark in one game, the last.

The Parks now hold last position in the tournament with six games won and twelve lost. The Roselle team has won six and lost five. The Westfield team has eight wins and four defeats to their credit. Below is the summary of last night's games:

PLEASING PROGRAMME.

Social Given by Missionary Society of Grace M. E. Church Last Evening Was an Enjoyable Affair.

The Missionary Society of Grace M. E. church held a very enjoyable sociable at the home of Miss Emma Smalley, on Manning avenue, last evening. A pleasing programme was rendered and thoroughly enjoyed by the large number present.

The first number on the programme was a piano solo by Mrs. W. Green, of Washington Park, which was well received. Immediately following was an excellently rendered vocal solo by Miss Mabel Templin, entitled "Asthor." She was accompanied by Miss May Randolph.

An exercise was then given by twelve of the smaller children, entitled "A New Century Giving Service," which was enjoyed by all. A pleasing lullaby was given by Mrs. G. W. Gardner, immediately followed by another vocal solo by Miss Templin, entitled "The Holy City."

Mrs. A. I. Taft gave a reading, "Mamma's Birthday Present." This ended the programme and the rest of the evening was given up to playing games and general sociability. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of members of the society.

Annual Convention of Letter-Carriers.

The annual convention of the letter-carriers of New Jersey will be held at Paterson on Lincoln's Birthday. Some of the local carriers will attend.

WILL DISCUSS BOULEVARD.

PROPOSED TO MAKE A BOULEVARD OUT WOODLAND AVENUE.

Meeting to Be Held Monday Evening to Consider Project—Many Have Donated Land.

There will be a meeting of interested property owners at S. D. Drake's office, North avenue, Monday evening, when an effort will be made to have each one dedicate a sufficient amount of land to make Woodland avenue a handsome boulevard. The idea is to make a boulevard a mile and a half long extending from Prospect avenue to the road which runs to Alton. It is proposed to make it at least 150 feet wide, and as far as possible leave the trees as they are and have a driveway on either side of the trees. By following the trend of the road, this can be done and an elegant driveway made. By getting the owners of the land to dedicate the same now it will make the project an assured thing.

Most all of the property-owners have signified their willingness to dedicate their land and there seems to be no good reason why the boulevard should not be a success.

It will be necessary to move one house, that owned by Mrs. DuFlon. She has a frontage of about 500 feet. The other owners and the amount of frontage owned is as follows: J. Wesley Johnson, 500 feet; J. E. Martine, 1,000; J. T. Vail, 500; Randolph estate, 1 100; Mrs. Emma Darling, 1,000; Drake Realty Company, 800; E. E Pray, 400; Otto Arens, 600. If these owners dedicate their land and the boulevard is laid out, an attempt will be made to extend the boulevard still further, so that it will extend to the road near Marconnier chapel. The advantages of such an avenue cannot be estimated and it would result in a genuine building boom along that route.

WILL BUILD COURT HOUSE.

FREEHOLDERS DECIDED TO ERECT ONE AT COST NOT OVER $250,000.

Committee Appointed With Power to Act On Changing Grade Crossing at Westfield.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met in regular session on Wednesday and transacted important business. It was decided on the report of a special committee, appointed some time ago, to build a new court house and buildings suitable and adequate for the accommodation of the courts and the county offices of Union county. The new buildings will not exceed a cost of $250,000. It was unanimously decided by the Board that the court house should be built and the necessary steps be taken toward accomplishing that purpose.

A resolution recently adopted by the Township Committee of Westfield, to the effect that the necessary change in grade on Central avenue be made in order to permit the Central Railroad crossing on that thoroughfare to be put below grade, was received and a committee of five was appointed, with power to act in the matter.

In accordance with a resolution, Mrs. Ann Eliza Magie was paid $450 as compensation for land taken in widening Westfield avenue.

Started West End Gymnasium.

Contractor Isaac Randolph broke ground yesterday for the cellar of the West End gymnasium and baths which are to be erected in the rear of Hope Chapel. The excavating will be completed in about four days. The rest of the work will be pushed to completion in order to have the building ready for use by spring.

Motion Denied.

Lawyer William Newcorn, counsel for Garrett Dreier in his action against Mrs. Budenseik, of New Brunswick, has received word that Judge Strong has denied the motion of counsel for the defendant for a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted. The case will probably be taken up on a writ of error.

Helpful Meeting.

An interesting Christian Endeavor Society service was held at the First Baptist church last evening. The subject "Favorite Hymns and Their Writers," proved to be a helpful one and throughout the service a number of favorite hymns were sung.

Receiving Donations.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital frequently receive donations toward the building fund, and it is hoped that others may be encouraged to do likewise.

To Perfect Company.

The committee of ten will hold an important meeting Tuesday evening next at the Hotel Kensington, to perfect the organization of the local militia company.

ANGRY FATHER AFTER A RUNAWAY COUPLE.

They are in Hiding Near Somerville While Bride's Parent Searches in Vain.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

SO MAUDE COE AND JESSE ORR WEDDED ON THE SLY.

Her Parents Had Objected to Marriage—She Eloped While They Were Away on Visit—Now They Can't Find Her.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 8.—A small country village, only a few miles from this place, is enjoying the luxury of a romance and harboring an eloping couple, while the distracted father is hunting the State for them, declaring, it is said, that he will spend every dollar that he has to find the young man with whom his daughter has eloped and publicly thrash him. The elopers are Maude Coe, the seventeen-year-old daughter of James H. Coe, of Glen View, Morris county, and Jesse Orr, of Califon.

Last summer Orr was working near Coe's residence, and the two young people fell in love at first sight. Orr was forbidden to call on the young woman, but she met him clandestinely and their love grew and strengthened.

Last week the young woman's parents went to Paterson, leaving her with her grandfather and a younger sister. After the parents had been gone an hour Miss Maude left the house and engaged a neighbor to take her trunk and bicycle to the railroad station. She took the cars to Somerville, mounted her wheel and rode to the village where her lover is now employed.

After considering the matter for a couple of days the young people concluded to get married, and so they went to the village minister and had the nuptial knot tied.

They are now enjoying their honeymoon in a secluded village, away from the railroad, while the happy bride's father is traveling from one end of the State to the other in a vain hunt for the runaways.

He was told at High Bridge that his daughter had checked her trunk to Jersey City. Arriving at Jersey City, he was informed that her trunk had been sent to Philadelphia, so off he posted to that city of brotherly love, only to lose all trace. Trenton and other places were visited, but no trace of the missing daughter could be found although she has been within thirty miles of her father's home all the time.

The villagers are wondering what will happen when the irate parent discovers her whereabouts. Their sympathies are with the young married pair.

TRIMBLE ACQUITTED.

Tried on Charge of Embezzlement and Judge Directed Jury to Bring Verdict of Not Guilty.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 9—Lawyer Charles A. Trimble was honorably acquitted in court yesterday of the charge of embezzlement, on which he had been indicted. When the State finished its presentation of the case Judge Vail declared there was not enough evidence produced to warrant the matter going any further, and he directed the jurors to find a verdict for the defendant, which they promptly did. The indictment charged Mr. Trimble with converting to his own use $65.10, which was given him to pay taxes on property on Chestnut street, here, owned by John Whitston, of Newark. Mr. Trimble's defence was that the title to the property was defective, and that it cost him $90 to perfect it.

It is now very doubtful if the other indictment which was found against Mr. Trimble will be moved for trial.

Dr. Snodgrass Will Lecture.

Thursday night Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First Methodist church, will deliver an interesting illustrated lecture on "Impressions of England," in the Monroe Avenue M. E. church under the auspices of the Monroe Avenue Epworth League. It is one of the lectures in the Epworth League lecture course and admission will be free. Silver collection will be taken to defray any expenses.

Birthday Social.

Thursday night, Feb. 21, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will hold a birthday social at the Monroe Avenue church. An interesting programme will be furnished and refreshments served.

FOR ENDEAVORERS.

Interesting Side of the Work Being Carried on by Young Christians.

(Conducted by Press Department Union County C. E. Union.)

Decision Day was very generally observed throughout the county, many societies holding special services, with attractive music and good speakers. In some places the leaflet provided by the United Society was used in celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the movement.

The last department to be added to the State Christian Endeavor work, in accordance with a recommendation made at the Jersey City convention, is in behalf of Fresh Air Work. New Jersey has done much in the past for this branch of Christian effort and the reports presented at the State convention concerning the marvelous work done in Essex and Union counties led to the establishment of the department. Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, is the efficient superintendent and under his direction the work will be rapidly extended over the State and properly systematized. In a circular letter sent to the county workers Mr. Pierson says: "With opportunities so great, our department so young and organized Fresh Air work so new, we face a tremendous task, but not greater than we can accomplish by united efforts and prayers. Fresh Air work carried on by young people's societies is no longer an experiment, but rather an accomplished fact and a glorious success. It has real and practical results as its fruitage."

The county union held on Friday evening of last week one of the most successful meetings in its history. The meeting was of a missionary character and was arranged by Charles H. Bell, the superintendent of the county missionary department.

A new society at Mountainside has been added to the roll of the Union county Christian Endeavor Societies.

The Elizabeth C. E. Union, at its last executive session, received into membership the society recently organized in Westminster Presbyterian church. By the organizatipn of this society Miss Leila B. Allen, who has done much for Christian Endeavor through her position as secretary of young people's work in the Presbytery of Elizabeth, becomes an active Christian Endeavorer in name as well as in works.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

It's an unrivaled life saver in Consumption, Pneumonia LaGrippe and Bronchitis; infallible for Coughs, Colds, Asthma. Hay Fever, Croup or Whooping Cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1 00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

—Dr. Lemuel Moss will speak at the East Third street chapel Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

—For the weakness and prostration following grippe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly. L. W. Randolph.

—At the next communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., several candidates will receive their degree.

—Millions of people are familiar with DeWitt's Little Early Risers and those who use them find them to be famous little liver pills. Never gripe. L. W. Randolph.

AN ICEBOUND SHIP.

Terrible Experience of Crew on the Schooner Clayola.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Captain John Hallett of the Metropolitan line steamship James S. Whitney, which arrived yesterday from Boston by way of the sound, observed at sunrise yesterday when his ship was off Guilford, Conn., what he surmised was a two peaked iceburg. When he got closer to the crystalline apparition, he noted that there were men aboard and that they were feebly trying to signal for help. They were up to their armpits in an icy pit which they had hewn with axes for shelter. Captain Hallett, after a close inspection of the unusual vision through his glasses, decided that she was a dismasted sailing craft of some sort in arctic disguise.

There was not a vestige of spar or sail visible. Forward there was a mound of glimmering ice, 15 feet high. Amidships the waves played acrossa deck concealed under tons of ice plating, and aft there was a little hill of ice. The Whitney stopped within a ship's length of the wreck, and Chief Officer L. W. Crowell and a boat's crew launched the starboard lifeboat. Captain Hallett hailed the men in the ice pit and found that the two peaked berg was originally the 80 foot two masted schooner Clayola, Captain Albert M. Willis master, bound from St. John, N. B., for this port with a cargo of laths.

All hands except the skipper, mate and cook were helpless. The lifeboat went alongside the wreck and took off Captain Willis, Mate Johnson, the cook and Seamen Charles Monahan, Philip Derouch, Michael Broudut and Robert Douet, all of Canada. The feet of all the seamen were badly frozen. The men were so weak that they were unable to climb the sea ladder of the Whitney without assistance. The tongue of the skipper was swollen so that he was barely able to talk.

For 50 hours captain and crew had had nothing to eat or drink, all their provisions having been frozen fast below deck. Some of them tried to quench their thirst by sucking the salty ice. In the 50 hours that they were without food they kept themselves awake by chopping ice and by stamping in the limited area of their pit. The skipper himself gave orders that no one should be allowed to sleep, fearing that he might be frozen to death. Far out in the sound, without masts and with no means of signaling, all hands had practically abandoned hope when the Whitney hove in sight.

The Clayola sailed from St. John Jan. 19.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Volume of Business Increases—Railroad Earnings Large.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: More seasonable weather in the east has brought up the volume of business in retail lines a little this week, and at the west and south distribution of merchandise is on a satisfactory scale. Prices of staple products show but moderate decline, and quotations of manufactured goods are steady in all directions. Pressure to sell is everywhere conspicuously absent. Jobbers report good orders for spring goods, particularly for the western trade, and the only complaint still comes from the woolen goods market in the east, which has not yet felt the expected stimulus. In this line, however, prices do not decline, and agents expect better conditions.

Comparative returns to date of railroad earnings in January show an increase over last year of 8.8 per cent and a gain over 1899 of 28.4 per cent. The heavier gains are reported from the south and southwest and are believed to reflect expanding wholesale trade in dry goods and groceries.

Activity continues in footwear, jobbers placing large contracts at well sustained prices. No alterations are reported in quotations, but there is some evidence of slight reduction in quality, purchasers refusing to advance their figures and accepting somewhat lower grades instead.

Textile industries do not revive appreciably, even the lower temperature failing to infuse life into woolens, aside from better retail dealings.

Failures for the week were 269 in the United States against 245 last year and 35 in Canada against 33 last year.

Prizefight Trial.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 9.—With the exception of W. A. Brady, who did not arrive from New York until last night, all the witnesses have been heard on the application for an injunction against the Jeffries-Ruhlin contest planned for next Friday night. Counsel for the Sangerfest Athletic club are not sure that Brady will be called. In any event, counsel on both sides have agreed to limit their arguments so that the case will be closed tonight. Judge Hollister is not expected to reserve his decision longer than next Monday. Even if an injunction shall be issued against a prizefight, so called, it is stated that the promoters will claim the right to pull off a boxing contest here next Friday night and keep within the bounds of a sparring match.

Bath Iron Works Gets Contract.

BATH, Me., Feb. 9.—The Bath Iron works received contracts for the construction of a United States battleship, to be named the Georgia, from the navy department at Washington. President E. W. Hyde was in Portland yesterday looking over various sites with a view to establishing a branch of the Bath Iron works there.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS.

Record Made by House In Private Pension Legislation.

SHIPPING BILL MAKES NO PROGRESS

Opponents of the Measure Vigorously Oppose Attempt to Fix a Voting Date—Army Promotions Safe.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Yesterday was probably the last day to be devoted to private pension legislation by the house of representatives in this congress. High water mark made in the Fifty-first congress was almost reached when 184 bills were passed against 197 passed at a single session in the former congress. In all the house at this congress has passed about 900 bills, a number considerably exceeded in the Fifty-first. A general pension bill was passed to restore to the pension rolls widows of soldiers of the rebellion who subsequently married and became widowed or divorced. By the terms of the bill, however, its benefits are limited to widows of soldiers who were married before the close of the rebellion and who are now dependent upon their own labor for support.

An ineffectual effort was made in the senate to secure an agreement upon a time for a final vote upon the shipping bill. Vigorous protests were made by opponents of the measure against any such agreement, even for a date in the indefinite future. Mr. Pritchard (Rep.) of North Carolina spoke in support of the shipping bill, and then the naval appropriation bill was considered the rest of the day, the shipping bill being laid aside informally. The naval bill had not been acted on when the senate adjourned.

The senate committee on military affairs yesterday agreed to report favorably the namination of Major General Nelson A. Miles to be lieutenant general and also the three nominations to the office of major general under the army reorganization bill. All the nominations to be brigadiers also were favorably acted upon except those of General Leonard Wood, General Fred D. Grant and General Franklin Bell. These three were held up in order to permit further investigation.

Adirondack Lands Purchased.

ALBANY, Feb. 9.—The annual report of the forest preserve board, submitted by that body to Governor Odell, states that purchases of land in the Adirondacks made by it during the year and, in fact, since its organization "have not been made at random, but in pursuance of a definite policy based on questions of timber supply and the preservation of watersheds as related to the industries of northern New York. To this end the board has kept in mind the vast undeveloped water power of our streams which is dependent on the protection of the national reservoirs at their source; also the great industrial plants which cannot be maintained permanently under the present wasteful methods of timber cutting and for which the state must make some adequate provision as to a future supply of raw material. Through the efforts of the board 61,271 acres of forest lands lost in tax sale cancellations have been recovered. During the year 90,968 acres of land were purchased for $297,085. In addition other expenditures were made for advances on purchases, making the total expenditure for Adirondack lands $336,827."

Aguinaldo Seen?

MANILA, Feb. 9.—It is rumored again in Cavite province that Aguinaldo has been seen at Indang, Carman, recently arrested here, was preparing a small steamer to carry him to Japan on the day following the night of his arrest. He says he was contemplating a trip for his health, but asserts that his intention was to go to Marivales, Luzon. It has been ascertained that Fabella withdrew $10,000 of the funds of General Cailles' insurgent committee that had been deposited in the Spanish-Filipino bank and invested it in two steamers and a tobacco concern. The police will seize the property.

The Dutch Still Celebrating.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 9.—Queen Wilhelmina and Prince Henry had an enthusiastic reception at Apeldoorn Thursday night. The Loo palace was illuminated and all the country round was ablaze with fireworks. Friday morning they strolled through the park and visited the royal stables. The weather continues frosty, but the people keep up the festivities with enthusiasm that verges on boisterousness. Great preparations are being made at Amsterdam for the queen's visit.

Blockaded Train Reaches Malone.

MALONE, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The first train over the Rutland Canadian road since Monday night arrived in Malone at 7:30 last night. Not in the history of the road has a similar blockade occurred, entailing a loss to the company of several thousand dollars in traffic and expense. During the severest part of the storm the snow had drifted in around the engine and up to a level with the top of the smokestack.

Robbery and Arson.

ANDERSON, Ind., Feb. 9.—Newton McCormick, living alone 12 miles north of this city, drew $7,000 from the bank Thursday to buy a farm. Early yesterday neighbors were aroused by an alarm of fire and barely rescued the old man from his burning house. Robbers had stunned him by a blow on the head and then fired the house. McCormack was unable to give any description of his assailants.

Duncan H. McAlpin Dead.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Duncan H. McAlpin, the millionaire tobacco manufacturer, who had been ill at his home, 46 West Fifty-eighth street, for a week, died last night. His son, General E. A. McAlpin, has been in steady attendance. Mr. McAlpin was 83 years old.

Fire In Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Fire last night destroyed the Flatbush car stable of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company in Brooklyn, causing a loss of $200,000. The fire started in the cleaning room, but its cause is unknown. One hundred and ten cars were destroyed.

To Buy Corcoran Property.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The bill for the purchase by the government of the old Corcoran Art gallery in Washington for $332,000 was favorably acted on by the house committee on public buildings and grounds.

THE EDICT CHANGED.

Wording of Chinese Document Not Accepted.

MOHAMMEDANS FEARED IN PEKING.

The Belief Is Spreading That Demands of Foreign Envoys Will Not Be Accepted by the Court.

PEKING, Feb. 9.—The foreign envoys met yesterday to consider the edict presented by the Chinese plenipotentiaries regarding the suspension of examinations for five years and also the punishment of officials guilty of not having suppressed outrages upon foreigners. They objected to the wording of the edict, which made it seem that the troubles were entirely due to the actions of native Christians. Satisfactory in other respects, it was altered to suit the views of the envoys and was then returned to the Chinese plenipotentiaries.

It is reliably reported that more than 20,000 Mohammedans have reappeared in Peking during the last four weeks with the object of creating disturbances during the Chinese celebrations at New Year. The Germans have accordingly issued an order that no one shall walk alone and no one go unarmed. The order directs the German troops to search all Chinese and never under any consideration to enter Chinese private houses on invitation unless in considerable numbers.

The more widely known the demands of the foreign envoys are among the Chinese the more the belief spreads that the court will not accept them, especially the demand for the punishment of Tung Fu Hsiang, who practically controls the entire Chinese army apart from the troops with the court and who is now in the province of Nan-su. With Prince Tuan he would be able to hold out for an indefinite period.

The opinion is gaining ground among the generals that possibly a spring campaign against the province of Shensi will be necessary.

No answer to the latest communication from the foreign envoys is expected from the court before Tuesday next at the earliest, but the envoys hope the reply will be satisfactory.

There is much enthusiasm among the Americans, soldiers and civilians, over the reported promotion of General Chaffee. All the foreign generals have called to tender him congratulations.

England Will Say No Diplomatically.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—It has been learned that a reply will shortly be sent to the United States Nicaragua canal project. It will not comply with the senate's demands. Neither will it be in the nature of a flat refusal, though for purposes of immediate construction it will be tantamount to such a refusal. It will consist mainly in a counter proposal or proposals likely to necessitate extended negotiations. The nature of the proposal is not yet ascertainable. Lord Pauncefote will probably be the medium through whom the answer will be sent and by whom the subsequent negotiations will chiefly be conducted. In British official opinion it is likely that several months will elapse before the matter reaches a conclusion, by which time the Hay-Pauncefote treaty will have lapsed, on the basis of the senate's amendments. The British counter proposals are now formulating, and it is hoped an entirely new agreement satisfactory to both countries will eventually be reached.

Yale-Princeton Debate.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 9.—The university intermediate debating committee has received from the Yale committee the subject for the Yale-Princeton debate. The question is, "Resolved, That a system of subsidies other than the present mail subsidies should be adopted by the United States to encourage our shipbuilding and ocean carrying trade." The debate will be held at New Haven on March 27. Princeton will have the choice of sides and will report her decision to Yale within ten days. Yale will submit the names of 20 men to Princeton, and the latter will select nine from this number from whom the three judges, will be chosen.

Furst Bismarck's Shaft Broken.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Hamburg-American steamer Furst Bismarck arrived from Naples under the port engine only. On Feb. 4 at 9 p. m. the crank shaft of the starboard engine broke. Chief Engineer J. Korte fortunately was on duty and promptly ordered the engine stopped. The stop was so quickly accomplished that no damage was done beyond the simple break in the crank shaft. There was no excitement at the time the shaft broke, as only the starboard engine was stopped and but few of the passengers learned of the accident.

Ohio Judge Honored.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 9.—The unusual honor of a reception and banquet to a retiring judge was accorded last night to Hon. James M. Smith of the circuit court by the Hamilton County Bar association. Judge Smith's service on the bench has occupied 32 years, making a record in this county. The affair was given at the rooms of the Literary club and brought out the greater number of the lawyers of Cincinnati. Judge Smith now retires from the bench after his long service. All the speeches were full of encomiums of the honored guest.

Aid For Destitute Boers.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—At a banquet given at the Kaiserhof in honor of Queen Wilhelmina's wedding by people of the Netherlands and Mecklenburg 3,000 marks were collected for the imprisoned Boer women and children. The Transvaal hymn was heard with every mark of approval, the entire company standing. Christian De Wet, the Boer lecturer, is confined to his bed at Frankfort-on-the-Main with an attack of appendicitis.

Country Homes Looted.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The police of this place have been notified of systematic robberies occurring in the country districts south of here by men claiming to be washing machine agents. In pretending to display their goods the men divert the attention of the occupants while accomplices rob the premises.

McClure Found Guilty.

RUTLAND, Vt., Feb. 9.—Marvin T. McClure, a piano dealer, has been found guilty of aiding in the abstracting of money from the Merchants' National bank of Rutland. His notes, indorsed by one Edson, were honored by Cashier Mussey, and the bank was wrecked.

CARNEGIE-MORGAN STEEL DEAL

Latest Developments In the Transfer of the Property.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The newest developments in connection with the negotiations touching the transfer of the control of the Carnegie Steel company to J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates are, first, that Mr. Carnegie is to receive $1,500 for each $1,000 share of his stock; second, that minority holders who desire to sell will receive the same terms as those given to Mr. Carnegie; third, that the present stage of the negotiations contemplates the formation of a new corporation whose bonds will play a large part in the price to be paid Mr. Carnegie, and, fourth, the first public announcement in connection with the pending negotiations of an official character consisting of a statement by E. H. Gary, president of the Federal Steel company, confirming the news that J. Pierpont Morgan is planning the acquisition of the properties of some of the largest iron and steel companies of this country.

The statement by Judge Gary, however, throws little light upon the details of the great transaction that is now in progress, and it is probable that actual official information in this respect will not be obtainable until the deal is really completed. The statement by Judge Gary of the Federal Steel company is, however, the subject of much guessing. It apparently confirms the general impression that all the "Morgan companies" are actively interested in the transaction, and while nothing was said as to the American Steel and Wire company the fact that counsel for that company attended conferences between President Gary and Mr. Morgan seems to leave little doubt that the negotiations under way include the Steel and Wire consolidation. Incidentally it is hinted that interesting developments may occur at the annual meeting of that corporation, which will be held on Feb. 12.

Pittsburg and the Steel Deal.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 9.—Financial and steel men of Pittsburg are anxiously awaiting further information from New York relative to the Carnegie deal, but not a word came here yesterday that gave any intelligence as to what progress is being made by the Morgan syndicate toward closing the big deal that is now on. It was learned from private advices that there will be very little cash required to consummate the deal. If the plans go through, Mr. Carnegie will withdraw entirely from the affairs of the Carnegie company, taking for the transfer of his stock a sum exceeding $85,000,000 in guaranteed 5 per cent bonds, which are to be a first lien on the Carnegie and other properties.

THE NAPHTHA FIRES IN RUSSIA.

The Flames Extinguished—Ten Factories and Five Depots Burned.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 9.—Late advices from Baku announce that the fire has been extinguished. Ten factories and five depots were burned, containing altogether 35,000,000 poods of naphtha and naphtha refuse. It is estimated that the losses will exceed 6,000,000 rubles. Nine charred corpses have been recovered.

One hundred and sixty persons were injured by burning, 44 of these severely, and six have succumbed to their injuries. Many victims are still under the ruins, and the search is proceeding. It is not known how many of the spectators perished, but 100 persons are still missing.

A Good Word For Dr. Ament.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—In an interview Rev. Francis E. Clark, head of the Christian Endeavor movement, who saw the missionaries in China just before the Boxer uprising and who was personally acquainted with Dr. W. S. Ament, Rev. E. G. Tewksbery and other missionaries who have been accused of looting and extorting money from the Chinese villages, expressed himself very strongly upon the subject. He said it was utterly inconceivable that a man like Dr. Ament should in the twinkling of an eye change his character and take his place among the thieves and swindlers, as some reports from China seem to imply. Dr. Ament was Dr. Clark's interpreter at many Christian Endeavor meetings in Peking and Tien-tsin. Dr. Clark saw him in his own home and went with him to call upon prominent Chinese officials. He found him honored and esteemed by every one. The Chinese Christian respected and loved him, and even the official class held him in highest esteem.

Mrs. Nation Leaves Topeka.

TOPEKA, Feb. 9.—Mrs. Nation left yesterday for Kansas City. "The women here are now warmed up to the right pitch and will carry out their work, with the Lord as their leader. From Kansas City I will go to Des Moines, then to Alton and possibly to Chicago." Mrs. Nation said she would have no time to visit the "death shops," but the "joints" of Kansas City, Kan., are said to be on the qui vive.

A Gold Loan For Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 9.—A report is current here in financial circles that Banker Creel's visit to New York is to negotiate a $50,000,000 gold loan which will enable local banks to resume the free discounting of paper and give relief from the monetary stringency. Money will thus be kept on deposit in the banks as a means of creating confidence.

ODELL IN SYRACUSE.

New York's Governor Talks on Taxation.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 9.—Three hundred guests attended the annual banquet of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce here last night. Governor Odell was the guest of honor, and seated at the tables were Mayor G. A. Carnahan of Rochester, Mayor J. H. Blessing of Albany and other representatives of the municipal governments of second class cities now in Syracuse attending the conference on the White charter. Governor Odell spoke in response to the toast "State Government."

He said that the great combinations of trade had been brought about by the intelligence of the people and the application of business principles. There was no reason why simple business principles should not be applied to the administration of government. The tendency of business was to cut down expenses, while he had noted that the tendency of legislators was to increase expenses rather than to cut them down. This question was a fruitful topic for the legislature.

He then took up the question of tax reform. He said that the legislature should not only turn its attention to the curtailing of expenses, but should see that the burden of taxation fell where it belonged. He said there was a great hue and cry when the insurance companies were asked to bear their share. By a compromise the insurance companies were brought into line, and now they were willing to assume their portion.

The savings bank question, the governor said, was a delicate one and one which caused him to pause. It was said by some that to place a tax on savings banks was to tax the thrift of the people, in that the rate of interest would be reduced. On the train today, he said, he had a report of the superintendent of banking and figured it out that if the proposed tax were placed on savings banks and if the depositors had to pay it a person who now got $35 would get $34.50. He thought the banks could well afford to bear this small tax.

The governor said that when he came to consider that a piece of real estate which was left in trust for a poor ward was taxed so heavily he saw the injustice of the present system. He determined that every interest in this state should have its just share of taxation.

IN RECEIVERS' HANDS.

De Castellane Fortune Now In Care of George and Helen Gould.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—George J. Gould and his sister, Helen M. Gould, have been appointed receivers by Judge Lacombe in the United States circuit court with the usual powers to take charge of the property in this country of Anna Gould, now the Countess de Castellane, who is living in Paris.

The action was brought by Eugene Fischof, who has secured judgment for $10,296.23. Fischof is an Austrian creditor of the Castellanes and brought action through Lorenzo Semple, who is a United States commissioner. Mr. Fischof asked that George J. Gould, Howard Gould, Edwin Gould and Helen M. Gould, as executors under the will of their father, Jay Gould, be restrained from paying to the Countess de Castellane "any part of the rents, issues, profits or income in the hands of the defendants in so far as the same constitutes any part of the trust fund or estate created by the will of Jay Gould, or from applying any part of the trust or the income thereof to the payment of debts of the countess, or toward her support or maintenance, or that of her children."

The court granted the injunction, but at the same time allowed the countess $200,000 a year, which is to be paid in monthly installments. George and Helen Gould were appointed receivers after they had signified their willingness to serve as such.

George Gould and his brothers and sister are ordered to pay over to the receivers the accumulated surplus belonging to the countess now in their hands and all that they may get during the pendency of the suit.

Constitution Nearly Ready.

HAVANA, Feb. 9.—General Rivera resumed his seat in the Cuban constitutional convention yesterday. He explained that the press had misrepresented the motives of his resignation and that he had had no other purpose in tendering it than to look after his private affairs. He announced that he would continue his duties as a delegate until the constitution had been adopted. The convention has now completed its work to the end of section twenty-second, leaving only three sections to be discussed. A special committee has been appointed to correct and translate the copy that is to be sent to Washington.

Dropped Dead While Snowballing.

HIGHLAND FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 9.—C. B. Murfin, aged 19 years, who was attending Braden's preparatory school here for admission to West Point, dropped dead shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday in front of the Highland villa. Murfin was engaged in snowballing with other students, when suddenly he gave a gasp and fell to the ground. He died immediately. Heart disease is ascribed as the cause of his death. Young Murfin came from Ann Arbor, Mich., and was an appointee of Senator McMillan of Michigan. He was an athlete of no mean ability and a member of a Michigan football team.

Sweeping Anticigarette Bill.

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 9.—Representative John L. Belch of San Pete county has introduced in the Utah legislature a sweeping anticigarette bill, providing for a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $200 to be imposed on any person, firm or corporation that sells, gives away or otherwise disposes of cigarettes or cigarette paper to any person, no matter what his age may be. The bill also provides for arrest and fining of persons for smoking cigarettes.

Erie Railway Blocked.

CLIFTON, N. J., Feb. 9.—The main line of the Erie railroad was completely blocked at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon by an accident to a derrick car at this place. A bridge on which the road crosses Clifton avenue was partly demolished and cannot be repaired for 24 hours at least. In the meantime all express matter and freight both ways will be delayed. Fortunately no one was injured by the accident.

Ice Harvesting Hindered.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Ice harvesting has been at a standstill in this vicinity because of the low tide in the Hudson river. The tide recorded yesterday was lower than it had been for years and was generally caused by strong west winds.

ROBERTS ON THE WAR

Dispatches Show a Constant Lack of Men and Horses.

HIGH PRAISE FOR KITCHENER.

Speaking of the Troops In Africa, Lord Roberts Says, "No Finer Force Ever Took the Field Under the British Flag."

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Public attention has again been turned to South Africa by the dispatch of reenforcements and the publication of Lord Roberts' mail dispatches. Rumors have been in circulation that Mr. Chamberlain had reconsidered his South African policy and was contemplating a round table conference with Mr. John Morley and Sir William Vernon Harcourt and the recall of Sir Alfred Milner. The Daily Mail, however, says it is able to assert on Mr. Chamberlain's authority that the whole story is a fabrication and that the government retains the most absolute confidence in Sir Alfred Milner.

"Mr. Chamberlain flatly denies," says The Daily Mail, "that he has had any communication either oral or written with any member of the opposition on the subject of the war."

Lord Roberts' detailed mail dispatches, ranging from Feb. 6 to Nov. 15, 1900, were gazetted last evening. They fill 157 quarto pages and make up the official history of the war, although without throwing new light upon several interesting disputed subjects, such as the Sanna's Post affair.

Lord Roberts' dispatches are not regarded as giving any further elucidation of the conduct of the war, but they are interesting as proving that throughout the campaign he never had sufficient men, horses or supplies.

Hundreds of officers, noncommissioned officers and men are favorably mentioned, including Lord Kitchener, who is referred to in warm terms. Sir Redvers Buller comes in for criticism.

Looking at all the circumstances Lord Roberts says the campaign is "unique in the annals of war," and he pays the highest tribute to the gallantry and worth of the troops, declaring that "no finer force ever took the field under the British flag."

There is a general idea that the dispatches have suffered considerable excision at the hands of the war office. They do not throw any further light on the summary retirement of General Colville or many other matters regarding which the public is anxious to hear.

General Buller mentions favorably Colonel Steel, Major Jarvis, Major Belcher, Captain Mackie and Lieutenant Magee of Stratheona's horse.

The appearance of bubonic plague at Cape Town seems likely to add to the difficulties of the situation. The authorities there have decided upon a wholesale extermination of rats. Should the disease spread it will necessitate changes in the military arrangements.

Today Sir Alfred Milner makes another earnest appeal to employers to allow as many men as possible to enroll in the colonial mounted defense force.

From Delagoa Bay it is reported that the British have occupied Ermelo and Carolina, which until recently were Boer depots.

The Boers held up a Natal mail train near Vlakfontein. The few soldiers on board exhausted their cartridges, and the Boers then robbed the passengers, afterward allowing the train to proceed.

A dispatch from Bloemfontein says that an influential burgher gives some details regarding the treatment of the peace envoys who went to General De Wet's laager. It seems that they were ordered to remain with a cart until the mules arrived. As the Boers were breaking laager in the expectation of a British attack one morning Commandant Froneman came up and asked them why they had not unspanned. Morgendael replied that they had been ordered to wait for mules., whereupon the Boer commandant immediately jamboked Morgendael on the head and face and said he felt inclined to shoot him.

General De Wet, coming up at the moment, said, "Why don't you shoot him?" At this Froneman fired at the envoy, who died of his wound. Mueller, another envoy, was jamboked also.

Railway Consolidation In Boston.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—The Transcript says it is understood that a new arrangement whereby all the street railways south of Boston owned by the Massachusetts Electric company are to come under one management and be known under the title of the Old Colony Street railway. Mr. Robert S. Goff of Fall River will be the general superintendent. Former President John Graham of the Quincy and Boston Street railway has been elected vice president. The consolidation of the systems is in the line of better service and reduced fares.

Counterfeiter Arrested.

WATKINS, N. Y., Feb. 9.—M. A. Peterson of this village was arrested on a charge of counterfeiting. Peterson had bogus nickels in his possession when arrested. He is an employee of the Watkins Democrat, and a counterfeiting den has been found in the basement of The Democrat building. Peterson claims there are others implicated. He has been taken to Horseheads for arraignment before the United States commissioner.

Five In a Family Dead.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Feb. 9.—A remarkable fatality that has followed the family of George Turner in the neighboring town of Shaftsbury has excited much interest among physicians of Bennington county. Within three weeks the father and four grown children have died of pneumonia following measles. Another son, aged 16, is dying with the same disease. The mother only will survive.

Died Suddenly at a Surprise Party.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Miss Josephine Keating, 35 years of age, of New London, Conn., dropped dead at a surprise party given in her honor here. She was tendered the party at the home of her cousin, James Hayes. At about midnight, just after supper, she threw up her hands and fell dead. Heart disease is ascribed as the cause of her death.

King Edward's Appointments.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—It is reported that King Edward will appoint Sir Dighton Macnaghten Probyn, for many years comptroller and treasurer of the household of the Prince of Wales, to be keeper of the privy purse and that he will retain Sir Francis Knollys as his private secretary.

Sisser's License.

Judge Schenck's action in denying the petition of James Sisser for a license for a saloon on Somerset street, near the borough line, undoubtedly met with the approval of a great majority of the citizens of North Plainfield. After the Borough Council had shown itself so unanimous on the subject, it would have been very questionable indeed if the Judge had granted the license. In announcing his decision in the case, the Judge called attention to that very fact and said that it had largely influenced him in his decision. He realized that the Mayor and Council were better able to judge of local conditions than he was and, as that body is composed of bright and intelligent business men, he saw that they would not take such a decisive stand against Mr. Sisser's application had there not been good reason for it.

Judge Schenck made one statement in announcing his decision which will be of special import in case any further applications are made for licenses at that same place. He was of the belief that it was the location rather than the individual which made the place so objectionable to the community. He said furthermore that he thought Mr. Sisser had conducted the place as well as anyone else might do under like circumstances. It is therefore quite evident that the Judge is impressed with the advisability of not granting any application for a license so close to the borough line, no matter who the applicant happens to be.

This evident opinion of the Judge will be of much relief to the citizens of North Plainfield as it will undoubtedly prevent the location of a saloon in that place in the future. The fight has been from the start against the location rather than the man and Judge Schenck has won the approbation of the citizens of the borough for his keen understanding of the situation.

Noting that Printers' Ink is in search of a good single word to express "an advertised article," a Kentucky newspaper has coined the term "adicle" to supply the deficiency relates the Philadelphia Record. If the suggestion should be accepted by Printers' Ink and the public, "adicle" would become one of the most comprehensive words in the English language; for in this age of enlightened advertising there is hardly a single salable commodity which is not regularly kept before the public in the newspapers. Everything that mankind uses would come under the "adicle" category.

New Brunswick has no Board of Trade at present. Such an organization existed there at one time, but like the Plainfield Advancement Association, it passed out of existance owing to lack of interest among its members. A movement is now on foot among some of the New Brunswick merchants to reorganize the board. Boards of Trade are all right when properly conducted, but New Brunswick does not seem to contain sufficient enterprise to make such an organization any wonderful success.

There are very few who do not enjoy a sleigh ride but the small boys who are so anxious for one that they run after sleighs and jump on the runners for a brief spin over the snow, are likely to find the fun more expensive than they anticipate. It is a dangerous custom and will result disastrously for some lad.

When the city is properly equipped with street signs and it is possible once more to find the location of a street without recourse to a map, the people of Plainfield will wonder what is going to happen next. But the street signs have not been put in position yet.

An unusual amount of interest is being shown this winter in the work of the Choral Society, and there is much demand for tickets for the rendition of the oratorio, "Elijah."

The Woodbridge township committee is following the proper course when it places a time limit on the franchise which it proposes to grant to the Raritan Traction Company.

The Legislators of the State will gather at Trenton again Monday to resume their labors, The Legislature has settled down to business early this session.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and its Citizens.

Speculation before the bill has been passed by the Legislature upon the selection of the new vice chancellors for New Jersey includes ex Governor George T. Werts, of Jersey City; Governor Foster M. Voorhees, of Elizabeth; State Senator Charles A. Reed, of Somerset, and ex-Judge Pancoast, of Camden. The bill provides for two additional vice-chancellors, which would increase the number to seven in the State. It is known that the work of the Court of Chancery has so greatly increased during the last few years that the proposition to add to the number of vice-chancellors meets with favor, and the opinion prevails that the bill will become a law.—New York Tribune.

* * * * *

The Republican friends of Senator Reed, of Somerset county, are already advocating his nomination for Congress when the new district lines have been made. This is what one of Mr. Reed's supporters said yesterday: "It is true that the dividing lines of the Congress districts have not been made but there is no denying the fact that wherever Somerset county is placed in the reapportionment Senator Reed is far more likely to be a candidate for Congress honors than he is to be the nominee of the Republican party for Governor in the next campaign. There is a possibility, however, that a judicial appointment may come his way, in which case, of course, he would no longer be a candidate for either Governor or Congress."—New York Tribune.

* * * * * * *

Senator Reed is an advocate for abolishing the spring elections even in the townships. He took his stand in an interview this week on the ground that the majority of the Republican county committee were in favor of it. We believe it would save a good deal of expense and many family quarrels. But we doubt whether the majority of the voters in the townships would favor such a change. This subject is causing a great deal of discussion just now. The Republican leaders are in doubt as to the advisability of such a move. The political workers in the cities are generally in favor of it, while most of the rural counties seem to be opposed. We are convinced that the change would be an advantageous one in the long run. —Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A matter that should engage the immediate attention of the authorities is the condition of the Washington avenue bridge. The great amount of snow and ice on that thoroughfare is dangerous for pedestrians and those who are responsible should see that the trouble is remedied.

In the possession of Martin Muldoon, alias Henry Colligan, who was arrested at Plainfield for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and lodged in the county jail, where he will remain for the next 30 days, was the following interesting appeal for charity, written in pencil:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

I take this means of appealing to your kindness. I am in need of work and money. If you can aid me you will do a good act in the sight of God. I am a Christian and never drink liquor, so anything you can give me will be put to a good use. Do not be afraid to give me any work for I will do any work you give me, xii Psalm. Blessed is he who considereth the poor: the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. I must have my rent by the 15th of February, and I take this means of getting it. Hoping you can aid me, no matter how little, I remains yours in hopes,

Mr. Henry Colligan,
180 Washington street, City.

Muldoon or Coligan gives his age as 32 years.

Gentlemen:—My mamma has been a great coffee drinker and has found it very injurious. Having used several packages of your GRAIN-O, the drink that takes the place of coffee, she finds it much better for herself and for us children to drink. She has given up coffee drinking entirely. We use a package of Grain-O every week. I am ten years old.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 9—At the next meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee which will be held in a few days, formal consent will be given for the building of Garretson & Gray's proposed tramway. As soon as weather permits the work of erection will commence and hurried to completion as the firm has a large number of orders already on hand while more are coming in. One of the former calls for 2,000 tons to be delivered as soon as possible. The old quarry will be worked until the tramway connecting the new one with the railroad is built.

The entertainment which the W. C. T. U. has been arranging will take place in Apgar's Hall this evening. The Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar Club will contribute some of its most pleasing numbers to the programme. The Misses Ethel Jamison and Mary Doolittle will give recitations, as will also Miss Fulper. Vocal duets will be given by the Messrs. Dickerson and Tallamy.

For the past two days the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company's cars have been running only every hour which makes a very long wait for those missing a car by a few minutes. It is not known whether the change from the half-hour schedule is permanent or not.

A Lincoln birthday social will be held in the Methodist church next Tuesday evening. An interesting programme has been arranged and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

During the evening's festivities the host and hostess served a bountiful collation to their many guest. Mr. and Mrs. Guest received a number of beautiful presents in honor of the event and the best wishes for the future and congratulations for the past from all

The somewhat dangerous sport of coasting is being enjoyed to its full limit the past few days by the young people in town. Spencer's Hill, the favorite spot for the sport, never was better, and every afternoon and evening the hill is filled with bob sleds and sleds of lesser degree. So far no serious accidents have occurred, but there have been a number of smash-ups, and the only damage done has been a few bruises and broken sleds.

A very successful entertainment was given in the Fanwood fire house last evening by the Ladies' Aid Society of All Saints Episcopal church. The hall was well filled and the programme rendered was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The members will be able to turn a neat little sum into the church treasury as a result of their efforts.

Rev. G. M. Shott's subject for Sunday sermons in the Baptist church will be: In the morning, "Missions in Africa;" in the evening, "God Made Known." At the close of the morning service the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed.

The members of Fanwood Council, R. A., are anticipating a very pleasant time at their council meeting Tuesday evening. The council will have as their guests the members of the Grand Council and delegations from Roselle and Westfield councils.

The Township Committee met again in the township rooms last evening to finish work on the annual township report which will be ready for distribution about Feb. 15.

Mrs. Andrew Rogers and daughter, Miss Stella, who have been the guests of Mrs. Rogers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Ryno, have returned to their home in New York.

Joseph Mercein, of Grant street, has been detained at home for several days suffering from a severe cold.

Rev. Mr. Bright will have charge of the prayer meeting in the Methodist church this evening.

WHIPPED SMALL BOY.

Barry Said He Did It in Fun, But Henry Told the Judge That it Hurt.

The most diminutive complainant appearing in the City Court in some time was present this morning and entered a charge against Charles Barry, a hackman, whom he accused of striking him about the legs with a whip last Sunday on North avenue. The little fellow was Henry Kernisky, of Cottage place. He is but seven years old and was so small of stature that the Judge had difficulty in seeing him over the desk.

According to the boy's story Barry struck him with the whip three times for no apparent reason. It pained him so that he ran all the way to his home crying. Barry claims to have made a playful pass at him, with no intention whatever of hurting him. As the youthful complainant was unable to understand the questions put to him, while a witness of the occurrence was absent, the case was laid over for one week.

Bed Bugs and Cock Roaches.

For destruction and complete riddance of Cock Roaches, Beetles, Wood and Water Bugs, Bed Bugs, Ants, Rats, Mice, etc., "Rough on Rats," though poisonous, if used with care is most effective. In fact it is the only thing that will permanently annihilate Bed Bugs and Cock Roaches. As an exterminator of Rats and Mice, "Rough on Rats" is the old reliable that never fails nor disappoints. They "don't die in the house." Is sold all around the world. Is used by all civilized nations of the earth. Is the most extensively advertised, the best know and has the largest sale of any article of its kind on the face of the globe. It gives satisfaction every time. Beware of imitations. I employ no peddlers. Have a suspicion of any dealer offering substitutes said to be as good. 15c. and 25c.

HANDY TO OWN.

Woodhull & Martin Are Giving Away Little Pocket Maps of City and Borough.

Out of the countless variety of articles which are given away by enterprising merchants, Woodhull & Martin, of the "People's Store" on West Front street, have selected for their patrons a souvenir which is particularly valuable to every resident of Plainfield and to those who have occasion to visit here. Street signs are so few and far between in Plainfield that a pocket map of the city is an exceedingly valuable possession. Woodhull & Martin have just issued neat little pocket folder maps of the city and borough which are right up to date. The map is drawn from surveys made by F. A. Dunham. There is a card board cover to the map on which are printed the fire alarm boxes. These little folders can be obtained for the asking at Woodhull & Martin's store in the Babcock building, West Front street.

Thanks For Donation.

The Board of Managers of the Children's Home Association gratefully acknowledge the receipt through Mrs. L. W. Serrell of $145.44, half of the receipts from the play "Mr. Bob." The gift is specially opportune at this time after the many expenses of weeks of sickness. M. E. Kimball.

Faithful to Their Duty.

Last October a cold spell in Montana killed a sheep herder in the Great Falls district, two feet of snow covering the range in places and the thermometer indicated 40 degrees below zero. The herder was frozen to death on the prairies while caring for the sheep, and it was three days before his fate was known to his employers. Two shepherd dogs were with him when he died, and one of these stayed with his body while the other attended to the sheep, just as though the herder had been with him. The dog drove them out on the range in the morning and back again at night, guarding them from wolves and preventing them from straying off. Neither dog had anything to eat during the three days' vigil, so far as could be ascertained, but the 2,500 sheep thrived as well, apparently, as though directed by human agency. The singular fact about the matter is that these faithful animals would have starved to death rather than harm one of the sheep left in their charge.—Chicago Chronicle.

Salt Lake of Larnarca.

In the island of Cyprus is a basin cut off from the sea, although sunk slightly below sea level, which contains a salt lake from which a considerable harvest of salt is annually obtained in August, when the fierce summer heat dries up the water. C. V. Bellamy, who recently visited the lake called Larnarca, thinks sea water percolates through the rocks into the basin, thus supplying the salt. A single heavy rain in midsummer has sometimes sufficed to ruin the salt crop, and the Cyprians, in order to protect the valuable lake as much as possible, have constructed channels to carry off the flood water of rains from the slopes of the basin into the sea.—N. Y. Times.

An Animal That Secretes Camphor.

Prof. O. F. Cook, of Washington, reports the surprising discovery of camphor as an animal secretion. The animal concerned is a myriapod, resembling a worm, or small slug, and scientifically known as Polyzonium rosalbum. It lives in the humus of moist, undisturbed forests. When handled it gives off a very distinct odor of camphor, and ejects a milky fluid which possesses the smell, flavor and taste of ordinary camphor. Prof. Cook thinks the camphor is secreted instead of the prussic or hydrocyanic acid found in other myriapods as a means of defense.—Science.

A Man's Four-Mile Jump.

A workman who was repairing the roof of a railway station near Interlaken, Switzerland, slipped, and, finding himself falling, jumped in order to escape being impaled on the railing below. At this moment, however, an express train happened to be passing, and the man landed on the roof of a carriage, to which he desperately clung.

He was carried in this position to the next station, four miles away, before the train stopped, and the unfortunate man, who, though severely shaken, but not hurt, was enabled to descend from the roof.—London Mail.

We May Talk with Martians.

Prof. Camille Flammarion thinks we can get to talking with the Martians after awhile, and he indorses Prof. Schmoil's idea of reproducing an outline of the luminous points of the Great Bear at Bordeaux, Marseilles, Strasburg, Paris, Amsterdam, Copenhagen and Stockholm. If the Martians respond by tracing an outline of some of the heavenly constellations in points of light on their planet, then intercommunication between the planets will have begun.—Chicago Chronicle.

An Amused Foe.

The proprietor of a small store in New York owns a black kitten that cultivates a habit of squatting on its haunches, like a bear or a kangaroo, and then sparring with its forepaws as if it had taken lessons from a pugilist. A gentleman took into the store an enormous black dog, half Newfoundland, half collie, fat, good-natured and intelligent. The tiny kitten, instead of bolting at once for shelter, retreated a few paces, sat erect on its hind legs and put its "fists" in an attitude of defiance. The contrast in size between the two was intensely amusing. It resembled one of Jack the Giant-Killer preparing to demolish a giant. Slowly and without a sign of excitability the huge dog walked as far as his chain would allow him and gazed intently at the kitten and its odd posture. Then, as the comicality of the situation struck him, he turned his head and shoulders around to the spectators, and if animal ever laughed in the world that dog assuredly did so then and there. He neither barked nor growled, but indulged in a low chuckle, while mouth and eyes beamed with merriment.—N. Y. Telegram.

He Was in Demand.

A merchant who lives on the upper West side of the city was awakened at two o'clock the other morning by the continued ringing of his front door bell. He tried to go to sleep despite the noise, but had to abandon the attempt when a series of shouts coming from the street in front of his house assailed his ears. Mingled with the shouts he heard the voices of men engaged in a war of words. Jumping out of bed, he ran to a window, threw it open and leaned out. There were five men on the street, and seeing him, they began to yell with renewed vigor.

"What is wrong?" shouted the merchant. The five tried to reply at the same time, and the only word the merchant understood was "Fire."

"What is wrong?" he shouted again. One of the five got his voice before the others.

"Your store has burned out," he screamed, "and I'll give you five dollars more than anybody else for the privilege of pasting bills in front of your building."—N. Y. Sun.

Deep Sea Pressure.

It is difficult to realize what the pressure at the ocean bottom really means; how enormous it is at three miles in depth. It is greater by several times than the pressure exerted by the pistons of the very greatest steam engines. Scientific men ascertain the temperature of the deep sea by sending strong, thick glass tubes. Sometimes these tubes suddenly collapse to a fine powder under the enormous pressure of several miles of depth. Indeed, one may say every hollow, man-made thing that sinks in the deep sea is crushed beyond recognition before it reaches the bottom. The strongest steel ships are hardly more resisting here than pasteboard boxes.—McClure's Magazine.

For Other Reasons.

"You ain't acquainted around here much, be you?" asked the mountaineer of the man on horseback.

"No."

"I reckoned not. I don't believe I'd go down the trail that runs past Abe Gore's shack, if I was you. Abe had his hoss stole last week."

"But this isn't his horse."

"You don't seem to understand. I ain't accusin' you of stealin' his hoss. I'm simply intimatin' to you that at the present time Abe happens to be in need of a hoss purty bad. I wouldn't go down that road if I was you."—Indianapolis Sun.

Big Kitchen Utensils.

There is in Paris a hotel which has 4,000 employes. The smallest kettle in the kitchen will hold 100 quarts and the largest 500. Each of 50 roasting pans is big enough for 300 cutlets. Every dish for baking potatoes will hold 225 pounds. When omelets are on the bill of fare 7,800 eggs are used at once. For cooking alone 60 cooks and 100 assistants are always at the ranges.—N. Y. Sun.

A Commercial Aspect.

"Leeland made me feel foolish when he proposed to me last night."

"Got on his knees and delivered a prepared oration?"

"No, he went about in such a business way that I couldn't tell for awhile whether he wanted me to be his wife or his confidential clerk."—Denver News.

Speyer. Die statistischen Zusammenstellungen über den Hopfenertrag in der Pfalz ergaben für das Jahr 1899 in den Bezirksämtern Bergzabern fünf Gemeinden, Landau und Speyer je zwei Gemeinden mit mindestens fünf Hektar Hopfenanbaufläche. Der Ertrag wurde in Bergzabern bei sehr guter Qualität auf 848 Centner, in Landau bei sehr guter Qualität auf 384 Centner, in Speyer bei gut mittlerer Qualität auf 716 Centner geschätzt.

Frankenthal. Die Zuckerfabrik Frankenthal hat in ihrer Generalversammlung dem Beamtenpensionsfonds wiederum 50,000 Mark überwiesen, so daß derselbe nun die Höhe von 750,000 Mark erreicht.

Germersheim. An der Bahnstrecke Germersheim-Landau wurden in geringer Tiefe in der Nähe der Station Lustadt in einem Kieslager fünf gut erhaltene menschliche Skelette und der Schädel eines Pferdes aufgefunden. Die Funde wurden dem Museum zu Speyer überwiesen.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Nach den Ergebnissen der unlängst abgehaltenen Bezirksfarrenschauen sind in Württemberg vorhanden 513,669 zur Zucht verwendbare Kühe und Kalbinnen. Die Zahl der Farren beträgt 6719.—Ein originelles Preisausschreiben veranstaltete dahier der Besitzer des Kafe Leusen, indem er die drei besten Trinksprüche mit 50 Mark, 30 Mark und 20 Mark prämiirt. Die Emsendungen müssen bis Ende Februar erfolgt sein.

Ludwigsburg. Aus dem hiesigen Garnisons-Arresthaus war im Jahre 1896 der Trompeter Schafberg vom hiesigen Ulanen-Regiment entwichen. Er war wegen Fahnenflucht und Diebstahls in Untersuchungshaft und bewerkstelligte seine Flucht, indem er sich in der Abortgrube des Arresthauses versteckte und über 12 Stunden dort zubrachte; in einem günstigen Augenblicke Nachts suchte er dann das Weite, wandte sich nach Frankreich und ließ sich zur Fremdenlegion anwerben. Auch von dort gelang es ihm, zu entweichen; als er neulich wieder hier anlangte, wurde er festgenommen.

Pleidelsheim. In Köln wurden die Brüder Viktor und Albert Englert verhaftet, die verdächtig sind, den 50jährigen Privatmann Gottlieb Jung anhier ermordet und um 6000 Mark beraubt zu haben.

Tübingen. Die durch den Wegzug Professor Siemerlings nach Kiel erledigte Professur für Psychiatrie an der Universität Tübingen, wurde dem Oberarzt an der städtischen Irrenanstalt in Hamburg, Professor Dr. Wollenberg, übertragen.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Wegen Heirathsschwindeleien wurde der bereits wegen ähnlicher Delikte vorbestrafte Kaufmann Karl Bär zu vier Jahren Zuchthaus und fünf Jahren Ehrverlust verurtheilt.

Freiburg. Beim Untergange der „Gneisenau" vor Malaga rettete der Oberbootsmaat Karl Zillhardt von Freiburg sieben Kameraden das Leben. Er erhielt in Wilhelmshaven die silberne Rettungsmedaille.

Heidelberg. Letzthin wurde das von der Berliner Allgemeinen Elektrizitäts-Gesellschaft errichtete Elektrizitätswerk von der Stadt übernommen. Der Bau des Werkes, das von der Stadt betrieben wird, kostete über 1,000,000 Mark.

Mannheim. Im Rheinau-Hafen verkehrten im Jahre 1900 3408 Schiffe mit einer Gütermenge von 573,130 Tonnen, gegen 2404 Schiffe mit 388,621 Tonnen im Jahre 1899. Die Zahl der von den Stationen Rheinau und Neckarau nach dem Hafen und den Werken der einzelnen hier ansässigen Firmen und umgekehrt rangirten Wagen betrug 57,385, gegen 39,825 Wagen im Vorjahre.

Neustadt. Auf dem Titisee brach beim Schlittschuhlaufen ein junger Mann, Namens Hopp aus Neustadt ein; der Sohn des Tagelöhners Faller, der ihn retten wollte, ertrank, während Hopp gerettet werden konnte.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Der Ausschuß der Landesversicherungsanstalt Elsaß-Lothringen beschloß, dem Bezirke Unterelsaß zu dem Bau einer Lungenheilstätte in den Vogesen ein Darlehen von 400,000 Mark zu dem geringen Zinsfuß von 1½ Prozent zu gewähren.—Außer in Straßburg werden auch in Kolmar, Mülhausen und Metz Buchführungskurse für Handwerksmeister eingerichtet. Der Unterricht ist unentgeltlich.

Kolmar. Der bayerische Amtsrichter a. D. Walter Rump, Oberlieutenant der Reserve beim 21. Infanterie-Regiment, wurde zum Kriegsgerichtsrath der preußischen 39. Division, Kolmar, ernannt.

PRINCE OF THIEVES.

He ... ck from the Foot of a Canadian.

Countryman Does Not Discover His Loss Until Night—Moses, When Arrested, Seemed Rather Proud of the Deed.

"Talking about slick thieves," said Capt. Lavin, of the Stock Yards police station, to a Chicago Chronicle reporter, "the uncrowned king is a Polish Jew who lives out in my district. If he had as much brain matter as he has ingenuity and as much daring for big crimes as he has for small ones, a Sherlock Holmes couldn't get within a mile's walk of him in a thousand years. You smile.

"Ask the boys who keep a watchful eye over the unsophisticated stock raisers who the man is they fear the most. They will tell you it is Moses Klinxi. He is afraid of turning a big trick, but when it comes to getting a watch chain, an overcoat, some trinket or the spare coins in a stockman's pocket Moses beats any light fingered artist in the county.

"During the live stock show Moses stole a stocking off the foot of a Canadian who had a pen of Cotswolds on exhibition; stole it when the fellow had his big cowhide boots on, and never disturbed the boot of the foot that the stocking was on, and the fellow was wide awake when it was done. One of my men caught Moses while he was getting away with the goods.

"There were half a dozen people around within a few feet of the sheep-breeder and Moses when the theft was committed. This is no fairy tale.

"It was one of the big days of the show," continued the captain. "The Canadian was busy talking to some western people about his breed of sheep. He was sitting on a bale of hay. Moses was shambling through the sheep section. How he escaped my men and got inside is something that he alone could tell. He edged up to the group around the Canadian. One of my plain-clothes men caught sight of him and he noticed that Moses was busy with his hands.

"He could not see what the fellow was doing, and waited. In a few moments Moses dropped something into his overcoat pocket. The plain-clothes man took hold of him and, reaching into the overcoat pocket, drew out a ball of red yarn. He walked Moses back to the group, and, holding out the ball of yarn, asked if any of the men had been 'touched.' They looked and shook their heads negatively.

"The next mornig the Canadian came over to the police station. He wanted to know if that 'old Jew' was under arrest. Moses had been run in on general principles, and I asked the caller what had happened to him. He held up a red sock. 'The Jew stole the other,' he said to me. 'See here,' and he put his cowhide boot on a chair in my office and pointed to a little hole in the toe. 'Yesterday afternoon that fellow stole my sock through this hole. He unraveled it and wound it into a ball. One of your men caught him, but I did not know the yarn belonged to me until last night when I pulled off my boot and I found the sock was gone.'

"Moses admitted the theft. He said he saw a bit of the red sock through the hole in the toe of the boot, and he noticed it was a good quality of yarn, and taking the blade of his knife he started the raveling, knowing that the man was too busy talking to pay any attention to the loss of a sock."

Treasure Hidden in Mouth.

False teeth are occasionally used for secretive purposes. There is a Chicago man who carries 20 diamonds of rare value and beauty in his mouth; but these are set in the roof plates, quite out of sight, and to preserve them the owner refrains from taking hot food or strong beverages. There is some romance attached to the jewels, and the wearer is anxious to keep them out of the sight of his relatives. A will in a set of artificial teeth is somewhat unusual, yet an eccentric old lady boasts a roof plate which consists of two thin sheets of gold, between which a copy of her will in miniature is inserted. In like manner a chemical dyer preserves a prescription, which he declares he would not give up for untold wealth.

They Lead a Retired Life.

A quiet life is led by Mr. and Mrs. Reiche, of California. They occupy a lonely signal station on a lofty peak in the Sierra Nevada mountains, where, field glass in hand, they watch for fires among the snowsheds that line the railroad through the rocky wilds. Were a fire to break out and continue unnoticed for an hour, the chain of sheds might be consumed. The wife watches by day and the husband at night.

Remains of Ancient Men.

In some grottoes in Algeria French explorers recently discovered stone implements mingled with the remains of extinct animals belonging to quaternary times. Further explorations indicate that during the age when the grottoes were inhabited the coast of Algeria had a conformation different from that of to-day. Among the animals associated with the ancient human inhabitants of Algeria were the rhinoceros, the hippopotamus and various species of ruminants.—N. Y. Sun.

Solons Who Get No Pay.

Only in Britain, Italy and Spain do M. P.'s serve their country free of charge. In Portugal the case is curious. Until 1892 Portuguese M. P.'s received ten shillings a day. This was then abolished. But the lawmakers still have free passes on all railways, and constituencies may pay their members a wage of not more than 15s 10d a day. As compared with his colleagues in other countries, then, we find that the British member of parliament enjoys but few privileges; nevertheless, his position is second to none in point of importance.—N. Y. Sun.

Electricity in Siberia.

Electricity is conquering the world with greater rapidity than did its mighty predecessor in mechanical achievement, steam. The gradual opening of the trans-Siberian railroad has led to the introduction of electric light and electric machinery into the towns of Siberia. Recently the municipality of Vladivostok decided that electric trolleys were indispensable to the comfort and convenience of the inhabitants of that remote city, and it was resolved to build at once about 20 miles of electric tramways and to light the town with electricity, besides introducing the modern conveniences. Most of the machinery will be of American manufacture.—Youth's Companion.

Truly speaking, there are and can be no classes in society. The Almighty created us all, and one soul is undoubtedly as valuable as another exactly. But mankind for purposes of their own have established an artificial distinction, according to the wealth they possess, making the richest the so called upper class, the next richest the middle and the very poor the way down low division. Fashions and fads originate with the so called upper class. When the middle rank adopts them, the upper crust leaves them off, to be different, not having any other method of distinguishing itself from anybody else. By and by, when the new mode becomes spread among the low down people, then the middle people leave it off in turn, so nobody can mistake them for common trash. Now, then, a generation ago it was the proper thing for rich ladies to be very delicate. The consumptive heroine, languishing and dying, with lover and friends shedding barrels of tears over her, was the fad. By degrees this Camille sort of heroine faded off life's stage—and a good riddance to her—and the athletic heroine came in, who is now the fad. May she remain so till Gabriel's trumpet shall sound. Girls of the so called upper and middle classes pride themselves on their lung and muscle power. They swim, row, ride bicycles, play stiff outdoor games and begin to know how joyful as well as fashionable it is to be without an ache or pain and able to throw a stone and hit a mark. But now, too, observe the fad for delicacy among women has reached its lowest depth before it is finally kicked out of the world feminine. It is at length the so called low class lady, the scrub lady, the 200 pound wash lady and the kitchen girl who pride themselves on their physical inability. "I look strong, but I ain't; I'm mighty delicate," is their complacent cry.

Now that thousands of fashionable as well as intelligent ladies have discarded corsets altogether, substituting the various health waists and supports, it is amusing to note how like grim death the woman who performs manual labor for her living clings to her corset, boned, steeled and stiffened like a wagon top. A bouncing big colored woman, with biceps like a baseball player, but laced nevertheless as to her waist in sideboards tight as iron, complained lately that she was "too delicate" to do heavy work. It made her dizzy to stand upon a stepladder or to sit out upon a sill and wash windows, and she couldn't get down to scrub and couldn't shake rugs because it gave her "a pain under her lungs." What a pity she ever found out she had any lungs! A lady said to her, "If you would haul off that corset when you work, you wouldn't have any pain under your lungs." "Oh, dear me," said the colored lady, "I can't go without my corsets! If I take 'em off for ten minutes, I have sich a pain in my back, it makes me crazy. All the colored ladies wears them."

Spanish is to become the most useful language for business purposes of any on the western continent. I have many a time urged young women stenographers to add a thorough knowledge of Spanish to their business equipment. When I was in Manila, there were openings of a rare advantage for stenographers and typewriters who could speak and write Spanish. The same is true of Porto Rico, Cuba and Mexico. There will be constantly more and more demand as time goes on. American girls ought to supply it. If you have opportunity, learn not only Spanish, but French and German, and learn them thoroughly.

"What fools women are!" says a certain old bachelor. Oh, yes! Excepting only men, women certainly are the greatest fools in existence.

Let us strive in all things to go back to earlier systems of dress and living in this glorious new century. In food let us have a few simple courses, variety enough for good health and no more; in dress not piles of clothing, but only sufficient to be comfortable and so that we shall not be noticed for being too far out of fashion; in draperies, curtains, cushions, etc., let us have enough for comfort, not enough to make them diabolical dust traps and contrivances for shutting out God's air and sunshine, which make alike the flower and the woman beautiful. Let us throw over this elaborateness of living. It is foolishness and a weariness to the flesh. Let us return to simpler, more refined ways.

Life is more than clothes, though some women have not found it out yet.

Some men are such old fogies on the woman question that it is like a visit to the British museum to meet them.

It took five years to get the French parliament to pass an act permitting women to practice law. A number of French ladies, however, prepared themselves for admission to the bar, and when just at the close of last year the desperately opposed permission finally was achieved there were 11 women lawyers ready to begin the new century.

STUNNING STAGE GOWNS.

Models of Style Worn by Amelia Bingham In Her New Play.

We find the handsomest dresses on the stage when the piece being played permits of modern dressing and the star actress is a woman of taste. This wise reflection came to me recently when I saw the splendid gowns worn in the new play just brought out by Miss Amelia Bingham. There is nothing stagy about them, as they are just such gowns as Mrs. Astor or Mrs. Vanderbilt might wear at some grand social function. They are not only new and elegant, but also superbly rich in every detail. It is worth the price of admission to see such gowns. So let me tell what they were and not keep my kind readers in suspense. In the first act the young star wears a widow's costume, and in it she looks beautiful. The dress is made in the most approved fashion for young and attractive widows and is in princess shape. The material is eudora, with a deep facing of heavy English crape. This is set on in a slope up the fronts. The waist is made quite plain, but it fits like "the paper on the wall." With this are worn a dainty little bonnet and two veils. One is long and reaches to the very bottom of her dress, and that trains, and the other is only about a yard square. A black bordered handkerchief, with the black half an inch deep, and black glace kid gloves complete the costume. This is the prettiest and newest, as princess shapes for mourning have just been revived.

In the second act she wears a magnificent gray satin of the heaviest quality, and this is wrought with chenille and narrow silk and silver braid by hand in a design which covers almost the whole of the skirt. In the center of the figures there are set large black pearls, which are not black at all, but only dark gray. These form a beautiful finish to the gown and a contrast to the pearl gray in the satin. The waist is of the same and is draped across the front to the left side. There is some chiffon across the bust and some fine point lace across the shoulders. The only point of color is furnished by the lambent flames of the diamonds which the handsome actress wears—that is, if we do not count the rich, deep hue of her eyes and the natural tints of her face and hair.

In the third act she wears a winter costume of plum colored velvet. The dress has a demitrain and a vest of lilac satin with cross lines of silver braid which reaches up and forms the collar. Over this is worn the long velvet cloak. This cloak is lined with white satin and has large, full sleeves with deep cuffs of sable fur. The whole cloak, in fact, is heavily trimmed with this costly fur. With it goes a large muff of the same and a hat of velvet and the fur. Some enormous buttons fasten the garment.

In the last act Miss Bingham wears a house dress of ivory china crape, and this is V shaped at the neck, where it is filled in with chiffon. What we should do without chiffon I cannot bear to contemplate. This crape gown is made over taffeta silk, and there is such a quantity of chiffon ruffling and ruching that I could not tell it in half a column. Over this is the dress, and it is embroidered with narrow white silk soutache and chenille placed side by side, which arrangement produces a fine effect. All the parts of the design where it is possible to do so are cut out, and chiffon is brought into the open spaces, making cut work embroidery of it. This work is done so that it reaches almost to the hips in the back and quite up to the belt in front. The waist is bloused in front, and the opening is filled in with the ubiquitous chiffon. The sleeves are made entirely of the embroidered crape and have extra deep cuffs, and these, too, are filled in with chiffon. I forgot to say that the skirt opens over an underskirt of taffeta, and this is quite covered with doubled bias chiffon folds. There is a crush belt of the crape, and this clasps in front with a pretty ornament.

Happenings in Out-of-the-Way Places of This World of Ours

To Teach Tropical Agriculture.

ONE of England's fairest, though smallest, possessions, are the Windward islands, lying off the northern coast of South America. They consist of the islands of Grenada, the little Grenadines, St. Vincent and St. Lucia. There is scarcely 500 square miles in all of them, yet they are interesting in many ways. Tropical agriculture is the staple industry, and the growing of cocoa and spices is steadily on the increase.

Small as they are, each has its own government, its own legislature and its own institutions, and each tries to surpass its small English neighbor in point of enterprise. The little island of St. Vincent has added the latest novelty in the form of an agricultural school at which the growing generations of the island are to be taught the principles of tropical agriculture. The little island has an area of but 132 square miles, but on this supports a population of 41,054 persons, of which but 2,445 are white. Of the total area of the island 13,000 acres, one-sixth of the total, are under cultivation, and the majority of this belongs to three firms. On it they raise sugar, cocoa, spices and arrowroot, and to these they add for export much valuable timber and rum. Thirty-six government schools supply mental training for the young of both white and colored parentage.

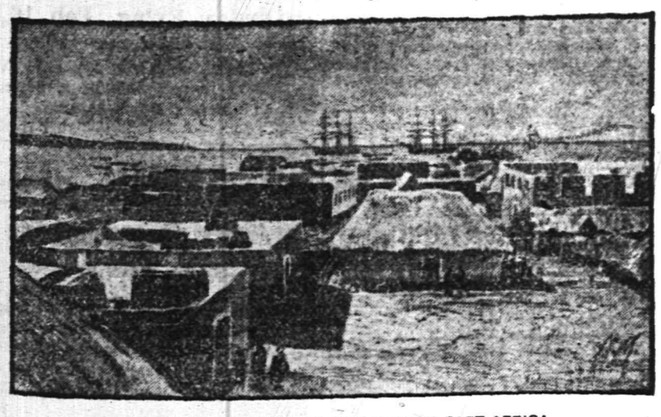
The agricultural school, for which great results are hoped for, was recently opened by Sir Alfred Maloney, the governor general of the islands representing the British crown. Its establishment is due to the efforts of the island colonial secretary, Harry L. Thompson, and both the white and colored population has so far shown a decided interest in it, the application for admission to its courses being greater than the capacity of the small college will accommmodate.

A similar college is now talked of for both Grenada and St. Lucia.

More Trouble for England.

Go where you will in Africa, almost, and the English flag will be found floating in close proximity, but to keep those flags floating causes England considerable trouble. An English army is fighting the Boers of South Africa, another is fighting the blacks of Ashanti, and now a third force has just been put in the field to avenge the death of Mr. A. Jenner, subcommissioner of British East Africa.



KISMAYU, A PORT IN JUBALAND, BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

The commissioner was murdered by natives of the Ogaden Somalis tribes in Jubaland, not far from the port of Kismayu, while on a tour of inspection of the colony.

This is by no means the first of England's experience with these warlike blacks. Ever since English colonization began in that part of Africa they have sought favorable opportunities to avenge the invasion of their country, and several English officials and explorers have been killed by them, but in this case England promises a speedy and terrible revenge that it is hoped will prove a lasting lesson.

These hostile blacks which England is attempting to punish for their depredations and murders were not originally natives of the British possessions, but came from the Italian protectorate and Abyssinia to the north of the Juba river, which forms the boundary between the territories. But they have been gradually pushing southward into the British sphere of influence, gaining control of the advantageous outlets to the sea, and when opportunity offered levying tribute upon the trading caravans from the interior bound for the seaport towns. They are said to have among them several European leaders, and have proven formidable in the field. They are tall, muscular and handsome, wear white cloth wound around their bodies and have for their weapons a long spear, a short, broad knife, a short club of hard wood and a hide shield. But few of them have yet secured firearms, and for that reason it is not expected that a heavy force will be needed to deal with them.

Bicycles in Siam.

The first consignment of safety bicycles was brought to Bangkok by Dr. P. T. Carrington, an American dentist, in 1896. Previous to that time one or two of these wheels had been imported for private use. There are now in this city between 2,500 and 3,000 bicycles. They are to be seen in all parts of the city and are used by all classes. The king of Siam rides an American bicycle of the latest and most improved model, and it is by no means an uncommon thing to see the ministers of the government coming and going to their duties and even to public functions on their wheels.

The minister of the interior has systematically encouraged the use of the wheel, believing that its employment will lead to better roads in the city and in the country towns. He is the head of a large bicycle club that numbers upward of 400 members. Among the members are many of the princes and government officials, and in the favorable seasons of the year this club indulges in long runs to the remote parts of the city. These runs are generally held during the cooler portion of the night and wind up in a banquet well toward the morning.

The crowning endeavor of this club was a grand bicycle pageant given some months ago in the presence of the king and queen of Siam and participated in by nearly every prince of the country. The affair was a grand success.

To the Center of Africa.

The department of marine and public works in the Congo Free State has made considerable improvements in the means of intercourse, as well on the rivers as on the sea, between Boma, Matadi, Angola and the French coast. The Messageries Fluviales, of the Congo, have opened offices at Matadi, Brazzaville and Messo and carry goods as far as Brazzaville, situated on the banks of the French Congo, from any of the following European ports: Bordeaux, Antwerp, Hamburg or Liverpool. The freight rates on the Congo river and its auxiliaries, as well as the charges for reloading and unloading, will soon be published. On the middle Congo three wood stations have been established by the government to enable steamers plying on the river to take in fuel.

As regards the project to make the Kingussi canal navigable for small steamboats, the commissary of the Kwango district reports that the dredging is progressing favorably and that already the bottom of the canal was 11.8 inches below the lowest watermark. For a distance of 3,937 feet the canal will run in quite a straight line, and there will be no obstacles to navigation in the shape of rocks, etc. Since November 1, 1900, ten-ton steamers have been able to use it, even during the dry season. The first trials of the kind of steamboat necessary for the navigation of the Kwango river were made immediately after that date, under the personal supervision of Mr. Costerman, the government inspector in charge. The Kwango district is now connected with Stanley Pool by a direct river route, while previously goods had to go a roundabout way on the backs of native carriers.

BUFFALO AND THE BEES.

A Special Structure For the Honey Makers at the Pan-American.

The busy bee will be in big business at the Pan-American Exposition the coming summer. It has been decided to construct a special building for the proper display of the working colonies of bees and the great variety of beekeepers' supplies which will constitute this exhibit. This will undoubtedly be the most extensive bee exhibit ever prepared in this or any other part of the world. Any one who is not a student of bee culture little realizes the very great importance of this industry. It is estimated that there are 300,000 persons engaged in bee culture in the United States alone and that the present annual value of honey and wax is in excess of $20,000,000. There are 110 societies devoted to the study and promotion of beekeeping. Eight journals are sustained by this industry. Fifteen steam power factories are producing supplies of various kinds for the use of beekeepers. American honey finds a market in many distant countries, the United States producing more honey than any other nation.

The bee exhibits at the Pan-American Exposition will be so arranged that the bees may enter their hives from the exterior of the building and carry on their work of honey collection undisturbed by visitors, yet in full view through the glass sides of their hives. The successful management of an apiary requires a knowledge of botany as well as the habits and requirements of the bees themselves. The little honey bee plays a very important part in the general economy. The failure of fruit crops may be due to the absence of bees, whose special function is to fertilize the blossoms by carrying the pollen from stamens to pistil.

It is estimated that the flora of the United States could sustain ten times as many bees as are now in existence and nearly every farm could support an apiary of profitable size. The bee exhibit will illustrate the operation of an apiary and will show the common honey producing flora in a way to be understood by all who may be interested. The relation of bees to horticulture and agriculture will be clearly shown and the many uses of honey illustrated. Honey is extensively used in the manufacture of bake stuffs and in making medicines and candles. Beeswax is a commercial article much used by dentists and manufacturers of wax goods.

The actual demonstration of beekeepers' supplies of latest pattern will show what economies may be practiced by beekeepers to increase their profits. The movable frame hive was invented in 1851 by Langstroth, and since that time the application of labor saving, honey saving and bee saving devices has been very interesting and important. Experiments in crossing varieties of bees have been carried on with surprising success. New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont and other New England states are large producers of comb honey. Any locality in which white clover, basswood and buckwheat are plentiful is adapted to the successful culture of the bees. In California and Arizona the keeping of bees ranks as one of the most important industries.

MARK BENNITT.

AMERICAN RAILWAYS.

Their Progress to Be Shown at the Pan-American.

The progress of American railways will be most comprehensively illustrated at the Pan-American Exposition. The transportation exhibit will be elaborate, embracing all the varied branches. In this, as well as in several other respects, the coming Exposition will surpass the Columbian and Paris Expositions. The display of railroad equipment will be the largest and most interesting ever seen, affording a rare treat for railroad men and the public generally. Progress is being made by leaps and bounds. During the seven years which have elapsed since the Columbian Exposition many novel and valuable inventions and improvements in railway construction have been brought out, and others of great importance will undoubtedly be given to the railway world by the time of the opening of the Pan-American Exposition. All of them will be among the exhibits.

The railroads throughout the country are deeply interested, and nearly all of the more important ones have signified their intention to compete for the highest honors to be bestowed by the jury of awards of the Transportation Department. The smaller ones, too, have taken the infection and propose to enter the contest. With so much interest manifested the Transportation Department will surely be one of the most important at the Exposition.

THE GREAT MIDWAY.

AMUSEMENT PALACES AT THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The Pick of Many Hundreds of Attractions Offered Will Be Seen at Buffalo Next Summer—Concessionnaires Picking Up Novelties.

From the character of the exhibitions chosen it can safely be promised for the Pan-American Midway that there will be more fun—good, clean, wholesome fun, too—on this street than any similar adjunct of an exposition ever occasioned before. But though a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men it must not be supposed that these Midway exhibitions will be all nonsense. Far from it. Many of them will be eminently educational, without at all detracting from their entertaining character. This will be especially true of such exhibitions as the Streets of Mexico, the Hawaiian Volcano and Village, the Philippine Village, the Japanese Village, Old Nuremburg, the Beautiful Orient, the Indian Congress, the unique concession called Venice in America and several others representing life in different quarters of the globe and curious native customs and institutions. The same kind of education as is to be obtained through foreign travel will be imparted by such exhibitions as these. For instance, there is infinite instruction in contemplation of the wonders of nature, and when they are reproduced so well as the Hawaiian Volcano, which began its eruptions on the Pan-American Midway some time ago, there is no better way one could spend time than in seeing such sights. The great volcano of Kilauea has inspired eloquent description by some of the most brilliant of writers in both prose and verse, and the lamented Robert Louis Stevenson was powerfully moved by its strange phenomena and weird but oftentimes beautiful aspect. Hawaii, though now a part of the United States, is still a long way off for most of us, and it is very fortunate the Pan-American management has provided a way for us to see just how this volcano appears without taking the long trip half way across the Pacific, for otherwise the great majority of us would never enjoy seeing a volcano.

The Pan-American concessionnaires are resorting to every possible device that can be conceived in order to carry out their illusions and surprise and mystify the visitor. For instance, one is searching the globe to find queer animals to put in his city of the moon, which Exposition visitors will have an opportunity to see by taking his Trip to the Moon by the airship Luna.

One of the educational features of the Pan-American Midway, and a feature which is also highly artistic, is Cleopatra's Temple, which is being prepared by Mr. Alonzo Lincoln, owner of the famous painting called Trilby. This concession is entirely a new idea and is sure to be regarded as a very high class feature of this part of the Pan-American. The building itself, which is now nearly completed, is one of the most artistic structures on the grounds and is destined to earn the title of Gem of the Midway. In this building will be the great paintings of Ashley D. M. Cooper illustrating the principal events in the life of Egypt's great queen. Mr. Cooper receives $15,000 for painting Cleopatra, which is less than he would have asked were it not for the fact that he was anxious to have a great picture at the all-American Exposition at Buffalo. He believes that his latest work will surpass anything which has yet come from his brush.

The Indian Congress will occupy more space than any other Midway concession, as there will be some 500 persons, including chiefs, squaws and papooses, in the Village. It has a frontage of 440 feet on the Midway.

The assemblage of Indians will include many noted chiefs, and the programme of entertainments will be varied and exceptionally exciting. There will be sham battles between the Sioux and their allies on one side and the Blackfeet and their allies on the other. Before the hours of the battles bands of mounted Indians, in all the glory of war paint and feathers, will be seen passing and repassing the spectators' seats, chanting their war songs. The drama that ensues will be a lifelike representation of Indian fighting, the programme following closely the actual methods and customs of the Indians when going forth to do battle against their enemies. Later on in the programme will come the various Indian dances. The San Carlos Apaches will be seen in their Medicine Dance, in which they wear their peculiar headdress. Corn dances, ghost dances and dog feasts and all typical Indian customs will be carried out just as they are performed by the Indians of the plains of the west today.

Mr. Gaines, who is now gathering material for this great exhibition has had 17 years' experience with the Indians and was at the famous battle of Wounded Knee.

Another western feature at the Pan-American which will be presented on the Midway will be a facsimile of a Colorado gold mine. This will picture the busy scenes in and around one of the gold mines typical of the great mining state of Colorado.

EDWARD HALE BRUSH.

European Excursions to Pan-American.

The most important foreign excursion agencies in Europe are organizing excursions to the Pan-American Exposition. Their programmes are being received at the Bureau of Publicity, and the leading features of the Exposition are cleverly displayed for the benefit of continental readers. The great electrical features and Niagara Falls are prominently mentioned in their literature.

SPORTING.

POOL

The winners and scores in last evening's games in Krewson's pool tourney were as follows: McLoughlin defeated Ammons, 40 to 49; Walsh defeated Matthews, 60 to 24; Moore defeated Matthews, 60 to 11. There will be no tourney games this evening.

YOUTHFUL DRIVERS.

Clever Work by Son and Daughter of David C. Smalley On the Snow.

David Smalley, Jr., and his sister, Florence, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Smalley, of East Front street, gave a pretty exhibition on the East Front street speedway yesterday afternoon. They had that celebrated trotter, "Ned Davis," and there was not a single horse on the road that could pass them. Sometimes they would both be driving each with one rein, and they both took turns in handling that famous steed. One slap of the reins was sufficient and "Ned" shot forth like a veritable whirlwind, passing everthing. They were a picture of great attraction for all on the speedway, for they were king and queen of the road.

Don't Know Him Here.

Alexander Stieglitz, who resides on Walnut avenue, Cranford, was arrested yesterday morning, charged with passing a worthless check on N. P. Bonnell, a liveryman. The check was drawn on the New Amsterdam Bank, of New York city, and was returned marked "no account." Justice Mendell committed Stieglitz to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. It is said he has operated extensively in this city and Somerville but the police here do not know him.

Little Lad Claims That He Was Injured at School—His Story to Dr. Pittis.

Harris Goldstein, of the borough, called on Lawyer William Newcorn this morning, on behalf of Samuel Taub, of 60 Somerset street, and related quite a story regarding Mr. Taub's 10-year-old son. According to the story Mr. Goldstein claims that last Thursday Mr. Taub's boy was late at school and it is alleged that he was met at the school by Superintendent Wightman, who give him a kick down stairs, after which he kicked him again. It is also claimed that the boy is confined to his bed as a result of the injuries received. Mr. Goldstein desired to engage Mr. Newcorn to take the case, and the latter consented.

A reporter of The Daily Press interviewed Dr. Pittis, who was called to treat the boy, and he says that the boy give him to understand that his injuries were the result of falling down several steps. However, the doctor says, the injuries, which consist of a few contusions about the body, are not at all serious and not likely to keep the boy in the house.

NO TROLLEY TALK.

Petition Was Not Presented at Meeting of North Plainfield Township Committee.

The last meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee, before the spring election, was held at Demler's store, Watchung, yesterday afternoon. The committee completed all their business and paid all bills.

The petition of the trolley company in regard to the renaming the road that runs from Somerset street to the township line, was not brought to the attention of the committee, but will be held until the new committee holds their meeting after election.

Injured in Trolley Car.

A trolley car on the line running between this city and Elizabeth met with an accident Thursday afternoon at the Prospect street curve, Westfield. The motorman was unable to reduce the speed quick enough and when the car struck the curve Mrs. Sarah Davis, of Westfield, was thrown across the car and received a deep scalp wound. Dr. Tubbs, of Westfield, was called and gave proper treatment. Two Plainfield men were on the car, but escaped injury. The names are not known.

Mission Work in Plainfield.

The Park Avenue Baptist Christian Endeavor Society held a helpful missionary service last evening, when Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Taylor, of this city, gave an informal talk concerning their mission work in Plainfield. Every one present manifested much interest in their work and the society will doubtless show their interest from time to time in some tangible way.

Interesting Lecture.

"The Early Elementary Training and Its Relation to the Child's Later School Life" will be the subject of a lecture to be given by Miss Geraldine O'Grady, of the faculty of the Teachers' College, of New York, at the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School, 303 LaGrande avenue, Thursday evening, February 14, at 8 o'clock.

Board of Health Meeting.

Unless there is some special business the Plainfield Board of Health will not meet until March. At that time the Board will reorganize and appoint the inspector for the ensuing year.

Walking Dangerous.

Along some portions of West Front street the sidewalks are in a terrible condition. There is plenty of ice and snow on the walks, making walking dangerous.

City's Health is Good.

There is very little contagious disease in the city at present and the general health of the city is excellent.

"MR. BOB" WAS PROFITABLE

FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF CHARITY PERFORMANCE IS COMPLETE.

L. W. Serrell, Who Was in Charge of the Affair, Furnishes a Copy of It.

Lemuel W. Serrell, who was in charge of the management of the amateur play, "Mr. Bob," which was produced at the Casino by local talent a month ago, has completed his duties and sends The Daily Press a copy of the statement of his receipts and disbursements. The play, it will be remembered, was given for the benefit of the Children's Home and the Women's Exchange. The net profits of the performance amounted to $290.89, which has been equally divided between the two worthy charities.

Mr. Serrell's statement is as follows:

MANY CANDIDATES.

There Are 123 Applications For Membership in New Militia Company.

The prospects for the early formation and muster of Co. K, Second Regiment, National Guard, are encouraging. The committee in charge of the preliminary arrangements have had 123 names handed to them and there is now no doubt but what a first-class company of 100 men will be secured. All the applicants are first-class men and will make a fine showing.

There is still a chance for a few more men to get in the company if they so desire, but application must be made early to any one of the following persons, who form the committee: Dr. W. Kempton Browning, John M. Lewis, John P. Mosher, F. M. Letson and Charles Peterson. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at the Hotel Kensington to further complete the preliminary arrangements.

MRS. LEWIS BROUGHT HOME.

Her Condition Was Improved—Long Journey Was Accomplished Successfully.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of West Seventh street, reached home last evening with Mrs. Lewis and her nurse, coming from Battle Creek, Mich., by the way of the Grand Trunk and Lehigh Valley Railroads. The journey lasted twenty-five hours and Mrs. Lewis stood the strain of it well and is resting comfortably today.

The paralysis of the right side continues and she is unable to speak so as to be understood except in a few monosyllables. Her son-in-law, James E. Kimball, of Park avenue, met the party at the Lehigh Valley station at South Plainfield with the ambulance.

Dr. Lewis reports that there has been much improvement in her case within a month past which made it possible for her to come home. He says also that the treatment, electrical and otherwise, which she received at the sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., has been very satisfactory and that her special nurse will remain with her for a time.

It has been fully demonstrated that Ely's Cream Balm is a specific for Nasal Catarrh and cold in the head. This distinction has been achieved only as the result of continued successful use. A morbid condition of the membrane in the nasal passages can be cured by this purifying and healing treatment. Sold by druggists or it will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York. It spreads over the membrane, is absorbed and relief is immediate.

Business Change.

Charles Yaeger, who has been associated with T. J. Carey, of West Front street, for some time past, has taken charge of the auction and commission business at 324 West Front street, which was formerly conducted by Mr. Carey. The latter will devote his time to the storage and moving department of the business. Mr. Yaeger's advertisement appears in another part of the Press.

Wedding Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grinnell Taylor, of Brooklyn, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gracey Taylor, to Charles Curtis Beard, Jr., of Hillside avenue, which occurred on Wednesday last at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Beard will soon start west on a honeymoon. Mr. Beard represents a New York house and travels extensively.

Social at Hope Chapel.

The pupils of the adult classes connected with Hope chapel Sunday-school will hold a social in the chapel this evening. An interesting programme of vocal and instrumental selections have been prepared which will no doubt be greatly enjoyed by all in attendance.

HACKMEN IN COURT.

Offenders Against Hack Ordinance Will Be Summarily Dealt With In The Future.

Two violators of the hack ordinance, Walter Thompson and William Callahan, appeared in the City Court this morning on complaint of Patrolman Vanderweig. The latter was fined $5 but the sentence was suspended on condition that the offense should not be repeated.

Thompson pleaded not guilty, claiming that he had been previously engaged by the passenger with whom he was charged with soliciting. As there appeared to be some doubt in the matter the judge gave him the benefit of it and dismissed him.

Both hackmen were given to understand that in the future all violators of the ordinance will be summarily dealt with and that the police officers will be upheld in all charges.

Beet Beats the Sugar Cane.

According to a recent consular report from Magdeburg, Germany, the production of beet sugar in the world is now twice as great as that of cane sugar. This victory of the beet over the cane is ascribed to the influence of the science of chemistry in developing the industry of beet sugar making. This influence is especially exerted in Germany, where more than 1,000 chemists are exclusively employed in the sugar factories. The manufacture of beet sugar has taken a sudden start in Spain since she lost her colonies in the war with the United States.—Youth's Companion.

—Young men interested in the formation of a class in mechanical engineering will meet at the Y. M. C. A. this evening.

—Recent experiments show that all classes of foods may be completely digested by a preparation called Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which absolutely digests what you eat. As it is the only combination of all the natural digestants ever devised the demand for it has become enormous. It has never failed to cure the very worst cases of indigestion and it always gives instant relief. L. W. Randolph.

Rutgers Boys to Sing.

Every seat in Y. M. C. A. Hall should be occupied next Tuesday evening when the old time favorites, the Rutgers Glee Club, give one of the pleasing entertainments for the benefit of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association. No pleasanter evening could be spent than in listening to the college songs which only college boys know how to sing.

Lost The Goat.

Great Sachem William Newcorn is mourning the loss of his small goat which he took from the Keyport Tribe a few weeks ago ago. The animal was taken last Thursday evening at the district session by Great Prophet Stiles, of Atlantic City, and the chances of getting him back are very slim. Mr. Newcorn is thinking of bringing suit for damages.

Agent For Huyler's.

LAST SAD RITES IN CHARGE OF MASONS.

Impressive Services of Charles C. Howard Were Held Yesterday Afternoon.

AT GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

MANY PROMINENT IN MASONRY WERE PRESENT.

After Episcopal Service, The Masonic Funeral and Burial Ritual Were Followed—Beautiful Floral Tributes.

The last sad rites attendant upon the death of Charles Curtis Howard were observed yesterday afternoon when the funeral services were held at Grace P. E church at 3:30 o'clock. With beautiful simplicity, yet solemn impressiveness, the services of the church, as well as those of the Masonic fraternity of which the deceased was a loyal and prominent member, were conducted in the presence of a large number of friends who completely filled the handsome edifice.

The officers and members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., and Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., together with Most Worshipful Grand Master J. E. Moore, of Jersey City; Right Worshipful Brother Alton H. Serman, of Orange, district deputy of district No. 9; Right Worshipful Brother Elmer E. Smith, of Newark, district deputy of district No. 6; Right Worshipful Brother George C. Warren, of Barnegat, district deputy of district No. 4; Right Worshipful Grand Secretary Thomas H. R. Redway, of Trenton; Right Worshipful Brother Walter Chandler, of Elizabeth, district deputy of district No. 5, and Past District Deputy Grand Master Anthony Schoder, of Woodbridge, met at Masonic Hall and proceeded to the late home of the deceased and escorted the remains to the church.

The casket was carried into the edifice and placed at the altar by four colored porters, and the members of the Masonic fraternity followed, taking seats reserved for them. They were preceded by the vested choir of the church, and as they approached the altar an appropriate hymn was sung. Rev. E. M. Rodman, the rector, conducted the services according to the church ritual, and the choir, under the direction of Mrs. Wm. A. Freeman, the organist, assisted. There was a beautiful solo rendered by Arthur A. Freeman, assisted by the choir.

Following this part of the service, Most Worshipful Grand Master J. E. Moore took charge and conducted the Masonic service. Right Worshipful Brother Walter Chandler lead in repeating the Lord's Prayer, after which the beautiful and impressive part of the Grand Master was recited. On either side of him stood the grand lodge officers and during the recitative the Masonic hymns were sung. The committment service of the church and the lodge was performed entire, owing to the fact that the remains will be interred out of town.

There were many very beautiful floral tributes including a broken column from the district deputies of New Jersey, an anchor from Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., a cross from Trinity Commandery, No, 17, Knights Templar, and a wreath from the firm of J. W. Seligman & Co., of New York, by whom Mr. Howard was employed.

After the services at the church the remains were escorted to the undertaking parlors of A. M. Bunyon & Son by the Masonic fraternity and this morning at 6 o'clock they were sent to Pittsfield, Mass., for interment in the family plot, where Mr. Howard's parents are buried.

The honorary pall bearers, all past masters, were Peter A. Emmons, Stephen Higham, F. O. Herring, William A. Freeman, of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., and Nelson Y. Dungan, Samuel Bingham, C. J. Littell and F. E Kinsman, of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T. These bearers were selected some time ago by Mr. Howard.

Business Session First.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will meet this evening and hold the regular business session, after which the devotional services will be in charge of Miss Sadie Searing. All are welcome.

New Electric Cranes.

Two new electric cranes to be used in the foundry at the Pond Tool Works have arrived and will soon be put in position.

GATHERED AT CHAPEL.

Programme Rendered for Adult Classes of Hope Chapel Saturday Evening.

Under the auspices of their respective teachers, the adult classes connected with Hope chapel gathered in the chapel Saturday evening and spent several hours in a very pleasant manner. An excellent programme was rendered, consisting of recitations by Miss Grace Overton, vocal solos by Percy Stewart, accompanied by Miss Marie Newman, and mandolin selections by Fred Van Eps, accompanied by Miss Edna Burr. Refreshments were afterward passed and the rest of the evening was spent by those in attendance in getting better acquainted with each other.

TOLD OF MOODY'S WORK.

REV. DR. SCHENCK PREACHED SERMON ON GREAT EVANGELIST.

Moody Memorial Day Was Observed in Several of the Local Churches.

Yesterday was set apart as a day of remembrance for the Moody Memorial endowment fund, when an effort was made to secure contributions toward a fund to perpetuate the work commenced by Mr. Moody. It was observed more or less among the local churches. In the evening at Trinity Reformed church, the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., devoted the service to an exposition of the life of Mr. Moody and his work and the institutions founded by him. There was a good sized congregation present and all were interested in Pastor Schenck's remarks.

Dr. Schenck took his text from Ephesians, fourth chapter and eleventh verse, "And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers." He then divided his discourse into four parts, first speaking of Mr. Moody as a mighty man, whereby he was able to move large numbers and secure the working of the Holy Spirit among them. He next spoke of Mr. Moody's earnestness of his thorough devotion to his work, attracting sinners to Christ. The evangelist's faith in men, was the next point, and Pastor Schenck showed how Mr. Moody never lost hope or faith in men whom he was striving to win for Christ, and thus he was able to accomplish great good and bring scores into the Kingdom of God.

Mr. Moody's faith in Christ was the last point spoken of, and in this it was shown that the evangelist was always in complete harmony with Christ and his faith never wavered. He had a strong hold of Christ as well as of men, and there was an inseparable influence that led to the saving of thousands of souls. Dr. Schenck spoke earnestly and fervently concerning Mr. Moody and his work and urged all to contribute something toward keeping alive the influence and work founded by the great Christian worker. An offering was taken and given to the memorial fund.

DEATH OF MRS. MINER.

Was Related to Several Residents of Plainfield.

Mrs. D. M. Miner passed away at her home at Oriskany Falls, N. Y., Saturday afternoon, after a long illness. She was eighty-one years old. She is survived by five children—Mrs. Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place, and Willard M. Miner, of East Sixth street, this city; Miss Ellen L. Miner and E. Burdette Miner, of Oriskany Falls, and Chas. E. Miner, of Chicago, Ill. There are eleven grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Morse and Willard M. Miner, of this city, are now at Oriskany Falls, where they will remain until after the funeral. They were summoned there last week and were able to reach Mrs. Miner's bedside before her death.

To Travel With Jeffries.

Henry Ackerman, of this city, left Saturday for Cincinnati, O., where he will rejoin Champion James J. Jeffries, who is in training there for his coming fight with Gus Ruhlin. Mr. Ackerman will assist the pugilist in his training, and after the fight will travel with his theatrical troupe playing "The Man From the West." The company opens in Columbus the night after the championship battle takes place.

JUNIORS WON FLAG AT FIREMEN'S FAIR.

Franklin Council Victorious in Voting Contest at North Plainfield Fair.

BIG CROWD WAS PRESENT.

MANY PRIZES WERE WON ON THE BOWLING ALLEYS.

Tonight is Last Night of Borough Firemen's Fair and Large Crowd is Expected—An Entertaining Programme Provided.

There was the usual large crowd at the North Plainfield firemen's fair in Saengerbund Hall Saturday evening, but everyone seemed to be in the best of humor and the pushing and jostling did not mar the pleasure of those present.

Dancing was commenced early and was only stopped at short intervals for the committee to announce the names of those who had won prizes. There were a large number of vases, canned goods and similar articles won on the bowling alleys, and the rumble of the bowling balls could be heard all through the evening. Charles Emmons made the highest score of the evening by rolling 121 in five frames.

"McKinley Mack," with his partner, carried off the cake in the cake walk. He also gave some very fair specimens of clog dancing. The "Black Diamond Quartette" were among those on the entertainment programme and gave a number of vocal selections.

In the contest for the flag among the different societies of the city resulted in a victory for Franklin Council with a total number of 670 votes. The U. S. Grant Glee Club was second with 441 votes. There was a number of other organizations in the contest but the lead of the Council was not to be overcome. When the winner was announced the cheering of the Juniors present was deafening and it was sometime before order was restored.

The fair will be continued again this evening and in all probability there will be as large a crowd as there was Saturday. The committee announced that the fair would be run all night and that dancing would be the main feature and would be kept up until morning. Tonight all the books will be called in and the winners among the contestants announced.

MARRIED QUIETLY.

Miss Carrie Knight and Charles Bowden Joined in Wedlock Saturday Afternoon.

In a very quiet manner, Miss Carrie Knight and Charles Bowden, both of this city, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Montie S. Knight, of New street, Saturday afternoon. Only a few intimate friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony. Rev. G. K. Newell, pastor of Hope chapel, pronounced the words which made them man and wife.

Miss Lillie Knight and Montie Knight, Jr., sister and brother of the bride acted as bridemaid and best man. The bride was very prettily attired in a gown of white mulle over blue silk.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowden will reside for the present with the latter's parents but it is their intention to take up housekeeping in the spring.

Declares Story False.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I do not wish to enter into any newspaper controversy, but in justice to all concerned I wish to state that there is not one grain of truth in the statements as made in Saturday's Press as far as they concern the school and myself.

FANWOOD IN HARD LUCK.

MADE FINE SHOWING IN THE FIRST HALF OF GAME.

Accident to Two Players Crippled Fanwood Team and Flushing Soldiers Won Easily.

After outplaying the crack team of the Seventeenth Separate Company, of Flushing, L. I., for one half, the injury of two of the best players of the basket ball team of the Fanwood Athletic Club lost the game played at the Flushing armory Saturday evening for the Fanwood boys and they returned home defeated. At the end of the first half, the score stood 5 to 4, in favor of the Fanwood team while the final result was 26 to 5, in favor of the Seventeenth Separate Company.

The soldier boys of Flushing have one of the strongest teams in the metropolitan district, having suffered but one defeat this season and that at the hands of the Yale University boys. Saturday evening's game was played in their armory where there is a playing floor a hundred and fifty feet long. It was a new experience to the Fanwood boys who were used to a small room. They adapted themselves to circumstances readily, however, and developed a running game that should have won.

At the start, it was evident that the teams were closely matched. The play was hard and fast but entirely free from roughness. Throughout the entire game, only two fouls were called. The visitors started their team work at once. After two minutes of play, George Smith made a long throw and scored the first goal. The home team scored almost immediately after. On a foul, Smith made a goal. Walter Long scored next on a long and clever throw. A collision with one of the Flushing players laid Smith out shortly before time was called. There was no substitute to take his place and so he had to hobble around. The home team scored just before the end of the first half.

In the opening play of the second half, Long came to grief. Owing to the lack of substitutes, he was compelled to return to the floor and hopped about on one foot. Both Smith and Long were unable to do any active work and the Flushing contingent had things their own way, scoring at will. The play was around Fanwood's goal, and the Fanwoodites played only to keep their opponents' score down. The home team scored eleven goals before the half was over.

After the great showing of the first half, there was general regret expressed by the Flushing players, at the injury of the Fanwood boys which prevented a continuance of the close play of the first half.

The lineup:

FANWOOD A. C.		17TH SEP. CO,
Long	right forward	Hamilton
Looney	left forward	Clark
Smith	centre	Hecklum
Kieb	right guard	Wiehe
Moralier	left guard	Hendrickson

Score—17th Sep. Co., 26; Fanwood A. C., 5. Goals from the field—Hamilton (2), Clark (5), Hecklum (2), Wiehe (3), Hendrickson, Long, Smith. Goals on Fouls—Smith, Fouls—Fanwood A. C., 1; 17th Sep. Co., 1.

LOCKED UP TWICE.

Lester B. Harris, an Oak Tree Milkman, Attempted to Celebrate His Release From Jail.

The city jail seemed to have a peculiar fascination, Saturday, for Lester B. Harris, an Oak Tree milkman, as within one hour after he had been released, having been arrested for drunkenness, he again returned escorted by a policeman. The officer explained Harris' return by stating that the purveyor of milk had met some friends who insisted that he celebrate his release with the aid of liquid refreshments. The result was Harris' return to durance vile.

He was allowed to depart a second time in order that his customers might be supplied yesterday morning, but with express orders that he appear in court this morning. Whether the fascination had worn off, or whether he had again tarried by the wayside is not known as he did not answer to his name when called up in court this morning. He will be arrested as soon as seen and be held until tomorrow.

Officiated at Funeral.

Rev. W. L. Jones, of Westervelt avenue, was called to Elizabeth yesterday afternoon to officiate at the funeral of Lucille Josephine Farmer, the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayde C Farmer, of that city. The interment took place at Evergreen cemetery, Elizabeth.

The local Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will meet tomorrow evening in Washington Hall to elect officers and still further perfect the new organization.

Announcement of Engagement.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Lena Lieble, of East Fifth street, and Charles H. Myers, of Scotch Plains.

NO MORE SPEEDING ON CITY'S STREETS.

Orders Go Forth From Police Headquarters That Horsemen Must Not Race.

A LIMIT TO THEIR PACE.

PROPERTY OWNERS INSIST THAT ORDINANCE MUST BE OBEYED.

Policemen on Duty on East Front Street and Park Avenue, But No Arrests Made — Chief Objectors Refuse to Appear in Court.

To the majority of the owners of fast horses, yesterday's excellent sleighing had little charms, for immediately after Saturday's heavy snowfall, the edict went forth from police headquarters that no fast driving on any of the public streets would be tolerated. This, of course, put an end to all the cherished hopes of outdistancing rivals on the morrow as the sleighing was certain to bring out all the speedy horses in the city. In consequence of the order from the police, East Front street and Park avenue, near the city limits, in comparison to the past few days, presented an almost deserted appearance to the great disappointment of large numbers of pedestrians who journeyed thither with the expectation of witnessing the speeding.

Ever since the first snowfall a week ago, horsemen have been in the habit of congregating on those streets to test the abilities of their respective steeds, the result being some very fast driving. While it was all enjoyment to the participants, it was not to the residents along the route and the latter complained to Chief Kiely. As there is a city ordinance which prohibits fast driving, the Chief notified the sportsmen that they must desist. In order to enforce the rule Patrolman Higgins was stationed along East Front street and Patrolman Saunders on Park avenue below Ninth street. They had no occasion, however, to make any arrests as most of the horses went by at an ordinary gate.

In behalf of the residents on East Front street who made the complaint, it may be said that their reason for doing so was on account of its being almost impossible to cross the street while the horses were rushing up and down at breakneck speed. Naturally they objected to the thoroughfare being picked out for racing purposes, while in their opinion others just as desirable and less prominent were to be found in every part of the city.

As soon as it became known among local horsemen that no racing would be allowed in the city limits large numbers of them proceeded to the outskirts on Park avenue where they speeded all the afternoon knowing they were safely out of the jurisdiction of Chief Kiely and his watchful patrolmen.

This morning two of the most strenuous objectors to the speeding appeared before Chief Kiely and demanded that the offenders be arrested. They refused to make a complaint themselves and declined to appear as witnesses if one is made by the police. As the speeders immediately slow down on catching sight of a patrolman, the latter have found it impossible to make an arrest although it is the wish of the objectors that they do so. It is thought that the horseman will desist in using the street and if possible secure one in a more secluded locality where they will be free from molestation.

Dislocated His Ankle.

While walking through the vacant lot at the corner of Grant avenue and West Fourth street, Saturday evening, Cornelius Ackerman, of West Fifth street, slipped and fell. He was unable to rise and the police were telephoned for. Chief Kiely responded with a carriage and the injured man was taken to his home. Dr. Buchanan was called and on examination found Mr. Ackerman's ankle to be dislocated. The injury is very painful and will confine him to the house for sometime.

SLEIGHING PARTY.

Young People Enjoyed a Pleasant Evening First in Big Sleigh and Then at Robert Morgan's Home.

Under the leadership of Robert Morgan, of West Front street, from whose home the start was made, twenty young people enjoyed a jolly sleigh-ride to Elizabeth and return Saturday evening. Upon their return they spent a pleasant hour at Mr. Morgan's home in playing games. Among those who attended were the Misses Marjorie Burke, Annie Wenzel, Edna and Marjorie Phillips, Edith Robinson, Florence Roseberry, Etta Randolph, May McCann, Edith and May Squires and Lewis Tallamy, Charles Wenzel, David Gordon, Monroe Squires, Sidney Smith, Joseph Robinson, John Cox and Allen Squires.

UNION ENDEAVOR MEETING.

WILL BE HELD IN CONNECTION WITH EVANCELISTIC SERVICES.

Time and Place Will Be Announced Later—Will Aid the Work at Westfield Fresh Air Camp.

The executive committee of the Local Union Christian Endeavor met Saturday evening at the home of the secretary, Miss Ernestine Smith, on Madison avenue. There were sixteen members present, representing all the societies except the ones from the First Baptist and Congregational churches.

It was decided to hold a union service in connection with the special evangelistic meetings soon to be held in this city.

Mrs. David M. Runyon, superintendent of the missionary department of Union, was empowered to arrange for the time and place to hold such service and announce the same. The secretary was also instructed to correspond with the secretary of the committee having charge of the special services and inquire in what way the Endeavorers can assist in the services.

The Endeavorers were much helped and interested in a talk given by Mrs. E. R. Taylor, a city missionary, who told of her work, and definite plans will be made to assist Mrs. Taylor in her efforts.

The members discussed matters pertaining to the Westfield Fresh Air Camp, and it was decided to hold a meeting in this city in April to discuss ways and means for carrying on the summer work at the camp. It was also determined to hold the annual meeting of the Local Union in March, at a date to be decided later. Each society represented presented a report showing that all are in a prosperous condition, financially and spiritually. Before the meeting adjourned refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Former Lay Reader at Grace Church.

Rev. Horace C. Hooker, formerly lay reader at Grace P. E. church, but of late curate at the Church of the Incarnation in New York, died very suddenly last Saturday, and Dr. Rodman made touching reference to his life and work at the service in Grace church yesterday morning. Mr. Hooker was in Plainfield about five years ago and was succeeded by Rev. Floyd Appleton. The funeral services were held today in New York.

John Coleman Dead.

John Coleman, proprietor of the Coleman House at West Orange, and who conducted a livery stable in North Plainfield for many years, died this morning at his home in West Orange. He was well known here among the older generation. His livery stable was located on Jackson avenue and he sold out his interest fifteen years ago to Frank Day, of this city.

BURGLARS ENTERED TWO MORE HOUSES.

They Ransacked the Premises But Failed to Secure Anything of Value.

MR. ATTERBURY'S AGAIN.

BOTH FAMILIES WERE STOPPING IN NEW YORK.

Entered A. H. Atterbury's Residence Through Kitchen Window—Keys Unlocked Side Door at Home of E. H. Booth, Central Avenue.

For the second time within two weeks, burglars appeared in this city, Saturday night, entering the residences of A. H. Atterbury, of East Ninth street, and E. H. Booth, of Central avenue, some time during the night. So far as known nothing was obtained at either place although the occupants were not at home.

At the Booth residence the thieves are supposed to have gained entrance with the aid of keys, as all the windows were afterward found to be securely fastened, but a side door was open. Their visit was made known to the housekeeper, who discovered the contents of bureau drawers scattered about on entering the house yesterday morning. She claims to have been acquainted with the contents of the bureaus and is sure that nothing was taken.

Mr. Atterbury's residence was entered through a kitchen window, but for some reason nothing was taken there either, although as in the former case the rooms showed a general ransacking.

Mr. Atterbury arrived home yesterday and made a hurried inventory, but as yet nothing has been found missing.

This is the second time the latter residence has been entered within a short time. On the first occasion the thieves were discovered by the family and frightened away although they secured several articles of jewelry. So far the police have gained no definite clue as to the identity of the burglars although a careful investigation is being made.

Youthful Artist.

At the session of the Hope chapel Sunday-school held yesterday afternoon a pleasing solo, "Jesus Bids Us Shine," was rendered by Miss Anna Warnock, a little tot but five years old. While this was her first appearance before an audience, and the school is the largest in the city, the little soloist acquitted herself in a manner which called forth much favorable comment

Funeral of Mrs. Hayward.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Catherine Hayward, aged 94 years, was held yesterday afternoon from the house 65 Fairview avenue, and were conducted by Mr. Loizeaux and Fred W. Grant, members of the Plymouth Brethren, of which the deceased was a member. The remains were taken last evening to Toronto, Can., for interment.

Decision.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Tonight the patrons of Music Hall will have an opportunity of seeing the romantic and powerful acting of Carl Haswin who will be remembered for his many years' successes as "The King." Mr. Haswin is this season starring in that famous melodrama, "A Lion's Heart," a play that has been produced in London more times than any other of its class. It has received the highest enconiums of the English press and public, and its presentation in this country has made a favorable impression.

The play bristles with exciting situations, amusing comedy that is really funny and realistic scenic calcium effects new and novel. It does not depend upon any cheap sensational effects for its success and should not be contemplated as belonging to the ordinary so-called melodramas. There is nothing cheap or trashy about it. The story is based upon the machinations of a villain who entices away the wife of the lion tamer of a circus who swears vengeance and in the end makes good his vow. The character of Pierre, the lion tamer, is played by Mr Haswin in his usual vigorous and careful manner. He is capably supported by a competent cast.

"The Eleventh Hour," which will open at Music Hall Wednesday night, is one of the most complete traveling companies on the road, carrying all their own special scenery, which was designed and made by Buhler & Mann, the well-known scenic artists, one scene alone costing $5,000, being a reproduction of the magnificent drawing room of a Chicago millionaire. To get as near the original as possible photographs were taken by the kind permission of the owner, and thus all details were copied, even to handsome vases and bric a-brac. The play has met with great success in other cities and no doubt will score one more while at Plainfield.

COLONEL A. D. SHAW.

Past Grand Army Commander Found Dead In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. Representative Albert D. Shaw of Watertown, N. Y., formerly commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was found dead late Sunday morning in his room at the Riggs House. A physician summoned immediately after the discovery of the body pronounced death due to apoplexy, probably about 2 o'clock in the morning. Colonel Shaw had returned about 1:30 o'clock from a banquet at the Ebbitt House in honor of his successor, General Lee Rassieur, and before he left the banquet hall had responded eloquently to a toast and appeared in excellent health and spirits. The body was discovered lying face downward on the floor. The features were slightly bruised, showing he had fallen suddenly and heavily. After his return to the hotel Colonel Shaw asked for hot water, complaining of indigestion. The water was brought to him, and that was the last seen of him alive.

Colonel Shaw was 59 years of age and a veteran of the civil war. He was a widower, his wife dying just one year ago yesterday. He was the picture of health, of commanding stature, strongly built, with square shoulders and erect figure, which, with white hair and mustache, made him a conspicuous figure in the house. An active worker during his incumbency of the commander in chief's office, he frequently came to Washington and took a hand in urging legislation for the old soldiers before the committees of congress.

Colonel Shaw was born in Lyme, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1841. He served a term of enlistment in the Thirty-fifth New York volunteers and as a special agent of the war department at provost marshal headquarters during the civil war. Later he was a member of the state assembly for one term, was appointed consul to Toronto in 1868 and promoted to Manchester, England, in 1878, from which latter place he was removed by President Cleveland in 1885 for being "an offensive partisan." Afterward he filled the office of department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic for the state of New York, commander in chief of the national body and a representative in congress, succeeding the late C. A. Chickering, who met a tragic death in New York.

A Fiendish Robbery.

MANSFIELD, O., Feb. 11.—One of the most dastardly robberies ever perpetrated in this part of the country was committed near McKay, a hamlet in Ashland county, about midnight Saturday night. Six masked robbers broke into the residence of John Duncan, a wealthy farmer, bound and gagged Mr. Duncan and the four other members of the family and after ransacking the house demanded of the farmer that he disclose to them where his money and other valuables were secreted, and on his refusing to do so they applied matches to his feet, torturing him as well as the others until the location of the money was disclosed. The thieves evidently knew that Mr. Duncan had considerably money at home, as he was suspicious of banks. They secured $450, four watches and other valuables, after which four of the robbers, leaving their victims still helpless, stole a team of horses and a bobsled and made their escape. The other robbers went toward Loudonville. The Mansfield police have been notified, and every effort is being put forth to find the guilty parties.

New Cure For Consumption.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Dr. George M. Barney of Brooklyn, formerly president of the Long Island Medical society, is the discoverer of an alleged new cure for consumption. He claims 92 per cent of recoveries under his system. Improvement is supposed to be brought about and felt by the patient within the period of one week. The doctor is quoted as follows: "My treatment consists of introducing into the system a chemical or combination of chemicals. This combination thoroughly saturates the system and by reason of its irresistible power destroys the bacilli without injuring the tissue cells. It is administered in three ways. It is administered through the mouth, hypodermically and in vapor form. When the vapor is used, the patient inhales from 3 to 15 minutes while seated in a specially equipped steel cabinet. To effect a cure takes all the way from 12 to 16 weeks of treatment, according to the resistance of the disease and the recuperating physical condition of the subject."

Fight at a Wedding Feast.

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 11.—There was the liveliest kind of a time here last night incidental to the celebration of a wedding. One man was stabbed, another had a couple of ribs broken, and a hundred or more had bruised eyes and faces when the police arrived and cleared the hall. The bride was Annie Saltz of this city, and the bridegroom was Isidore Cohen of New York. Cohen is said to have taken part in the fight, but so far as can be learned the bride was one of a few out of the 300 present who failed to get into the mix up.

One Point Remains to Be Settled.

HAVANA, Feb. 11.—The Cuban constitutional convention has completed its work with the exception of settling the deadlock which still exists on the question of accepting the clause that will make General Maximo Gomez eligible to the presidency of the republic. As both factions are very anxious to get the constitution before the United States congress it is thought by some that a compromise will be reached, but the feeling is very bitter, and there is a possibility that the controversy will be prolonged.

Incendiarism Suspected.

HARTFORD, Feb. 11.—The barn of Colonel William C. Skinner, a wealthy cotton merchant, was burned last night. In it were stored much furniture, a valuable library, bric-a-brac, etc., and the loss will reach $20,000, partially insured. A few weeks ago his handsome residence was damaged by fire to the extent of $15,000. An investigation will follow, as incendiarism is suspected.

A Load of Wild Animals.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The Hamburg American steamer Pennsylvania, from Hamburg, brought 75 cases of wild animals consisting of polar bears, monkeys and many others. Some are consigned to William Bartels and others to the Zoological gardens at Cincinnati.

A Fatal Fire.

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—Two persons dead, five others badly injured and a financial loss of $2,500 is the summary of damage caused by a fire that occurred in a four story brick dwelling on Harrison avenue.

LOPEZ HEARD FROM.

Filipinos, He Says, Will Never Yield Sovereignty.

BENEVOLENCE AND CHARITY SPURNED

Suggests That American Missionary Zeal Would Find a More Profitable Field Elsewhere, Even at Home.

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—Robert Treat Paine, president of the American Peace society, has just received a letter from Senor Sixto Lopez which shows the attitude of the Filipinos on the question of bringing the war to a close. The letter in part follows:

"I have to thank you for your most interesting and sympathetic letter, which reached me via Chicago and Philadelphia, and I now hasten to reply.

"I fear that you have misunderstood my statement of the terms upon which the Filipinos would be prepared to end this most deplorable war. The Filipinos will never accept American sovereignty in the sense in which that word is generally understood. Whether they would accept suzerainty would also depend upon the definition of the word and the powers which it implied. But let me now briefly state what I intended to convey to you on Jan. 1.

"The administration is demanding certain rights in the Philippines. These are, so far as I can discover:

"First.—The right and the means to fulfill certain (unspecified) obligations to other nations.

"Second.—The right and the means to protect life and property—foreign and native.

"Third.—A basis of trade and military operations for the far east.

"Fourth.—Coaling stations.

"Fifth.—The right or the desire to raise us—by a process called 'benevolent assimilation'—out of a condition of savagery which does not exist in our country.

"In order to obtain these rights the administration demands that our people shall surrender unconditionally and submit to American sovereignty.

"The Filipinos, on the other hand, demand one 'unalienable right'—namely, independence or the right to 'institute' a government 'deriving its just powers from the consent,' not of any foreign nation, but 'of the governed.' It is only by the exercise of this right that the Filipinos will be able to secure equitable laws, insure just administration and prevent the exploitation of their country and its resources.

"But while firm in this demand the Filipinos are prepared to yield to the United States everything included or implied in the above list from one to four inclusive. In addition to this they are prepared to repay, in whole or in part, the $20,000,000 paid to Spain if the demand be made by the United States.

"As to paragraph 5, the Filipinos do not want and will not accept anything in the form of benevolence or charity from any nation in the world. But if any American citizen or citizens desire to embark in missionary enterprise and if they really think that there are those in the Philippines who need special enlightenment they would be at liberty to spend their missionary zeal without let or hindrance. The Filipinos would only reserve the right to recommend that such missionary zeal be expended on Spain or Turkey or Russia or the east end of London or perhaps in some parts of America where education and enlightenment are more urgently needed than in the Philippines.

"It will therefore be seen that every demand that the administration is making, with the exception of that denied to George III, will be granted by the Filipinos."

Suspected Safe Robbers Arrested.

SIOUX CITY, Feb. 11.—Prompt and active work by the authorities at Manila, Ia., resulted in the arrest of three men who are supposed to have been implicated in the theft of the United States Express safe said to have contained $40,000. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train on which the safe was taken from Sioux City arrived at Manila at 8:05 o'clock Saturday night. The Omaha train was late, and James Sturtevant of Sioux City, the express messenger, did not hurry in unloading the goods and packages from his car. The express safe, with other articles, was unloaded and placed on a truck on the depot platform, and then Sturtevant and the baggageman went to the other end of the platform to get another truckload. When Sturtevant returned, he noticed that the articles on the truck were disarranged, and a glance showed that the iron box was gone. There was great excitement, and no time was lost in spreading the alarm. City Marshal Ferrill hastily assembled a posse, and vigorous work was begun.

To Treat Cotton Seed.

AUSTIN, Feb. 11.—The first and only plant in the world for the extracting of whole kernels of cotton seed from the hulls began operation here today. It was erected at a cost of $30,000 and has a daily capacity of 100 tons of cotton seed. The kernels are abstracted by a machine and a chemical process which was invented by a member of the firm which owns and will operate the plant. The kernels will be shipped to France, where the oil will be extracted and the meal sold for a much higher price than is to be obtained in this country. The separation of the hulls from the kernels not only makes a big saving in freight, but also means a big reduction in duty. The new invention may revolutionize the cotton seed manufacturing industry.

A Railway Project.

SIOUX CITY, Feb. 11.—The promoters of the Northern Air line between Sioux City and Omaha, it is said here, have made all arrangements for the financing of the project, the money to be forthcoming as soon as the bill extending the charter of the company through the Omaha and Winnebago Indian reservations is signed by the president. This bill has already passed the senate and has been favorably reported to the house. The road will be bonded for probably $4,000,000.

Thieves at Kings' Tombs.

ROME, Feb. 11. The Pantheon, where the bodies of King Victor Emmanuel II and King Humbert lie, has been invaded by thieves. The bodies were disturbed. The thieves took what they thought was the iron crown and collar of the order of the Annunziata, but which were only copies. They also stole a few sacred objects.

THE MEN TAKE A HAND

Topeka Business Leaders Say "Joints" Must Go.

AN ULTIMATUM TO SALOON KEEPERS

Keepers of Illegal Resorts In the City Given Five Days to Dispose of Stock and Close—A Rousing Mass Meeting.

TOPEKA, Feb. 11.—Three thousand male citizens of Topeka in mass meeting here have decided that the numerous "joints" of the city must close their places. They issued an ultimatum giving the "jointists" until Friday next at 12 o'clock noon to quit business. If this shall not be done, warning was given that 1,000 armed men would immediately move on the "joints" and remove them by force. This action is the result of the crusade started in Topeka less than ten days ago by Mrs. Carrie Nation. The meeting yesterday afternoon was a remarkable one in every respect. It was called by a committee of the Law Enforcement league and was attended by nearly all the prominent business men of the city. A feeling of intense earnestness pervaded the meeting. Conservative men who have hitherto advocated moderation in the dealings with the lawless element insisted in unmistakable terms that the time had come when patience had ceased to be a virtue and that the people of Topeka should take the law in their own hands.

The meeting was opened with prayer. After a few short, snappy addresses, which worked the audience to a high degree of enthusiasm, an ultimatum was proposed and passed amid the loudest cheering. The ultimatum, which was adopted by a rising vote, follows:

"To Those Immediately Engaged In the Illicit Business, Whether Wholesale or Retail:

"We have to say that the long controversy of the public with you must now come to an end. You have openly and persistently defied our laws, you have made yourselves the agents of even greater criminals outside of the state, who have supported you in your unlawful traffic; you have gathered about you a criminal element that is a perpetual menace to the safety of the community and have maintained places that engender and encourage all vices; you have introduced the most corrupting and demoralizing factors and influences into our local politics, and for years you have scorned all appeals and warnings that have been presented to you by the virtue loving people of the community.

"Now we feel that the time has come when we must speak to you peremptorily. We cease now to endeavor to persuade. We command. You must stop this lawless and iniquitous business and stop it at once, and we hereby notify you that we must have unquestionable evidence absolutely satisfactory to the committee of public order which we today constitute that all your illicit goods, together with all the associated fixtures and furnishings of the places where your unlawful business has been carried on, shall have been removed and shipped from the city before 12 o'clock noon, Friday, Feb. 15, 1901. Upon the strict and literal observance of this demand we shall insist, and if it shall be disregarded we will take whatever measures are necessary for its rigid enforcement.

"If a long outraged public shall be compelled to resort to the fundamental right of self vindication against criminals and their abettors, the grave consequences to evildoers which may result from such a resort must rest with the defiers and nullifiers of our laws and the obstructors of our governmental machinery."

Twelve hundred men signed their names to cards pledging themselves to be ready at a moment's notice to join the army which has been recruited to stamp out the joints by the time the limit set by the ultimatum expires.

A Law and Order League.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 11.—A law and order league has been organized here as a result of the visit of Mrs. Carrie Nation. The object of the league, as stated in its bylaws, is to "see that the laws of Kansas City as to saloons and gambling are enforced for the protection of homes and children and for the general welfare of the people." There is to be no smashing of saloons, but vigorous action will be taken to suppress the evils that result from alleged nonenforcement of prohibitory and Sunday closing laws. A hatchet pin will be the emblem of the league.

Not Popular In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—The lecture of Mrs. Carrie Nation, the joint smasher from Kansas, advertised to be given at the Auditorium tomorrow night under the auspices of the Chicago Press club has been declared off. Believing from the result of two days' seat sales, which aggregated less than $12, that the lecture would be a financial failure the directory of the club decided to abandon the project. Mrs. Nation says she will come to Chicago nevertheless.

Fast Yacht to Be Built.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—A yacht to be faster than the Genesee, the Rochester boat, which won the international championship from Canada last year, is being designed in the east. The designer of the yacht is Charles G. Davis of Chicago, formerly of the Hanley Construction company of Quincy, Mass. The boat is to be owned by a syndicate of Chicago yachtsmen, the names of whom for the present cannot be divulged.

Large Tannery Destroyed.

OLEAN, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Quirin's tannery, one of the largest in western New York and located in East Olean, has been totally destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $120,000. The hydrants in the vicinity of the tannery were frozen, and the fire department could do but little to check the flames. The loss is covered by insurance. About 150 men will be thrown out of employment.

Killed In an Elevator.

HARTFORD, Feb. 11.—Frederick Mongrain, 17 years old, was killed in an elevator accident yesterday morning in the Phœnix National bank building. The signal bells on the elevator were out of order, and Mongrain was assisting in making repairs.

Famous Chemist Shoots Himself.

MUNICH, Feb. 11.—Professor Max von Pettenkofer, the distinguished German chemist, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in a fit of depression. He was born Dec. 3, 1818.

GENERAL RUGGLES DEAD.

Had the Honor of Drafting the First Republican Platform.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Feb. 11.—General James M. Ruggles, one of the founders of the Republican party, who drafted the first platform on which the Republican party was founded, is dead at Hopping sanitarium, Havana, aged 81 years.

General Ruggles was born March 7, 1818, in Richmond county, O., and was of noted ancestry, his great-uncle being Brigadier Timothy Ruggles, who was president of the first congress that ever met in America in New York in 1755. A great-uncle, John Ruggles, was three times elected United States senator from Maine, and another, Benjamin Ruggles, was first United States senator from Ohio, serving 18 years from 1818. His father, Judge Spooner Ruggles, was state senator in the Illinois legislature from Ogle and Winnebago counties in 1842.

He drafted the first platform on which the Republican party was organized, being one of a committee of three, the others being Lincoln and Ebenezer Peck, they being appointed for that purpose during the session of the legislature of February, 1856. Other members of the committee being otherwise engaged, the work of drafting the platform devolved upon General Ruggles.

At the outbreak of the civil war he was appointed by Governor Yates lieutenant of the First Illinois cavalry. When mustered out in 1864, he was lieutenant colonel of the Third Illinois cavalry and was for a time in command of the regiment. After the war he was brevetted brigadier general.

General Ruggles was the author of the first drainage law in Illinois. He was a scholar and able writer. In religion he was a pronounced spiritualist. He leaves four sons.

PARIS DRESSMAKERS STRIKE.

Many Well Known Firms Involved. Incendiary Threats Made.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—The strike in the Paris dressmaking trade has assumed formidable proportions. The first to strike were the journeymen tailors employed by a few firms mainly engaged in putting out tailor made costumes. These, chiefly foreigners, complained against the arbitrary distribution of piecework by the cutters and demanded fixed wages. Thus far about 16 firms are involved, including such well known houses as Worth, Redfern, Paquin, Doucet, La Ferriere, D'Œuillet and Raudnitz.

Yesterday afternoon the strikers held a meeting at the Labor Exchange, where it appeared that some 4,000 tailors have joined the movement. Numerous seamstresses whom the tailors are urging to strike en masse in order to prevent the employers from setting them to do the work of the men were present.

The speakers, among them Louise Michel, urged the men to hold out on the ground that the busy spring season was about to begin and the employers would be compelled to yield. One orator in the course of a violent speech suggested burning the workshops of recalcitrant firms with petroleum, but this proposal met with a cold reception.

The meeting finally decided to demand an eight hour day and 6 francs for women. The employers were given 24 hours to reply. If they do not yield, a general strike will be declared.

Maud Gonne Returns to Lecture.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Miss Maud Gonne arrived on the steamer La Champagne from Havre. Miss Gonne and Major McBride, who commanded the Irish brigade in the Boer army, will deliver joint lectures throughout the United States on the subject of the Boer war and the necessity of preventing the Irish enlisting in the English army. Miss Gonne said she had been engaged in this work for the past two years, and with the aid of the McBride club of Dublin the number of Irishmen in the English army has been diminished 18,000. Miss Gonne also said that the Irish people were becoming more and more interested in this work, teaching their children not to speak to any one wearing the English uniform and deposing all office holders who are in sympathy with the king. Miss Gonne's first lecture will take place in New York city on Feb. 17.

Transport Rawlins Aground.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 11.—The United States transport Rawlins went hard aground yesterday on a coral reef near the wreck of the United States collier Merrimac. She arrived at daybreak, anchored in the bay and then started to return to Nispero cove, near the mouth of the harbor, where is located the Morro Castle wharf, intending to embark the troops of the Tenth United States infantry for New York. An incompetent pilot attempted to pass on the wrong side of the Merrimac and struck the hidden reef hard. Three powerful tugs pulled unsuccessfully all the afternoon in the attempt to float the big ship. At low tide her bow was two feet out of the water.

Colombia Still Disturbed.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 11.—Advices received by the British steamer Trent, Captain Farmer, from Colon, Colombia, show that there is a continuance of insurgent activity in many quarters. Last week there was severe fighting between the government troops and the rebels near Panama, and the latter were then pressing toward Panama and Colon in spite of the goverument re-enforcements.

The Sultan Cordial.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 11.—Mr. Lloyd Griscom, United States charge d'affaires, had a farewell audience of the sultan last Friday. His majesty was very cordial and expressed satisfaction at seeing that friendly relations between Turkey and the United States were now assured. Mr. Griscom has obtained an exequatur for Mr. Harris, United States consul at Tripoli, Syria.

Job Printers Vote to Strike.

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—Typographical union No. 13 at a special meeting voted to call a strike in every book and job printing plant in this city in case the master printers refuse to sign the union scale at once, the point at issue being whether or not women typesetters shall be treated as "journeymen compositors" and receive the same wages as men for doing the same work.

Many Farmers Fleeced.

PANA, Ills., Feb. 11.—It is claimed farmers in this and Montgomery counties have been worked the past two weeks to the extent of $10,000 on the "gold watch scheme." The agents get blank orders which afterward prove to be notes of considerable value. Many of the leading farmers of this section have been victims of the scheme.

WALDERSEE DISPLEASED.

French Troops Censured For Independent Action.

PEKING, Feb. 11.—Count von Waldersee is very much dissatisfied with the conduct of the French troops near Paoting-fu and also with their avowed intention, in spite of his protests against it, to organize an expedition to take possession of the province of Shausi. He takes the ground that expeditions, except for police purposes or against bands of robbers, should not be undertaken during peace negotiations.

General Baillond, the French commander at Pao-ting-fu, says that he is acting in entire independence of Count von Waldersee and believes the wisest course to be to nip the incipient rebellion in the bud immediately. He asserts that he was attacked on three sides by a number of Chinese while out with a few men near Pao-ting-fu, and his theory is that the power of the foreigners should be shown if possible whenever an occasion arises.

A staff officer of Count von Waldersee who investigated the Pao-ting-fu affair could find no evidences of such trouble as had been reported. On the contrary, he believes there are grounds for supposing quite the opposite, although probably there, as elsewhere, considerable numbers of dangerous robbers infest the country districts.

At next Tuesday's meeting the foreign envoys will consider the plans submitted by the military committee for the legation defenses. A reply from the court is not expected until then at the earliest.

Li Hung Chang asserts that the empress dowager and Emperor Kwang Su never had more harmonious relations than they have now and that the former quite agrees to the necessity for modern reforms. He has telegraphed to the court his refusal to agree to sentences of execution "fraught with extreme danger and threatening the dynasty itself."

Kwang Su Holds the Reins.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11.—It is reported here that the empress dowager, yielding to foreign pressure, has allowed Emperor Kwang Su to resume the reins of government. A dispatch from Peking asserts that all the fortified passes beyond the territory held by the allies are being garrisoned by the Chinese and that Boxers are re-entering Peking secretly.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Drifting ice packs continue to cripple shipping in New York harbor.

All the nurses of the insane pavilion of Bellevue hospital, New York, were dismissed when it was found that a patient had burned himself on a radiator.

Mrs. Edith Evelyn Smith of Narragansett Pier, who is now cruising in European waters, is said to have succeeded during her recent visit to Monte Carlo in depleting the exchequer of the proprietor of the tables there to the amount of $50,000.

Testing Reflecting Power of Snow.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—William A. Eddy at Bayonne, N. J., has in a measure completed his tests of the reflecting power of mirror sun flashes as compared with sunlit and cloud shaded snow. As a result of his experiments Mr. Eddy found that mirror sun flashes were about 14 times as bright as cloud shaded snow and eight times as bright as sunlit snow. Previous experiments showed that sunlit snow was only about twice as bright as snow shadowed by clouds of ordinary density. Mr. Eddy considers these experiments important in that they bear upon the visibility of army signals from snow capped mountain peaks. Mr. Eddy thinks from this experiment that it is highly improbable that the light flash seen from Mars at Flagstaff, A. T., could have resulted from the sudden lighting up with sun rays of snow at the poles which had previously been cloud shaded.

Rev. Mr. Keller Improving.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Thomas G. Barker, who is charged with shooting Rev. John Keller at Arlington, N. J., a week ago, passed a quiet Sunday in the Hudson county (N. J.) jail. Two men called to see him during the afternoon, but were refused the privilege, as the jail rules do not permit the admission of visitors on Sundays. Rev. Mr. Keller is resting comfortably at his home in Arlington. Dr. Eaton, one of the attending physicians, said there were signs of improvement in his condition. There was no imminent danger, and no complications have as yet set in to cause immediate alarm.

Insurgent Governor Captured.

MANILA, Feb. 11.—A company of the Forty-seventh United States volunteer infantry, operating in the island of Catanduanes, off the southeast coast of Luzon, captured Bustos, the insurgent governor of the island. The United States gunboat Don Juan de Austrias, co-operating with a detachment of the Forty-seventh infantry, captured 30 insurgents, including a colonel and two majors, in the province of Albay, Luzon. Evidence is accumulating against the incriminated Manila traders who were charged with aiding the insurgents.

North Atlantic Squadron.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 11.—The north Atlantic squadron, Rear Admiral Norman H. Farquhar commanding and composed of the flagship Kearsarge and battleships Alabama and Massachusetts and the tug Potomac, has entered this port. The squadron has been on a cruise in the gulf for three weeks.

Maurice Thompson Dying.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 11.—Since Saturday afternoon Maurice Thompson has been in an apparently dying condition. He is still alive and to all appearances no nearer death than at any time during the last 24 hours. His vitality is remarkable, and it is possible that he will live two or three days.

Banquet to Prince Charles.

MADRID, Feb. 11.—The banquet given at the palace by the queen regent in honor of Prince Charles of Bourbon, who will wed the Princess of the Asturias, and of his parents, the Count and Countess of Caserta, was an extremely brilliant affair. A band of halberdiers played during the function.

Sleighing Party In a Crash.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 11.—At 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the corner of Scoville avenue and Kennard street a west bound motor crashed into a sleighing party of 22 persons, and 11 were more or less injured, but none fatally.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; fresh northwesterly winds, becoming variable.

FIGHTS WITH BOTHA.

Kitchener Says Boer Calculations Have Been Upset.

DE WET CROSSING ORANGE RIVER.

Major Crewe's Force Narrowly Escapes Ambush and Saves Itself In a Rear Guard Action Near Bloemfontein.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, the commander in chief in South Africa:

"The columns working eastward occupied Ermelo Feb. 6 with slight opposition. A large force of Boers, estimated at 7,000, under Louis Botha, retired eastward. About 800 wagons, with families, passed through Ermelo on the way to Amsterdam, and very large quantities of stock are being driven east.

"A peace delegate under sentence of death and other Boer prisoners were taken away by the Boers. All the reports show that the Boers are exceedingly bitter. Forty Boers surrendered.

"Louis Botha, with 2,000 men, attacked General Smith-Dorrien at Orange camp, Bothwell, at 3 a. m., Feb. 6. He was repulsed after severe fighting. General Spruit was killed, General Randemeyer was severely wounded, two field cornets were killed, 20 of the Boer dead were left in our hands and many severely wounded. Our casualties were 24 killed and 53 wounded.

"Our movement to the east is reported to have thoroughly upset all the enemy's calculations and created a regular panic in the district.

"Christian De Wet appears to be crossing the line south of Jaggersfontein road to the west, having failed to effect a crossing by the drifts east of Bethulie.

"In Cape Colony Calvinia has been occupied by Colonel De Lisle, who entered Feb. 6, the enemy retiring toward Kenhardt. Colonel Haig is driving the midland command northward past Aberdeen."

A dispatch from East London, Cape Colony, Feb. 9, gives details of severe fighting at Tabaksberg mountain, 40 miles east of the railway and about midway between Smalldeel and Bloemfontein. Major Crewe, with a composite column, traveling southwest, sighted the mountain on the morning of Jan. 31. He heard heavy firing, and, knowing that Colonel Pilcher's column was on the other side of the mountain, he concluded that this officer was in action. Consequently he hurried forward only to meet Boers streaming down and evidently retiring from Colonel Pilcher's lyddite shells.

Immediately Major Crewe brought three 15 pounders and a pompom to bear on the Boers, who, however, were found to be so numerous that it was impossible to head them. Orders were given to return to camp, about two miles from the mountain. The column rested until 4 in the afternoon, when the march was resumed southwest.

Major Crewe was just touching the southern point of the mountain when a terrific rifle fire opened from a large force of Boers who were in ambuscade on the mountain. The fight soon became general: The Boers outnumbered the British five to one and were attacking them on both flanks and the rear. The British pompom jammed and became useless. Major Crewe grasped the situation and by a brilliant move got the convoy into a safe position.

Between 7 and 8 in the evening the Boers charged the position and turned both flanks. The British ammunition became exhausted, and Major Crewe was obliged to retire and abandon the pompom after the advance party had endeavored to save it and had sustained severe losses.

A rear guard action was fought by Major Crewe into the camp, where the wagons had been laagered. He personally superintended the retirement, the Boers harassing him throughout. Intrenchments were thrown up during the night.

When morning came, Major Crewe started to join General Knox, 12 miles southwest. The Boers immediately reattacked him, compelling him to fight a second rear guard action for a few miles. General De Wet personally commanded the Boers, estimated at 2,500. Major Crewe's force was only 700. Eventually the British officer joined General Knox and returned to Bloemfontein. Lord Kitchener has highly complimented Major Crewe upon the achievement.

Milner to Cape Colony Volunteers.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 11.—Saturday Sir Alfred Milner reviewed 7,000 men of the new volunteer force and made a spirited address to the officers. He expressed his gratification at the loyal response the colony had made to the call, emphasized the great value of mounted men and complimented the officers and all concerned upon the excellent work already done in stemming the Boer invasion. "It has been said that the enemy would never come to Cape Town," he said, "but any one who in the face of the events of the last few months will say a thing is impossible because it seems improbable is too silly to be argued with. I am aware that I risk being called an alarmist, but it is better to be called an alarmist than to run any risk. There was a time when it was regarded as impossible for the Boers to penetrate the extreme west and south of Cape Colony, but they have reached one and are within a few miles of the other. Therefore it is necessary to take every precaution."

Pingree Going Abroad.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Ex-Governor H. S. Pingree arrived in this city today on his way to England. He will sail from New York on the steamer Cymric. Hazen S. Pingree, Jr., will accompany his father as far as Southampton, where he will board another steamer for South Africa. Ex-Governor Pingree, who is making the trip for business reasons, will spend several weeks in England.

Alabama Judge Shot.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 11.—Thomas N. McClellan, chief justice of the supreme court of Alabama, was shot here by Jesse Beale, a prominent citizen. Judge McClellan was struck in the right shoulder, the bullet shattering the shoulder blade. He is resting well, but is not out of danger.

To Form Italian Cabinet.

ROME, Feb. 11.—According to the newspapers of Rome, Signor Giuseppe Zanardelli has been definitely charged by King Victor Emmanuel to form a ministry to succeed the Saracco cabinet.

The Warning Signal.

Many faults have been found with the service and actions of the trolley companies of the State, but it rests with South Amboy to first develope strong opposition to the use of whistles on trolley cars. The new double-truck cars of the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company have been equipped with compressed air whistles as warning signals in the place of gongs. It is against these that the people of South Amboy have raised such strong objections.

When the big cars began to run into South Amboy, the residents thereof decided that the sound of the whistle was a menace to the health and happiness of the community, and Mayor Tregnowan was importuned to act. He ordered the traction company to substitute some other means of warning and invoked the assistance of the South Amboy Board of Health in the matter. The company demurred, but finally returned to the old-fashioned gongs.

It is very seldom that one of the cars of the Middlesex and Somerset Company reaches Plainfield so the inhabitants of this city have not had a fair opportunity to judge of the unpleasantnesses of the trolley whistle, but New Brunswick, Bound Brook and Somerville do not seem to object seriously to its use.

Until the Common Council shall awake to the necessity of putting up a proper system of street signs, one of the local merchants is trying to relieve the present unpleasant condition and has provided pocket maps for the use of Plainfield's citizens. At present, a map is really needed by one who is not fully acquainted with the city when an attempt is made to find any particular thoroughfare.

The State Centre, a weekly published at Bound Brook, has changed hands. Albert L Wilson has retired and the management of the Centre is now in the hands of William F. Ford, recently of New Brunswick. Mr. Ford spent many years in this city where he is well-known. He will change the State Centre into a Democratic weekly.

Manager Meze Edwards, of Stillman Music Hall, is to be complimented on securing such a talented and popular artist as Denman Thompson to appear in the local theatre. With such an attraction, the public expressed itself as well pleased and gave the performance the excellent support it deserved.

There is no doubt but that the building of a boulevard out Woodland avenue would decidedly improve the value of property in that vicinity If the property owners can agree to donate the necessary land they will undoubtedly advance their own interests as well as those of the city.

In previous contests the Park Club bowlers opened the season well and had fallen behind as the tournament continued. This year, the plan was reversed and the Parks waked up in wonderful form after it was too late to do anything.

Despite the great array of candidates that have appeared since Senator Pitney withdrew from the gubernatorial race in the Republican camp, those who know are still of the opinion that Franklin Murphy will be the candidate.

It is to be regretted that the people of Bound Brook cannot agree on satisfactory terms with the Jersey Central Railroad which will enable them to have a good station in place of the present unsightly shed.

The Republican central committee of Elizabeth has announced itself as strongly opposed to spring elections and favors the bill abolishing them.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and its Citizens.

Woodbridge township wants a cash consideration for a franchise to the Raritan Traction Company. Such franchises have a cash value to the company de iring them, and they should certainly have such a value to the township or municipality granting them. The action of the Woodbridge Township Committee is all right in principle. But there is another side to the question. Trolley lines are decided public improvements and public benefits. The Township Committee should secure concessions, but these concessions should be only what are fair. Holding the key to the situation is no excuse for making unjust and exorbitant demands. Still $1,000 for a 99-year franchise is little more than $10 a year, and the traction company ought to be able to stand that.—New Brunswick Times.

* * * * * *

There seems to be little doubt, now, that Franklin Murphy, of Essex county, will be the next candidate for governor to lead the Republican hosts to victory. Senator Mahlon Pitney was his most formidable opponent, but Mr. Pitney's friends are nearly all glad to support Mr. Murphy.

Numerous names have been mentioned in connection with the office, and while many of them would make good governors, Mr. Murphy is preeminently the candidate who seems to be in direct line for it. He has been a faithful servant without reward He is a man of the highest personal character and his ability is unquestioned. He ought to have the nomination and he can win if the Republicans show the people that they deserve success.

Despite the statement by metropolitan newspapers that New Jersey is a corporation ridden State, it has a larger independent vote than most any other Eastern State. This goes to the deserving party. The Republicans have had it for a number of years because they have won it over by meritorious conduct and by giving the people a good government without infusing so much petty politics. There is yet no reason for a change, and we confidently predict that Mr. Murphy will be the next Governor of New Jersey.—Somerville Unionist Gazette.

IN MEMORIAM.

IN MEMORIAM OF ETHEL B. TERWILLIGER.

Gone through the portal to glory.
Gone to the realms of the blest.
Farewell to the earth and its sorrow.
Gone to the promised rest.

Gone where no trouble can enter.
Angels have welcomed her home;
Now she is sitting with Jesus.
Beckoning others to come.

Soon shall we join her up yonder.
Let us keep faithful and true.
So that when summoned, like Ethel.
Angels may welcome us, too.

Gentlemen—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 11—The entertainment given in Apgar's Hall Saturday evening under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. proved very successful, a large number attending. The music rendered by the always popular Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar Club was greatly enjoyed as were the recitations of Miss Ethel Jamison, Miss Mary Doolittle and Miss May Fulper. Messers Dickerson and Tallamy gave a well rendered vocal duet. The organization will derive a neat sum from the proceeds of the affair.

Court Dunellen, I. O. F., will hold a social this evening after the regular business of the court, in which the friends of the members will participate. Editor C. C. McBride, of the Elizabeth Journal, is expected to be present and deliver an address. Vocal and instrumental music and recitations will make up the rest of the programme after which refreshments will be served. The affair will terminate with a dance.

Local politicians now assert that the Republican ticket in the coming spring election will be opposed by a straight Democratic ticket, instead of a citizen's ticket as has been asserted heretofore. The Democrats are hoping to elect a freeholder anyway, and will work hard for some of the other offices.

A junior auxiliary has been formed in connection with the Willing Workers attached to the Church of the Holy Innocents.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle was taken ill last week but recovered sufficiently to occupy the Methodist pulpit yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, Feb. 11—The funeral services over the remains of William Spencer were held from his late residence Saturday afternoon. Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman. The pall bearers were Josiah Maitland, William Farrier, Harry Gaskill and John M. Dayton. Interment was made in the Seventh-Day Baptist burying ground.

The Misses Steddard, of Brooklyn spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Irene Day. On Saturday evening there was an informal gathering of their New Market friends. A social time was had after which luncheon was served.

The next reception of the Friendship dancing class will be held in Friendship Hall tomorrow evening.

Walter Blair is unable to attend to his duties at Elizabeth on account of the grip.

Alfred Osmun is confined to his home by an attack of the grip.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, Feb. 11—Friday evening the people of Fanwood and Scotch Plains, had the opportunity of listening to a most enjoyable entertainment, given by Charles Battell Loomis, Edward Starr Belnap and Harvey Worthington Loomis. Charles Battell Loomis's readings and recitations from some of his own compositions afforded great amusement. His dialect renderings were excellent and his musical selection of "The Lady Who Mislaid Her Voice," caused much applause. The audience was convulsed with laughter at Mr. Belknap's recitations. His description of a Frenchman in a dilemma was very humorous, while the discursive story with numerous references to the landlord's little daughter, provoked much merriment. Harvey Worthington Loomis gave charming selections from his own musical compositions on the piano and also acted as accompanist for the others.

The Saturday Night Club, of Fanwood, gave another of their delightful dances in the borough fire house Saturday night. The club, which has been a prominent factor in the social life of the borough for several years, will hold their club receptions semi-monthly, during the rest of the social season.

The service at the Baptist church last evening was held in the lecture room of the church. Owing to the cold weather of the past week it has been impossible to heat the auditorium so as to make it comfortable. So Mr. Shott has decided the evening services, when it is so cold, in the smaller room.

"If Christ Should Come Tomorrow" was an interesting subject at the Baptist Young People's meeting last evening. Miss Lillia Hayes led the meeting.

About thirty of the residents of the village attended Denman Thompson's performance of "The Old Homestead" at Music Hall, Plainfield, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Plainfield, were the guest of Mrs. Grant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Sr., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jimerson, of Westfield, were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. George W. Marsh, yesterday.

The fine sleighing of Sunday was enjoyed to the fullest extent by all who could raise anything in the way of a sleigh.

Mrs. Horace Pangborn, of Forest avenue, is quite ill at her home. Dr. J. H. Buchanan, of Plainfield, is in attendance.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the Baptist church at the close of the morning service yesterday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, Feb. 11—The Order of P. O. of A., of which Mrs. Chas. Brantingham has been securing signers for a local camp, will be instituted here Saturday evening in Washington Hall. A public meeting will be held during the early part of the evening, after which W. G. Smith, of Trenton, will take charge of the institution to membership, of all who wish to join. It is expected that interested parties will be present from Somerville, Trenton, Middlebush, Plainfield and Perth Amboy.

The schools in Piscataway township will not close in honor of Lincoln's birthday. The teachers had the choice between Lincoln's birthday and the Monday preceding New Years, and took the latter.

The regular Tuesday evening prayer meeting will be postponed to Thursday evening at which time the Ladies' Missionary Circle will meet with the church. The topic will be upon missions.

Mrs. Albert Soper is confined at home by illness. Her daughter from Dunellen is staying with Mrs. Soper and will remain until she recovers. Mr. Soper is also sick and unable to work.

The mechanical signals at the Lehigh Valley yards are causing considerable trouble because of the freezing of the connecting chains and the breaking of some of the wires.

Thomas Linaberry, yardmaster at the Lehigh Valley depot, is having his offices moved down stairs into the new compartments prepared for them.

Miss Nevius, of Metuchen, has returned to South Plainfield and will make an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. William H. Manning.

Several of the young people were present at the presentation of "The Old Homestead" in Plainfield Saturday evening.

A collection was taken at the Baptist church yesterday morning for the benefit of home and foreign missionary societies.

Miss Lennie Faulks was the leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting last night. The topic was "Christ's Coming."

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Randolph are making an extended visit with their daughter, Mrs. E. Ten Eyke, of Newark.

The young people are arranging a sleighing party for some evening of this week.

The Misses Manning have returned from a visit with friends in Newark.

Mrs. George Smith is confined at home by illness.

FOUND TROUBLE.

Business Wasn't Good With the Lortons and They Were Looking for More.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lorton, of Westfield, wandered into town Saturday and began searching for prospective customers for homemade mats. Finding trade rather dull they sought to augment their income by soliciting but after two or three attempts they fell into the hands of the police. As they had been in jail since Saturday afternoon, City Judge Runyon was disposed to be lenient with them when arraigned this morning and suspended sentence on condition that they leave Plainfield and never return. They readily agreed and hurriedly left the courtroom.

Harry Phillips, a young man who claimed Baltimore as his home, was arrested Saturday for vagrancy. He told a hard luck story and as it was his first visit to the city, he was dismissed with a suspended sentence.

ONE GOOD POINT
in our "stock patterns" of dinner ware is that you can buy just what pieces you want. Different families have different needs, and if you buy a set with a fixed number of pieces you may buy some pieces you don't need and you may lack some you would like to have. In a "stock pattern" you buy what you want when you want it.

Oesterreich.

Wien. In der Wiener Maschinenfabrik der Oesterreichisch-Ungarischen Staatseisenbahn-Gesellschaft wurden im verflossenen Jahre 100 Lokomotiven fertiggestellt. Die Fabrik wurde im Jahre 1839 gegründet und erhielt im vorigen Jahre auf der Pariser Weltausstellung für eine Type ihrer Erzeugnisse, eine schwere Eilzugslokomotive, den Großen Preis.—Nach einer Zusammenstellung der im Wiener Polizeirayon im Laufe des Vorjahres verübten Selbstmorde beträgt die Zahl derselben 500 (392 Männer und 108 Frauen), gegen 403 im Jahre 1899 und 371 im Jahre 1898.—Der nach Spoliirung von rekommandirten Briefen aus Wien flüchtig gewordene 22jährige Postamtspraktikant Leon Czapka ist in Mißlitz in Mähren verhaftet worden. Der von ihm angerichtete Schaden beträgt mehrere tausend Kronen.

Brixen. Neulich ist der Senior des deutschtirolischen Klerus, Benedikt Baldele, Augustiner Chorherr in Neustift, gestorben.

Budapest. Der Oberlieutenant Viktor Diossy, Sprosse eines adeligen Geschlechts, wird von der Militärbehörde steckbrieflich verfolgt, weil er aus der Regimentskasse des 12. Ulanen-Regiments 30,000 Kronen entwendete und damit flüchtete.

Enns. Der Wachtmeister Johann Riedl vom 6. Dragoner-Regiment in Enns stürzte beim Einfahren in die Station Linz von dem noch in Bewegung befindlichen Zuge und wurde so schwer verletzt, daß er bald darauf starb.

Gaya. Kürzlich wurden der Dampfmühlenbesitzer Friedrich Mayer und seine beiden Söhne in Folge Anzeige eines entlassenen Buchhalters unter dem Verdachte der Brandlegung verhaftet. Die hoch versicherte Mühle war im Verlaufe mehrerer Jahre zwei Mal niedergebrannt.

Klagenfurt. Der Schmiedemeister Johann Rauch wollte über den zum größten Theil zugefrorenen Ossiacher See gehen. Dabei kam er in der Dunkelheit des frühen Morgens und des herrschenden Nebels an eine offene Stelle und fiel in's Wasser, aus dem er gegen Mittag als Leiche herausgezogen wurde.

Salzburg. Der Besitzer des Hotels „Hirsch," Karl Lainer, und der Kaufmann Kindlinger aus Salzburg stürzten in Gastein von den Anlagen des schwarzen Berges ab. Beide waren todt.

Szegedin. Dahier ist Graf Arpad Teleki, Sproß einer hervorragenden Siebenbürger Magnatenfamilie, plötzlich gestorben, nachdem er kurz vorher eine Vorladung zum Strafgericht wegen Zahlungssäumigkeit erhalten hatte.

Troppau. Der Maurer Nikolaus Hanslik in der Ortschaft Klingebeutel untersuchte in seiner Wohnung sein Jagdgewehr. Plötzlich ging ein Schuß los, und die Ladung drang dem danebenstehenden 15jährigen Paul Kalter in die Brust. Der unglückliche Knabe brach todt zusammen.

Schweiz.

Bern. Die unlängst abgehaltene Volkszählung ergab für den Kanton Bern eine Wohnbevölkerung von 586,918 Seelen, gegenüber 536,679 im Jahre 1888. Mit Ausnahme von Freibergen, Neuenstadt, Oerhasle, Saanen, Schwarzenburg, Oberssimmenthal und Trachselwald, welche eine unbedeutende Abnahme aufwiesen, zeigten alle Amtsbezirke eine Zunahme der Bevölkerungsziffer. Der Kanton Bern wird in Zukunft zwei Nationalräthe mehr zu wählen haben, als bisher.—Die jüngsthin vom Bundesrath unter gewissen Bedingungen ertheilte Bewilligung zur Fabrikation überall entzündbarer Streichhölzchen ist von den seit Wochen und Monaten verdienstlosen Arbeitern in Frutigen mit Umzug und Böllerschüssen gefeiert worden.

Zürich. Eine Sammlung für die Burenwittwen und -Waisen hat innerhalb zweier Wochen 75,000 Francs ergeben. Davon wurden in Zürich und Basel allein je 26,000 und 21,000 Francs aufgebracht.

Glarus. Nachdem sich die im Glärnischgebiet angelegten Murmelthierkolonien gut entwickelt haben, soll in einem beschränkten, näher zu begrenzenden Bezirk des Ruchenglärnisch das Murmelthier als geschützte Wildart erklärt werden.

St. Gallen. Im Jahre 1900 sind im Kanton St. Gallen Vergabungen zu gemeinnützigen Zwecken im Totalbetrage von 278,380 Francs gemacht worden.

Aargau. In letzter Zeit wurde die Gemeinde Degerfelden von Verbrecherhand heimgesucht. Brandlegung, Diebstahl und dergleichen waren an der Tagesordnung, so daß eine Bürgerwache organisirt wurde. Die Urheberin der verschiedenen Vergehen ist nunmehr in der Person der Lina Hutter von Aarburg entdeckt und verhaftet worden.

Waadt. In Pully befindet sich eine Greisin, Frau Ray-Blanchard, welche letzthin ihr 100. Altersjahr angetreten hat.

Genf. Das Bureau des öffentlichen Gesundheitsdienstes der Stadt Genf hat dieser Tage nicht weniger als 68,800 Liter Wein aus der Gegend von Narbonne, Frankreich, mit Beschlag belegt.

TOOK STRANGE OATH.

Remarkable Matrimonial Agreement Sworn To by a Repentant New Jersey Husband.

New Jersey, the land of oddities comes to the front again with a phenomenal matrimonial agreement, absolutely without a parallel anywhere asserts the New York Post. Some time ago Hugo Kreig and his wife, of Hawthorne, had a quarrel and separated He soon wearied of the condition and loneliness into which the disagreement had plunged him and prayed to be restored to her favor. The only condition upon which she would con sent to a reunion was that he subscribe to the following oath:

"In consideration of the fact that my wife allows me to return home and reside there and enjoy her companionship, love and care, I, Hugo Kreig, do hereby promise to begin anew, treat my wife properly, and return home before ten o'clock when not absent on mutual engagements.

"I do promise to work for her and support her as my position in life will allow.

"I do promise further to attend prayer meeting, to abstain from all intoxicating liquor, also from tobacco and cigars, and in future to conduct myself in a strictly decent, sober and orderly manner."—Oath taken before a magistrate by Hugo Kreig at Hawthorne, N. J.

Mrs. Kreig wrote out the oath. At first it staggered him. He walked about the village for two weeks cogitating and wavering. Then he resolved to do it and called in Magistrate John Keys.

"I'm tired of eating cold dinners and having nowhere to live," he said. "My wife is the best little woman in Jersey, and I'm going to take that oath, and stick to it, if I can."

The magistrate was a little opposed to the oath. "There aren't any wings on your shoulders," he said, "and I don't believe you can keep it." But Kreig said he could, and the oath was administered.

COLORED ELOQUENCE.

How Parson Woolmon Reproved the Brethren and Sisters for Their Unequaled Meanness.

"Brudden and sistahs," sternly said the good old Parson Woolmon, after the collection had been taken up upon a recent Sabbath morning, "before de hat was done parsed around I expounded de request dat de congregation contribute accawdin' to deir means, and I sho expectorated dat yo' all would chip in magnanimously. But now, upon examinin' de collection, finds that de concocted amount contributed by de whole entire posse ob yo'am only the significant and pusillanimous sum of sixty-free cents. And at dis junction dar ain't no 'casion for yo'll to look at Brudder Slewfoot, what done circumambulated de hat around, in so such aspicious manner; for, in de fust place, Brudder Slewfoot ain't dat kind ob a man, and, in de second place, I dons watched him like a hawke all de time muhself. No, sixty-free cents was all dat was flung in; and I dess wants say dat, in my humble opinion, instead ob contributin' accawding to yo' means, yo' all contributed accawdin' to yo' meanness. De choir will now favor us wid deir reg'lar melodiousness."

Will Never Do It Again.

While walking alongside the track of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad near Lebanon, Pa., a farmer began thinking about his boyhood days, and what fun it used to be to place his tongue against a piece of cold metal. Following up the thought, he knelt by the track and placed his tongue on one of the rails. The sensation was delightful, but he had not enjoyed it long before he heard a train coming, and then, to his dismay, found that his tongue was frozen to the rail. There was nothing to do but pull it loose, and when he did that he thought it was coming out by the roots. A visit to a doctor reassured him on that point, and he eventually got well. It will never be as good a tongue as it was, but he has a heap more sense than he had before.

HARD-EARNED DOLLARS.

I can not tell you how thankful I am that I was advised to take Ripans Tabules. I suffered three or four years with a very bad stomach trouble, called by some doctors sluggish digestion, and by others catarrh of the stomach. I doctored with six or seven different doctors, spending many hard-earned dollars, but found no relief until I tried R·I·P·A·N·S. I have taken about one dollar's worth and to-day can eat anything with comfort. Am a fireman on the Boston and Maine Railroad.

WANTED: A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten sample cards and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

WOMEN'S EMBROIDERY.

Why Is It Always So Unpractical?—A Useful Suggestion.

"My goodness, that woman has begun another worsted horror!" exclaimed the athletic girl as she gathered up her golf clubs. "Wonder what it is now? I thank the Lord I don't know how to embroider. I wouldn't learn, either, if you hired me! The time women waste on that useless stuff makes me perfectly wild!" And with this emphatic declaration she swung down the road and disappeared with her friend.

The scene was a hotel piazza and the time last summer. The woman referred to was the center of a group of matrons who were all practicing embroidery as an excuse for summer gossip. I gave a glance at their work, and then I almost agreed with the athletic girl. Such useless trifles! There wasn't one to which I would give house room.

"How many doilies do you suppose I've embroidered since I'm here?" I heard one woman say to another. "One dozen! That'll make ten dozen with those that I have at home."

"How on earth can you use so many?" I asked.

"Use them!" she exclaimed. "Use those lovely things I've worked so hard over! Not if I know myself! No, indeed; I'm making a collection. I'm going to have 12 dozen in all. You see, each dozen is embroidered with a different flower. There's the daisy, the maidenhair fern, the wild rose, the violet, the poppy, the forgetmenot, the strawberry—that's no flower, but it's all the style—the pansy, the chrysanthemum and the holly. Oh, some of them are just too sweet for anything! I keep them all piled up by half dozens, tied with ribbons of appropriate colors, and they already fill a whole shelf. What use are they? Oh, I don't know. I like to have them. I guess you don't care for embroidery. You're not very domestic in your tastes, are you?"

Now, it happens that I am, and it's just because I am angry at these imputations that I want to talk a little on the subject. Why do women make embroidery such a useless art? It wasn't so in the beginning. I admit that there is nothing so attractive as a pretty woman seated by her own fireside with a dainty bit of needlework, but why must it be something which she can never by any possibility make use of? I have a friend who is a fairy with her needle. She has a collection of cushions, centerpieces and scarfs which make her friends pale with envy on the rare occasions when she exhibits them to the light of day. Recently I came across her as she stood at the counter of one of the large stores. She was fingering a beautiful little lace collar and revers embroidered in autumn leaves. "Well, I suppose I shall have to buy it," she sighed. "It's just the thing for my brown dress. But $12! What an awful price to pay for such a bit of a thing!" I suppose it never occurred to her that she might have made a much handsomer collar herself for half the amount.

That's the trouble with these women. They will strip their purses for those little accessories of dress which are so necessary nowadays, and then they will bend for hours over some infinitesimal detail of an embroidered picture frame or an impossible mantel scarf.

Now, here are two suggestions in the shape of collars, which may be used to embellish a tailor made, a little silk Eton jacket or a fluffy summer dress. In any case they are sure to be effective. The foundation is of white silk or satin, which is embroidered in heavy white silk in close crewel stitches. This gives a rich effect to the material. Over this surface are scattered violets, tied with simulated ribbon of the same color, worked in raised satin stitch. The iris collar is done in the same fashion, only the ground embroidery is of fine gold thread. You will be surprised to find what stunning effects you can obtain with these little embroidered touches if you keep the color combination of your gown in mind.

THE PRACTICAL GIRL.

The Right Sort of Woman.

The kind of woman to know is the one with a loving heart, who tries to look on the bright side of life and to help others to do the same.

She does not believe in what people call "bad luck," but finds a cause for the trouble and a bright side to it, which makes it easier to bear. If she can't see the compensating blessing in disguise, she bravely holds on to the fact that the darkest time comes just before dawn and tries to be cheerful.

ACCESSORIES.

Pretty Trifles Which Add Charm to the Costume.

The reign of delicate and becoming accessories is at its height. Collars, boas, muffs, yokes, cravats and ruches in every style and variety offer their attractions as an easily added charm to the costume. Here, for example, is a high, close collar covered with gold ribbon, from the front of which fall loops of narrow black velvet ribbon and ends to which gold points are attached. These metal ends are universally employed for ribbons and necklaces and are to be had in gold, silver and steel. For a second example, here is a boa composed of a great ruche of chenille dotted net which terminates at each end in long strands of chenille finished with jet tips. Again, an immense scarf of soft black silk is lined with pink and has incrustations of lace at the ends. This is tied like a cravat and falls to the foot of the skirt.

The illustration given today shows a costume having a redingote skirt of black velvet bordered with fur and forming a slight train. It opens in front over a tablier of mauve cloth laid in plaits, which are stitched nearly to the foot. The fitted bodice of velvet has a large shawl collar edged with fur and covered with applications of mauve and gold embroidery. The plastron of mauve plaited cloth has a small yoke and a collar of the same sort of embroidery, and there is a narrow band of fur around the top of the collar. The velvet sleeves have large cuffs of mauve cloth with a fur border, and beneath them are full sleeves of mauve cloth gathered into a band at the wrist. The belt is of velvet, and a lace scarf is tied across the bosom. The hat of black velvet is trimmed with two black ostrich plumes and a jeweled buckle.

FASHION NOTES.

Growing Elaboration of Costumes For Calling.

Visiting costumes are decidedly elaborate, or, rather, admissibly so, although many women of extreme elegance dress in a subdued style in making calls, the simplicity of their attire being compensated for by its perfection of cut and style.

An immense amount of cloth is worn. This is an oft repeated story, but any discussion of the subject of fashion compels the remark, because cloth is the leading fabric at present. For the street empire green, chocolate, steel gray, red and royal blue are the favorite colors. For evening wear—and cloth is now quite an evening material—there are innumerable tints of great delicacy, often with garlands of flowers painted upon them.

The cut shows a costume of steel gray cloth. It is in the princess style and is fitted by corded folds all around the figure from head to foot. Three little stitched pelerines form a sort of bolero in front and are rounded at the back. A circular flounce with circular corded folds finishes the foot and is headed by a band of fur. The collar and plastron are of gray velvet, and steel buttons ornament the front of the bodice. The sleeves have stitched folds at the top and a stitched cuff at the elbow, the lower part of the sleeve being of gray velvet. The gray velvet hat is trimmed with an alsatian bow of velvet, with a steel buckle and feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Some Reasons for Building the Pacific Railroads

The First Argument in Their Favor Was as a New Route to the Far East from Europe

TIME was, and that not so very long ago, when the Pacific railroads were but a dream, that enthusiasts labored for their construction because of the great saving of time and expense of reaching the orient by their aid. As long ago as 1830-35, when the first feeble efforts at steam railway construction were being made in this country and in England, Asa Whitney, a New York merchant then in China, began dreaming of a great railway line across the western plains to the Pacific coast that would enable the west to reach the east more rapidly and economically. He and others who for years advanced this reason for the construction of a Pacific railroad gave no thought to the development of the country through which such a road was to pass. To all of them the great western plains represented but distances to be covered in reaching the orient. This argument was continued even down to the outbreak of the civil war by many, though a few had seen the possibilities of the country, and forgot the reasons first advanced in advocating stronger and more important ones. Maj. Gen. Dodge, who before the war had been but a young engineer in the employ of the Mississippi & Missouri railroad, and whose duties had taken him across the Missouri river at Omaha, saw the possibilities of such a road in the development of a great country, but even his argument, strong as it was, did not appeal to President Lincoln until the latter realized the military necessity of such a road if the east and west were to be bound together in a strong union that was then so greatly needed.

But this argument of early enthusiasts for a line that would open another and shorter route to the markets of the orient comes back to us now. Not one but several Pacific roads have been built; as connecting lines between Europe and the far east they were never a success as many so strongly predicted. In the words of Cy Warman in his book "The Story of the Railroad," one of the "Story of the West" series published and copyrighted by D. Appleton & Co., New York: "We know now that the revenue derived from the Asiatic trade would not do much more than supply the tallow required to cool the pins that were heated by the sands of the desert through which the road was to run."

That is a terse description of the traffic the Pacific roads have derived from the Asiatic trade in years that are past, but to-day there is increasing traffic between America and the far east, and, while the Suez canal is attracting considerable of it by way of New York, San Francisco and other western ports are receiving a considerable share of it, carried to them by the roads that were first thought of merely as a link in the long chain of transportation lines that were necessary to reach the markets of the far east. These things serve to revive an interest in the construction of the Pacific railroads, and Mr. Warman's volume comes at an opportune time. It does not give so much a history of the Pacific road as a vivid description of their construction, a construction the rapidity of which astonished the civilized world.

To two men must be given much of the credit for the building of the first line of railroad from the Missouri to the Pacific coast—Maj. Gen. Dodge and Gen. Sherman. Each accords to the other the full credit, but both are entitled to a share of it. Gen. Sherman, while serving in the western army before the days of the war, sent an exploring and surveying party in charge of Lieuts. Warner and Williamson out from Sacramento, Cal., through the Sierra Nevada range to find if possible a route by which a railroad could pass through those mountains. From that time forward to the day of the completion of the Union and Central Pacific roads at Promontory, Utah, his interest continued, and he gave to the builders every aid and protection within his power as commander of the army.

Gen. Dodge was much more closely connected with the building of the roads, and especially of the Union Pacific, than was Gen. Sherman. He had dreamed of such a road before the war had called him from his duties as a civil engineer in the employ of the Mississippi & Missouri railway. President Lincoln knew of this interest, for long before he had even been thought of as a presidential candidate he had drawn from the young engineer in a hotel in Council Bluffs the story of his exploits in the west, and the secrets that were intended only for his employers. Later when President Lincoln deemed the building of such a road a military necessity he did not forget the interview with the young engineer, nor the fact that he was then a general officer in the federal army, and he sent for him. With the president and with congress Gen. Dodge urged the necessity and importance of legislation that would result in building a road to the Pacific. When that legislation had become law, and when the war was over, Gen. Dodge resigned his commission in the army to again take up the task of finding a route for a Pacific railroad, and he continued to act as chief engineer of the road until the last spike had been driven and the east and west linked together by bands of steel.

The driving of the last spike that completed the connection between the Union and Central Pacific roads at Promontory, Utah, on May 10, 1869, was an event that will live long in the history of this country. Mr. Warman, in his interesting book, says of it:

"Not many people were present at Promontory that day. The demonstration when ground was broken at Omaha, five years earlier, had been much more imposing, but the people of the whole country were to take part in the celebration.

"Arangements for this purpose were made at very short notice. Through the hearty cooperation of the telegraph companies all their principal offices were connected with Promontory, in order that the blow of the hammer driving the last spike might be communicated by the click of the instrument at the same moment to every station reached by the wires.

"A small excursion party, headed by Gov. Stanford of California, came up from the coast; but from the east, aside from the army of road makers, contractors and engineers, there were only two or three people, among them Rev. Dr. Todd, of Pittsfield.

"As the pilots of the two construction engines came close together the 500 or 600 people present sent up cheer after cheer. • • • When everything was ready at the two ends of the track the telegraph instruments ticked 'hats off,' and the nation bared its head. After prayer had been offered by Rev. Dr. Todd, whom providence seems to have sent out, the wire said: 'We have got done praying.' 'We understand,' was the answer. 'All are ready in the east.' Now the four spikes, two of silver and two of gold, the products of Montana, Nevada, California and Idaho, were produced and passed to Gov. Stanford, who stood on the north, and Dr. Durant, who stood on the south side of the track, and who put them in place. 'All ready,' went over the wire, and instantly the silver hammer came down, the stroke of the magnet touched the bell, and told to a waiting world the story of the completion of the Pacific railroad."

The completion of the road was a great industrial triumph for America. In five years 1,824 miles of railway track had been built across almost trackless plains, through great mountain ranges and over deep canyons. Many thousands of men had been employed, and many hundreds of them had been buried along the right of way, either killed by hostile Indians, by accidents or died of disease. Speaking of this Mr. Warman says:

"The toilsome task of the pathfinders was finished. They were not all there at the end. Some had fallen away back on the plains, others west of the Sierras, and those present peered into each other's faces as if still doubting that the thing was done.

"Looking back over the steel trail, they knew that, long as it was, there were not mileposts enough along the line to mark the graves of the pathfinders and other pioneers who had fallen in the great fight for this new empire of the people. More than one man here had grown gray in the five years that he had stood in the snow and sun of the mountains and plains. The deep furrows upon their faces were battle scars."

It was a great work at which the world has not yet ceased to wonder, and that these roads in a measure fulfill the expectations of their early advocates who grew enthusiastic over the possibilities of a new and quick route to the far east is proven by the fact that to-day London receives mail from Yokohama in 25 days or less carried over not one but any of several Pacific railroads. LONG LIVE THE KING

Strange Ceremonies Connected with Edward's Proclamation.

Rare Bits of Fifteenth Century Etiquette Practiced in the Twentieth—Coronation Exercises Postponed Indefinitely.

[Special Correspondence.]

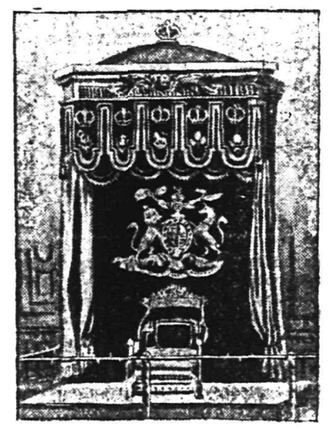
TIMES change, and men change with them. This old maxim is applicable to almost everything under the sun, except to the red tape ceremonials of European courts. That is why the prince of Wales was proclaimed king of Great Britain and Ireland the other day just as were his predecessors from time immemorial. The twentieth century ceremony varies but slightly from that practiced in the fifteenth.

KING EDWARD VII.
(Clothed in Full Coronation Gown and Wearing Crown.)

Good old Queen Victoria departed from the scenes of her earthly pomp and glory on January 22. On the 23d the privy council met and declared the throne to have devolved on the prince of Wales. Orders were given without delay to the earl marshal, the duke of Norfolk, and the officers of the "college of arms" to proclaim him. The first proclamation was made in the courtyard of St. James palace. "Garter king," chief officer of the college, made the proclamation in solemn form, with the earl marshal, the kings, the heralds and the pursuivants in full uniform and stationed near by. At this proclamation the new king was present, sitting at the window where all his predecessors have sat.

On the next day, the 24th of January, the news of the proclamation was carried far and wide to the distant cities, the rank of the proclaiming officer descending as the business proceeded. The second pronouncement was made at Charing Cross and the third at the corner of Chancery lane. At this proclamation there was a modification of the ancient form, owing to the disappearance of Temple Bar. Within the so-called city of London the lord mayor and sheriffs preserve their ancient sovereignty and allow no monarch within their gates except after permission has been asked and granted. The ancient form was for the junior pursuivant to rap at the gate and show his warrant for proclamation. The ceremony of this year remained the same, barring the knock at the gate, which no longer exists. In the provinces the proclamations were made by the local mayors.

In ancient times the newly made monarch was clothed in the royal trappings and wore the royal crown when going through the ceremony here described. The prince of Wales became King Edward VII. without these gaudy accessories. He wore a field marshal's uniform with the ribbon of the order of the garter, and took the oath in the presence of the royal princes, the German emperor, the cabinet, the archbishop of Canterbury, the judges, the lord mayor and the aldermen and sheriffs of London. In his speech to the privy council the king said he assumed the title of Edward VII. in accordance with the wish of his beloved mother, who united the virtues of a supreme domestic guide with the affections and patriotism of a wise, peace-loving monarch. He had a respectful desire to leave the memory of his father's name, Albert, the exclusive treasure of his mother. Notwithstanding his personal desire he could not hope to do justice to the renown and virtues associated with Prince Albert's name. He would do his utmost, however, to be worthy of his great position.



BRITAIN'S ROYAL THRONE.
(Located in the Throne Room of St. James' Palace.)

The sorrow over the death of Queen Victoria was so genuine that the new king, who never was particularly fond of display, was enabled to omit many little ceremonials incident to the act of proclamation. When the time for the formal coronation arrives, however, he will have to submit to the wearing of coronation robes and crowns. It has been stated that this ceremony will not be performed for at least one year, because the coronation festivities are considered joyful rites, accompanied by much feasting, revels and public rejoicing.

One of the quaintest customs connected with the crowning of a king is that which requires him to offer to fight for his throne. In the olden times, when a king reigned by power of his good right arm, this was a necessary formality, and because it was necessary once it is still done. But the king no longer does his own fighting. He has a champion, the hereditary champion of England, whose business it is to battle with all comers for the crown. The champion is always a member of the Dymoke family. When the king is crowned this champion rides into Westminster hall, mounted and in full armor, just as the champion was centuries ago. He is accompanied by the earl marshal and the lord great chamberlain, also on horseback. The hall is crowded with sightseers. A proclamation is read by one of the heralds, challenging anybody who disputes the rights of the sovereign to combat in an open space. The champion throws down his gauntlet as a guarantee of good faith, and the hearts of all the ladies present flutter in anticipation of a fight. But it is all a disappointing sham. If some enterprising young knight were to take up challenge and gauntlet he would be run in by a policeman for disturbing the peace. The herald takes up the glove and hands it back to the champion, and the king is firmly seated on his throne.

It is hoped and expected that the seventh Edward will reflect honor upon the royal name he has chosen for himself. The six Edwards who preceded him were, without exception, selfish rulers; but several of them left a deep and lasting impression on the character of the nation over which they ruled.

Edward I., surnamed "Longshanks," was born at Westminster in 1239. He participated in the seventh crusade and was returning from Palestine when he heard of his accession to the throne. The most notable acts of his career were the banishment of all Jews from England and his defeat of the Scots under Wallace in 1298. Edward II. was the fourth son of Edward I. and the first prince of Wales. In consequence of his all-around incompetence the government was intrusted by the barons to 21 ordainers. He was imprisoned in Berkeley castle and murdered at the instigation of his queen, Isabella. Edward III. was the son of Edward II. and Isabella of France. He threw his mother into prison and seized the reins of government. He involved England in the 100 years' war with France. His reign was signalized by several visits of the "black death." Edward IV. was the son of Richard, duke of York, and Cecily Neville, daughter of the earl of Westmoreland. He played a prominent part in the struggle between the houses of York and Lancaster for the throne, and is known to readers of fiction as one of the leading characters in Bulwer's "Last of the Barons." Edward V. was born in Westminster abbey in 1470. He was king of England from April to June, 1483, but was imprisoned in London tower by his uncle, Richard, duke of Gloucester, by whom he and his brother were secretly put to death. Edward VI. was the son of Henry VIII. by his third queen, Jane Seymour, and succeeded to the throne under the regency of his uncle, the duke of Somerset, who was supplanted by the duke of Northumberland. During his reign occurred the publication of the 42 articles of religion and the introduction of the book of common prayer.

THE BRITISH ROYAL CROWN.
(Worn Only During the Coronation Ceremonies.)

King Edward VII. was married in St. George's chapel, Windsor castle, on March 10, 1863, to Princess Alexandra, oldest daughter of the king of Denmark. They have had five children, the eldest of whom, known as the duke of Clarence, was born January 8, 1864, and died in January, 1892. The second son, George, duke of York, was born June 3, 1865. Louise Victoria Alexandra Dagmar, born Feb. ruary 20, 1867, married the duke of Fife in 1899. Victoria Alexandra was born July 6, 1868, and Maude Charlotte, born November 26, 1869, married Prince Charles, second son of the crown prince of Denmark, on July 22, 1896.

The duke of York, who now is heir-presumptive, will eventually be invested with the principality of Wales, but probably not until after his father has been formally crowned. The duke of York married on July 6, 1893, Princess Mary of Teck, the affianced bride of his older brother, the duke of Clarence, who died in 1892. They have two sons and a daughter, so that the succession in direct line is almost absolutely assured.

DEATH OF ROBERT LUCKEY.

WELL-KNOWN MILITARY TAILOR SUDDENLY PASSED AWAY.

Was Not Feeling Well But Illness Was Not Considered Critical—Leaves Wife and Two Children.

The death of Robert Luckey, aged 61 years, occurred very suddenly about 1:30 o'clock this morning at his home at 75 Sandford avenue. Although Mr. Luckey had been ill for several days with erysipelas, his condition was not considered critical.

Mr. Luckey and his family formerly lived in Westfield before coming to this city. They have resided in Plainfield for nearly ten years. Mr. Luckey was engaged in the business of military tailor at 206 Broadway, New York, for a great many years. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church, where he attended regularly. He was a member of the "Elijah" chorus and attended the rehearsals until very recently. He was well-known here and had a host of friends in this city and New York.

Mr. Luckey is survived by a wife, a daughter, Miss Mary Adelaide Luckey, who is well-known in literary circles, and a son, Harold Luckey. The funeral services will be held from the late residence Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment will be at Westfield.

ALWAYS HATED EVIL

Chicago Philanthropist Who Acquired a Fortune Honestly.

Some Facts About Dr. Pearsons Who Is Dispensing His Money to Needy Colleges and Schools Before His Death.

Dr. D. K. Pearsons, the aged millionaire of Chicago, who is giving away his large fortune, is not a physician, as his title might imply. It came to him in the annual dispensation of college honors. He was a shrewd, sharp business man during his active life. The architect of his own fortunes, he made his money in Chicago by taking advantage of opportunities during its years of rapid development. He was a real estate expert, and a great deal of his property was accumulated by judicious investments in that line.

Twenty-three years ago Dr. Pearsons was just beginning to attract attention. He was already a man of wealth, but the general public knew little about him. One day, however, when Chicago had become very much disgusted by boodling and other scandals in the city government, an era of reform was ushered in and Dr. Pearsons was elected a member of the so-called reform common council. He was tall and straight, with the blackest of hair and the sharpest of eyes, which he devoted to scanning every cranny of the city hall and every phase of public affairs. He saw a grab in every ordinance introduced into the council until he proved it to be honest. He became known as the great objector and the watchdog of the treasury. Professional aldermen and other ward politicians hated him like poison and he reciprocated the sentiment.

One day it was found that Chicago did not have money enough in its treasury to pay the interest on its bonds. Money must be raised or the city would default in its obligations. Dr. Pearsons arose in the council chamber to make this suggestion:

"We don't want to go down east to

DR. D. K. PEARSONS.
(Chicago Philanthropist Deeply Interested in Education.)

borrow money with which to pay our interest. We can raise all the money we need from our common people right here in the city. Let us issue a popular loan and invite everybody to take a little of it until we have borrowed $600,000."

So this was done. The loan was not advertised through the banks of the city, but was passed over the counter of the treasurer's office, and the greater part of it was taken by those who had only a few hundred dollars to invest and usually put their money in savings banks. In a few days the loan was entirely taken and there were hundreds of investors. The popular loan was a great success.

One day, says the New York Sun, Dr. Pearsons met a newspaper reporter of a thrifty turn who had saved $600 and invested it in the popular loan. "Mr. Jones," said Dr. Pearsons, "I see you have put a nice little sum in the loan. I am glad you have saved so much money. I like thrift. I wish I saw more evidence of it in all the newspaper reporters that come to me for news. I advise you to go right ahead saving your dollars; and if you will come to me when you have $200 or $300 to spare I will tell you how to invest it safely so as to yield an excellent return; and if you think my advice worth anything to you when you wish to invest money you may have it."

This incident was characteristic of the man. He has always been a friend to everybody whom he thought tried to do right. He has hated evil doers with more bitterness and vigor of denunciation than is often seen; but he would lend a helping hand to the worthy, and was particularly interested in ambitious young fellows who were beginning their career. But no humbug could impose upon him. No tramp could have his money unless he worked for it. While he was a member of Chicago's council he punctured every sham and shady bill he saw; and now he is giving his fortune to help eductaion in many parts of the country. So in his old age he is crowning with benefactions his long career of hard work, honorable dealing and honest public service.

Deer Barks Like a Dog.

Adjt. Gen. Corbin has received word from the commanding officer at Dapidan, Mindanao, P. I., that he has in his possession a male black deer or species native to that island whose peculiarity it is to bark and bay like a hound. Authority is requested for the transportation, with a view to its being placed in the zoological park at Washington. The necessary authority will be given, but it is not believed the deer will be able to survive the long ocean journey from his home and the great climate change.

KING AND COUNTESS.

My Lady of Warwick to Be Edward VII.'s Chief Adviser.

Arrangement May Mean Much Good for the Country—Premier Salisbury's Retirement Cannot Be Long Delayed.

With a view of getting a line on the direction in which King Edward VII. is likely to influence public life, many persons in a position to speak with such authority as is possible on the question have been interviewed. It is a surprise to find an agreement among the best authorities that no one is likely to influence the king so much in public matters as the countess of Warwick. The common impression has been that their friendship had waned, but it is stated that the king entertains the highest respect for the countess of Warwick's ability and sagacity; that he frequently consults her on difficulties he encounters in guiding his public conduct; in fact, that there is no one for whose judgment he entertains a higher opinion.

This really shows his discernment, says the New York World, for there is no woman of her rank and few others before the English public with more brains, energy or liberality of view than the countess. In fact, she is strongly inclined to radicalism, or, as she probably would call it, tory democracy.

Of late years the countess has applied herself to all manner of good work, especially directed toward bettering the condition of that most neglected and backward class of the English community, the agricultural laborer and small farmer.

The work she has been doing for Warwickshire and adjoining counties has been imitated by the king's direction in Norfolk with considerable success, but, lacking, as it does, the guiding hand of a woman both of intellect and good feeling, it cannot compare with what the countess has effected within her own sphere.

Premier Salisbury's absence from

MARQUIS OF SALISBURY.
(British Premier Said to Be at Outs with King Edward VII.)

his post at Queen Victoria's bedside during her last hours has been made the subject of a semiofficial explanation. The explanation is that the prince of Wales excused the premier from going, owing to the latter's indifferent health. But Lord Salisbury's health is now notoriously better than for some years, and anyone who observed him the other day in the house of lords could see that he was quite hale, alert and vigorous. He was by far the least affected by the sad occurrence of any speaker in either house during the vote of condolence proceedings.

It is also interesting to recall that when Lord Salisbury was summoned to London from Hatfield house when the queen's condition was grave it was stated on his behalf in the press "under no circumstances is Lord Salisbury going to Osborne house"—a form of announcement which has strong significance in view of the rumors now current in the best informed circles respecting his reltaions with the king.

A privy councilor present at the proclamation council states, in reply to inquiries, that the king and Lord Salisbury only saluted each other most perfunctorily, and that the duke of Devonshire (the lord president of the council) was the intermediary between the king and the council throughout the ceremonial. This has given rise to the impression that when Lord Salisbury retires the king will be able to persuade the duke of Devonshire to take the premiership, something the queen failed to do on two occasions.

The Times, too, has gone out of its way to tell the king that Lord Salisbury is the only possible prime minister, evidently fearing that a rupture will take place immediately, thus adding to the general confusion and trouble of the cabinet and country. But it is unlikely a change can be delayed long.

There is no doubt that the cause of the estrangement is, as stated before, Lord Salisbury spoke seriously to the prince of Wales about his mode of life and adjured him to surround himself no longer by the most lax, frivolous and brainless set in English society.

During the siege of Ladysmith 4,000 horses of the cavalry brigade were converted into soup or sausage in a single month.

—Recent experiments show that all classes of foods may be completely digested by a preparation called Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which absolutely digests what you eat. As it is the only combination of all the natural digestants ever devised the demand for it has become enormous. It has never failed to cure the very worst cases of indigestion and it always gives instant relief. L. W. Randolph.

SLEIGH UPSET.

Turned Over on Its Three Occupants But All Escaped Injury.

Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley, of Rockview avenue, a companion and the coachman, had a narrow escape from serious injury this noon at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street. They were in a sleigh. One runner caught in the trolley track upsetting the sleigh. The occupants were thrown out and while the sleigh completely covered the party, the horse became somewhat fractious.

J. E. Townsend, the marble dealer and John H. Carney, who were nearby assisted in extracting the party.

No one was hurt and both horse and sleigh escaped injury.

WHO DEMOCRATS NOW TALK FOR GOVERNOR.

Situation in Democratic Camp Summed Up By Record's Trenton Correspondent.

SEYMOUR IS MENTIONED.

E. F. C. YOUNG POINTED OUT AS IMPORTANT POWER.

Vice Chancellor Reed, Richard Lindabury and Johnston Cornish are All Mentioned for the Nomination—Who Will Get It?

There has been so much talk about the gubernatorial candidate of the Jersey Republicans that the various possibilities for a similar honor in the Democratic ranks has almost been forgotten by the public. There is, however, considerable activity among the Democrats and quite a number of candidates have been suggested from among those prominent in that party.

The Trenton correspondent of the Philadelphia Record sums up the present situation in the Democratic ranks as follows:

"Although the Democrats are not making much noise, yet they feel very happy over the entanglements which they claim have arisen in the Republican organization. For the first time in many years they see the approach of bright skies by which their party is sure to take advantage. They charge that politics has invaded the judiciary and that the independent voters, of whom there are thousands, will at the first opportunity rebuke the party which is held responsible for such a proceeding.

"Among those mentioned in connection with the gubernatorial nomination are Mayor Seymour, of Newark; Richard V. Lindaberry, Vice Chancellor Reed and Senator Cornish. It is intimated that Mr. Seymour will be the nominee and that an opportune time former Senator James Smith will be prevailed upon to support the Mayor.

"It is understood that Edward F. C. Young, of Jersey City, is the power behind Seymour and that he can command sufficient influence to bring about its nomination and afterward his election. The knowing ones in Democratic circles say that Robert Davis is the mouth piece of Mr. Young, and that the latter is now the real leader of the Democratic forces. Although comparatively a quiet and modest man in politics yet Mr. Young is known to be a skillful manipulator and a very safe adviser.

"It is stated that Mr. Young would like to go to the United States Senate, and that he has his eye now on the seat held by John Kean. The first thing to be done in order to pave the way for the Senatorship is for the Democrats to elect a Governor and then by safe degrees to mould public opinion into the election of Democratic Legislatures.

"Vice Chancellor Reed has numerous friends in all parts of the State who would like to see him elected governor. He has always been known as a staunch Democrat, but during his career on the bench he has not taken any active part in politics. In his early days he proved himself to be a campaigner of much force. His friends intend to present his name to the next Democratic State convention.

"Many Democrats in the upper end of the State favor the nomination of Richard V. Lindabury. There is no question as to his Democracy, as there is none as to his great ability as a lawyer and an orator. In the Griggs-McGill campaign of a few years ago Mr. Lindabury made a vigorous campaign in the interest of the Democratic candidate. Some Democrats are talking in favor of former Judge Child, and say that Mr. Smith would be pleased with his nomination.

"If Mayor Seymour should become an impossibility, then Senator Johnston Cornish's boom would loom up formidably and there's no telling where it would go. He is one of the most popular Democrats in the State and has stood sturdily for the party organization through thick and thin."

An Auction Sale

MANY BASKET BALL GAMES.

SCHEDULE OF THE FANWOOD A. C. IS ANNOUNCED.

Much Interest Taken in the Sport by Plainfield People—Only Two Teams Located Here.

Interest in basket ball appears to be on the increase, judging from the general interest shown in the games of the basket ball team of the Fanwood A. C. and the Business Men's team of the Y. M. C. A. While the Y. M. C. A. has two teams for class games, the Business Men's team is the only one from the local association which is taking part in games with out-of town clubs.

As four out of five of the famous team which represented Plainfield in the basket ball arena, are now playing with the Fanwood A. C., that team is naturally the strongest in the city. It was a close fight, however, when those two teams first met. The Fanwood boys have mapped out a much more elaborate schedule than their Y. M. C. A. opponents and are planning to play at least one game a week for the rest of the season.

Walter L. Long is manager of the Fanwood A. C. team this year and he has scheduled some good games for the remainder of the season. Already the Fanwood team has beaten the Ex-Polytechnic boys, of Brooklyn, and made a strong showing against the Seventeenth Separate Company of Flushing, L. I.

The schedule, while not complete, is announced as follows: Thursday, February 14, Company M, of Somerville, at Fanwood; Saturday, February 16, Fanwood against Ex-Polytechnic School, at Brooklyn; Friday, February 22, Fanwood against Hillcrest A C, at Summit; Saturday, February 23, Fanwood against Company M, at Somerville; Tuesday, March 5, All Saints B. B. team, of New York, at Fanwood; Wednesday, March 13, Fanwood against All Saints B. B. team, at New York.

ORGAN STOPPED.

Evening Service at First M. E. Church Lacked the Usual Organ Accompaniment.

Many persons who attended divine services at the First M. E. church last Sunday night were puzzled to know what happened to the organ, usually so faithful and true. Miss Jessie Utter, the organist, was at her post ready to play, but after a few notes the organ stopped and not a sound was forthcoming.

The officials of the church, as well as the sexton, Mr. Kennedy, made a thorough examination, but not until a long search was made, was it discovered that there was a hole in the bellows. How it got there no one knew. This little hole, however, was responsible for the failure of the organ to sound forth the accustomed note of praise, and the services of that good old friend had to be abandoned for the evening.

However, Charles S. Lewis, the efficient director of the choir, was equal to the occasion, and there was no interruption in the music for the service. The choir under his direction led the congregation singing, and some people said that it was even more effective without the music. There was a whole souled response on the part of the congregation and they seemed to sing more heartily than ever. The organ will be repaired in time for the service at the church this evening.

HEALTHY GROWTH.

Interesting Facts Shown by Statement of Mutual Benefit Insurance Company.

Attention is called to the fifty-sixth annual statement of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, of Newark, N. J., which is published in another column of this paper. A comparison of this statement with that of January 1, 1900 reveals a healthy and satisfactory growth of the company's transactions during the year 1900. Its premium receipts were $10,411,362 11, an increase of $454 554.62 over those of 1899; its payments to policy holders for policy claims and dividends amounted to $8,011,241.80; its assets on a par value basis increased from $69,419,717.78 to $72,958,022 21; and its surplus on a par value basis from $4,579,010 54 to $4,771,918 87. Valuing the company's assets at their market value, its surplus increased by $499,671 69. The number of policies in force increased by 6,391, and the amount of insurance outstanding by $12,905,167.

To Consider Applications.

There will be a special meeting of the militia committee of ten tonight at the Hotel Kensington, when applications for membership will be considered.

COUNTY TEACHER'S MEETING.

INSTRUCTORS OF SOMERSET COUNTY GATHERED AT SOMERVILLE.

Meeting Was Held Saturday — Many Interesting Addresses Made — Mr. Wightman Spoke.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 12—Even though the weather conditions seemed most unfavorable, the Somerset County Teacher's Association meeting held Saturday at this place, was well attended and one of the most enjoyable ever held.

President Krebs and County Superintendent Metz presided. Mr. Wightman, of North Plainfield, gave a talk on language work, as illustrated by the results in his schools. The paper was very strong and clear. Mr. Wightman claims that teaching done to cover a certain amount of ground is useless, the teacher must keep the aims of the course in mind instead of the accomplishment of a detailed amount of work.

Mr. Hoffman, of Bound Brook, talked on the subject of arithmetic. Dividing it into topics he stated his opinion as to what grades should be introduced. There was an open discussion as to the grade in which long division should be introduced first.

A refreshing and well served lunch was obtained at Cawley's restaurant.

At the beginning of the afternoon session Miss Ayers, from South Bound Brook, recited admirably a piece about "Leap Year Cards."

Prof. Brevier, of Rutgers College, filled the rest of the time with an address on "Literature and Life." His talk, he claimed, was very unpractical, but as its effect was a realization in every mind that the literature of a nation outlines its inventions and customs, his audience ventured to contradict him, assuring him that the result of his talk was a deeper interest in life and the greatest records of life on the part of his audience.

The next association meeting will be held in May in North Plainfield.

ARRESTED AT FAIR.

Harry Kitchell and a "McKinley Mack" Were Charged with Raising a Disturbance—Trial Today.

Harry Kitchell and T. McKinley, commonly known as "McKinley Mack," the cake-walker, were arrested by Chief Marshal Campbell in Saengerbund Hall last evening for causing a disturbance. Kitchell was released later in the evening on his promise to appear when wanted. "McKinley Mack" was held to await trial, which will probably take place sometime today. Robert M. Clark represents Kitchell.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SMOCK.

Held at Germantown, Pa., and Services at Bound Brook Cemetery.

The funeral services of Mrs. Mary Ann Smock were held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock from the home of her nephew, O. P. Hazard, at Germantown, Pa. The services were conducted by Rev. T. E. Davis, pastor of the Bound Brook Presbyterian church, where the deceased was an attendant.

The remains were brought to the Bound Brook Cemetery, where a short prayer service was held at 1 o'clock in the lodge house. There were many friends at the cemetery where an opportunity was given to view the remains by those who could not go to Germantown. Dr. Davis, in speaking of the departed, referred to her long and loving life, one devoted to charity and good deeds. There were many floral tributes from relatives and friends as tokens of high esteem.

Charming Luncheon.

The luncheon given at the Casino yesterday by Miss Cock and Mrs. Hugh Hastings, proved a most charming function. There were twenty-two guests, comprising representatives of Plainfield's best society. At one end of the festive board Miss Cock presided, at the other, Mrs. Hastings. The menu was all that the most fastidious palate could desire, and was thoroughly appreciated by the merry diners. A profusion of carnations comprised the decorations.

Planning a Dinner.

The members of the old Alert Hose Company, who have formed an association to perpetuate the memory of the company, are planning to give a dinner at the Casino, February 22, at which time there will be some interesting features in the way of speeches, etc., regarding the history of the company.

Prominent Officer Will Attend.

Grand Master of Records A. L. Clark, of Trenton, will be at the public meeting of the Knights of the Golden Eagle to be held in Washington Hall this evening. There are now twenty-two charter members and it is hoped to institute the castle Thursday evening, Feb. 28.

FIREMEN'S FAIR ENDS IN BLAZE OF GLORY.

Last Night Brought Firemen's Fair to a Close After a Successful Run.

THEY MADE OVER $1,500.

FULL RETURNS ARE NOT YET IN BUT MUCH MONEY WAS CLEARED.

Edward Terry Won the Rubber Tired Runabout—Other Contests Decided Last Night—Hall Was Thronged—Committee Thankful.

It was with a feeling of relief that every member of the North Plainfield fire department saw last evening come and go, inasmuch as it brought to a finish their grand fair and entertainment. Many weeks were spent in preparation and seven nights of the hardest kind of work were necessary to carry it out successfully. But it was a success and the fire laddies have as a reward an overflowing treasury and the satisfaction of knowing that they have the necessary funds to entertain next fall the largest number of firemen the borough will have ever had in its limits at one time. For the object of the fair has been to secure finances to cover the expenses of a monster parade next fall.

Large crowds have been the rule all the past week and last night was no exception. From the time the doors opened early in the evening until long after midnight, the hall was practically one mass of humanity, all seemingly intent on having a good time. As it required considerable time to conclude the various contests, no regular programme had been provided but for this the crowd cared naught. With the dreamy waltzes and lively two steps rendered by Naylor's orchestra, as an incentive, they glided about the smooth floor stopping only at intervals to hear the results of the contests announced. In spite of the large crowd excellent order prevailed in the hall through the efforts of Floor Manager L. B. Bodine and his corps of assistants.

But strongly rivalling the dancing in regard to interest were the contests. While there were any number of more or less prominence interest centered in the race for the handsome rubber tired road wagon which has been the envy of all eyes throughout the week. There were four contestants for the vehicle and with the aid of their respective friends they devoted all their energies toward securing votes. Edward Terry has been the favorite all along and when promptly at 11:30 o'clock he was announced as the winner with 269 votes the result was greeted with long applause. Clark Conover was second with 78 votes and Edward Clark and Bernard Clark, third and fourth with 56 and 14 votes respectively.

The complete kit of machinists' tools was secured by William O'Keefe, of Ponds, who had 570 votes to his credit. Thomas Wearren, of the Aluminum Plate and Press Company, was second and Claude Roseberry, of Potter's, finished third.

In the contest for the foreman's lantern, F. M. Lunger, of Warren, outdistanced his opponent, Frank Perry, of the West End Company, by receiving 913 votes. Perry secured but 40.

The contest for the tapper resulted in its award to Charles Stahl who had 977 votes to his credit against Raymond Schenck's 889. The tapper will be installed in the former's home free of charge. The handsome American flag was won by Freeholder Andrew Lutkins.

While as yet no definite sum can be named as being the financial result of the fair, the amount will not fall short of the $1,500 mark. A meeting of the firemen will be held this evening when all outstanding accounts will be turned in and the net receipts definitely decided upon. But whatever it may be it was obtained only through the untiring efforts of the members, assisted by their friends and donators, to all of whom they are truly grateful and last but not least, the citizens whose patronage made the affair the success it was.

Interest also ran high in the women's bowling tourney which has been in progress all week. The leaders in this contest have been Mrs. Charles Debele, Mrs. Mark Clark, Miss Mamie Squires and Miss Mamie Koller. The latter outbowled all competitors last evening and was declared the winner.

County Committee to Meet.

The Union County Republican Executive Committee will hold an important meeting at Elizabeth Friday evening.

ALL OWNERS HAVE CONSENTED

WOODLAND AVENUE BOULEVARD IS NOW ASSURED.

All Signatures Secured Yesterday Will Ask Council to Appoint Commissioners to Build It.

The Woodland avenue boulevard project, inaugurated many months ago by S. D. Drake, is now an assured success. A meeting was scheduled for last evening at Mr. Drake's office on North avenue, but as the result was anticipated owing to the fact that the consents of all property-owners were already secured for the improvement. All signed as one person for the making of the boulevard from Prospect avenue to Hillside Cemetery and for paving Prospect avenue from Park avenue to Woodland avenue. The boulevard will be 100 feet wide and just one mile long.

The following persons have consented, donating the number of feet given after their names: Mrs. DuFlon, 800; J. E. Martine, 1,100; E. E. Pray, 600; J. T. Vail, 600; Mrs. Emma Darling, 900; S. D. Drake Realty Company, 800; Randolph estate, 1,100. For the paving of Prospect avenue the consents are as follows: Col. John F. Wilson, 600; S. D. Drake Realty Company, 200; Mrs. Emma Darling, 500; John Darling, 200, while J. E. Martine and the First National Bank, who have interests there, have gladly consented.

In view of the proposed improvement W. H. Smalley has sold 1,200 feet of land on Randolph road and 700 feet will be sold today on Prospect auenue at $5 more per foot than was offered a year ago.

A petition will be presented to the Common Council at the meeting February 18, asking the Council to appoint commissioners so that the work of making the boulevard can be started at once.

MINISTERS MET.

Plainfield Ministers' Association Entertained at Home of Rev. Dr. Hubbell, of Central Avenue.

A very interesting meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association was held yesterday afternoon, when Rev. Dr. Hubbell, of 945 Central avenue, entertained the members. The paper was prepared and presented by Rev. Dr. Lemuel Moss, of 717 Watchung avenue, on the subject of "The World, the Man and the Book." It was an especially interesting and helpful paper and the subject was treated exhaustively.

Just at the time when the members were about to engage in an informal discussion of the subject, there was an interruption in an invitation to dinner, one of the pleasant features of the meeting. As a result of Rev. Floyd Appleton, formerly curate of Grace P. E. church, leaving the city, it was necessary to elect someone to fill his place as secretary of the association. Rev. G. W. Gardner, pastor of Grace M. E. church, was chosen for the place.

SEEKING DIVORCE.

Lawyer Newcorn Appointed to Represent Petitioner in Baker Divorce Suit.

Chancellor W. J. Magie has assigned Lawyer William Newcorn as a solicitor and counsel for the petitioner in the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Mary Alberta Scriven-Baker against her husband, Charles Baker, the defendant. The petitioner asks for divorce on the ground of desertion.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker formerly resided in this city, the wife being a daughter of Isaac J. Scriven, at one time janitor at the Babcock building. The defendant is a typesetter by trade and was employed in various places in this vicinity. The petitioner is now a resident of Cranford.

Will Talk On "Hearts."

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will hold the regular consecration service Friday evening. At that time Joseph S. Schultheis will give a blackboard talk on "Hearts." Those who have heard this illustrated talk say it is very interesting.

Putting in New Skylight.

The Babcock estate is making a very desirable improvement at Woodhull & Martin's store. A large skylight is being placed in the rear of the store, which will give the needed extra light where heretofore it has been so dark.

Pictures in The Herald.

Pictures of Senator Charles A. Reed and William R Cock appeared in last Sunday's edition of the New York Herald.

WON GAME BY SEVEN PINS.

EXCITING BOWLING MATCH BETWEEN Y. M. C. A. AND HOPE CHAPEL.

Hope Chapel Won First Game and Then the Y. M. C. A. Boys Captured Two—On Y. M. C. A. Alleys.

A very interesting bowling match took place on the alleys of the Y. M. C. A. last evening between the Y. M. C. A. team and a team from Hope chapel. The Y. M. C. A. boys were not in their usual form but the game was exciting and closely contested throughout.

In the first game the Hope chapel team lead off and kept in front until the end of the game. Howard George made the highest score in the first game for the Y. M. C. A., but the Hope chapel boys had such a lead that they won out by 50 pins.

When the second game was started the Y. M. C. A. team settled down to hard work and soon showed their opponents that they had not lost all their old time form. The Hope chapel boys were not discouraged, however, and fought hard for the game, but they were somewhat nervous, and let the Y. M. C. A. win out by 87.

After the second game both teams adjourned to the room above where supper was served, and when they returned each one of the Hope chapel team declared that they had never been so well entertained and gave three cheers for the Y. M. C. A.

The third game was then started, and as each had won one, it was particularly exciting. The Y. M. C. A. team recovered from their excitement and by even playing soon took the lead, which their opponents were unable to overcome, and won out by the small margin of seven pins.

Following are the scores:

Y. M. C. A.	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
Smyth	93	140	130
Brokaw	108	98	110
Denton	78	152	120
George	135	136	115
C. Smith	112	98	102
	526	624	577

HOPE CHAPEL.	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
Neuman	82	108	88
Roseberry	114	130	97
C. Smith	131	109	153
Meyers	119	123	95

SIX YEARS OLD.

Pleasant Affair Given in Honor of Event By Little Miss Galbraith.

In honor of her sixth birthday, Miss Annie Galbraith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Galbraith, West Third street, entertained a number of her little friends at a party yesterday afternoon. After playing games until hostess and guests were thoroughly tired, the party sat down to supper. The table was prettily decorated and in the centre was a handsome birthday cake with six candles. The little hostess received a number of appropriate presents. Among those who were present were the Misses Pauline Goff, Ella Lappin, Mamie Lappin, Katherine Ayers, Hazel Hogan, Flora Hogan, Ethel Searing, Helen Galbraith and Annie Galbraith.

"THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

All Will Be Prepared For Performance Saturday Evening.

Wm. L. Saunders, who has the management of the details for the performance of "The Private Secretary," says that everything is in readiness and nothing will be left undone to give a fine performance. Those who are to take part in the play have attained a degree of efficiency that is indeed gratifying to Alfred Young, the coach. The hall will be thoroughly cleaned and many details have been arranged that will add greatly to the enjoyment of the affair. The dress rehearsal will be held Friday evening and the regular performance will be given the following night.

PLAINFIELDER WEDDED.

C. Curtiss Beard Married to Brooklyn Young Woman.

The marriage of Charles Curtiss Beard, Jr., of 810 Hillside avenue, to Miss Taylor, of Brooklyn, was solemnized at St. Bartholomew's church in Brooklyn, on Wednesday, February 6, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Beard are making an extended tour through the south and west and will not return till after Easter. They will make their future home in New York.

Benefit Musicale.

A musicale will be given for the benefit of the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters at the home of Miss Lillian A. Force, 82 Duer street, Thursday evening, Feb. 14, at 8:15 o'clock. Twenty-five cents will be received at the door.

SENATE CONSIDERED PLAN TO REDISTRICT

Failing to Agree a Committee Was Appointed to Consider the Question.

MANY BILLS INTRODUCED.

SENATOR REED INTRODUCED A BILL ABOLISHING POLL TAX.

Objection to Franklin Murphy's Plan of Dividing Congressional Districts—Several Bills Passed and a Number Introduced.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 12.—After discussing the plan of redistricting the State until after mid-night without coming to any decisson, the members of the State Senate left the matter in the hands of a committee to be appointed by Senator C. A. Reed. While the committee will not have power to definitely arrange the Congressional districts of the State, the report will undoubted largely influence the result.

There were sessions of both Houses of the Legislature yesterday, but it was chiefly routine business which came before both Houses.

Senator Reed introduced a bill abolishing the poll tax.

The discussion on the redistricting of the State occurred at a caucus of the Senators held after the session of the Senate. There was considerable opposition to the Franklin Murphy plan regarding the Fourth and Fifth districts which was objectionable to both Somerset and Union counties. The committee, which will further consider the matter, is composed of Senators Reed, Pitney, Francis, Stokes and Cross. It is understood that a majority of the committee is not in favor of Mr. Murphy's plan.

The Senate confirmed the appointments made by the Governor last last week, including those of G. D. W. Vroom, of this city, to the Court of Errors, and the members of the Palisades Commission.

Mr. McCarter secured the passage in the Senate of his bill enabling the Essex County Board of Freeholders to appoint a superintendent of the County Insane Asylum for five years, instead of two.

These bills were introduced in the Senate:

By Mr. Gebhardt—Providing that no corporations except railroad companies shall be organized with a capital stock exceeding $160,000,000, and prohibiting any merger or consolidation by which the capital stock of any company would be increased beyond that amount.

By Mr. Stokes — Amending the school act of 1900 and appropriating each year not less than $100,000 from the State treasury for school purposes to be apportioned among the several counties on the basis of their ratables. In addition, a State school tax to be levied annually equal to 2½ mills on every dollar of taxable property. The method apportioning the State school fund is to be on the daily attendance instead of on the basis of the school census, which is abolished by the act.

By Mr. Reed—Abolishing the poll tax.

By Mr. Wakelee—Providing that when there is an arrest of a passenger as a result of a dispute over a ticket, the passenger may demand a hearing before the nearest justice or magistrate, instead of having the case go to a city district court.

By Mr. Wakelee—Amending the Palisades act of last winter by authoring the Commission to select such lands as they may see fit for the purposes of the proposed park, and defining which lands they may acquire.

By Mr. Hudspeth—Placing county officers in second class counties on a on a salary and abolishing all fees.

In the House the following resolution by Mr. Garrison was adopted:

Whereas, The nomination by the Governor of Mahlon Pitney for Supreme Court Justice received immediate confirmation by the Senate;

Resolved, That the House of Assembly recognizes in the elevation of the presiding officer of the Senate an official act which reflects credit upon the Senate and confers honor and distinction upon a gentleman eminently fitted for the bench by education, legal training, experience and ability.

The House passed the bill appropriating $10,000 to cover the expenses of the provisional regiment attending the inauguration, the bill being opposed by Mr. Fallon, on the ground that it would be simply a junketing trip for the benefit of a few, while the money could be spent to a better ad-

Mrs. A. M. McKee and children, who have been living on First place for the winter, have returned to their home on Orange place.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from there use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by L. W. Randolph. Price 50 cents

—The official board of the First M. E. church will hold an important meeting tomorrow evening after the prayer service.

—Reports show a greatly increased death rate from throat and lung troubles, due to the prevalence of croup, pneumonia and grippe. We advise the use of One Minute Cough Cure in all of these difficulties. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Children like it. L. W. Randolph.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Lincoln J. Carter's productions are always interesting to the dramatic impressionist. He does not follow Carlyle's advice that the best artist is one that paints with a small brush, but he seizes the largest brush from the rack and slings the tint of carmine over all. "The Eleventh Hour," which will be seen at Music Hall tomorrow night, will be rich in detail—just the kind to make the spectator sit on the edge of his seat in expectancy with a succession of chills chasing up and down his spinal column. The first act is laid in an old mill, where the heavy villian starts the machinery of the plot in motion. The other four acts will deal with Chicago life, which Mr. Carter seems to make a study. The principal sensation will occur at a block tower of a railroad, and the principal scenic feature will be the representation of a Chicago millionaire's home. Like Richard Whiting, in No. 5 John Street," Mr. Carter has evidently endeavored to depict both high and low life in his city. The company is thoroughly adequate for the presentation of the play.

—The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel this afternoon.

—Millions of people are familiar with DeWitt's Little Early Risers and those who use them find them to be famous little liver pills. Never gripe. L. W. Randolph.

—The literary committee of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a social in Vincent chapel Friday evening.

—For the weakness and prostration following grippe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly. L. W. Randolph.

Mrs. Allen, of Race street, has recovered from a recent severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Schwed, of Fairview avenue, are entertaining company from out of town.

Miss Anna Eastman, of New York, formerly of this city, is spending a few days as the guest of Plainfield friends.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C, "I had Consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life saver in Consumption, Pneumonia LaGrippe and Bronchitis; infallible for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup or Whooping Cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

EX-KING MILAN'S DEATH.

Most Despised of European Monarchs Has Passed Away.

VIENNA, Feb. 12.—The death of ex-King Milan of Servia, which occurred yesterday, after a short illness, was in some respects peculiarly sad. Neither his wife, ex-Queen Natalie, nor his son, King Alexander, was present when he breathed his last. The dying ex-king early in the day had telegraphed to his wife, who is at Biarritz, to hasten to him, but she replied that her condition was such as to make it impossible to undertake the journey.

King Alexander, who was also sent for, at first refused to come, but on receiving a second message, telling of his father's great disappointment, changed his mind and started for Vienna.

Milan of Servia was born on Aug. 10, 1854, at Jassy, the son of Melos Obrenovic and a Moldavian woman, whose elopement with Prince Cuza shortly after the birth of Milan caused a scandal at the court.

Milan was adopted by his uncle, Prince Michael Obrenovic III, the reigning prince of Servia, and was educated in Paris.

Upon the assassination of his uncle in the gardens of his palace at Belgrade on June 10, 1868, Milan was called to assume the government.

He made himself one of the most eccentric and most thoroughly despised of monarchs in the history of European royalty.

In 1888 Queen Natalie got a divorce from the ex-king. In 1889 the Servian government could stand him no longer, and it paid him £200,000 to be off about his own affairs. He accepted and spent the money in two years of Parisian debauchery. He ran through several fortunes afterward, and at his death was practically penniless and dependent upon the charity of the Hapsburgs of Austria.

The dynasty of which Milan was the fourth was founded by a swineherd, Milos Todorovic Obrenovic. He led the Servians in their insurrection against Turkey in 1815-29, the result of which was virtual independence for Servia. By the treaty of Sept. 14, 1829, Milan was recognized as Prince of Servia.

Tribute to the Late C. D. Warner.

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—The ninth annual banquet and reunion of the New England Association of Hamilton College Alumni adopted a preamble and resolutions presented by Rev. Dr. William C. Winslow on the death of Charles Dudley Warner. The concluding paragraph says: "That we believe our times were more cheerful and every one better because he lived in them. We fully believe that with the going out of a century on earth there passed with his death one of the world's true aspirants whose work for good is forever stamped upon a century of progress and will be gratefully treasured by the century before us." Copies are to be sent to Mrs. Warner and to President Stryker of the college.

Mary Condit-Smith Weds.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Lieutenant Richard S. Hooker and Miss Mary O. Condit-Smith were married at noon yesterday at Epiphany church by Bishop Satterlee. After the wedding the couple left for a short tour. Upon their return they will take up their residence at the Brooklyn navy yard, where Lieutenant Hooker is stationed. The bride is the daughter of the late J. Condit-Smith of New York. While sojourning in China several months ago she became a prisoner during the siege of Peking. The groom is the son of Mrs. Bessie Stewart and the grandson of Senator Stewart. He received his commission over a year ago and recently was promoted.

The Strike That Failed.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 12.—The Lattimer strikers who went out three weeks ago because of the alleged unwarranted discharge of two drill runners have decided to return to work, and operations will be resumed at the colliery as soon as the mules are taken back into the mines and necessary repairs now in progress are finished. The drill runners will not be reinstated as at first demanded by the mine workers, but will be supported by the latter until they secure other work. The strikers, it is estimated, lost about $27,000 in wages during their idleness.

Convicted Cashier to Testify.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—George M. Valentine, who is serving a term in state prison for having defrauded the Middlesex County bank of Perth Amboy, N. J., was brought from prison at Trenton yesterday to appear as a witness in the suit of Edward S. Campbell, receiver for the bank, against the Manufacturers' National bank of Newark, tried in the circuit court at Newark before Judge Swayze and a jury.

Killed by an Icicle.

BUFFALO, Feb. 12.—Franklin Gardner, 8 years old, was killed while entering the door of the Sunday school attached to St. Louis' church, at Main and Edward streets. An icicle that had hung over the doorway and which weighed fully 25 pounds fell on the boy's head and fractured his skull. Death came a short time after in the Fitch hospital.

Criminal Lawyer Dead.

FONDA, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Henry B. Cushney, a well known criminal lawyer, is dead at his home in this village of cancer, aged 71 years. He was a son of Judge R. H. Cushney and had practiced law for almost half a century.

GOMEZ FACTION WON

Eligibility of Dominican General to Presidency Fixed.

BITTER CONVENTION STRUGGLE ENDED

Editing Committee at Work on the Cuban Code, and Its Final Adoption Expected at an Early Date.

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—The followers of General Maximo Gomez triumphed yesterday in the Cuban constitutional convention. The clause making him eligible to the presidency of the republic was adopted by a vote of 15 to 14. There was no discussion. Just before the question was put to a vote Senor Giberga said he did not think the convention was called upon to recognize the revolutionary element in the constitution, but this protest elicited no reply. Senor Llorente, who is classed with the anti-Gomez faction, was not present at yesterday's session owing to sickness. General Rivera absented himself in consequence of his wish not to take part in this particular dispute. Senor Betancourt, who voted last week with the opponents of General Gomez to postpone the discussion, cast his vote for Gómez, making a majority of one in favor of the clause.

The anti-Gomez faction took the defeat quietly and almost good naturedly. The session will continue today, when some changes will be made. It is generally believed that the convention will leave out the clause referring to the expulsion of "pernicious foreigners." There is also a growing disposition to eradicate all radical clauses before submitting the completed work to the United States congress.

The editing committee is getting the document in shape with as little delay as possible, and it is expected that the final adoption will not be much postponed.

The question of the relations to be sustained between Cuba and the United States will be left to a special commission who will draw up a proposal to be submitted to the convention.

Governor General Wood has issued a decree declaring valid the contract between the Pan-American Express company and the Cuban railroads without any qualifications. The order settles definitely the rights of the company.

Porto Rican Legislature.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Resident Commissioner Degetau of Porto Rico has received a cablegram from the central committee of the Porto Rican Republican party saying: "The legislature's work has been beneficial and patriotic, passing 38 laws on education, police, justice, taxation, charity, prisons and appropriations. Every one inspired by American ideas and beneficial to the people. Legislative work equal to any legislation of other countries. Those protesting against taxation are foreigners and Federal sympathizers with Spanish ideas, who defend the old system which favored concealing property and put inequitable burdens upon the people. Republican party satisfied with patriotic labor of the legislature and is hopeful for the future."

Lives With Broken Neck.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 12.—Henry Schmalsteig, a blacksmith, had his neck broken on Saturday evening in an initiation in the Wheeling lodge of the Order of American Foresters. He is alive, and it was not until yesterday afternoon that the physicians ascertained that his neck was broken. Schmalsteig, with a number of other candidates, appeared on Saturday night for initiation into the Foresters, and in the course of the ceremonies something occurred that caused the blacksmith to leap into the air. He came down on the back of his head with terrible force and lay unconscious long after he was removed to his home.

Fight at a Polling Place.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 12.—More than 150 shots were fired, a sergeant of police and two negroes were wounded and a ballot box was stolen in the course of a riot about the Second district polling place of the Fourth ward, at Twelfth and Linden streets, early last evening. It was only after a riot call had brought Captain Kiem with 40 policemen and riot guns to the scene that a semblance of order was restored. Even then the streets were filled with negroes and some white men, all of whom were armed, many of them intoxicated and looking for trouble.

Marine Disaster Probable.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 12.—The government has received advices that wreckage, apparently part of a steamer, including a well finished bridge, a lot of planks and an empty brandy case, has drifted ashore near Bacalieu, a small island northeast of the Avalon peninsula. Other wreckage is reported at different points along the shore. It is believed that some serious marine disaster has occurred, resulting in the loss of a ship and her entire crew, although nothing is known respecting the name of the vessel or her destination.

A Battle With Icy Seas.

HALIFAX, Feb. 12.—After battling with head gales and icy seas on the Atlantic for 26 days the steamer Critic, bound from Dundee for New York, arrived in port last evening, having been obliged through lack of fuel to temporarily abandon the attempt to reach her destination. The Critic is the third arrival in two days which the storms of the past month have driven into this port to replenish bunkers. The Critic sailed from Dundee Jan. 15.

A Preacher's Changes of Creed.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 12.—At a special meeting of the presbytery of Hudson, convened here, the Rev. B. J. Morgan, a Methodist minister, asked to be reinstated in the Presbyterian church. He recently severed his connection with the Presbyterian church to become a Methodist.

Cornell Students Dropped.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 12.—As a result of the recent examinations the Cornell faculty has dropped a total of 64 men from all departments. More than two-thirds of that number went from Sibley college. But seven were found deficient in the law department.

To Exempt Editors and Reporters.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—Assemblyman O'Malley of Erie has introduced a bill to generally exempt editors, editorial writers or reporters of daily newspapers from jury duty.

SPAIN IS DISTURBED.

Martial Law Has Been Declared In Valencia.

MOB TRIED TO BURN A MONASTERY.

The Aristocracy, However, Continue Their Prenuptial Festivities—A Court Ball of Dazzling Brilliancy.

MADRID, Feb. 12.—Yesterday, a day awaited with some anxiety in official circles because the anniversary of the establishment of the republic was accentuated by the recent manifestations, passed off more quietly than several days of late. Just after nightfall an idle crowd, chiefly composed of street gamins, gathered on the Puerta del Sol, but when shouts arose the civil guards charged and cleared the space, after which there was no disturbance. The rain began to fall and dampened the ardor of the manifestants.

Martial law has been declared in Valencia. Deputy Ibanez headed a demonstration there, when the prefect's carriage was stoned. The mob threw petroleum on the monastery of Camillez, but the gendarmes succeeded in preventing a conflagration. The disorder continued all day. A procession of the rosary did not leave the church owing to the threatening attitude of the crowd.

Meanwhile the aristocracy of Spain gathered at the palace to attend a court ball in honor of the wedding of the Princess of the Asturias and Prince Charles of Bourbon. The magnificent structure, which was ablaze with electric lights, could scarcely accommodate the invited guests, whose carriages were wending their way thither as early as 9 o'clock.

The long line of guests traversed the former ballroom called the Hall of Columns and passed through apartment after apartment gorgeously hung with Gobelin tapestry of magnificent designs. The members of the diplomatic corps awaited the royal party, which entered promptly at 10 o'clock. The queen regent was escorted by the Count of Caserta.

The regent welcomed the members of the diplomatic corps. Mr. Bellamy Storer, the United States minister, was accompanied by Mrs. Storer. Her majesty advanced and gave Mr. Storer a cordial personal greeting.

The royal party then entered the state dining room, which is one of the most splendid salons in Europe. The queen and her partner opened the dancing within a reserved space, each having as partner the one already mentioned as escort. The guests followed so closely that the room became densely packed, and circulation as well as dancing was virtually impossible for two hours.

The whole scene was a bewildering spectacle of court grandeur, in which brilliant uniforms were really less noticeable than evening dress. Count Dubsky, the Austrian embassador, who is the doyen of the diplomatic corps in Madrid, on whose arm Mrs. Storer entered the palace, was especially distinguished by his resplendent uniform.

Particularly noticeable on account of the war between the United States and Spain was the cordiality everywhere extended to Mr. and Mrs. Storer, the officials and diplomats crossing the room to welcome them.

It is estimated that there were 5,000 guests at the ball.

Students Stone Monks.

SARAGOSSA, Feb. 12.—During an anticlerical demonstration here yesterday the students stoned several monks. They were dispersed by police and gendarmes.

Anticlerical Demonstrations.

VALENCIA, Feb. 12.—The anticlerical demonstrations were resumed in Valencia yesterday. Demonstrations against the Jesuits continue in Barcelona.

Anticipated Changes at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 12.—It was pretty generally rumored in the Carnegie building that if the amalgamation was effected some of the offices will be moved to New York. In case this is true the executive, general banking, costs, statistics and other similar departments will be taken to the metropolis, leaving here only the operating and a portion of the order department. About 5,000 people are employed in the various Carnegie offices, of which fully 4,000 will go to New York or obtain other positions here. Absolutely nothing can be learned locally about the negotiations. It is reported that the affair will be closed Wednesday or Thursday, but this report can not be verified. President Schwab will probably return to New York tonight.

Proceedings Against Edison.

TRENTON, Feb. 12.—The New England Phonograph company has instituted proceedings in the United States circuit court for an injunction and $100,000 damages against Thomas A. Edison, the Edison Phonograph Works and the National Phonograph company. The injunction was asked to restrain the defendants from selling phonographs and parts of phonographs in New England, it being charged that the defendants are infringing patent rights which the New England company has for the New England states. Damages are asked for profits which it is alleged the New England company has lost by reason of the defendants' action.

Equal Pay For the Sexes.

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—Typographical union No. 13 has won its first point in the fight for equal pay for men and women employed in composing rooms. Hereafter the state printing office will pay its male and female compositors equal wages. This is assured for the reason that the contracts for state printing as drafted by state officials stipulate that men and women shall be paid equal wages for a working day of nine hours.

The Rawlins Floated.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Quartermaster General Ludington has received a telegram from Quartermaster Ham of the transport Rawlins, which ran aground in the harbor of Santiago on Sunday, saying that that vessel had been floated. He said the vessel had sustained no damage and had sailed last night. The Rawlins is to bring a battalion of the Tenth infantry to Newport News.

Embankment's Fatal Fall.

MADISON, Ga., Feb. 12.—While a large force of hands were loading a car on the Macon and Northern railroad near here an embankment under which the men were working fell upon them. Tom Daniel and Artie Travis were killed.

MORE TAX BILLS.

New York Legislature Seems to Have a Tax Mania.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—Two more bills imposing taxes were introduced in the senate and assembly last night, and more are reported coming. The chief of these new measures is one by Assemblyman Rodenbeck, which, basing its tax proposition on the Ford franchise tax law goes considerably further along the same lines. Mr. Rodenbeck in explaining his bill says:

"By the special franchise act all franchises in public thoroughfares were made taxable as real estate. The statute does not cover franchises which do not lie in public streets or places. The bill which I have introduced reaches such franchises. It treats them as one of the elements going to make up the value of real estate. Should the bill become a law it could then be said that all franchises were taxable in some form or other."

The bill provides that in fixing the value of railroads, pipe lines, telegraph lines, telephone lines and other real estate the assessors may take into consideration any franchises, rights, authority, permission or easement to construct, operate or maintain the same so far as the property is not subject to a special franchise tax. The property taxable under that law lies mainly in the cities of the state. The proposed law would reach property located in tax districts lying outside the municipalities.

In additional explanation of his bill Mr. Rodenbeck in a manner attacks the tax scheme proposed by Governor Odell and claims that instead of taking up individual corporations and industries for taxation the revenue purpose can be achieved in a better way by imposing a general tax on taxable objects. The bill introduced by Senator Brackett amends the tax law relating to the franchise tax paid by elevated roads or surface railroads not operated by steam by providing that an annual tax shall be paid by such roads for carrying on its business of 1 per cent upon its gross earnings from the operation of its cars in the streets, avenues and public places within this state and five-tenths of 1 per cent of its gross earnings from all other sources within the state.

SOME BRIGADIERS.

President's Nominations Confirmed. Lee and Wilson Added.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The senate held two brief executive sessions yesterday for the consideration of the nominations for the office of brigadier general sent in by the president under the army reorganization act.

At the first session the nominations to that position which had been favorably reported upon were recommitted to the committee on military affairs. During the afternoon there was a hurried meeting of the committee, at which favorable reports upon all the brigadier nominations before the committee were acted upon, and at the second closed session of the senate they were all reported. These favorable recommendations included not only the nominations heretofore reported, but also the nominations of Generals Wood, Grant and Bell, which had been previously passed over, and also those of Generals Fitz-Hugh Lee and James H. Wilson, whose names were sent to the senate yesterday. When the nominations were reported, Senator Pettigrew objected to favorable consideration, and they went over until today under the senate rule.

It is understood that there will be a change in the order in which the nominations were made, which will relieve them of the criticism that was made on account of the high relative position the original assignments gave certain officers.

New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, Feb. 12.—The two houses of the legislature held long and somewhat tedious sessions last night. Most of the time was taken up with the introduction of bills and the adoption of unimportant resolutions. In the house Mr. Fallon (Dem.) of Hudson county opposed the house bill appropriating $10,000 to send a regiment of the national guard to Washington to take part in the inaugural ceremonies of President McKinley. He characterized the trip as a junket which should not be paid for by the state. The bill passed. The house also passed the senate bill making the term of the superintendent of the Essex County Insane asylum five years and the house bill repealing the act of 1893 requiring city halls to be surrounded by 25 feet of open space. Mr. Fallon made an ineffective effort to take from committee his bill prohibiting corporations from blacklisting discharged employees. The house adopted a resolution eulogizing the appointment of President Pitney of the senate to the supreme court bench.

Important Railway Bill.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 12.—Senator Sproul of Delaware county, chairman of the senate committee on railroads, has introduced a bill into the senate which is of great importance, considering the various consolidations and projects for consolidating railroads having lines through this state. The constitution of Pennsylvania, adopted in 1874, expressly forbids railroad corporations from absorbing or acquiring parallel or competing lines, and the Sproul bill looks toward providing in the statutes of the state the constitutional provisions and putting them in distinct form.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Major C. [illegible] Sears, corps of engineers, has been [illegible] as a member of a board appointed to make a survey, plan and estimates [illegible] the improvement of a harbor at the [illegible] of Guam in place of Captain John [illegible] corps of engineers, who was [illegible]ly selected as a member of said [illegible] Major Sears will proceed to [illegible] and on the completion of his duties there will proceed to Manila.

Collided With Ship at Sea.

[illegible]ON, Feb. 12.—Lloyd's agent at [illegible]head exchanged wireless messages [illegible]day with the White Star freighter [illegible] Captain Thompson, which left [illegible]ool for New York the previous [illegible] when she was 12 miles out to sea. [illegible]ges from the shore to the ship and from the ship to the shore were made as quickly and easily as by telephone. Other exchanges are being conducted over long distances.

McKenzie Sentenced.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—In the contempt proceedings against Receiver Alexander McKenzie of Nome City in the United States circuit court of appeals McKenzie was sentenced to serve one year's imprisonment on two counts, and Judge Noyes, who appointed McKenzie to his office, was severely censured by the court for alleged complicity in the scandal.

TUGBOATS BLAMED.

Investigation of the Hoboken Disaster In Germany.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—An investigation has begun before a naval board at Bremerhaven into the causes, circumstances and incidents of the great Hoboken fire of June 30, 1900. Most of the witnesses deposed unfavorably with reference to the conduct of the New York tugboats at the time.

As the result of its inquiry the naval board found that the fire originated in the cotton sheds and developed rapidly into a great conflagration. It found also that the cause of the outbreak could not be precisely ascertained, but was probably carelessness.

"If the Saale, the Bremen and the Maine could have been more promptly hauled from the piers," says the judgment of the board, "the damage to the vessels and the loss of life would not have been nearly so serious. The New York tugs refused various requests for assistance and paid no heed to those drifting on the water.

"Special praise is due to First Engineer Barends and Second Officer Holfeldt, as well as to several of the crew of the Kaiser Friedrich, who saved 37 persons from the Saale."

No fault is found with the measures taken on the damaged ships, and the efforts to extinguish the flames and to effect salvage, together with the bearing and discipline of the crews, are referred to in the finding of the board as "deserving recognition."

Old Timer In the Toils.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 12.—The police authorities of Worcester, Mass., Milwaukee and Chicago are interested in the case of L. D. Bateman, alias Lucius D Brown, alias L. D. Crimms, who was arrested here recently, charged with defrauding local hotels out of board bills. From information received by the Baltimore police it is believed by them that the man is one of the most noted bogus check operators in the country. The Worcester police recognize in Bateman a man who served a term in the penitentiary for operating a confidence game. From the west come advices that Bateman is probably the man who worked off $1,000 worth of forged stock of the Home Stake Mining company of Illinois upon the First National bank of Chicago several years ago. While in Chicago Bateman is supposed to have been known as L. D Crimms. It has developed since his arrest that Bateman was at work on a scheme to purchase a farm from Joshua Cockey of Cockeysville, Md., for $14,000.

Suspense For Prizefighters.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 12.—The hearing of arguments by Judge Hollister on the application for a permanent injunction against the Jeffries-Ruhlin contest here next Friday night closed shortly after 6 o'clock last night. Judge Hollister announced at once that he would reserve his decision until 11 a. m. next Thursday. He stated that there were so many exhibits and citations of authority that he desired two days for the preparation of his findings. This means that the present suspense of the Sangerfest Athletic association, Managers Brady and Madden the contestants and others will continue until the day before the date fixed for the contest. All the arrangements at the big hall and elsewhere are completed, and the sale of tickets continues brisk.

The Hamilton Trial.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 12.—There were several features yesterday in the trial of Frank H. Hamilton for the murder of Leonard Day. The sensational fact has been revealed that no one yet has testified to seeing a blow struck during the scuffle that ended in Day's death. Force and George were recalled, and each denied positively that he had struck or cut Day. Miss Slagle, the young woman about whom Hamilton and Day quarreled, was also a witness. She declined to make any statement which would incriminate herself and was excused.

The Plague at Cape Town.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 12.—The government has decided to notify to foreign nations the fact that Cape Town is infected with the bubonic plague. There is no longer any doubt as to the nature of the disease. Another native has died of the disorder. Three additional cases are announced, and 50 persons who have been in contact with plague victims have been isolated. A temporary military hospital is being erected.

Wanted to See the Job Done.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 12.—Charles Nellis, 25 years, committed suicide yesterday at the Hotel Benson by shooting himself in the head. He placed a mirror in front of him, and placing the muzzle of the revolver on his right temple pulled the trigger. Death was instantaneous. Jealousy and ill health is said to have been the cause.

LIVELY DAY IN HOUSE

Spirited Debate Over Senate's Action on Revenue Bill.

CONFERENCE FINALLY ASKED FOR.

Sulzer of New York Talks For the Boers and Is Reminded of a So Called Benefit—Secretary Heath Attacked.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Yesterday was by far the liveliest during the present session. A very interesting debate over the constitutional limitations of the power of the senate over revenue legislation initiated by the house was precipitated when Mr. Payne, the chairman of the ways and means committee, brought in the resolution of the committee to disagree to the substitute proposed by the senate as an amendment to the war revenue reduction act and to ask for a conference with the senate.

Mr. Tawney of Minnesota championed the cause of the house and its paramount rights over revenue legislation, but was unfortunate in not bringing forward a resolution to return the bill to the senate with the declaration that the senate had transcended its powers in substituting an entirely new measure for the bill of the house.

The subsequent debate showed that had this course been adopted the proposition would have commanded a large vote. Instead, however, he insisted upon a division of the resolution, and after the first portion—to disagree—had been adopted he made the point of order that the second motion was not in order because the senate in its substitute had invaded the constitutional prerogative of the house. The result was that the members were not confronted with the direct issue, and the house voted 233 to 38 to ask for a conference.

Later in the day during the consideration of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill an impassioned pro-Boer speech by Mr. Sulzer of New York drew from Mr. Mahon of Pennsylvania a recital of the raising of a fund of about $1,200 for the benefit of the widows of Boer soldiers at a meeting held in this city at which Mr. Sulzer presided. He declared that after the "terrapin and cold bottles got in their work" only $18 was left for the Boer widows.

This stung Mr. Sulzer to reply at length. He said he had no connection with the expenditure of the fund, to which he had contributed $175, and a very lively row followed, the climax of which was reached when Mr. Sulzer had read an anonymous letter which made a sensational personal attack upon Mr. Perry S. Heath, late assistant postmaster general, who was secretary of the Republican national committee during the recent campaign, charging him with being Neely's sponsor and then denying it after the arrest of Neely and also making allegations against Mr. Heath in connection with government deposits in a New York bank. Mr. Sulzer charged Mr. Heath with being responsible for the circulation of the stories about his connection with the fund for the Boer widows.

Shortly after the senate convened the naval appropriation bill was passed. The shipping bill then was taken up and kept before the senate during the remainder of the executive day. Mr. Caffery (Dem.) of Louisiana occupied the floor throughout the session. Opposition senators made out the session.

Died From Hiccoughs.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 12.—Mr. D. H. Hammet, a resident of Thurmont, a small town on the Western Maryland railroad, is dead at the Johns Hopkins hospital from hiccoughs. Mr. Hammet's hiccoughing spell began seven days ago, but he did not become annoyed until simple remedies failed to do any good. The family physician was called in, but Mr. Hammet's hiccoughing continued. Other physicians were summoned, but the disease defied all their remedies. On Friday Mr. Hammet came to the Johns Hopkins hospital and entered as a private patient. For three days the skill of the Hopkins physicians has been exercised, but in vain. The sufferer was relieved to some extent, and on Saturday the physicians thought he was getting better, but he had a relapse.

Reformers Beyond Recall.

PEKING, Feb. 12.—Li Hung Chang paid a long visit yesterday to Sir Ernest Mason Satow, the British minister, and made explanations regarding the appointment of Ching Po Hsi to carry messages of condolence to the court of St. James on the death of Queen Victoria. The Chinese plenipotentiary explained that the special envoy was equal in rank to any one in the empire with the exception of royal personages, as a literary chancellor held the same rank as a viceroy. Recent edicts from the court show a desire to institute immediate reforms. The emperor calls for the return of those reformers who were active two years ago. Unfortunately most of them have been beheaded.

Professor Kent Called to Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 12.—Announcement is made by Secretary Anson Phelps [illegible] Jr., of the Yale corporation of the election of Charles Foster Kent to the Woolsey professorship of Biblical literature at Yale. He is at present professor of Biblical literature and history in [illegible] university. Professor Kent was graduated from Yale in the class of 1889, received the degree of doctor of philosophy in 1891 and later studied at the university of Berlin. Previous to his work in Brown university he was an instructor in the University of Chicago.

Praise For Lincoln.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Two self confessed confederates, Samuel L. Clemens and Henry Watterson, paid a high tribute to Abraham Lincoln last evening. Clemens, the humorist told how both men, who saved the Union when Colonel Watterson failed to follow the advice of Grant and Lieutenant Twain and drive Grant across the country into the ocean. It was the celebration of the ninety-second anniversary of the birth of Lincoln and was for the benefit of the Lincoln Memorial university at Cumberland Gap, Tenn. The boxes were crowded.

To Retire Hawaiian Coins.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. Senator Baker, from the committee on Pacific and Pacific islands, has reported a bill for the retirement of Hawaiian coins. The bill provides that such coins may be received at par for all government dues and that when once so received they shall not be again put into circulation.

A Speedway Needed.

The happenings of the past few days have served to bring quite forcibly before the public the need of a speedway where the local horsemen may test the relative abilities of their steeds without interfering with the rights of others. As the situation exists today, the action of the police in stopping the racing on the snow out East Front street was the only possible course. An ordinance prohibiting the fast driving of horses in the city limits exists and it is the duty of the police to see it enforced. Because a man is an official in this or any other municipality it is no reason why he should be permitted to disregard the law.

As long as that law remains on the local ordinance books, fast driving on the snow or anywhere else will not be permitted on the thoroughfares of the city. The building of a speedway for that very purpose would, however, do away with the cause of all the present trouble and allow the local horsemen to enjoy themselves without complaint from anyone. The objectors to the use of East Front street as a speedway do not object to the act itself as much as to the place where it takes place. With a wide stretch of roadway, built for and kept in condition by the horsemen of the city for that express purpose, there could be no objection.

It is to be regretted that no speedway exists at the present day where the horsemen may daily congregate and enjoy the sleighing while it lasts but the laws must be obeyed and the thoroughfares built for traffic are prohibited by ordinance from being used as a race course. The present trouble should serve to give renewed interest to the plan to build a speedway here and bring additional support to the promoters of the plan from citizens who are anxious to see the owners of fast horses given a chance to legitimately enjoy themselves.

A final meeting of the committee of ten which is in charge of the organization of the local militia company will be held this evening when it is expected that the roster of officers will be definitely chosen. A host of young men of good character and ability are anxious to be members of the company. There has been no doubt from the first but that there was plenty of good material here. The only question has been in the choice of the officers. Plainfield certainly possesses the proper men for the positions if they can only be found. With good material and the right officers Plainfield should soon have the crack company of the New Jersey National Guard, and the citizens will be glad to aid such an organization all they can, for it will be a credit and honor to the city which possesses it.

It is possible that the question of placing street signs about the Plainfield streets will be considered at the next Council meeting. The street committee is getting ready to act. While such action should have been taken long ago, it was not and the Councilmen should now lose no time in forwarding a project which is so generally favored by the citizens of Plainfield.

Councilman J. F. Buckle, chairman of the police board, believes that the young people of the city should be allowed to enjoy the winter sports without hinderance as long as they do not disturb the community. So the privilege of coasting on the Watchung avenue, so long enjoyed, will not be taken away.

People are wondering whether Mayor Jenkins will stand by his old appointment for overseer of the poor or will present a new name at the next meeting of the Common Council.

After a very successful week, the fair of the North Plainfield firemen is over and a substantial sum is added to their treasury. The funds will be used to conduct a firemen's parade in the fall.

A general opinion seems to prevail that the numerous burglaries in this city are the work of local talent and that the police will want to look near at hand for the offenders.

Weeks of skating, plenty of coasting and good sleighing have already marked the opening winter of the new century as a remarkable one.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Senator Charles A. Reed has entered the field for the Republican nomination for Governor. We trust he will prove successful. Then if "Bob" Davis will further manifest his admiration for the political principles and party work of Reed's father in-law, Alvah Clark, by insisting on his nomination as the Democratic candidate for that office we will have a campaign that should prove eminently satisfactory to Somerset county at least.—Summit Record.

Last year Governor Voorhees declined to set up a district court at New Brunswick by the appointment of a judge for such a court. His action then was said to be in accord with the majority opinion of that city, which was that a district court there was unnecessary, although the law provided for one. Now it is said that the appeal for a district court there is so pronounced that the Governor will appoint a district judge for New Brunswick during the session of the Legislature. The expense of a district court in that city would be $2,000 a year.—New York Tribune.

vantage on the Soldiers' Home.

These bills were introduced in the House:

By Mr. Dennin—Providing for the licensing of engineers.

By Mr. Foote—Permitting juries in capital cases to recommend life imprisonment instead of the death penalty.

By Mr. Groves—Providing that boards of freeholders may send pauper children to children's homes, paying for them from the county funds.

By Mr. Homer—Requiring all courts to render opinions within six months after cases are argued.

By Mr. Snyder—Permitting counties to unite in the construction of boulevards. The bill contemplates a boulevard from Perth Amboy to Atlantic City.

The House adjourned until tomorrow morning on account of Lincoln's Birthday. The Senate held a short session this morning.

Big Time for Red Men.

Great Sachem William Newcorn will make an official visitation to the Trenton Tribe, I. O. R. M., tomorrow evening, at which time the Tallyho Tribe, of Philadelphia, will be present and enter a competition to show which tribe can excell the other in the adoption work. There will be a street parade and among other festivities will be a banquet. Next Saturday evening Mr. Newcorn will visit the tribe at Camden, when the Atlantic City Tribe will exemplify the warriors' degree.

Star Course Entertainment.

The next entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course will be given by the Imperial Hand Bell Ringers Friday evening, February 22, at 8 o'clock.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, Feb. 12—Apgar's Hall was filled with the friends of the members of Court Dunellen, I. O. F., who gave a most entertaining social after the regular business of the court last evening. The members kept up their reputation as hosts by preparing a programme which pleased all in attendance. It consisted of selections by the Mandolin Banjo and Guitar Club and solos by talent from the borough. Editor C. C. McBride, of the Elizabeth Journal, was also present and delivered a complimentary address to the court members. The evening's enjoyment terminated with an enjoyable dance in which everybody participated.

The pupils of the Fifth and Sixth grades of the Whittier School enjoyed a sleighing party to Cranford yesterday afternoon in one of C. Wesley Blaine's large sleighs. There were about twenty-five in the party, and a jolly time was had both ways.

The Card Club was entertained in a very pleasant manner last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Giddes. After playing a number of games the members enjoyed the usual social hour which concluded with the serving of refreshments.

A Lincoln birthday social will be held in the Methodist church this evening at which a patriotic programme will be rendered. An admission fee will be charged at the door.

IMPROVEMENTS AT GROCERY.

Gulick and Co. are Preparing to Resume Business at Old Stand.

The store of C. E. Gulick & Company, corner of Duer street and Lincoln place, which was destroyed by fire a short time ago, is being remodeled and the firm expect to have everything ready for business in about two weeks. Heretofore the store could only be reached by a flight of steps, which were very unhandy. It has been decided to do away with these steps, and to do so the floor of the store will be lowered three feet to bring it on a level with the sidewalk. This is a much needed improvement and will be appreciated by many.

Ants, Cockroaches, Bed Bugs.

Mix, say, a 25c. box of "Rough on Rats" carefully with a pound or so of mashed boiled potatoes, or with a loaf of finely crumbled dampened bread, or two tin cups of fine powdered sugar, and place about their haunts, out of reach of children or pet animals. Even the hardier Black Cockroaches, Beetles, Wood or Water Bugs, in one or two applications will be completely annihilated. "Rough on Rats" is the only thing that will effectually and permanently annihilate Bed Bugs, and it stands unrivalled the world over for the prompt and effective extermination of Rats and Mice. 15 and 25 boxes at druggists.

Passed Resolution of Sympathy.

At the rehearsal of "Elijah" last evening, every member of the chorus united in an expression of sympathy concerning the sudden death of Robert Luckey, a member of the chorus. The secretary was instructed to convey to the family of the departed the sympathy and deep feeling of regret felt by all. Mr. Luckey had been rehearsing up to a short time ago, and he was highly esteemed by all for his genial manner.

PERSONAL JOTTINGS COLLECTED IN CITY AND BOROUGH.

Daily Doings of Plainfielders and Their Guests Carefully Collected and Tersely Told.

Miss Nettie Newcorn, of West Front street, has recovered from a recent illness.

Miss Edima Wikoff, of Woodhull & Martin's store, started yesterday on a week's vacation.

Herbert Martin, of the Jersey City Journal, spent Sunday in Plainfield with his parents.

Mrs. Frank Vanderhoff, of West Front street, has recovered from a long and tedious illness.

Miss Nettie Young, of Central avenue, has taken a position with Miss Gassner, of West Front street.

J. Whitney Baker, of Stelle avenue, has returned to Princeton University after spending a few days at home.

Miss Elizabeth D. Kepler, of Manning avenue, has recovered from her recent severe illness and is able to be again.

As Eager as Before.

She was at a party. He had not yet arrived, but she was momentarily expecting him. The hum of conversation through the room had no significance for her; all her faculties were bent on the front door.

Every time it opened, at every step in the hall, she would start, while her face would flush and her eyes light up with feverish expectation. Then the color would go back from her cheeks, her eyes would dull and her heart sink when another man than he came into the room.

Finally he arrived and took a seat beside her, and she leaned over his shoulder and joyously murmured:

"My darling! my darling!"

She was too happy to say aught more.

Ten years later and he again waits. It is in their own home now. His step is on the stoop; he opens the door. She springs quickly to the hall.

"Wipe your boots!" she screams.—London Spare Moments.

Costly Century of War.

It was a costly century of war that Englishmen had to look back upon a hundred years ago. The fighting record began in 1702 with the war of the Spanish succession, which cost £62,500,000. The Spanish war of 1739 absorbed £54,000,000 before it was settled at Aix-la-Chapelle nine years later. The seven years' war cost £112,000,000 and the American war £136,000,0000. Most expensive of all was the French revolutionary war, begun in 1793, which cost this country £464,000,000. If we extend the retrospect back to 1688 and up to 1815 we find there were in that period 62 years of peace, and that the 65 years of war cost us £2,023,000,000. The largest item in this vast total was, of course, the campaign against Bonaparte, which in 12 years cost us £1,159,000,000.—London Chronicle.

Not His Day for Selling.

"Does you want to see de president of de road?" queried the colored man who sat in a chair at the head of the stairs.

"Yes; he's the man I want to see," replied the caller.

"'Bout a pass or suthin'?"

"About buying the road for $50,000,000. Can you attend to the business for me?"

"I 'spects I could, sah, but, dis bein' my second day yere an' bein' I ain't feelin' powerful well, perhaps you'd better see de president hisself—right down de hall an' second doah to de left, sah."—Chicago Daily News.

Wonders of a Watch.

Many watches make 5 beats per second, 300 each minute, 18,000 every hour, or 432,000 per day. Thus it will be seen that a half-dozen turns of the key once a day, taking up four seconds of time, stores up a modicum of power in the spring which is cut up into nearly 500,000 beats. If you multiply the daily beats by 365¼, the number of days in the year, you find that the watch ticks 157,788,000 times while the earth is making one annual trip around the sun.—Watchmaker's Journal.

Needed a Hyphen.

"Don't say 'photographt business,'" said the photographer's friend. "It's 'photograph,' not 'photographt.'"

"Oh, I don't know," replied the candid photographer. "If I can make photos for about seven cents apiece, and sell 'em for seven dollars a dozen, I guess that's a 'photo-graft.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Her Singing.

Father—You heard my daughter sing last night?

Artist—Yes.

"Did you observe the birdlike quality of her notes?"

"Ah—er—there are so many kinds of birds, don't you know."—Detroit Free Press.

Holding Consumption in Check.

Deaths from consumption in Philadelphia are estimated to be one-third less than they were 15 years ago. The health authorities say the improvement is due to their continuous battle against the disease.—N. Y. Sun.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

Preußen.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Die Zahl der Fernsprechanschlüsse Berlins beträgt seit Kurzem mehr als 50,300.—Das Monument des Kaisers Friedrich des Dritten, das vor dem Brandenburger Thor aufgestellt wird, ist in der Herstellung begriffen. Es wird eine Kolossalstatue aus Marmor und von zwei kleineren Standbildern, dem des Generals Blumenthal und des Professors v. Helmholtz, flankirt. Die Enthüllung wird am 18. Oktober, dem Geburtstage des Kaisers Friedrich, stattfinden. — Der Bürger Karl Schwartz hat bei seinem Scheiden aus dem Kollegium der Aeltesten der Berliner Kaufmannschaft den Aeltesten den Betrag von 15,000 Mark als eine Spezialstiftung für die Friedrich Wilhelm-Viktoria-Stiftung (Asylhaus) überreicht. — Unter großer Betheiligung fand das Begräbniß des früheren Berliner Oberbürgermeisters Zelle statt.

Charlottenburg. Der Vorsteher der Charlottenburger Filiale der Mitteldeutschen Kreditbank, Gallus, wurde wegen Betrugs verhaftet. Sein Mitschuldiger, Daniel, ist geflohen.

Köpenik. Auf dem Eise eingebrochen und ertrunken sind dahier die 16jährige Anna Schneider und die 19jährige Marie Lukajewska.

Kottbus. Neulich ist hier im Alter von 50 Jahren der Fabrikbesitzer Franz Koppe gestorben. Der Heimgegangene war Stadtverordneter und langjähriger Vorsitzender des „Liberalen Vereins."

Provinz Hannover.

Leer. Durch Sturmfluthen wurde der neue Hafen hierorts ganz zerstört, an dem in Emden ward großer Schaden angerichtet. In Leer wurden viele Einwohner von dem Wasser in den Betten überrascht, und sie mußten in schleuniger Flucht ihr Heil suchen. In den Straßen lagen Eisschollen von Mannshöhe, Deiche wurden von scharfkantigen Eisstücken durchschnitten; von vielen Behausungen riß die Fluth die Bedachungen fort. Eine Anzahl Häuser brach zusammen.

Osnabrück. Vor der Strafkammer stand ein gewerbsmäßiger Zopfabschneider in der Person des Klempners Honderlage. Derselbe hatte Mädchen die Zöpfe mit einem Messer abgeschnitten. Er wurde zu 1 Jahr 6 Monaten Gefängniß verurtheilt. Honderlage hatte schon früher in sehr zahlreichen Fällen jungen Mädchen die Zöpfe ausgerissen, wofür er vor Jahren zu längerer Gefängnißstrafe verurtheilt worden war.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Frankfurt. Das Schwurgericht verurtheilte den Gefängniß-Inspektor Habermann, der vor Jahresfrist mit der Gefängnißkasse geflüchtet war und später in Berlin ergriffen wurde, wegen Unterschleife in Höhe von 3000 Mark zu drei Jahren Gefängniß.

Weilburg. Seit mehreren Tagen waren die Läden an der Wohnung der Briefträgerswittwe Fischer verschlossen. Nach gewaltsamer Oeffnung fand man die Frau und ihren 20jährigen Sohn in Folge Ausströmens von Gas leblos in den Betten. Wiederbelebungsversuche hatten nur bei dem jungen Manne Erfolg.

Provinz Pommern.

Stettin. Auf der Werft der Stettiner Maschinenbau-Aktiengesellschaft „Vulkan" fand kürzlich der Stapellauf des für die russische Regierung erbauten geschützten Kreuzers „Bogatyr" statt.

Belgard. Mit Hinterlassung von mehr als 180,000 Mark Schulden ist der Kaufmann Barthold Simon, Vertreter der Holzfirma Valentin & Markwardt, verschwunden.

Provinz Posen.

Posen. Die Stadtverordneten verliehen dem langjährigen Stadtverordnetenvorsteher, Geheimen Justizrath Orgler, der wegen hohen Alters und geschwächter Gesundheit sein Amt niedergelegt hatte, das Ehrenbürgerrecht.

Inowrazlaw. An Kohlengasvergiftung starben hier der Polizist Lessing und in Obornik die Arbeiterfrau Wiczorek.

Jarotschin. Bei Erdarbeiten auf dem Pfarrlande zu Siedlemin stieß man auf ein künstlich mit Steinplatten zugedecktes Steinkistengrab, das gegen 90 Centimeter lang und 60 Centimeter breit ist. In demselben fand man eine mit einem Steindeckel verschlossene Urne und daneben eine gut erhaltene Steinaxt.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Königsberg. In welchem Umfange der Radfahrersport in den letzten Jahren zugenommen hat, beweisen die in den letzten vier Jahren in hiesiger Stadt ausgegebenen Radfahrkarten. Während im Jahre 1897 im Ganzen 2676 Radfahrkarten ausgestellt worden waren, belief sich die Zahl derselben im Jahre 1898 bereits auf 4394, im Jahre 1899 auf 6312 und im Jahre 1900 auf 8064.

Pillau. Da ein sehr großer Theil der Haff- und Seefischer der einfachsten nautischen Kenntnisse entbehrt, so sind für sie an der hiesigen königlichen Navigationsschule Unterrichtsabende eingerichtet worden. Der Unterricht erfolgt kostenfrei.

I am forty-four years of age, a native of New York City, but living now in Texas. Have no occupation, but live with my son, who is a "ranchman." The diet being so different in every way to what I have always been accustomed brought on severe attacks of indigestion. I tried everything prescribed or advertised, with no permanent relief. At last I determined to send for two of the 5-cent cartons of Ripans Tabules. After taking the first box I began to feel better—after eating. I continued taking them, two each day. I sent for more, so certain do I feel that they will cure me.

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Doan's Kidney Pills will give renewed life.
They will cure the backache.
Cure every kidney ill.
Here is Plainfield proof that this is so.
Mrs. Valentine Utzinger, of 75 Grandview avenue, says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for six years; I doctored and used various kinds of medicine with little or no result. I had almost a constant sharp darting pain across my back, and if I ever exerted myself or took cold I suffered severely. I always felt it most when the weather was damp. While in this condition I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and my son bought me a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I started to use them at once, following directions closely. They helped the pain in my back, and relieved my other difficulty. I give all the credit for this relief to Doan's Kidney Pills for they are beyond a doubt a grand medicine for kidney trouble."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

BRIDAL GOWNS.

General Hints Concerning Their Style and Material.

Although the princess form is considered the most elegant for bridal gowns, it is by no means obligatory, and all arrangements of skirts and high bodices may be adapted to the purpose, a train being understood as essential. The skirt should also be long enough in front so that the feet do not appear, even when the wearer is walking. Unless the bride is heavily built, with broad shoulders, some corsage arrangement should be chosen which has the effect of widening them. A scarf tied across the bosom is also very pretty. A great many wide, draped corselet belts are seen which conceal the junction of the skirt and bodice. A fastening at the back of the bodice is to be avoided, as the back view of the bride is the one most generally seen by the guests. Fastenings under the arm are always preferable. The sleeves are very long and tight. Lace veils are fashionable, but expensive and not becoming, and have to be worn at the back of the head to avoid the awkward appearance of the design marring the features. Plain tulle is much prettier and is often selected on that account. With a lace veil the gown of plain satin is preferable to all others, but with the tulle veil there is a wide choice of gown material. The crown of orange blossoms is very small, hardly more than a spray.

The picture shows a close fitting jacket of black cloth, with a short basque, forming a point in front and double rounded tabs at the back. The jacket crosses and fastens with three ornamental buttons, the edge finished with a band of astrakhan. The basque, seams and top and wrists of the tight sleeves have a cord decoration, and there are bands of astrakhan at the wrists. The little guimpe and high collar are of astrakhan. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WRAPS.

Outside Garments For Children and Women.

The straight, long redingote, very little curved at the waist, is the style preferred for children's coats, which are chiefly made of cloth, with a collar of fur or velvet. Sometimes there are little pelerines over the shoulders. Cloaks entirely of fur are not used for children, fur being usually confined to the collar, revers and wrists.

For women the half length sack is undoubtedly the characteristic wrap of the season, and there is every reason to believe its reign will continue as a coat for demi-season and traveling after the end of winter. A few capes of three-quarter length are still seen, but they are only worn for occasions of hard service, such as rainy days and for journeys.

CARRIAGE WRAP.

The picture illustrates a long carriage wrap of cloth. It is in the form of a large cape, lined with plaid flannel and bordered with galloon and lines of stitching. Around the shoulders is a pelerine or short cape similarly bordered and closed by two tabs with enameled buttons. This pelerine outlines a sort of yoke. The collar, very high and flaring, is stitched and closed by an enameled button. The pelerine is lined with satin matching the color of the cloth. A soft felt hat is worn, with a trimming of a band, a buckle and two quills.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER MODES.

Materials and Colors For Women of Different Ages.

Rich, heavy materials, such as velvet, broche satin and brocade, are used for ball gowns for those who do not dance and who are old enough to wear them. These goods require little trimming, as the richness of the fabric is better than any ornamentation, but old lace is always an appropriate addition and a dignified and suitable accessory for an elderly woman. As far as color is concerned, it is best to avoid anything of a vivid or striking nature, and for a stout figure dark shades are invariably best, but a slender woman, especially if she has gray or white hair, often appears charming in pearl gray, oyster white, ecru, lavender and similar pale, nondescript tints.

For young women all colors are admissible. Formerly young girls were seldom seen in anything except white, blue or pink, but now red, mauve, green and yellow are worn by the youngest if they desire.

The cut illustrates a reception gown having a long redingote of black satin with bolero fronts decorated with embroidery of white galloon and metal. The pagoda sleeves are similarly trimmed, and beneath them are full sleeves of luxeuil lace gathered in at the wrist. The wide bertha is of lace also. Beneath this redingote are a skirt and bodice of poppy red moire. The top of the bodice is adorned with cords and little buttons, and the foot of the skirt has a deep application of ecru luxeuil lace. The collar is embroidered. The hat, composed of black velvet, is trimmed with black plumes, with a large band of red velvet draped over the front. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Jackets and Wraps Which Prevail This Season.

The jacket has not entirely disappeared, but in the majority of cases it has experienced much modification and approximates to the bolero.

ing preferred. The medici collar, long a feature of winter wraps, has been somewhat modified and now encircles the throat very closely, flaring and turning over only toward the back.

A new model for a wrap for an elderly woman is a bolero extending to the waist at the back. In front it forms two long ends like a mantle. The sleeves are tight. This may be made of cloth or of material like the gown.

The illustration gives a suggestion for a walking costume. The skirt is plain and is composed of black satin. The close fitting short jacket is of astrakhan, the basque forming two deep points in front. It closes at the left side with three large ornamental buttons and has a single revers of satin ornamented with embroidery and application of black velvet and gold. The high, flaring collar is of astrakhan, the sleeves tight, with flaring wrists. The hat of gray velvet is trimmed with draperies of black velvet and with velvet roses of various shades.

Amatuerism and Professionalism in BOWLING CIRCLES

AS THE rollers are busy on the 28,000 regulation bowling alleys of the United States, striving for strikes and "blowing" spares, they may or may not be interested in knowing that the American bowling congress has no new rules or regulations to enforce. The game of ten-pins just now seems to have progressed so far that there will have to be more development by rollers before the congress will have occasion for remodeling rules.

Next January in Buffalo, delegates from the scores of leagues represented in the national governing body will meet to go through the same sort of a performance that they exploited in the recent annual session. The greatest reform needed in bowling—that of drawing the line of demarcation between the professional and the amateur roller, will fare no better at Buffalo than it did at the Chicago session. It seems impossible to keep the bowling alley expert from competition with men who play merely for the love of the sport. The wife of an amateur enthusiast in rolling says that her husband's love or infatuation for the game keeps the money from flowing into the home treasury. The wife of the expert never complains, because she realizes that by his prowess her husband keeps the home treasury supplied. So long as saloon-keepers and alley owners are the powerful element among the delegates to the American bowling congress, the amateurs need look for no change in the present conditions. To appease the "simon pure" amateurs, the delegates amended one rule to make it read that alley employes would be debarred from accepting individual prizes, although they might roll in contests.

It was my pleasure to attend the sessions of the American Bowling congress—indeed, I was a delegate and cast a vote in that memorable balloting for president. So many matters of importance were buried in the chaos of the session that more than one delegate was heard to say that the delegates would have to pay more attention to the preliminary form of proceedings or the bowlers of the country who looked to the representatives for their guidance would be disheartened.

Gottfred Langhenry, the president of the Illinois Bowling association, general manager of the A. B. C. national tourney that was held on six newly constructed tournament alleys, and former member of the state legislature, was chosen to act as chief executive of the A. B. C. in an election that would have been called crude by the Chippewas. Dr. Timm, the retiring head of the congress, seemed to be in the hands of the eastern clique that wished to elect almost anybody but the choice of the western delegates. Despite the good natured mummery before the hat in which the ballots were cast, by a patriarch of the game who acted as teller in chief, and the hurrahing of the big eastern contingent, Mr. Langhenry was chosen by a safe margin. President Charles H. Ebbets, of the Brooklyn Baseball club, who was the chief opponent of Mr. Langhenry, was given to understand—politely but effectively—that baseball was not bowling. He was badly beaten and naively informed the delegates that he had run in the race because Brooklyn wanted a man as leader of the congress.

Mr. Langhenry has been criticised more than a little for ungallantry in refusing to acknowledge the "national" tournament that the women rollers held during the week of bowling for the A. B. C. championships, but his grounds for declaring against the women's tourney are that they had no state leagues and therefore their local organization formed to handle the tourney could not stretch the imagination of the followers of bowling to see the tournament as a national institution. He was opposed to the holding of the women's competition, but the latter was a success anyway. However, Mr. Langhenry is a lawyer and he will make a good executive for the A. B. C.

For a hard-working running-mate President Langhenry has Sam Karpf, of Dayton, O., the former manager of the Greater New York bowling teams and the enthusiast who is known on more bowling alleys than any other character now before the public. Karpf is a stickler for discipline and business, and he fairly gnashed his teeth over the loose way in which the committee conducted the annual championships.

"There was a protest entered by a Chicago roller against Starr and Voorheis, the New York winning two-handed team competitors," said Mr. Karpf. "To have granted this protest would have made a lot of bad feeling, and besides it would have arraigned the makers of bowlers' goods with putting out lignum vitae balls just from the lathe, and considerably over size. That would never do. The official ring should have been tried upon every ball used there, before it was thrown down the alley, to see that it was not over 27 inches in circumference.

"Inasmuch as the test was not made, the protest committee took no formal notice of the protest and awarded the two-men team championship to Messrs. Starr and Voorheis, of New York. The next national championship will be conducted on such close lines that no detail like this will be overlooked."

There can be little but scorn for the unsportsmanlike bowlers who attended the championship, participated in the sport of the week, and rolled on all of the six especially built alleys, and returned to their homes but to fill the papers with their complaints about the alleys and the winners. The Standard Bowling club, of the North Chicago league, one of the pioneer clubs of the west, entered a five-man team, and it easily captured the first honors. Nearly all of the defeated competitors freely complimented the team on its showing, and acknowledged that it had won championship honors. But the real test of bowling came in the individual championship contest. A field of 116 of the best bowlers in the country entered and rolled. Frank Brill, a former member of the Greater New York team, but now a Chicago bowler, won the championshsip. There was no dispute about his supremacy. His games were carefully, but not brilliantly bowled, and he made the very good figures of 212, 237 and 199, a total of 648. J. Koster, of New York, has scores of 224, 207 and 190, and was second in the long list. Brill made 18 strikes in the three games, ten spares and erred but once. Upon one occasion he had a "railroad" that was impossible to execute.

Brill is 36 years old, and has had a wonderful record in bowling tourneys since 1889. He will not discuss his successes, but to a close friend he once said he had never been worse than third in any tourney in which he had participated. A strange thing about him is his readiness to roll, whether in an exhibition or league game, without a bit of practice.

Perhaps no roller of prominence in the United States takes so little practice as Brill. I have known the champion for three years and in that time I never saw him practice before playing in an important game. He was a busy man with a number of details of his business up to a few minutes before his name was called to go on the alleys to play for the championship. The total score of 606 was the mark he had to beat. "If I have luck I can get close to that," was all Brill would say.

Styles in bowling as exhibited by the expert rollers from all over the country show that many of the bowlers are impressed with the curve delivery. On new alleys, freshly treated with shellac, this curve delivery is treacherous unless the roller has perfect command of the ball. Nearly every bowler started the ball from the side and only a few delivered the lignum vitae from the left hand side. "Nick" Thyne, the man who began to bowl for prizes 25 years ago, when he wagered his horse and wagon against $25 that he would win, was the Nestor among the rollers. In the team work he had no trouble in getting above the 200 mark, but his total in the individual championship was disappointing. The grip, which confined many of the visitors to the congress tourney to their rooms, affected Thyne's work. He was far from himself. Speed tells with these experts. They get all there is out of the collision between the balls and the pins and often, by a stop watch, they put the ball down the alley in a trifle over two seconds. Elwood Silver and Fred Clich, New York rollers, did not do their best in the individual contests, but the conservative expert would pick these men as the bowlers with the most effective style. The holding of the A. B. C. tournament in the west undoubtedly resulted in much good for the game.
